FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The secretary of the navy has ordered Commander F. M. Barber to assume his new post as naval attache to the embassy of London January 17th, relieving Lieutent Commander W. S. Cowles, who will return home and hold himself in readiness for duty as executive officer of the new cruiser Olympia.

The Stewart syndicate, which purchased the entire second issue of $50,000,000 bonds for which they paid $58,538,500 and accrued interest, have so far received only $40,200,000 of bonds. The rest are ready for delivery but have not yet been called for. Bonds draw interest from the date of issue, whether delivered or not, and the treasury bears the expense of the first delivery to the purchasing party.

Interesting developments are expected at an early day as a result of the strained conditions between the United States and European countries over the tariff. Spain has already placed the United States in "The First Column," and Gresham has rejoined by directing Minister Taylor at Madrid to notify the Spanish government that if the United States is not removed from the "First Column" this country will retaliate.

Representative Mallory, of Florida, who is a member of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce having in charge the bill for the improvement of the revenue service, by the retirement of officers who have become disabled or incapacitated by age, says that he has not despaired of getting the bill through. It is very probable that immediately after the holidays an attempt will be made to pass the bill under suspension of the rules.

The United Stres consul at Copenhagen, in a report to the state department, calls attention to the fine opportunity for the development of the American lumber business accorded by the opening of the free port of Denmark. The lumber can be stored without payment of duty until sold for use in Denmark. American white oak is very popular, and there is also a good market for poplar, walnut and pitch pine. All of the lumber exported to Denmark should be well seasoned.

Nicaragua Canal Bill's Chances.

Members of the democratic steering committee of the senate committee do not believe that the Nicaragua canal bill will go through at the present session, but that in place of it there will be passed a strong declaration in favor of the construction of the canal and government control of it. It is even possible that in one of the appropriation bills provision will be made for the examination and survey of the canal by an engineer commission, which will report at the next congress. Friends of the canal bill believe that it will become a law notwithstanding the opposition that has developed.

Springer's Substitute.

The following is the Springer substitute for the Carlisle currency bill as laid before the house:

1. Permitting the deposit of currency certificates issued under section 5193 of the Revised Statutes, to secure circulation, as well as the deposit of legal tender continually held in the treasury, and the effect of depositing certificates is, therefore, the same precisely as to requre the deposit of notes.

2. So amending the present law as to permit state banks to deposit legal tender notes and procure these currency certificates in the same manner that national banks are now permitted to do.

3. Dispensing with the provision which authorizes an assessment upon the national banks to replenish the safety fund for the redemption of the notes of failed banks and, in place of this provision, insert one providing that the collection of the one-fourth of a cent tax for each half year shall be resumed when the safety fund is impaired and continued until the safety fund is restored.

4. Authorizing the comptroller of the currency, instead of the banks themselves, to designate the agencies at which national bank notes shall be redeemed. The effect of this will be to secure the redemption not only at the office of the bank, but other places accessible to note holders.

5. Dispense with the provision compelling existing national banks to withdraw their bonds not on deposit, and take out circulation under the system, and, in lieu of that provision, insert one permitting the banks to withdraw their bonds, if they see proper to do so, by depositing lawful money as now provided by law, and then to take out circulation under the new system, if they choose to do so.

6. Providing that notes of failed national banks which are not redeemed on demand at the choice of the treasurer of the United States or an assistant treasurer of the United States shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the date of the suspension of the bank until thirty days after public notice has been given that the funds are on hand for their redemption.

This imposes no obligation on the part of the United States to use its own funds for the redemption, as the safety fund is in the hands of the treasurer, and he will redeem notes out of that fund.

It is not necessary to repeat the repealing clause in section 7, as reconstructed, because section 1, as proposed to be amended, repeals all bond requirements as to banks taking out circulation under the proposed bill; nor is it necessary in section 7 to set out how the notes of existing banks shall be redeemed when lawful money has been deposited, because the present law provides for all that.

In regard to the provision making the notes of failed banks bear interest, it is absolutely necessary to require their presentation at some place before they begin to bear interest, otherwise it is impossible to frame a clause which would not make all of these notes bear interest from the date of suspension, even though there might be funds on hand to pay them. There are ten subtreasuries in the United States, and there would be no difficulty in presenting the notes if the holder of them has any doubt about their immediate redemption, and thus make them bear interest.

FLAGLER IS NOT WORRIED

And Says the Texas Authorities Can Capture Him at Pleasure.

Henry M. Flagler does not seem at all disturbed over the action of Governor Mitchell, of Florida, in declaring his intention to recognize a requisition of the governor of Texas for the surrender of Flagler to the Texas authorities. Just at present Mr. Flagler is in New York. He was in Florida about two weeks ago, and says he intends to return there this month. In an interview Mr. Flagler declares that he will be in a position to be captured by the Texas authorities about Jan. 20th, when he expects to return to Florida and remain for the winter with his family. Governor Mitchell, Flagler said, is a lawyer, and he cannot understand why Florida's chief executive should have pursued a course different from that of the governors of New York and Missouri. It was well known to Texas officials that he was in Florida a couple of weeks ago and the tardy action of Governor Hogg, Flagler said, indicated to his mind that the anxiety for his arrest was not very great. He denied that he was a fugitive from the justice of Texas, as he has never been in the state.

GEN. O'FERRALL IS WRATHY.

He Proposes to Bring Suit Against a Newspaper for Libel.

The Norfolk, Va., Pilot in a recent issue printed a long statement about the American Book Company and the Virginia state board of education, in which it charges a corrupt deal between the book company and the state board, by which the books of the company were put on the state list. It is charged by inference that the superintendent of public instruction, Hon. John E. Massey, was bribed and that Governor O'Ferrall and Attorney General Scott, the other members of the board, were guilty at least of gross negligence.

Governor O'Ferrall is very indignant at the charge against himself. He says that he will proceed against the Pilot for libel and will appoint a committee to investigate the charges, all of which, he says, are maliciously false, so far as they relate to himself.

Gold Goes Glimmering.

The treasury department was informed Thursday that $500,000 in gold was withdrawn at New York for export. This reduces the gold reserve to $88,569,000.

BLOOD FLOWED.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY ENACTED IN AUGUSTA, GA.

Four Men Shot in Attempting to Arrest a Murderer.

A blood-curdling tragedy occurred in Augusta, Ga., as a result of which one man was killed and two others fatally wounded.

A negro desperado and murderer from South Carolina shot three policemen and an old white man named Davis; two of the officers—Detective Murray and Policeman Stringer—are both shot in the head and will probably die. Policeman Wrenn is shot in the leg and Davis was shot in the breast, dying within an hour. The terrible affair was precipitated by the attempted arrest of James Wiggins, a South Carolina negro, who the night before shot down another negro named Anderson Williams and murdered him in cold blood. Wiggins went to another old man's house and tried to kill him, but the old fellow escaped.

The murderer crossed over to Augusta and the officers were notified of his presence and hiding place. They surrounded the house where Wiggins had taken refuge. The party consisted of Detective Murray, Policemen Stringer and Wrenn, Sergeant Damsash and Lieutenant Desmond. The house was surrounded. By this time hundreds of people had been attracted to this place. Murray knocked at the door, but as he did so he saw a negro peep out through the crack of the door and then slam it and evidently lock it.

"He's there!" the crowd began yelling, and Murray, with his pistol drawn, threw himself against the door and it crashed in. A negro was inside with two long, nickel-plated pistols drawn and ready for fight. As the detective forced himself in the room the firing began and it was so fast that the shots could not be distinguished apart. Policeman Stringer had also burst in the other door.

The excitement was terrific. The shooting occurred in the space of five seconds, then the negro sprang from the back door and rushed towards Reynolds street. Neither Murray nor Stringer appeared in the pursuit. They had been shot down in the house. Policeman Wrenn and Lieutenant Desmond followed, firing at every step. Hundreds of people joined in the chase, many of them having a pistol trying to bring down the desperado. Wiggins was finally brought to bay, but he turned on his pursuers and Policeman Wrenn was shot twice in the leg and old man Davis received a bullet in his breast. It was not until the negro had emptied his pistols that he was captured. The crowd was infuriated and wanted to lynch the prisoner. But Lieutenant Desmond and all the policemen, in fact, had their pistols drawn and warned the crowd to keep away or some one would be hurt. Had some leader appeared the crowd would undoubtedly have tried to take the negro from the officers. Detective Murray's condition is precarious. He is shot twice in the face. Policeman Stringer's eye was shot completely out. The negro received a slight flesh wound in the right breast.

Mr. Davis, who was killed, was standing outside of his house, and was a disinterested party. He received a ball in the left chest, an inch above the heart.

DEBBS ENJOYED CHRISTMAS.

His Sentence Stayed by Judge Woods to January 8th.

President Debbs, and the other directors of the American Railway union, had a chance to spend christmas with their families, notwithstanding the fact that the 24th was the day set for them to go to jail and begin serving their sentences for contempt of court. Judge Woods extended the stay of sentence to January 8. At the request of the defendants' counsel he also modified his original order so as to make the sentences cumulative instead of concurrent, the sentences in the government case to begin January 8 and in the Santa Fe when the government sentences shall have expired. The defendants' counsel made this request to facilitate the legal proceeding, which will be instituted to free the men.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Francis II, the late king of Naples, died Thursday at Arco, in the Austrian Tyrol.

It is rumored in Cincinnati that the attorney for Madeline Pollard will attach the receipts of Breckinridge's lecture tour in payment of her breach of promise verdict.

Sicily has suffered from severe earthquakes in the last twenty-four hours, and much damage is reported to have been done. Messina and Milazzo felt the shocks most keenly.

S. G. Holmes, conducting a retail and wholesale dry goods house in Denison, Texas, and Sherman, have made an assignment. The liabilities are not given, but they will probably reach $75,000.

A bill was filed in the federal court at Springfield, Ill., Thursday, asking for the foreclosure of a mortgage against the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis (consolidated) railway and sale of the property.

A Raleigh special says: There is a strong movement for a North Carolina exhibit at Atlanta, and all the leading newspapers are heartily urging the appropriation of $20,000. Prominent members of the legislature favor it.

The report of the legislative councils committee of Calcutta, India, recommends that no change be made at present in the limit of exemption for cotton yarns, and recommends the admission, free of duty, of all vessels intended for use in inland waters.

The new passenger station at Anderson, Ind., for the new divisions of the Big Four railroad, was totally destroyed Thursday morning by fire. The ticket office and express effects were saved. The station was the finest union station owned exclusively by the Big Four road, and the loss is heavy.

Negotiations for the transfer of the coal mines at Rock Springs, Wyo., to Chicago capitalists have culminated in the acquirement by E. F. Lawrence of the First National bank, representing a syndicate of 940 acres of coal land and its other property from the Rock Springs Coal Company for $150,000.

A special from Guaymas, Mexico, says: Another crime has been committed by a band of marauding Indians in the western part of the state. They visited the ranch of Juilo Gardinas and massacred the latter and his entire family, consisting of a wife and two children. A detachment of government troops went out in pursuit of the Indians, and it is reported that they came up with them and had a skirmish in which several of the Yaquis were killed.

Fire occurred Thursday night in a three-story brick building at Buffalo, N. Y., occupied by Eckhardt & Co., Oswald Tinkler and Charles Weisman as stores. The fire spread over the whole block and across Broadway to a three-story brick block, burning out John H. Eckhardt, furniture; Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's store; Frost's grocery, Cobler's furnishing goods store, Kakur's real estate office and Stover's grocery store. The loss will reach $300,000.

AFTER MILLIONAIRE FLAGLER.

A Requisition from Gov. Hogg, of Texas to Gov. Mitchell, of Florida.

Governor Mitchell, of Florida, has received a requisition from Governor Hogg, of Texas, for Henry M. Flagler, of St. Augustine, Fla., the railway, hotel and Standard oil magnate. Flagler and other Standard oil magnates have been indicted in the Texas courts for violating the anti-trust laws of that state, and Governor Hogg is determined to bring the indicted millionaire to trial. Some time ago he forwarded requisitions to Governor Flower, of New York, for John D. Rockefeller and others who reside in that state, but Governor Flower refused to honor the requisitions. Now he turns attention to Henry M. Flagler, who is a citizen of Florida. It is said that Governor Mitchell will honor the requisition.

The Special Will be Put on Again.

It is announced that the New York and Florida special which has been a feature of the southern travel for several years, will be put in service again this season over the Atlantic Coast line, the first train running Monday, January 7th. It will leave New York daily except Sunday at 4:30 o'clock p. m., and Washington at 10:48, arriving at Jacksonville the next evening at 7:05 o'clock and St. Augustine at 8:15 o'clock.

WINTER'S BLASTS.

THE WHOLE COUNTRY SHIVERS FROM A BLIZZARD'S BREATH.

Snow, Ice, Wind or Rain Reported from All Points of the Compass.

A Washington special says: From a weather bureau view, the chief character of Thursday's storm was the rapidity of its development and movement, this result being largely due to a barometric pressure in Montana of 31.2 inches, the highest recorded by the weather bureau.

It was clear in the vicinity of Washington during morning, and by night time the storm had moved into Maine, leaving snow and slush behind.

Rain or snow fell generally east of the Mississippi, while from west of that river cold weather and high winds prevailed.

Bismarck, N. D., led the cold weather stations at 24 below, and it was 18 below at many points in the far northwest. Storm signals were displayed all along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Damage to shipping is feared, as the wind's velocity ranged from 40 to 70 miles an hour.

Of the ninety-seven Western Union wires extending from Washington to New York, only two were in fair working order at 10 o'clock a. m.

Signals were displayed on the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville to Eastport, and at Chicago, Milwaukee, Grand Haven, Manistee and Ludington. The storm which developed in the gulf states moved rapidly northeastward along the Atlantic coast, increasing in energy. It was attended by snow in the New England and middle states and by rain or snow in the middle Atlantic and gulf states.

SUFFERING IN NEBRASKA.

Farmers in Some Sections of the State in a Deplorable Condition.

A special from Niobrara, Neb., says: The suffering among the inhabitants of the drought-blighted part of Nebraska, including three-fourths of the residents of five counties, is becoming more intense daily, and immediate steps alone can prevent many deaths by starvation. Three years ago the farmers of these drought-blighted counties raised a very light crop, and the past two years the crops have been almost total failures. Many families have not enough provisions in their homes for one week's sustenance, and no money to purchase the necessities of life. Many of the merchants here feel that they have aided the poor farmers to the extent of their ability, and are unable to do any more for them or to sell them goods on credit.

The sufferers cannot obtain employment, and unless they receive aid very soon, it is the general opinion that many will starve to death, and should the weather turn very cold, many will freeze to death, as it is a fact that many are bad off for clothes.

A DISASTROUS COLLISION.

Seventeen People Injured and Many Cars Smashed.

As a result of a collision between two passenger trains, near Waxahachie, Texas, seventeen persons were badly injured. The westbound Texas Central passenger train was slowly passing over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway crossing, when the southbound passenger train on the latter road crashed into the rear coach, striking it squarely in the middle and overturning it. Passengers and seats were piled in a mass in the forward part of the car. An instant later the car caught fire from an overturned stove, but was extinguished before any person was badly burned.

After a half hour's hard work the wounded passengers were gotten out. Two persons were found fatally, and fifteen seriously injured. It seems almost miraculous that no one was killed outright as the coach was crushed like an egg shell.

Charges Against Fellows Dismissed.

Governor Flower has dismissed the charges against District Attorney Fellows of New York city. The governor says: "It is clear to me that the important charge that the district attorney has neglected his duty in not bringing indicted persons to trial is not only wholly unproved but it is actually disproved by the evidence."

SEELEY IN THE PEN.

The Defaulting Bookkeeper Goes in for a Term of Eight Years.

Samuel C. Seeley, the defaulting bookkeper of the National Shoe and Leather Bank, of New York, who was arrested in Chicago on December 11, and last week pleaded guilty to an indictment against him for defrauding the bank by making false entries and converting the bank's money to his own uses, has been sentenced to eight years in the King's county penitentiary. The maximum punishment for his crime, under the statute, is ten years imprisonment and the minimum five years.

CARNEGIE CUTS WAGES

And the Employes of the Iron King Have to Accept.

The new wage scale for the Carnegie steel works, at Homestead, have been posted in several departments of the works and discloses an average reduction of 15 per cent in the entire mill. The high-priced men suffer a reduction of 35 per cent. Besides this, the services of a number of high-priced men are dispensed with. The rents in company houses were materially reduced. There was some dissatisfaction, but despite the grumbling the scale will be accepted as presented.

THREE YEARS FOR BRIBERY.

The First Victim of the Lexow Investigating Committee Sentenced.

A New York special says: Ex-Police Captain John L. Stephenson, the first of the police officials tried and convicted as an outcome of the exposures brought about by the Lexow committee was sentenced by Judge Ingraham in the Court of Oyer and Terminer Wednesday, to three years and nine months imprisonment in Sing Sing, and to pay $1,000 fine. On December 12th, after a trial which lasted three days, the ex-captain was found guilty of bribery.

LAVIGNE GOES FREE.

The Case Against Him for Killing Bowen Dismissed.

A New Orleans dispatch says: The cases against George Lavigne and his seconds and others connected with the contest given on the night of December 13th, in the Auditorium club, in which Bowen was killed, were dismissed Thursday morning. The party was composed of Referee Duffy, George Lavigne, Jim Hall, Sam Fitzpatrick, Martin Murphy, George Considine, Billy McCarthy, Billy Layton, Albert Spitzfadden and Samuel Lick.

On the Coast of Shanghai.

A special cable dispatch from Shanghai to the New York Herald says: "It is reported that Count Saigo, at the head of the third army, which left Ujina some time ago, and which consists of the garrisons of Osaka and Sendai, has landed on the coast of the Shanghai province and is occupying Shaho, to the west of Chee-Foo."

Cannot Slug in Jacksonville.

The New York Sun says: "The outlook for the proposed fight between Corbett and Fitzsimmons being held in Jacksonville, Fla., is not bright. The ordinance which was passed recently prohibiting boxing in Jacksonville has ruined the calculations of the projectors of the contest."

Chinese in New York.

Chinatown in New York City is made up not even of the best class of Chinamen. The industrious Chinamen are scattered throughout the city, Brooklyn and New Jersey [illegible] laundries, and only go to Chinatown when they wish to buy [illegible] or to indulge in [illegible]. They rarely go there unless they have money. For that reason the few streets running out of [illegible] Square which have become known as the Chinese quarter are [illegible] mostly by sharks and thieves. There are a few big Chinese [illegible], but there are more ways of [illegible] money illegitimately in [illegible] than there are of spending it [illegible]ately. First among these [illegible] course, the opium dens, then [illegible] tan joints. Fan tan is a [illegible] Chinese poker, and the [illegible] forever raiding dark, dirty little [illegible] in which Chinese congregate in the midst of a stifling opium atmosphere to gamble away in one night the price of many clean shirts and spotless collars.

Among these vicious places a sort of freemasonry of crime exists. Robbery, assault and even murder are almost common. This is little heard of by the outside world, first because nobody cares very much whether a yellow-skined heathen is robbed or assaulted, or killed, or not, and second, because the Chinese in America are so closely bound together in their outlandish ways that they will not complain about each other to the white police. In each city where there is any considerable Chinese population there is also a local Chinese government, to which the pigtailed parties will take their complaints every time in preference to the American police or courts.

In New York there is even a Chinese mayor, whose power over the residents of Chinatown is very great. In this way it occurs that many heinous crimes are committed down in Mott and Pell streets, of which Superintendent of Police Byrnes knows nothing, even aside from the doings of the Highbinders's Society—probably the most extensive and most carefully organized association of murderers in the world.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Unique Building.

Frank V. Newell, architect and consulting engineer, has completed plans for what will be the narrowest building in Chicago, perhaps in the country. The lot is only nine feet wide and is to be occupied by a four-story building which, as the plans show, can be put to an excellent practical use.

The proposed building, which will cost $8,000, will have on the first floor a cigar store and at the rear of this two seventy-foot bowling alleys, with toilet and wash rooms. The stairs lead up from the cigar store. The front wall of the building will be constructed with ornamental terra cotta in Moorish design, supported on steel beams and columns. The side and rear walls will be constructed of hollow tiles supported on steel beams and columns. In this way both walls will only occupy one foot of space, leaving eight feet in the clear. The owner of the building is A. M. Macartney of San Francisco, who thinks that the lot is too valuable for him to have it standing idle. A desirable tenant has already been secured for the building.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Measuring Time in India.

In Nepaul time is measured by means of a copper vessel, with a small hole in the bottom, set afloat on a tank or pool. Sixty times a day this kettle fills and sinks, and every time it sinks a gong is struck, so that the day is divided into sixty "gongs," or "bells," as sailors reckon time on shipboard.

CLANTON ALA. JAN' 3rd 1895

Kolb's Daily Birmingham Tribune has suspended publication. The announcement however is made that the weekly will be kept agoing.

The Atlanta Constitution actually sees something good in President Clevelands message. It almost sees an increased circulating medium. More silver of the smaller denominations,

There is good reason for the popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Davis & Buzard, of West Monterey, Clarion Co., Pa., say: "It has cured people that our physicians could do nothing for. We persuaded them to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they now recommend it with the rest of us." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith & McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

Give the people a school book law.

There is no denying the fact that school books are higher in price in Alabama, than anywhere else in the country. This has been repeatedly shown and a legal way of obtaining relief has been proposed.

Bill after bill to bring about uniformity of text books, stop the never ending changes, and give this State the same benefit of competition enjoyed by others, has been presented to the Legislature. There have been absolutely no valid reasons urged against these measures except by lobbyists of the School Book Trust. Of course this rich and powerful Monopoly wishes us to continue paying its present exorbitant prices. Of course it wishes the children to continue changing books every session of school.

This is the way it declares such enormous dividends. This is why it has its agents in Montgomery, urging the members of the Legislature to vote against all school book bills. The present Legislature has before it a bill to establish county uniformity of text books, put an end to so many needless changes, and reduce prices here, to correspond with those piad in other States. The Book Trust is fighting this bill, because it gives the people protection from combinations. This greedy organization never does and never will deal liberally with its customers, unless compelled to do so by law. The bill has been carefully revised so that it does no injustice to any book company or dealer, but it requires them to give Alabama their lowest prices and best introduction and exchange terms. The necessity of every patriotic member of the General Assembly supporting this measure is so perfectly apparent, the any argument on the subject would be entirely useless.

Carlton Cornwell, foreman of the Gazette, Middletown, N. J., believes that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy should be in every home. He used it for a cold and it effected a speedy cure. He says: "It is indeed a grand remedy, I can recommend to all. I have also seen it used for whooping cough, with the best results." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

A Plucky Baptist Preacher.

Rev. W. N. Huckabee, of Camden was a visitor to Selma yesterday

He is decidedly the most cheerful and happy man that this scribe has struck in many a day. He lives in the town of Camden on a 30 acre farm and is perfectly contented. Said he in response to a query for news: "There is no news of any importance that I know of. I consider the country in a more prosperous condition however than for years. There is more corn in Wilcox than I ever saw before and this makes meat plentiful."

"How about monep?" he was asked.

"We don't need money," said he with a laugh "when our corn cribs are full, our pigs fat and the horses sleek. We might need a few dollars to buy a suit of clothes occasionally, but not often. A man can get along on mighty little when he is compelled to. I have rented 30 acre in the edge of Camden and have plenty and to spare and will make enough meat to do me this year."

"Perhaps you have a small family" suggested the scribe.

"Only seven children," was his good natured reply. "And I tell you they can hold their own at the table," and with that Mr. Huckabee handed The Times man a dollar for the Semi-Weekly and went on his way rejoicing. It is such hopeful, cheerful, energetic men as Mr. Huckabee that keeps the world going and instills hope in the breast of down hearted men.

A SIGN BOARD.

I will paint you a sign, rum seller,
And hang it above your door;
A truer and better sign-board
Than ever you had before.
I will paint with the skill of a master,
And many shall pause to see
This wonderful piece of painting
So like the reality.

I will paint yourself, rum seller,
As you wait for that fair young boy,
Just in the morn of manhood,
A mother's pride and joy.
He has no thought of stopping,
But you greet him with a smile,
And you seem so blithe and friendly
That he pauses to chat awhile.

I will paint you again, rum seller,
I will paint you as you stand,
With a foaming glass of liquor
Holding in either hand
He wavers, but you urge him;
"Drink! pledge me just this one!"
And he lifts the glass and drains it,
And the hellish work is done.

And the next I will paint a drunkard;
Only a year has flown,
But into this loathsome creature
This fair young boy has grown.
The work was quick and rapid;
I will paint him as he lies,
In a torpid, drunken slumber,
Under the wintry skies.

I will paint the form of the mother
As she kneels at her darlin's side—
Her beautiful boy that was dearer
Than all the world beside.
I will paint the shape of a coffin
Labelled with the one word "Lost!"
I will paint all this, rum seller,
And paint it free of cost.

The sin, and the shame, and sorrow,
The crime and want and woe,
That is born there in your rum-shop,
No hand can paint, you know;
But I'll paint you a sign, rum-seller,
And many shall pause to view
This wonderful swinging sign board,
So terribly, fearfully true.

HAVE YOUR STEAM GAUGE TESTED FREE.

The Mechanical Department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute takes pleasure in informing its friends, the steam users of Alabama, that it is now provided with apparatus for testing and correcting steam gauges. All are familiar with the fact that steam gauges become inaccurate after continued use and become sources of danger rather than instruments of protection. Any citizen of this state owning a gauge and wishing to have it tested and corrected, can have the same done free of charge by sending it to the undersigned by express, charge prepaid. To prevent delay caused by having more gauges sent us than can be tested promptly, it is requested that parties having such work to do will notify the undersigned by postal card, being careful to sign name and address plainly, and they will receive in return a printed slip giving directions for packing and shipping, and assigning a date for shipment.

Any advice or information desired that can be furnished by this Department, may be had for the asking.

COST OF PRODUCING PORK.

One bushel of corn will produce 10½ pounds of pork, from which you can determine whether it is best to sell corn or pork. Careful experiments have shown the following facts in regard to feeding corn to make pork: 50 pounds of corn, fed whole and raw, makes 10 pounds of pork. 50 pounds of corn fed ground and raw, makes 15 pounds of pork. 50 pound of corn fed ground and fermented, makes 17 pounds of pork. 50 pounds of corn, fed cooked and fermented, makes 20 pounds of pork. —Ex.

SIMPLY WONDERFUL

No achievements of the past are criterions for the present. The year 1894 will outdo anything ever done in the line of low prices for clothing. Alex Rice's being the largest clothing house in Montgomery, naturally has the largest stock of goods and the most complete and varied assortment at the lowest prices that great buying and cash discounts can make possible. You'll read the story of masterly buying on every price ticket throughout the house; you'll see the impress of stylish beauty on every garment in the store you'll appreciate the goods thoroughly the more you see and compare other stocks with that of Alex Rice's. We ask no trade from sympathy; we desire no patronage because we have done wonders for you in the past; we expect no purchases to be made on any other ground than getting the most of the best for the least that it may be had. All we ask—and you'll find it as much to your interest as ours—is that you will look at what Alex Rice has before you make your purchase of a fall or winter suit. Men's clothing never was here in such great variety and profusion as now and one glance at it will assure you that it never was as low.

Our ways of buying and paying for goods, our low rent and our extensive outlet for goods make prices possible here that noone else can approach, much less equal, and it guarantees you a saving of from $2 to $5 on a suit. If that's worth considering, it's worth your while to give us a call.

Printed prices in cold type can't tell the story of perfection and economy half so well as a visit will do. We challenge comparison on any score and give a guarantee of saving on competitors prices or we don't want your trade.

Mrs Anderson, nee Miss Gamma Middleton, Mesrs. Durwood Foshee, Tige Gullahorn and Harry Blasingame were among friends and relatives in Clanton during the holidays.

Misses. Mattie Hand and Minnie Wells, of Jemison, were visitors to Clanton last week.

The Sociable and Supper given by Mr. and Mrs. VanDerveer were greatly enjoyed.

The rain and severe cold weather coming on us the latter part of the holidays interferred with several sociables which were in contemplation.

Miss Annie Shackelford requests us to say that she can accommodate a few more music pupils.

Mr. Hugh Foshee knows more people in Chilton county than any other man among us.

Mr. Peyton C. Pennis of Coopers was in the city last Tuesday.

Mrs. John Wells died very suddenly on the 24ht day of Dec. The bereaved ones have our sympathies.

The friends of Mr. Tom Franklin will grieve to know of his death which occurred quite suddenly a few days since. He was a good citizen and a good man and his friends sorrow not as those without hope.

Miss Dunlap is on visit to Dr. and Mrs Johnson.

The sociable given by Miss Julia Hester was quite enjoyable despite the bad weather.

Prof. Glass enjoyed a week's stay in New Orleans and is back to his work.

Mr Fred Martin is at school again after visit home.

Misses Mattie Palmer, Helen and Tot Ehrman were at home from their respective schools.

The editor of the View was called on to perform the sad duty of officiatin at the burial of little Charlie Hicks the day before Christmas. His parents and relatives have our sincere sympathy.

Grandmother Wright has been quite sick for the past two weeks but is considerably better at this writing.

Mr. J. H. Aldridge was with us this week.

The Prayer meeting at the Baptist church on New Year's night was not largely attended, but enjoyed by all present. The pastor read, and commented on the 12th chapter of Romans as a good New Year regulation.

Rev. Mr. Guthrie, pastor of the M. E. Church has arrived. We extend him a warm welcome.

If the citizens of Chilton county will devote this year to business strickly we will as a people be much nearer out of debt by the next New Year.

Dr. V. H. Caine has returned to Clanton from a week's visit to his parents in Dallas county.

To one all of our readers we wish a joyous and New Year. The year with each of us will be largely what we make it. To accomplish the most good and to commit the least possible wrong should be the desire of every one.

Christmas came and passed away. It brought much of joy and gladness to the most of our readers. In nearly every community there was a Christmas tree, and on Christmas morning all the little folks everywhere hung up their stockings. The Clanton Christmas tree was well managed by the cant committee from the Sunday schools and everything passed off pleasantly. Clanton was on her good behavior all during the week and very few drunks and practically no fights were heard of.

Mr. Monroe Ramsey of Ruddick gave us a call last Tuesday.

For a year past the editor of The View has been compelled to spend more or less time in Montgomery, attending to his business there, but having closed up that business he will be found in Clanton at all times ready for legal, real estate or newspaper business.

Right on the heel of Christmas came a piece of news which while unexpected is nevertheless pleasant. From far a way Indianapolis came an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brooks inviting us to be present at the marriage of their daughter Lucas to Joel Dyer Murphee, Jr. This event took place Dec. 26th. The happy couple are now at home in Dothan Alabama. Both these parties we claim as special friends and we heartily wish for them the brightest joys of life.

"It affords me great pleasure to tell not only the condition of my present health but also that of my whole family. A friend who knew of my poor health advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. After two bottles a great change in my health was noticed. I do not have that tired feeling, no pain in the stomach, especially after eating, and in fact I feel like a new person and hold some pleasure in life. TO SINGERS.

The girls who put up my Medical Discovery all go to our Warren Street Methodist Church and two of them sing with great pleasure to themselves and others. One of them came to me one day, saying, "Dr. Kennedy, I must tell you what good the Discovery is doing in our church."

"Glad to hear that," said I.

"Well," she went on, "When I was so hoarse last Spring, you said it seemed like INWARD HUMOR and advised me to begin at once with the Discovery. I did so and in one month the hoarseness was all gone and my voice had improved so much several of our church mentioned it. Of course I told them you had advised the Discovery and I was taking it. In fun, one of the girls said, I want to try it too, and the fact is that the whole church, I might say, found out that KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY would cure their throats and pimples and many other troubles."

"All due to Inward Humor," said I, and that's what I explain in my little book which I send to any one who asks for it, and my Medical Discovery is sold in your town.

Yours truly,

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS.

THE CABBAGE SALAD HAD FUN.

In the higher grades of the Passaic (N. J.) public schools cooking is taught. The other day twenty young ladies in one of the schools set out under the guidance of a teacher to make cabbage salad, and they made it. Then with the valor of knights of old or the courage of a score of Jeanne d'Arcs they did what few other people on earth would dare to do—they ate their own salads.

But that was not all. As soon as they had disposed of the salads, the salads started in to dispose of them. In a few minutes there were twenty young ladies in that class looking appealingly towards the cooking teacher, while their salad-satiated appetites were tying themselves up in sailor knots. None of them was killed by the salad, but they all suffered an ample lot. That they escaped so miraculously they have great cause to rejoice.

The lesson was a good one. For it not only taught them how like a serpent's tooth is a cabbage salad, but it also let light in upon the great cornerstone principal of all cooking-school cookery, which is to always try the cooking on somebody else first.—New York World.

"COLONEL ANTOINETTE."

Miss Antoinette Humphreys, a pretty young woman of Mount Auburn, Cincinnati, is a member of the military staff of Governor MacCorkle, of West Virginia. She is a full-fledged colonel, and the only woman in the country thus honored.

Miss Humphreys is a daughter of Albert Humphreys, of 1034 McMillan street, who is a member of the firm of Walker & Humphreys.

Early last May she took part in two presentations of "The Mikado" in Charleston, W. Va. It was for the benefit of the Old Women's Home, in the success of which institution Governor MacCorkle is greatly interested.

The Governor was greatly impressed with the fair Yum-Yum, and meeting her at the reception, informed her that he desired to present her with something in return for her charity to the old ladies. The "something" was a colonel's commission in the West Virginia militia, which the Governor's private secretary, J. B. White, made out at once and presented to the Cincinnati girl.

Miss Humphreys kept the commission a secret until a few days ago, when she showed the document to a few intimate friends.

"I wonder if the Governor will ever call me out," she said, laughingly.

Colonel Humphreys is nineteen years old, is a graduate of the College of Music, and is still pursuing her musical studies.—New York Recorder.

FASHION NOTES.

As many as three buckles ornament the fashionable stock.

Mantles and coats are a good deal shorter than last winter.

Gold band bracelets, of an almost forgotten period, are in fashion again.

For the boudoir a Juliet slipper in red morocco is most effective with neglige gowns.

Straight-brimmed hats are worn for the most part. Birds are the principal adornment.

The overdone satin of last year is routed from the field by a new make of miroir velvet.

Epaulets of lace, jet, embroidery and passementerie are in general use on good dresses.

A half mourning bonnet is of moire lamb trimmed with a wing, bow and wide strings of black tulle.

Pretty checked velvets now rival the shepherd's check silks used for fancy waists and dress accessories.

Cut steel buttons, buckles, brooches and pins are more fashionable than jet ornaments on gowns and bonnets.

A half mourning bonnet of sable has a bow of tulle and delicate cream lace with a close bunch of violets set in the center.

A genuine old-fashioned poke bonnet has a trimming of loops of ribbon at the side with plumes standing high up over the crown. It is tied under the chin with white ribbons.

An exceedingly stylish hat is made of satin brocaded with velvet. It is in leaf-brown shades and is trimmed with jet, plumes and a dash of cardinal such as one sees in autumn foliage.

Short, dark-tan broadcloth bolero jackets, with enormous collars, lapels and sleeves of sable are the rage in Paris, and are completed by a huge Restoration bow of white satin at the throat.

Those who prefer black fur have their trimmings of moire Persian lamb and entire boleros of the fur are exceedingly swagger, when topped off by a huge Restoration bow of tulle or satin and lace.

Buckles of new designs in gold, enameled and jeweled daintiness are constantly appearing. The favorite shapes with the young women are in the form of a heart and a circle, and these adorn the stock collars quite as often as the belt.

A serviceable cover for a sofa pillow is the inexpensive huckatuck embroidered with the cross-stitch embroidery that is now being revived. The threads can easily be counted and, as nearly all know, almost any pattern can be transfigured, so it is a very excellent material for common use.

Fur is much in vogue for hat and bonnet trimming, in fact, entire bonnets of fur are considered very chic. They are very small and close and are trimmed only with an immense wing bow of tulle drawn through a paste diamond buckle. Strings of tulle are also added and tie under the chin with a large soft bow.

Hair-dressing is a puzzle as well as a fine art. The disgusting lump that has for so long protruded from the knot of hair at the back of the head has fallen, let us hope, into oblivion. In its place we have soft loops and coils, the figure eight, a modified Psyche knot, and a butterfly arrangement just over the crown of the head.

The Arab Horse.

In the desert the mares and foals and stallions stand day and night before their master, writes Major-General Tweedle in his book, "The Arabian Horse." There are no grooms in our sense. Slaves keep the ground clean, and the wives and daughters of the tent folk wait upon the mares, and romance becomes reality when a drooping mare or a motherless foal is taken into the best part of the tent to be nursed. In villages the mares' shed is close to the habitation in which the family life proceeds. The result is that food and fellowship are among the first ideas which are associated in the minds of Arab horses with the human figure. The mares turn as kindly to those around them as Gustavus did to Dugald Dalgetty. The youngling takes its cue from the dam, and is not afraid of that with which they are all familiar.

The colt which is handled by every one from the first and ridden as soon as he is strong enough is sure to prove docile and obedient. Even when full allowance is made for the advantages of early tuition, Arab men deserve some credit for the fine temper of Arab horses. The most patient colt may have to resist its rider if either his anger be excited or too much of his own way be given him.

A little incident which we lately witnessed in a crowded thoroughfare in Bagdad may be here worth introducing. An awkward groom had tumbled off the back of a playful filly and left her free to career hither and thither. Among the spectators there was nobody who blamed the filly. A red-bearded Persian, whose bookstall was kicked into the Tigris, had the sense to curse the biped and not the quadruped. When she was caught and the end of her halter-rope was put into the groom's hand by a bystander, the man merely jumped on her back and rode quietly away.

New York State for $75,000.

In an account of the latest publication of the Historical Manuscripts Committee the London News says:

"It is under an earlier date (April 28, 1862) that we come upon a curious letter to Sir George Campbell from Edinburgh, referring to the proposed expedition of a colonizing society of America. We modernize the spelling once more:

'Right Worshipful Sir—I wrote a line yesterday anent a motion made to six of the Society by an English gentleman, a Presbyterian—his buying of New York at fifteen thousand pounds sterling. He is informed of a design of making an interest in America from this country and by some agent of his desires we be acquainted that he is willing the one-half go to us and that we erect what government best pleaseth us, and have the half share in the government. It appears we are convened by my Lord Cardross's interposition, who told us that a person now on the place had appointed him to show us, if we could concur in that purchase, we might have Presbytry established, and as to the civil, a joint interest in making of laws and everything else relating to the government. There occurred to us as follows: 1. There is a considerable fort with forty brass cannon. 2. There is £15,000 of quit rent. 3. There is a town peopled and the country adjacent to it, so that the new Planters would be obliged to go further in, it being certainly in the option of those already settled to permit us so much as to build a house in the town, or if we should be permitted, to make the rate . . . He suffered us to say my Lord Melville was the person.'

"The remainder of the letter indicates that, on consideration, the New York scheme was given up, and attention was directed to Carolina."

Most Remarkable Creature in the World

The most remarkable creature in the world is the hydra. It does not amount to much physically, for it is nothing but a sack, open at one end and fastened by the other to a stone, but it is almost impossible to kill it. Turn a hydra inside out and it will get along just as well as before. Trembley, the French naturalist, cut hydras in slices, and each, in a few days, became a full-grown animal. He grafted them, and produced monsters with six mouths and only one body. He divided them longitudinally, and produced a cluster of hydras. He found this creature is superior even to decomposition, for when a part of a hydra's body decays, it throws it off and replaces it, as a matter of course.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

COOKING FOOD FOR PIGS.

Pigs are the most nearly like a man as to feeding and digestion of food of all other animals. That is, they will do better on cooked food, for this reason, than other animals. There is less waste, the food is cleaner, and it is better digested. A convenient way is to set a large rustless iron kettle in a stone fireplace and boil the potatoes or roots given to them with corn ears until the whole becomes a stiff mass when it is cold. This is fed in this condition, and is all eaten clean, most of the cobs of the soft corn being eaten and digested. Soft corn really fattens better than hard or ripe grain. Any kind of grain may be fed in this way without grinding, and the cooking costs less than the grinding will. In feeding all kinds of animals it is to be taken into account that when the food is such or in such a condition that the flow of saliva is the most abundant, the digestion of it is the most nearly perfect. In fact, the mouth is the first of the digestive organs, and the saliva secreted in it is the first solvent of the food. So that the more the food may be masticated before it is swallowed, the more economical will be the feeding. Fed in this way, one pound of dry matter will make a pound of dressed pork.—New York Times.

CHARACTERISTICS OF DORKINGS.

This breed of fowl is older even than the English Nation, by which it is considered the ideal table fowl. In fact the breed is so popular in that country that it is generally regarded as an English breed of fowl. There are four varieties of the Dorkings, viz.: Gray, silver gray, white and cuckoo. The cocks of the gray variety have either a pure black or slightly mottled breast, the neck and back being white, striped with black, and the wings nearly white crossed by a well-defined black bar. The silver grays are always alike in color, the male having a black breast, white wings crossed by a black bar and a black tail. The head, neck and back are pure silver white, without sign of yellow or straw color.

DORKINGS.

The white Dorking is not quite so large as the other varieties which it is considered to surpass in symmetry. Its plumage is pure white and it possesses what is known as "rose comb," the others having a somewhat larger single comb. The cuckoo Dorkings have a peculiar plumage, consisting of a marking of bars or pencilings of dark blue gray on a ground of lighter gray. In size it is slightly larger than the white, but smaller than the other varieties.

Dorkings have full, broad breasts, broad backs, short legs and are rather short in the neck. They have five toes on each foot. The male bird in good condition will weigh twelve pounds, and the hens nine pounds. They are fair layers, good mothers, mature early and grow rapidly. The great objection is the delicacy of the young birds, which renders raising them difficult. The climate, or the soil, or both, in many parts of the United States does not seem to agree with them. This may, however, be due to too much inbreeding, as fresh blood is difficult to procure.

Dorkings can only be successfully raised on a dry soil, dampness being peculiarly fatal to them. They also require a wide range. The Dorking is not exactly suited to the requirements of the American market, its shanks being white, while we generally prefer yellow ones. Its skin is also white or pale yellow, instead of the gold color usually demanded; but for the production of cross-breed fowls for the table it should prove of great value.—New York World.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

It is not wise to make a horse so tender that he will be liable to colds and discomfort when taken out.

Well-drained lands are dryer in wet spells and moister in dry spells than other lands. They can be worked earlier in spring.

If a man is a good grass and grain grower, he would better manufacture these products into meat upon his farm, that he may have the ultimate profit from both branches of his business.

Stock raisers have the matter of prices in their own hands to a greater degree than any other class of farmers, for by good selection and feeding they can produce just what the market wants.

If one plant among many more of the same kind shows a disposition to bloom earlier than the others, seeds should be saved from it, as it is often possible to fix a character such plants seem inclined to assume. Many a valuable race has been started in this manner.

In the attempt to renovate an old farm which one has recently bought, on which there may be many washed and impoverished spots, do not put the available manure on these, but go to work systematically and improve one field at a time, so that it will yield a paying crop. Fertilize one field well and then extend to other fields.

Much garden work done in the fall is so much saved from spring. One of the important operations is the application of manure to fruit and ornamental trees, small fruit, asparagus, rhubarb, etc. Manure is cheaper and in less demand than it will be in the spring. Furthermore, the fall is really the most fitting season to put it on.

CURIOUS FACTS.

Some men are so fastidious they never get acquainted with themselves.

The oldest existing oil well is the Rockwood, four miles from Oil City, Penn.

Nearly all the gum arabic of commerce comes from the Great Sahara Desert.

About 300 organ grinders arrive in London every June from Italy, and leave again about October.

The peacock is found in a wild state in India, Ceylon, Madagascar and many other parts of Asia and Africa.

A live lobster, half red and half green, is one of the rarities on exhibition at one of the Portland (Me.) boat houses.

A large sum is being expended in developing the carriage of fish from arctic latitudes to English and German markets.

A portrait of a man, scratched on bone, apparently the shoulderblade of a sheep, was found in 1857, in a Swiss lake dwelling.

A letter was recently received in the Washington (D. C.) Postoffice addressed to the "United States Theological Survey."

An unknown man who begged for food in New York the other day ate so ravenously that he was choked to death by a bit of meat.

Amulets are now worn by royal noble families in India that are believed to have been handed down from father to son for nearly 2000 years.

A Fast Runner.

In a recent article on sprinting Walter C. Dohm tells the following story to show how fast a man can really cover ground:

"I have in mind," he writes, "the case of a certain well-known ahtlete who once surprised a number of people by showing them how great a man's speed really is. The young man in question was passing from one car to another of a train in motion, when a gust of wind blew off his new hat. Without thinking of the risk he incurred, he grasped the rail of the platform, swung to the ground with the dexterity of an old train hand, dashed back a half-dozen steps to where the hat lay, and almost before the astonished passengers could get their heads stretched out of the windows was in pursuit of the rear end of the train, which had just passed. Very wonderful it seemed to the spectators of the strange race between muscle and steam when the sprinter, after a hard race, grasped the rear rail and swung himself, panting but triumphant, to the platform. No one knew he was a champion runner. They thought only of the fact that the train was rolling along at the rate of eighteen or twenty miles per hour, and wondered how he did it. And one particularly stout old gentleman declared: "I never saw anything like it before in all my life."—Atlanta Constitution.

Tailoring With a Circular Knife.

They are cutting garments by electricity and by wholesale in the cloak manufacturing and other ready-made clothing shops. Eight or ten thicknesses of cloth are piled up in a heap with the pattern chalked on the topmost layer. The cutting is done by a circular knife, revolving several times a second, and driven by a small electric motor.

The workman drives it through the pile of cloth at a terrific rate and it slices up the goods into shape ready for the stitchers at a great speed. One workman with an electric revolving cutter can saw up the cloth for 500 garments in a day, when with the shears he would do well to cut fifty. The machines are now used by nearly all the big ready-made clothing and cloak manufacturers in the city.—New York Mail and Express.

No Substitutes

For Royal Baking Powder. The "Royal" is shown by all tests, official, scientific and practical, stronger, purer, and better in every way than all other Baking Powders. Its superiority is privately acknowledged by other manufacturers, and well known by all dealers.

If some grocers try to sell another baking powder in place of the "Royal," it is because of the greater profit. This of itself is good evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.

LOOK with suspicion upon every attempt to palm off upon you any baking powder in place of the "Royal." There is no substitute for the "Royal."

Preventing Runaway Accidents.

In Russia they have a very effective and simple way of preventing horses from running away, and such accidents in the czar's dominions are very rare. A thin cord, with a running noose around the horse's neck at the neck strap, with the other end within easy reach of the driver, preferably attached to the dash-board, is the restraining device. When a horse bolts he takes the bit in his teeth, and no amount of strength or skill on the part of the driver can check him, but the moment the cord presses on his windpipe, the horse stops, and with "good horse sense," reconsiders his original intention.

A LITTLE girl in Gorgham discovered the electric lights, and seeing the moon at the same time, pronounced this conundrum:

"Mamma, does God know that we have got electric lights?"

"Yes," replied the mother. "He must know it, because he knows everything."

"Then, mamma, why don't He take in the moon?"

LIFE at best would be of monotonous enjoyment if confined simply to the involuntary act of breathing. It takes action and continuous bustling to remind one of life's responsibilities and realities.

In Our Great Grandfather's Time,

big bulky pills were in general use. Like the "blunderbuss" of that decade they were big and clumsy, but ineffective. In this century of enlightenment, we have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver, stomach and bowel derangements in the most effective way.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pimples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constipation, piles, fistulas and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity, with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion.

A free sample of the "Pellets," (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.

Education and Crime.

Sir John Lubbock, who addressed the sociological congress at Paris upon the effect in England of education upon crime, says that since 1870 the number of children in English schools has increased from 1,500,000 to 5,000,000, and the number of persons in prison has fallen from 12,000 to 5,000. The yearly average of persons sentenced to penal servitude for the worst crimes has declined from 3,000 to 800. —Public Opinion.

A Story of New Mexico.

BY R. L. MORTAINE.

In New Mexico the principal natural growths of the soil are cactus and the "greaser." The cactus is possible or even probable elsewhere. The "greaser" is a New Mexican product, pure and simple. He flourishes as an exotic, translated from old Mexico, and having undergone deterioration by the transfer.

There is a strain of American blood somewhere concealed about him, for the most part, but he is ashamed of any such admixture. The "greaser" is a Latin to the core, a degraded Latin, with a full and perfect knowledge of the vices of two of the continents and an utter willingness to be ignorant of all other things. Americans in New Mexico tolerate him as a necessary evil, just as they tolerate Chinamen in California. He is cheap, even if he is nasty, and he makes farming possible by his exceedingly low self-valuation.

Sometimes he shuffles off his servility and becomes a Spaniard. Then it requires nerve to deal with him, and also a quick hand on the trigger. I became aware of that fact a few months ago, when I was staying with Jack Henderson.

Jack went out to New Mexico five years ago with a bride and a dream and $3,000. When I saw him the bride had become a mother to the extent of Jack, Jr., aged 3, the dream was on the verge of evanescence, and the $3,000 had gone.

Jack had settled on what purported eventually to become a fruit farm, when a company had worried out an impossible irrigation scheme, thirty miles from Santa Fe and seven miles from a white man. There were far mountains to the east, with white tops that purpled at sundown. All round him was the dreary prairie, monotonous as the sea, mile beyond mile of brown parched grass, with here and there a bunch of crawling bushes.

Roads, in the English sense of the term, there were none. We rode to the place over the baked mud tracks, seemingly without end or object, past the greasers' "dobies," as they call their little homely mud huts, past myriads of prairie dogs, scampering into their holes as we approached. And then at last we reached a long, low farmhouse of planks sitting in the midst of a vegetable patch that had literally fallen into the sere and yellow leaf. That was Jack's home, and presently came Mrs. Jack, with Jack, Jr., clinging shyly to her skirts, to give me a welcome.

It was broiling next day, hot after a fashion that we in a kindlier clime comprehend not a whit. No white man could lift his hand to his head without a weariness resulting therefrom. Only the olive-hued greaser was available, and, indeed, Jose seemed from the short period of my observation to be more on the qui vive than any other living thing.

Jose was Jack's cook, a moist uncomfortable looking greaser, with a quivering paunch and long limbs that seemed inadequate to support the superstructure. I ventured to remark upon his unprepossessing countenance, but Jack became eloquent upon his culinary virtues. Even Mrs. Jack had something to say on the subject, and I felt at once that I was interfering with a family idol.

When, therefore, Jack told me later in the day that he had been obliged to discharge Jose, with instant orders to depart, it was a matter of no small astonishment to me. I felt, however, that it was a delicate subject, and to this day I have no idea what was Jose's cause of offense. I conjecture that Mrs. Jack was concerned, and that the insult was deep, for Jose's accomplishments were unparalleled, and no slight matter could have caused his deposition.

In the evening the temperature grew endurable. Not that it was cool or pleasant or anything like an English version of a summer evening. But there was an ineffectual breeze, and the dobies cast long shadows as the sun died.

Jack and I decided upon a ride. We set out upon our way, talking so earnestly of I know not what that we barely noticed Jose as he mounted his pony at the back door of the house.

When we were twenty feet further on there was a whirring noise and a sort of muffled thud. Jack was delivered of a sound that appeared to have begun life as an oath and turned aside to be a gurgel. Also his horse jerked itself on its haunches and seemed to stagger helplessly.

By the time I could turn my head Jack was half way out of his saddle. A leathern thong was girted around his elbows, pinioning his arms to his sides. Its other end was fastened to the pommel of Jose's saddle, and Jose was bending over his horse's neck with a fiendish sheen beneath his heavy eyebrows.

Jack had his fingers on his revolver in an instant, but crippled as he was by the thong that cut deep into his flesh, he was as helpless as though his arms had been broken.

I looked at him, frozen to my saddle, as powerless to go to his rescue as though the lariat was bound about me.

Then there was a crack that startled me and the whole fascination dissolved. Jack's arms were free and Jose was tangled up in a confused mass of pony, harness, and man.

As the pony fell there appeared behind its body the figure of Mrs. Jack, pale and quivering, with the lips set and a sort of horror in the eyes that was a revelation to me in my study of expressions. In her hand was a revolver, with a thread of smoke trickling from the barrel as it hung from her limp grasp. She swooned afterward and I lifted her from the ground.

Before that time, however, Jack had released himself, and when I looked round he was standing over the prostrate greaser with his watch in one hand and his revolver in the other.

"Jose," he remarked, as placidly as though he had been ordering dinner, "in just three minutes I am going to kill you. I shall tell you as the minutes pass."

It was an unpleasant scene to look at. The fellow howled like a hurt beast. He clung to Jack's knees and prayed for mercy in the name of all the saints.

"It's no use, Jose. I'm going to—two minutes—kill you. I have no use for such as you, and I don't see how anybody else can have."

We buried him a little later, and then Jack collapsed also. I had my hands full for a while, bringing the couple to a reasonable condition of nerves.

I did not understand until a day or two afterward, when Jack was willing to talk about it, the full extent of Mrs. Jack's heroism. In the instant granted her to appreciate the situation she had seen that to kill Jose would be useless, for the pony would inevitably tear away at full speed, and the pony controlled the lariat. She had aimed at the pony's head, and by a God-sent chance the ball had entered his eye.

"Lucky the little madam knew how to hold a gun straight, wasn't it?" said Jack. "Pity, though; never knew anybody who could fry chicken with Jose."—Good Company.

Strength of Materials.

Cast iron weighs 444 pounds to the cubic foot, and a one-inch square bar will sustain a weight of 16,507 pounds; bronze, weight 525 pounds, tenacity 3,600; wrought iron, weight 480, tenacity 50,000; hard "struck" steel, weight 490, tenacity 7[illegible],000; aluminum, weight 168, tenacity 20,000. We are accustomed to think of metals as being stronger than wood, and so they are, generally speaking, if only pieces of the same size be tested. But when equal weights of the two materials are compared, it is then found that several varieties of wood are stronger than ordinary steel. A bar of pine just as heavy as a bar of steel an inch square will hold up 125,000 pounds; the best ash 175,000, and some hemlock 200,000. Wood is bulky. It occupies ten or twelve times the space of steel. The best steel castings made for the United States navy have a tenacity of 65,000 to 75,000 pounds to the square inch. By solidifying such castings under great pressure a tensile strength of 80,000 to 150,000 pounds may be obtained.—New York Advertiser.

No Time for Music.

There is something saddening about the woman who "used to play the piano before she was married." You feel that you would like to have known her before the song went out of her life; before the enthusiasm that makes the lavishment of time upon mere pleasure a possibility left her. She says she has not the leisure to practice, but it is often not so much the lack of half an hour or more daily as it is the loss of vivacious energy. She has learned to trudge from yesterday to tomorrow instead of dancing the days through as she used to. The need for music is gone. A lady who was spoken to by one of her friends on this subject was candid and epigrammatic. "Wait until you get married," she said. "Unless you are rich you will do as I have done. You cannot devote your attention to keeping up your music and keeping down your expenses at the same time.—Kate Field's Washington.

The Earliest Maps.

For a long time people have been puzzled in Switzerland by finding, at various intervals, smooth, flat stones, evidently hand polished, and covered with dots, lines and half circles, the meaning of which no one could make out. Recently a Mr. Rodiger of Solathurn has discovered that by properly arranging the stones found in his canton. The dots correspond closely with existing towns and villages, the lines with roads; fords and mountain passes are also indicated. The stones are usually found at road crossings, and about six miles apart along the roads. These prehistoric stone maps indicate that the village sight and roads of Switzerland are of very ancient selection. What people made the maps there is no means of telling.—New York Recorder.

General Knox's Piano.

The first piano ever owned in the State of Maine is said to be yet on duty in Knox County. It formerly belonged to General Knox, but of late years has been one of the treasures of Dr. Isaac Bartlett of Hope, whose death was recently reported.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

THE CONGRESS.

THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS RESUME OPERATIONS.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

The senate re-assembled at noon Thursday after the holiday recess of about ten days. About thirty senators were present when Vice-president Stevenson called the body to order and more came in during the reading of the journal. Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, introduced his proposed amendment to the urgency deficiency bill, amending the tariff law by striking out all provisions for an income tax and substituting a new woollen schedule, including a duty on raw wool. At 2:30 o'clock the senate resumed consideration of the Nicaragua canal bill, Senator Morgan speaking. After the presentation of sundry resolutions and memorials, Mr. Sherman, from the committee on foreign affairs, reported, and the senate passed the resolution heretofore introduced by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, calling on the president for the correspondence and other papers relative to the delivery of the United States consul at Shanghai of two Japanese prisoners to the Chinese authorities. The resolution went over and the senate again proceeded to the consideration of the Nicaragua canal bill. Mr. Morgan had the floor to make a speech on the bill, but before he began, the senate, on motion of Mr. Squire, republican, of Washington, passed a bill granting an American register to the vessels Linda, of North Carolina, and Archer, of Washington. Mr. Morgan then began his address on the Nicaragua canal bill. He criticised senators who opposed the bill by imputing to those who favored the bill motives other than patriotic. He defended the constitutionality of the present bill, which had been attacked.

THE HOUSE.

The holiday recess being ended, the house presented an animated scene as it was called to order by Speaker Crisp Thursday. The galleries were crowded and over half the members were in their seats. In the diplomatic gallery were the Japanese minister and his secretary and many prominent personages looked down on the forensic arena from the reserved gallery. After the call of the committees for reports, Mr. Quigg, republican, of New York, attempted to offer a resolution relating to salaries in the New York postoffice, but Mr. Springer, in charge of the currency bill, cut him off with a motion to go into committee of the whole for the further consideration of that bill. Accordingly the house went into committee, of the whole, Mr. Richardson in the chair, and Mr. Black, democrat, of Georgia, a member of the banking and currency committee, took the floor in favor of the bill.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

The president sent the following nominations to the senate Thursday: Herbert Walcott Bowmen to be United States consul at Barcelona, Spain; Andrew J. Patterson, of Tennessee, to be consul at Demara, British Guina; T. Frank Clark, of Florida, to be attorney of the United States for the western district of Florida; Walter P. Stradley, of California, to be commissioner of immigration at the port of San Francisco.

Colonel Normal Lieber, assistant advocate-general, to be judge advocate-general with the rank of brigadier-general. Lieutenant Commander Franklin Hanford to be commander. Past Assistant Engineer Robert W. Gult to be chief engineer. Assistant Engineer H. G. Liepold to be past assistant engineer.

A COAL COMBINE

Embracing All Dealers and Controlling All Mines in Colorado.

The Denver, Col., Steam Coal company, which was organized some time ago, has raised the price of lignite coal from $1.75 to $2 a ton.

The combine embraces all the big coal dealers in the city of Denver. They control the output of every mine of importance in the state, so that practically every consumer of lignite coal for steam purposes must buy of the combine or go without coal.

ORANGES ADVANCING IN PRICE.

The California Growers Expect $3 Per Box for their Fruit.

The rise in the price of oranges of fifty cents per box, which was registered by the Redlands Grower's Association, at San Bernardino, Cal., has been followed by other grower's associations and now oranges cannot be bought in quantities for less than $2.50 a box. There is every indication that the bulk of the crop will bring $3 in the orchard.

The officers of the Redlands association are communicating with dealers in Florida and private telegrams received from them say that 85 per cent of the crop is a total loss and will be worthless except what can be sold at once before the frost affects the fruit. This has served to strengthen the prices in California and the orange men are already talking $3 per box for their fruit, a price they haven't realized for several years.

A LABOR DEMONSTRATION.

Shoe Workers Determined to Break Up the Contract System.

Haverhill, Mass., witnessed a big labor demonstration Monday forenoon. A procession of shoe workers, numbering four thousand, marched to Chick Bros. and to Spaulding & Swett's shoe factories. At Chick Bros.' factory nearly all women stitchers, numbering about 125, including those who work in Barrow & Caldwell's shoe stiching rooms, in an adjoining building, left their work and came out. About one hundred men including all the lasters, also came out. About 150 employes quit work at Spaulding & Swett's factory. Upon the return of the marchers a mass meeting was held in the city hall. The shoe workers say they are determined to break up the contract system and also to secure the adoption of new price lists.

RUSSIANS REJOICE.

The Czar's Wedding Day Ukase Makes the Exiles Glad.

A San Francisco special says: The two thousand Russians in the local colony are refugees and exiles no longer. The young czar's wedding day Ukase has removed the brand that was upon them. The first copy of the imperial proclamation has just reached the city, and it has thrown the whole colony into a transport of delight. The Russians now in San Francisco came for the most part by way of Siberia. Many of them had been exiled and nearly all of them deprived of their social and property rights in their mother country. Many members of the colony may visit Russia, be restored to citizenship and even to former property rights.

TO SUE FOR WAGES.

Strikers Allege a Breach of Contract by the Tinplate Companies.

The strikers at the Apollo and Leechburg tinplate plants at Pittsburg, Pa., are preparing to enter suit for their wages, under contracts signed with the Apollo Iron and Steel Company and Kirkpatrick & Company, owners of the plants.

The contracts were to govern the wages for one year, and after they had been in force four months, the firms offered reductions. The workmen refused to accept and will now try to recover their money under the contract. The wages of 2,000 men for eight months are involved.

MUNICIPAL OFFICERS NEXT.

New York's City Department to be Investigated.

It is settled that the New York chamber of commerce will demand from the incoming legislature the appointment of a committee with full power to investigate the municipal departments of the city, as the senate committee has investigated the police department. A meeting of the chamber has been called for. At that meeting ex-President Charles Stewart Smith, who is chairman of the committee on municipal reform, will present a report making specific charges against several departments, and a resolution asking for a legislative investigation.

Will Not Give Up His Office.

Surveyor General [illegible], of Wyoming, does not intend to surrender his office to General Thompson, who was appointed his successor, without a fight. General Thompson has telegraphed friends at Washington to look after his interests.

ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

Increase in the Number of Iron, Steel and Tin Mills in Operation.

A review of the industrial situation in the Pittsburg, Pa., district shows an encouraging outlook in that section for the coming year. There is a heavy increase in the number of iron, steel and tin mills in operation. Where one year ago less than one-half of the window glass factories were running, three-fourths are in operation now. With flint glass factories this is also true.

The hopeful feature of the situation is the steady increase in the demand for manufactured products. With the exception of their Beaver Falls nail mill, all the Carnegie mills are now running on full or double time. The big window glass factories at Jeannette and New Kinsington are in full operation day and night.

IS MORGANFIELD A MURDERER?

Believed to Have Killed a Conductor in a Hold-up at Cairo, Ill.

According to information just obtained by the Cincinnati police, it is believed that Charles Morganfield, the Virginia train robber, is implicated in the hold-up of the train at Cairo, Ill., in November, 1893. Morganfield is now in jail in Cincinnati awaiting the result of an effort to secure his release on habeas corpus, pending requisition litigation. In the Illinois hold-up the conductor was killed and the man who fired the shot was seen. From the published description of the murderer, people in that section believe that Morganfield is the man.

MORAL WAVE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

A Crusade Against Vice and Corruption, Public and Private.

Plans for a crusade against vice and corruption, private and public, in San Francisco, have been developed by the formation of the Civic Federation of San Francisco, on the same lines as the Chicago federation.

War is declared by the federation against dives, side entrances, gambling and municipal corruption.

A legislative committee, similar in scope to the Lexow committee, is a possible outgrowth of the federation, which was organized by the Rev. James Cummings Smith, pastor of the Trinity Presbyterian church.

POSTAL ROBBERS CAUGHT.

A Bold Gang that Had Looted Many Postoffices.

The chief postoffice inspector at Washington is in receipt of a telegram from Houston, Tex., announcing the arrest of Jim Martin, Jim Morgan and Al Reid for the robbery of postoffices at Bastrop, Bresnan, Navasota and other places. This is the gang of professionals who have been blowing safes in postoffices, express offices and banks, and the inspector thinks the arrest a very important one.

PANIC IN MEXICO

Caused by an Earthquake—The People Greatly Alarmed.

At 10:58 o'clock Sunday night an oscillatory earthquake shock was felt in the City of Mexico and other parts of the valley of Mexico. The movement was east and west, but of short duration. The disturbance caused great alarm from those who feared a repetition of the disastrous earthquake of November 2d, which killed eighteen people and did great property damage.

EAGLES AND HALF EAGLES.

The Philadelphia Mint to Coin $22,000,000 of Bullion.

Director of the Mint Preston has instructed Superintendent Townsend, of the Philadelphia mint, to begin the coinage of $22,000,000 of gold bullion now stored in the mint, and which is a part of the gold reserve. The gold will be coined into eagles and half eagles, and the work will occupy a month.

Scheme to Contest Fair's Will.

Charles L. Fair's legal advisers propose a plan by which he can contest his father's will and not jeopardize his interests by running foul of the forfeiture clause. The scheme is for Mrs. Oelrichs and Miss Fair to guarantee that if Charles loses the suit and forfeits his share, they shall equally share with him in the remaining two-thirds of the trust revenue. It is thought Mrs. Oelrichs will not like the idea of leaving the management of the estate to the trustees.

The Streets of Pekin.

I wish you could see one of these Pekinese streets, and the queer sights upon it, writes Frank G. Carpenter. They are filled with a stream of yellow humanity of all classes, ages and sexes. You pass gorgeous officials on Mongolian ponies, the backs of some of which are decorated with arrows, and you know they are on their way to the shooting matches outside of Pekin. You go by silk-gowned mandarins in carts, who scowl at you as you peep into the little glass windows in the walls of their vehicles. You see scholars with spectacles as big as trade dollars, and everywhere you go you are assaulted by beggars. I remember one boy who followed me day after day. The weather was bitterly cold, and I shivered in my fur ulster. This boy was naked to the waist, and his arms had been cut off at the shoulders. He held a pan in his mouth and followed me, switching his body this way and that to show me his mutilation. I was glad to give him two or three cents to be freed of the sight. Another beggar, who has long been in Pekin, is a man who has an iron skewer thrust through his cheek. This skewer is a foot long, and is about as big around as your little finger. He twists it this way and that and keeps the flesh ragged and sore. He beats on a gong as he goes through the streets, and you are glad to pay him to keep out of your way. There is one gate in Pekin which is always crowded with beggars, and one of the finest bridges of the city, a structure of marble, has been given up entirely to beggars. It is full of the lame, the halt and the blind, and men with festering sores, women without eyes, and persons possessing all sorts of horrible diseases crowd together upon it. They push their way from it into the city and threaten to cut themselves if you don't give them alms. Side by side with these beggars walk the gorgeous officials, and poverty and wealth march together in pairs. There is no place in the world where the contrasts are so great, and for nine-tenths of the people it would seem to me their condition could not be worse. These Chinese are as industrious as any race on the globe. They are peaceable and easily governed, and if the celestial officials, including the emperor and all his court could be wiped from the face of the globe, the people would quickly grow rich and China would be one of the most favored spots on the face of the earth.

The Felicities of Matrimonial Life.

"You never bring me home a little present now, John," said the young wife as she sat with her husband at the breakfast table; there's Mary Dana's husband, he is always bringing her home something, and yesterday he brought her a pretty little volume entitled 'Hints on Domestic Cookery.'"

"'Hints on Domestic Cookery' may do for Mary Dana, my love," said the young husband as he hefted one of the breakfast biscuits, "but you, my dear, want something more than a hint; you want 'Plain Talks on Domestic Cookery,' and I'll begin em tomorrow morning."—New York Press.

A "Fake Wood."

"Treated birch," says a Philadelphia builder, "becomes mahogany of rare beauty, and 'soaked' maple goes into all 'ebony' pianos now. So cleverly is the 'fake' wood 'weighted' that nothing short of boring will prove the deception. Maple mahogany is soaked through to a depth of four inches, and will polish even better than the genuine wood.

The deepest mining shaft in the world is said to be in Michigan. It is nearly a mile in depth.

CLANTON ALA. JAN' 10th 1895

The Birmingham Times (Republican) says no more fusion for the Republicans of Alabama. Dr. Moseley sees there is danger of some other white men leading the van and handling the finances patronage and etc, and he calls his brethen off.

From all we can learn this year's cotton crop will hardly bring more than 4 cents. So our farmers should plant and cultivate for that price. Be sure to plant food crops and have the cotton as nearly a surplus crop as possible.

There is good reason for the popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. David Buzard, of West Monterey, Clarion Co., Pa., say: "It has cured people that our physicians could do nothing for. We persuaded them to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they now recommend it with the rest of us." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith & McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

It Montgomery would establish a first class packing house it would aid farmers to raise hogs, sheep and cattle for market. They could sell these products all the year around, if such an institution were in our capitol city.

There has been, and still is, a vast deal of suffering and destitution in the North west. Our Alabama farmers who can sit by a cheerful wood fire, sit at table with plenty of meat, molasses, potatoes, bread, butter and milk enough ought not to grumble even if their money supply is short.

Those who have been silly enough to accuse Cleveland of being the tool of Wall Street must feel rather small when they learn that he cares no more for the opinions of Wall Street than he does for any other private schemers. He has very plainly told Wall Street Bankers that he is running the government and does not need their suggestions and despises their threats.

Carlton Cornwell, foreman of the Gazette, Middletown, N. J., believes that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy should be in every home. He used it for a cold and it effected a speedy cure. He says: "It is indeed a grand remedy, I can recommend to all. I have also seen it used for whooping cough, with the best results." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

The Montgomery Advertiser did not use to have much sympathy for prohibition legislation, but it admits that there is so much devilry committed by men under the influence of liquor on Christmas day that the Legislature should pass a law forbidding saloonists to do business on Christmas day. Whisky sold on Christmas day is no more dangerous than that sold on any other day. The whisky traffic must be suppressed if we would see a decrease in homicides, poverty and misery and it is the duty of every newspaper to lend its aid in that direction.

The saddest piece of news received by us since the dawning of the New Year was the announcement of the sudden death of Theodore Welch, General Freight agent of the North and South Division of L & N R. R. Mr. Welch had appeared to be in the best of health and the stroke of paralysis from wich he died gave no previous warning of its coming. Mr. Welch left a wife and one child with hosts of friends to mourn his departure.

He was a clear headed business man, not only interested in his railroad but deeply anxious for the welfare of his adopted state, Alabama. Though a man of affairs, yet he was ever ready to aid in the promotion of the cause of Christianity and we are sure death did not find him unprepared.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shumpik a prominent druggist of Minneapolis Minn. "I sold the remedy in this city for over seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

TIMBER THIEVES.

The Alabama Mineral Land Company's Stop Depredations.

On last Monday Messrs. J. J. Willett, William A. Davis and R. L. McCalley, went to Ironaton, Talladega county, and secured the conviction of twelve men who had been stealing timber for cross ties from the lands of the Alabama Mineral Land company.

These lands are commonly known throughout the country as "Railroad Lands," having formerly belonged to the Selma, Rome & Dalton Railroad company, and, as on government lands, some people have seemed to think they had a right to depredate at their pleasure

But the land company proposes to stop depredations by criminal prosecutions, and intends to secure the conviction of every man who steals timber; whether for shingles, boards, cross ties or saw logs.

Other parties have been caught stealing timber, and warrants will be issued for them in a few days.

It is supposed this wholesale conviction, with imposition of fines and costs ranging from five to fifty-five dollars, will deter others from engaging in this nefarious practice hereafter. The policy of the company will be to "let no guilty man escape," and perhaps some parties who have bought this stolen timber will have to defend civil and criminal action. Ex.

The Road to Success.

Be generous. Meanness makes enemies and breeds distrust. Be polite. Every smile, every genteel bow is money in your pocket. Be independent. Do not lean on others to do your thinking or to conquer your difficulties. Trust to nothing but God hard work.

Inscribe on your banner "Luck is a fool; pluck is a hero." Spend less than you earn. Do not run in debt. Watch the little leaks and you can live on your salary. Make all the money you can honestly do all the good you can with it while you live, and be your executor.

Be punctual. Keep your appointments. Be there a minute before time if you have to lose your dinner to do it. Be conscientious in the discharge of duty. Do the work thoroughly. No boy can rise who slights his work. This world is not going to pay for loafing. Ninety per cent of what men call genius is only talent for hard work.

Enter into that business or trade which you like best and for which nature seems to have fitted you, providing it is honorable. Be honest. Dishonesty seldom makes one rich, and when it does, riches are a curse. There is no such thing as dishonest success. Ex.

THE SOTH AND THE NEGRO.

There is an industrious negro, Henry Green by name, from Scott county Mississippi, in the city visiting relatives, who is an example of thriftiness in small way and success, not only to his colored brethren, but also to many of his insalubrious white friends, who spend so much of time in cursing their hard luck and the "free nigger." He and his family working have bought and own in fee simple seventy acres of good sandy land.

He has made this year nine bales of cotton, plenty of corn to do him, an abundance of meat and to spare sweet potatoes, an ample supply of ribbon cane molasses, forage for all his stock and a comfortable home.

He has two good mules, a brood mare, twelve head of cattle, milk and butter in abundance—in fact so much of the latter that, as he has no market, he uses it for soap grease. His face shines, he has good clothes and the air of a contented man all the result of diligent labor and frugality. Oh, what a land of plenty, where butter can be used for soap grease; a land of milk and honey, of vine and fig tree a land where on one farm can be grown cotton, corn, wheat oats, rye barley, rice, tobacco, tea, sugar cane peas, sweet and Irish potatoes pumpkins, cashawe grasses, clover; where apples, pears peaches fig, pomegranates plums, grapes and all berries flourish and thrive luxuriantly; where garden vegetation of all varieties grows in profuse abundance; where every fowl thrives and where cattle seldom need shelter and plou ghing can be done every month in the year; where rains are abundant and drought rarely comes; where cold is rarely severe and never extreme—a land of sunshine and showers.

Come friends, from the bleak and droughty lands and find a welcome home in our sunny South.

SIMPLY WONDERFUL

No achievements of the past are criterions for the present.) The year 1894 will outdo anything ever done in the line of low prices for clothing. Alex Rice's being the largest clothing house in Montgomery, naturally has the largest stock of goods and the most complete and varied assortment at the lowest prices that great buying and cash discounts can make possible. You'll read the story of masterly buying on every price ticket throughout the house; you'll see the impress of stylish beauty on every garment in the store you'll appreciate the goods thoroughly the more you see and compare other stocks with that of Alex Rice's. We ask no trade from sympathy; we desire no patronage because we have done wonders for you in the past; we expect no purchases to be made on any other ground than getting the most of the best for the least that it may be had. All we ask—and you'll find it as much to your interest as ours—is that you will look at what Alex Rice has before you make your purchase of a fall or winter suit. Men's clothing never was here in such great variety and profusion as now and one glance at it will assure you that it never was as low.

Our ways of buying and paying for goods, our low rent and our extensive outlet for goods make prices possible here that no one else can approach, much less equal, and it guarantees you a saving of from $2 to $5 on a suit. If that's worth considering, it's worth your while to give us a call.

Printed prices in cold type can't tell the story of perfection and economy half so well as a visit will do. We challenge comparison on any score and give a guarantee of saving on competitors prices or we don't want your trade.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, or 220 acres of land for $3 per acre? If that is too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2.50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

Corporal J. H. Lougerier has distinguished himself by appearing on the Roll of Honor of Howard College for 6 weeks ending Dec. 14th 1894.

President.

We regret to learn that Mr. Joe Cox was badly hurt last week by being kicked by his mule. We trust that he will soon be alright.

The friends of Mrs. Crowell, nee Miss Anna Lou Duke, will be glad to know that she and her baby will spend some time in Clanton.

County Court was in session last Monday. Only one case came up and that was appealed.

Lands in Chilton county will never be so cheap any more, so those who contemplate buying had best see the editor of the View at the earliest possible day.

Of course it was cold for a week in Chilton county but we did not hear of any one being frozen to death. But such reports came from Florida.

Nearly every train for weeks past has brought Alabamians back to their home counties from Texas and the Indian Territory. Several Chilton folks are at home to stay.

The View desires short communications from the various parts of county. It wants real news items, but no personalities which would give offence to others. Let us all seek to pursue the paths by which peace shall be promoted Young Hill, of Roanoke who killed Dr. Card made a complete confession. For money he made up his mind to do the fatal deed. But remorse of conscience made him so miserable that his arrest was a relief, and he even cared not that he was in danger of being lynched as that would have been a favor. "Childish were Card" was a constant exclamation from his lips.

It would be a great pleasure for the editor of the View to be with the editors on their trip through Florida and to Cuba, but business etc forbid. We have appointed Dr. Mitchell as our representative and he will tell our readers something about the journey.

In a few years people from other states will own much of the best lands in Chilton county, unless our own people shall cease the folly of running to Texas and other places hunting for "a good place" A man can take forty or eighty acres of this Chilton land and by proper care make a good living and in a few years have all the comforts about him.

Many stubborn and aggravating cases of rheumatism that were believed to be incurable and accepted as life legacies, have yielded to Chamberlain's Pain Balm, much to the surprise and gratification of the sufferer. One application will relieve the pain and suffering and its continued use insures an effectual cure. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

Hog and hominy is the winning policy in this part of the South. And it is right. The farmer who depends on cotton this year is busted world without end. And if he sticks to it with the lights before him he will not be entitled to any sympathy.—Sumpter Record.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

A Long Way Off.

"You voted for Jones at the last election, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"So did I. Say, don't you think that he's a little off—a little touched in the upper story?"

"I don't know."

"I think he is, and I'll tell you why. Before the election, when I met him, he used to shake my hand and inquire after my family, my wife's health, my children's health, particularly that of the youngest, who was teething, and about whose condition he seemed to be very anxious. In fact, he was deeply interested in us all."

"Well, that was all right—it showed a kind heart."

"That's what I thought; but just see. Since the election he passes me like a streak of greased lightning, never shakes hands, never inquires for the family, doesn't seem to care whether the youngest has cut his teeth or had a set of false ones put in—just gives me a nod and he is gone."—New York Press.

Extinguished.

The girl was pale, but resolute, as is the habit of damsels of her age and limited experience.

"Papa," she protested, standing before her suitor, "do not hurt Reginald. He is the light of my life."

The old man smiled.

"That's all right," he answered, "I was just putting the light out."

Suiting the action to the word, he assaulted the youth and cast him forth.

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

Senator Davis, of Minnesota, a member of the committee on foreign relations, says that the war between China and Japan will result in a great extension of commerce between the United States and both of these countries.

Guarding Against Disease.

The commissioner of pensions has issued an order which will prevent clerks in the pension department from practicing medicine while off duty. The order states that if any clerk or employe of the pension bureau shall attend patients as a physician or medical advisor it will be regarded as sufficient ground for removal from the bureau. The danger of bringing contagious diseases to the other clerks is too great, so the commissioner thinks. Moreover, it is a calling likely to keep the clerks and employes up at night and thus unfit them for work during the day.

Wanted Carlisle's Scalp.

Inklings of an unusually sensational story leaked out at Washington Wednesday. The story, too, has many of the ear-marks of verity. It relates to Secretary Carlisle and the rumors of his removal published recently by the New York newspapers, and comes from a southern congressman, who gives Secretary Carlisle himself as his informant. It seems that on Monday J. Pierpont Morgan, the big New York banker, called on the president. He, it is alleged, made a formal demand upon the president that Secretary Carlisle's resignation be asked for. He presented also a letter from the heads of many of the strongest financial institutions in New York.

He informed the president that, in case this was not done, the administration, instead of securing the aid of the New York bankers, would meet with their opposition. President Cleveland, it is reported, politely but firmly assured Mr. Morgan that he would not ask for Mr. Carlisle's resignation, but, on the contrary, he told him that Mr. Carlisle was making a splendid official, satisfying both the country and the administration, and, instead of requesting his resignation, he intended to back him up in his financial plans to the fullest extent of his power. Mr. Morgan is said to have returned to New York in high dudgeon.

The dissatisfaction over Mr. Carlisle among the New York bankers is due to the last bond issue. The syndicate, which purchased these bonds with the idea of clearing millions by the transaction, has lost money on account of the feeling in financial circles that Mr. Carlisle's bill will become a law. In such a case, the bonds would not play so important a part. These financiers declare that Mr. Carlisle broke faith with them after getting them to buy the bonds at the lowest rate of interest ever known in this country and then launching legislation which took away much of their value.

The Census Almost Complete.

The eleventh census will be practically completed within the time allotted by congress, March 4th next. Colonel Wright, the acting superintendent, stated that there was no question of the ability of the office to complete its work by that time. The only volumes where manuscripts not yet in readiness for printing are the last volume on population and part of the volume on vital statistics. The latter cannot be completed until the former is finished. Twelve reports are at the government printing office out of the control of the bureau, and several volumes a month will hereafter probably be issued. The text of the final report on manufactures, farms, homes and mortgages, pauperism and crime, and one or two other reports are in course of revision. The force of the office has been reduced to 290 and dismissals will be frequent during the next two months, probably about 150 remaining on February 1.

FORTY-ONE KILLED.

Awful Fate of a Christmas Party in Oregon.

At Silver Lake, Lake county, Oregon, Christmas eve, while a large party was attending a Christmas tree, a lamp exploded, causing a fire, in which forty-one persons were burned to death and fifteen injured. The gathering had assembled at a hall above Christman Bro.'s store and consisted of children who, with their parents and relatives, were having a grand time, enjoying what Santa Claus had brought them, little dreaming that many of them would never leave the building alive. The Lakeview Examiner says:

"Some one attempted to get where he could see and hear better by jumping upon a bench in the middle of the hall. In doing so his head struck a lamp hanging from the ceiling, causing the oil to run out, which immediately caught fire.

"People were compelled to go through the flames in order to reach the door and frantically rushed to their doom. Five of the injured will likely die. The building was a two-story structure, including the post-office, and the entire stock of goods of Christman Bros. was consumed."

Silver Lake is over a hundred miles from Klamath Falls, and a stage with Lakeview papers brought the news to the latter place.

Ex-Senator Fair Dead.

Ex-Senator James F. Fair, the bonanza millionaire, died at San Francisco Friday night. The cause of his death was diabetes and Bright's disease. He leaves a fortune estimated at $40,000,000 and by the terms of his telegraphic will, made some two months ago, this vast sum, it is stated, will be equally divided between his three surviving children, Mrs. Herman Odrichs, of New York; Miss Virginia, now studying with her sister in New York, and Charles L. Fair, of San Francisco.

THERE are some people so good that they are good for nothing.

THE NEW REGIME.

NEW YORK'S REPUBLICAN OFFICIALS TAKE CHARGE.

Morton Inaugurated Governor and Strong Takes the Mayor's Chair.

At Albany, Tuesday, Hon. Levi P. Morton was inaugurated as governor of the state of New York for the ensuing two years. He is the first republican to assume the duties of this office since 1879. Inauguration day broke cold and clear and the streets of Albany were enlivened by the gay uniforms of staff and military officers on their way to the capitol.

Although the inaugural ceremonies were set for 11 o'clock, the assembly chamber was comfortably filled an hour before that time. The ceremonies were presided over by Secretary of State Palmer. It was but a few minutes after 11 o'clock when Rt. Rev. Bishop William Crosswell Doane opened the exercises with prayer. Governor Flower then welcomed the governor-elect. Mr. Morton then took the constitutional oath of office and delivered an address.

Mayor Strong Installed.

For the first time in twenty-two years a mayor not of the democratic politicism is at the head of the New York city government.

Shortly before noon Tuesday the outgoing and incoming mayors met at the city hall. After the usual formalities an interchange of greetings and the introduction of the several heads of the departments to Mr. Strong, Thomas F. Gilroy took his departure from the mayor's office, and, as he has announced, from political life.

The new mayor will have a clean slate to work on, as Mr. Gilroy left nothing unfinished in the routine work of his office when he retired.

The new board of aldermen will not organize until next week. The new sheriff, Mr. Tamsen, entered upon the duties of his position and so did the new coroners. Conditions for the new officials will be somewhat different from those that have prevailed heretofore. Under the new state legislation every species of gambling is prohibited and classed as a criminal offense. Rumors of intended resignations of many officials in the city departments are rife, but it is generally believed that the men in possession of these very coveted places will hold on until they see whether a power of removal bill will be passed at Albany.

BIG DEAL IN PHOSPHATE.

The "Peace River Phosphate Mining Company" Organized.

A Savannah special says: The organization of the "Peace River Phosphate Mining Company" has been completed here, with a capital stock of $1,250,000, already paid in, and permission to increase the sum to $5,000,000 if desired.

The following officers have been elected: President, Joseph Hull, of Savannah; vice-president, M. F. Knudson, of New York; treasurer, R. W. Patterson, of New York; secretary and assistant treasurer, H. P. Richmond, of Savannah; directors, George W. Scott, of Atlanta; H. M. Comer, Joseph Hull and H. M. Comer, Jr., of Savannah; R. W. Patterson and M. F. Knudson, of New York.

The organization of the Peace River Phosphate Mining Company is the biggest move that has been made in phosphates in South Georgia and Florida in several months. The matter has been conducted very quietly and little has been known about the intentions of those at the head of the enterprise until the meeting was held in Savannah.

The company is a consolidation of all the companies now operating on Peace river—the Peace River Phosphate Company, the De Soto Phosphate Mining Company, the Arcadia Phosphate Company and the Charlotte Harbor Phosphate Company. The new company control about ninety miles of the bed of Peace river and the adjacent valley, amounting in all to about 24,000 acres of phosphate land. The territory of the company begins at Bowling Green and ends at Charlotte Harbor, Punta Gorda being the shipping point.

JACKSONVILLE STATISTICS.

Interesting Figures Regarding Traffic, Marriages, Births and Deaths.

Some of the official statistics of Jacksonville for the year 1894 are of special interest. There were shipped from that port during the twelve months ended Monday night 92,542,335 feet of Florida pine lumber, of which about 64,000 feet went to domestic and 8,000,000 to foreign ports. There were also 1,808,000 cypress, exclusive of crossties, shipped to coastwise ports. This output of lumber was by water, the railroad shipments being also very large. During the same period 907,277 boxes of oranges were shipped from the port to domestic points. The fire department was called out 143 times during the year, 112 of the fires being inside the fire limits and thirty-one outside. The loss by fire was very light.

During 1894 there were 464 marriage licenses issued in the county, 157 to white couples and 307 to colored. In the city there were 602 births, of which 233 were whites and 369 colored. The deaths in the city were 597, only nine short of the number of births, the division being 234 whites and 359 colored. Thirty-eight of these deaths were from violence or accidents, and seventy of them were of non-residents. With a normal population of 27,000 this makes the death rate only a fraction over 2 per cent. or about twenty to the thousand.

MISSOURI'S LEGISLATURE.

Under Republican Control for the First Time in 25 Years.

The general assembly of Missouri was called to order at Jefferson City Wednesday and after the new members were sworn in, the republicans, for the first time in a quarter of a century, found themselves in control of the legislature. There were no contests and the proceedings occupied but a few minutes.

MITCHELL IS MAD.

FLORIDA'S GOVERNOR IS DOWN ON HIS CRITICS.

Because They Don't Approve His Action in the Flagler Matter.

A report was sent out from Austin, Tex., to the effect that Governor Mitchell, of Florida, had rescinded his previous action in the matter of honoring the requisition papers from Governor Hogg, of Texas, for the arrest and delivery of H. M. Flagler, of New York, to Texas officers. The report is erroneous. Governor Mitchell was seen at the executive office in the capitol Wednesday afternoon and authorized a complete denial of the Austin story, adding: "I have taken no action whatever in the Flagler matter since signing and forwarding the requisition to Governor Hogg."

The governor declined to say whether or not he would take any further action, nor would he say whether or not any pressure is being brought to bear upon him from influential people in and out of Florida. There is a report, however, that Governor Mitchell is being besieged on every hand by politicians and prominent transportation people to back down and recall the papers from Texas.

There are thousands of the governor's friends and supporters in the state who are disposed to criticise him harshly for doing what the governors of New York and Missouri declined to do. A leading south Florida lawyer is authority for the statement that Mitchell's action in the Flagler matter threatens to make a very serious division in the ranks of the Mitchell wing of the democracy in Florida; that already the governor has spoken and written very sharply and pointedly to several leading state administration democrats who were injudicious enough to approach him with suggestions that he rescind his action in the requisition case.

THE COUNTY ELECTIONS.

The Democrats Hold Their Own Throughout the State.

The democrats made gains in the county elections Wednesday.

Every county in the state voted for local officers. The democrats more than held their own. Not a single county was lost and several which were carried by the populists in the October elections were redeemed. Among these are Douglass, Gwinnett, Bartow, Polk, possibly Meriwether and a number of others.

Pike, Monroe, Effingham and other counties which were contested in the legislature are democratic by safe majorities.

The day was inclement throughout the greater part of Georgia. Snow and sleet fell in many counties and rain in others.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

The report on the industrial condition of the South for the past week shows that the condition of the iron market continues to be reasonably satisfactory. Production is large and will increase. Few large orders are reported, but many small ones prevent an accumulation of stocks. No change in prices. Coal is in good demand. The output is now very large; that of the Alabama mines is the largest ever known. Southern lumber prospects are improving. Railroads are beginning to place orders, the export demand is making itself felt, and orders ahead will keep a good many mills busy during the winter. Small stocks of poplar and cypress make prices very firm with prospects of an early advance.

Thirty-seven new industries were established or incorporated during the week, prominent among which are a $500,000 cotton mill at Hickory, N. C., and others at Macon, Ga., and Concord, N. C.; a marble quarrying company with $100,000 capital at Stanford, Ky.; a large sugar refinery to be built at New Orleans, La., a $50,000 construction company at Dallas, Tex., and one with $25,000 capital at Wichita Falls, Tex. A flouring mill of 125 barrels daily capacity is reported at Bluff City, Tenn.; a $80,000 ice company has been chartered at Tyler, Tex.; a $20,000 coal mining company at Birmingham, Ala., and a $10,000 lumber manufacturing company at Roanoke, Va.

There is also reported a brewery at Dallas, Tex.; electrical companies at Arcadia and Tampa, Fla.; a fertilizer factory at Wilmington, N. C., and flouring mills at Elva, Ky., and Forest City, N. C. An ice factory is to be built at Statesboro, Ga.; machine shops at Florence, Ala., Louisville, Ky., and Chattanooga, Tenn.; a mica mill at Houston, Va., and a granite quarry is to be opened at Clarksville, Va. Preparations are being made to build a ramie mill at Tallahassee, Fla.; a rice mill is reported at Orlando, Fla.; a shoe factory Hickory, N. C.; a soap factory at Madison, Ga.; sulphuric acid works at Blacksburg, S. C., and woodworking plants at Melvin, Ala., Davisburg, Bonhomie and Mississippi City, Miss., Somerville, Tenn., Brenham, Tex., and Houston and Roanoke, Va.

Water works are reported at Siloam Springs, Ark., Greenville, Ky., and Bowie, Texas. Among the enlargements for the week are ice factories at Greenville, S. C., and Dallas, Tex.; a $50,000 addition to a plumbers' supplies factory at Louisville, Ky.; a $75,000 addition to a Fort Worth, Tex., cotton mill, and additions to cotton mills at Goldsboro, N. C., and Tallahassee, Fla. The new buildings include business houses at Augusta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex.; a $20,000 club house at Ludlow, Ky.; a $10,000 court house at New Orleans, La., and a warehouse at Dallas, Tex.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

"A THING OF BEAUTY."

Mammoth Edition of Hood's Calendar for 1895.

Every one who gets Hood's Calendar for 1895 secures "a thing of beauty." The calendar is formed in the shape of a heart and is ornamented with two beautiful child faces which have always been charming features of Hood's Calendars. On the right is a representation of "Winter," the sweet little face with light brown eyes peeping out from a dainty cap, while the snow flakes are falling all about. The face on the left is a picture of "Summer," and is lighted with blue eyes and the head covered with a hat decorated with bright flowers. The shades are perfectly blended and the whole picture is surrounded by a tasty border. The design was made by Miss Maud Humphrey, one of the most gifted and celebrated water color artists in the country. The calendar gives the usual information concerning the lunar changes, and upon the back is printed a table of astronomical events especially calculated for C. I. Hood & Co.

The calendar is issued to advertise the preparations of the firm, and is regarded as most difficult to manufacture, its novel shape being such as no other concern has ever undertaken to produce in large quantities. During the five months when the calendars were being made there were actually employed every day in this part of the work six printing presses, one bronzing machine, four eye-letting machines, seven wire stitchers, eight large paper cutters and 162 persons. The edition for 1895 was 10,500,000, or about 2,500,000 more than last year. If the calendars were laid down in a single line, they would reach almost 1000 miles, and if the different pieces in the calendar pads were laid in this way they would extend almost 8000 miles, or from New York to Liverpool.

Those who are unable to obtain Hood's Sarsaparilla Calendars at the drug stores should send six cents in stamps for one, or 10 cents for two to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Giant Gold Nuggets.

The following is a list of the largest gold nuggets ever found, according to the records of the Smithsonian institution: "King of the Water Moon" nugget, found in Australia in 1852; 223 pounds and four ounces. The "Welcome," found at Ballarat, Victoria, Australia, in 1854; 184 pounds and ten ounces. Bakary nugget, found in the same Australian province in 1858; weighed 182 pounds. Nugget found at Carson Hill, Cal., in 1854, weighed 180 pounds, and another at the same place in the same year, weighed 149 pounds. These two were the largest gold nuggets ever discovered in America. The Corona, found in Toulumne county, California, in 1850, weighed 147¼ pounds. The Farrish nugget, found in 1860 at Sierra Buttes, Cal., weighed 133 pounds. One found near the same place in 1869 weighed ninety-five pounds and six ounces. The "Great Siberian" nugget, found near Miask, Siberia, in 1842, weighed ninety-six pounds and four ounces.

In 1853 the famous Ballarat mine of Australia (mentioned first in this list) yielded three nuggets which had a combined weight of 357 pounds.

The "Blanche Barclay" nugget, found in Australia in 1842, weighed 146 pounds.

The largest gold nugget ever found east of the Mississippi (and one frequently listed as "the largest nugget found in America") was from the Reed mine in North Carolina. It weighed even eighty pounds.

The "Rattlesnake" nugget, found on Rattlesnake river in California in 1871, weighed 106 pounds and two ounces.

The Meroo Creek mine, New South Wales, produced three nuggets during 1851 that had a combined weight of 318 pounds.

NEAR Chestertown, Md., there is a small lake called Still Pond, which has never been known to be ruffled even by the most violent storms. It never freezes, and, while I do not know it to be a fact, I would give it as my opinion that it is highly impregnated with oil and bitumen like the Dead sea.—St. Louis Republic.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Jed Dando, of Lower Dendelion, Va., has a laughing toad which is a great source of amusement to his family and friends. Dando discovered the toad about six months ago on the lawn in front of his house. He noticed that it did not stir as he approached, and when he got closer he saw that the toad's mouth was open and it was chuckling—not the toad-like plunkety plunk, but a low soft laugh. By tickling its nose with a straw the creature can be made to laugh at any time.

There is a hog farm in Shelby county Missouri, owned by John Gruder, a colored man. It is fifty acres in extent, and is devoted exclusively to the raising of pork. Just how many thousands hogs he owns Gruder does not know, but everybody in the vicinity knows that he has the noisiest place in the county.

The Lovett farm, four miles from Bristol, Pa., has been in the possession of the Lovett family for 212 years. The original deed for the land bore the signatures of the Duke of York and William Penn. There has never been any break in the title, each conveyance being from a Lovett to a Lovett. The present owner, Joseph L. Lovett, has the Duke of York deed in his possession.

Why, Indeed.

"Why," asked the philosopher "why is it that a man—the noblest created object—why is it that a man should have such doubts of his ability to win a woman's affection, when he considers the success in that line of a pop-eyed, pudding-shaped, pretzel-tailed pug dog?"

But the assembled listeners answered him not.—Indianapolis Journal.

PHYSICAL STRENGTH,

cheerful spirits and the ability to fully enjoy life, come only with a healthy body and mind. The young man who suffers from nervous debility, impaired memory, low spirits, irritable temper, and the thousand and one derangements of mind and body that result from, unnatural, pernicious habits, usually contracted in youth, through ignorance, is thereby incapacitated to thoroughly enjoy life. He feels tired, spiritless, and drowsy; his sleep is disturbed and does not refresh him as it should; the will power is weakened, morbid fears haunt him and may result in confirmed hypochondria, or melancholia and, finally, in softing of the brain, epilepsy, ("fits"), paralysis, locomotor ataxia and even in dread insanity.

To reach, re-claim and restore such unfortunates to health and happiness, is the aim of the publishers of a book of 136 pages, written in plain but chaste language, on the nature, symptoms and curability, by home-treatment, of such diseases. This book will be sent sealed, in plain envelope, on receipt of this notice with ten cents in stamps, for postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

For more than a quarter of a century, physicians connected with this widely celebrated Institution have made the treatment of the diseases above hinted at their specialty. Thousands have consulted them by letter and received advice and medicines which have resulted in permanent cures.

Sufferers from premature old age, or loss of power, will find much of interest in the book above mentioned.

The Old Meeting-House.

We don't git to meetin' much, we're gitting old an' lame,
But when we hear the old church bell a-soundin' jest the same
As in the days when we were young, myself an' Sary Ann,
We set out on the doorstep an' we listen all we can.

An' when it stops a-ringin' out, an' all is soft and still,
We look up to the old white church a-standin' on the hill,
An' pretty soon, like heav'nly strains above the holy calm,
We faintly hear the organ an' the singin' of the psalm.

The church has seen its better days, like Sary Ann an' me;
Like us it's lost its vigor, an' ain't what it used to be.
The winds that sweep across the hill have swept it's strength away;
An' now it's old and rickety an' fallin' to decay.

The last time we were in it, it's quite a spell ago,
When'er the sexton pulled the bell the house rocked to an' fro,
An' creaked in all its j'ints, the seat it jolted 'g'in my back;
An' once I dropped my hymn book an' it landed with a whack

Right on to Sary's corn. "My, now," thought I. "I'm booked;"
But Sary Ann she never lisped, she only set an' looked.
The parson then came up the aisle, the organ 'gun to play,
An' soon we had a sermon on the everlastin' day.

When the sun sets behind the hill an' makes the sky all gold,
An' right thar stands the meetin'-house a-loomin' up so bold
An' lookin' like a portal to a land beyond the skies,
I sometimes feel almost's if heaven lay right before our eyes.

Sary an' I have most got through, an' soon will come the day
When out beside the meetin'-house we'll both be laid away.
But oft I think when Sary an' I hev climbed the heav'nly stairs,
We'll want to look down on the church where once we j'ined in prayers.

—MAYME ISHAM.

HIS LAST INVENTION.

Ralph Gordon strode moodily up and down his workshop, littered with the odds and ends of machinery which represented the ruins of a hundred castles in the air.

"A failure! Everything in my life is a miserable failure!" he cried aloud, as he paced the floor.

It was not the breakdown of an ordinary invention, however, that wrung the bitter words from him. He had grown accustomed to waking in the morning with an idea worth millions in his head and going to bed at night with the knowledge that it was not worth a million match sticks; and had become quite philosophical over the failure of his plans for money making. But this time it was a different arrangement that had broken down, an arrangement by which the inventor hoped to make a home for himself and children, and the mainspring, in the shape of Deborah Dene, the woman he loved, had failed him. In his clenched fist he held the letter she had sent him, abruptly announcing that she wished to break off their engagement.

"I fail in everything that would make life worth living and cannot even kill myself," he went on, in his despairing soliloquy. "Must everything I try prove a failure?"

He took up the revolver once more with sudden determination, and, holding the barrel between his teeth, pulled the trigger. There was a click, but nothing more; he had forgotten, after all, to load the thing.

He had failed once more to kill himself, and the nervous shock he had experienced had made it impossible for him to repeat the attempt. He must think of something, he told himself, which would make the last act easier for him. He had determined on suicide, and had committed himself by informing Deborah of his intentions; but when the single movement of a finger was in a moment to make all the difference between life and death, his physical courage deserted him, and his finger became powerless. He must prepare some plan for killing himself in which the exact moment of his death would be decided by chance or the action of machinery.

The idea pleased him by suggesting the need of invention, a need which his mind was already to meet, and he set himself with a melancholy pleasure to think out the details of a killing machine. Death must be painless and instantaneous, of course, but must act at a different moment from that at which the victim took the decisive action which would make his fate certain and unchangeable. He drew out a plan rapidly, making rough sketches of the mechanical details on the back of Deborah Dene's fatal letter.

Then he went down to his forge on the floor below, and worked hard at the manufacture of the instrument he had invented. It was finished by midnight, and, in a grim sort of way, Ralph Gardon was proud of his work.

The invention was in the sort of a dynamite bomb, which would explode by the slow action of an acid-eating through a barrier of cement. One of his past failures had left him with the dynamite on his hands. It was inclosed in a carefully welded iron case, joined strongly, so that once the case was closed it could only be opened by the exercise of considerable force. It was connected as strongly to an iron chain, which the inventor fastened around his waist, joined the two ends with a Yale padlock. When he had locked it he laid the key on his anvil, and with a stroke of his hammer beat it out of shape.

"Now," he said to himself, almost triumphantly, when it was done, "coward or no coward, in about half an hour I must die."

He was glad that the affair was settled. There was nothing left to live for. The only thing that he still feared was his own want of courage and determination.

To get away from his anvil and tools, with the chance they still offered him of changing his mind, and breaking the chain round his waist, as well as to save the empty house from needless injury, the inventor put on his hat and walked out into the country road that stretched in front of his lonely dwelling.

He walked along rapidly, anxious, whilst his determination remained firm, to place as great a distance as possible between himself and any chance of undoing his handiwork. There was not a soul abroad, of course, at such an hour, and Gardon had no fear of injuring anybody but himself by the explosion that now he was expecting every moment. When the road took him near any habitation he made a wide circuit to keep it outside the range of the dynamite bomb around his waist. With the same thoughtfulness for others he stopped when, after about half an hour's walk, he caught sight of the figure of a woman approaching him. He was like a man with the plague, whom it was dangerous to approach, and Ralph was about to turn precipitately, and get out of the woman's way, when something in her figure struck him as familiar. The night was a moonlight one, and in the middle of the road where she was walking it was as clear as noonday. A second glance told him that his suspicion was right,—it was Deborah Dene hurrying along the road.

In the complete surprise of seeing her in such a spot at such an hour, the thought of his invention went clear out of his head. It was due to go off at any moment now; but Ralph was so astonished that he actually forgot its existence.

He hurried forward.

"Deb," he said, "what are you doing here?"

For answer the girl flung her arms around his neck and burst into tears. She had hurried as fast as the train would bring her to him immediately on receiving his letter, with its hint of suicide, and had walked from the nearest station, three miles farther up the road, expecting to find him a corpse. She sobbed for five minutes on his breast without being able to speak a word, in the relief of finding him alive. The letter which he had received and which she was supposed to have written, she had never heard of except through his reproaches. It was a forgery, no doubt, conceived by some spiteful acquaintances of his or hers to ruin their happiness. She loved him with her whole heart and soul, and she sobbed, and could never dream of giving him up.

It seemed to poor Ralph Gardon, who loved her more than his life, that the gates of Paradise had opened. To find that all the mental agony through which he had passed had been without apparent cause or basis made him feel the happiest man in the world.

It was actually not until he clasped his sweetheart in his arms, with every doubt and suspicion removed, that the consequent pressure of the bomb against his flesh reminded him how in a few more minutes at most it would blow him to atoms.

This story was told me as true by a friend of mine, who knew the interest I take in the subject of suicide. He stopped when he had reached this point in his narrative, as if it was concluded.

"And were they both killed?" I asked, with interest.

"Oh, no! they were married shortly afterward. Gardon gave up trying to invent from that night, and became very successful when he found his real forte—tale writing.

"But the bomb?" I asked. I was not interested in the man's subsequent career. My friend pretended to look surprised.

"My dear fellow, you don't think a machine could possibly work when Ralph Gardon had invented and made it?"—Pall Mall Budget.

An Anomalous Cat.

William Ensbury, who resides at Fourth and Howard streets, is busily engaged exhibiting an anomalous kitten to his friends. The tiny member of the feline species, is only three weeks old, and although handicapped with a short leg and three ears manages to get about with alacrity. When the little puss was born it was noticed that one of its legs was shorter than it really ought to be and great was the surprise of all concerned when a third ear was discovered on the mouse catcher.

The off leg is a mere bulge of skin in the spot where the limb ought to grow. Being thus unbalanced forward, the weight of the kitten is thrown on its hind legs, which are inadequate to the duty thrust upon them. Instead of using the feet when walking, the entire first joint of the rear limb is stretched on the ground. The third ear is thought to be a valuable acquisition, and the mice about the establishment have been trying to keep as quiet as possible, in order to evade ear shot of the youthful feline.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE PLANTERS MEET

AND DECLARE FOR REDUCED COTTON ACREAGE.

A National Organization Advocated. Other Recommendations.

The cotton growers' convention met at Jackson, Miss., and was called to order by Auditor W. W. Stone, who introduced the projector, Hector Lane, commissioner of agriculture of Alabama, who spoke briefly of the objects and called to the chair Governor Stone, who had been elected president at the Montgomery meeting. Governor Stone made a splendid speech, requesting the convention to pass practical resolutions favoring a decrease in the acreage of crops and the encouragement of cotton factories in the south.

Delegates were present from some thirty counties in Mississippi and from Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The following is the gist of resolutions adopted in the convention:

The gravity of the conditions confronting the cotton growers is recognized. To what extent this may be traced to financial legislation is useless to discuss. The overproduction of cotton is recognized as one of the chief causes. This must be corrected, or universal bankruptcy will follow. Self-interest must impel the grower to a change. Every farmer is appealed to not to plant so much cotton. A decrease of not less than 25 per cent is recommended; 50 per would be better. The farmers should be made self-sustaining by planting peas, corn, potatoes, oats, etc., and raising plenty of meat. The tide of immigration turned this way will change methods. Farmers are urged to form county organizations all over the south to carry out these resolutions. Cold storage houses are recommended wherever practicable. The committee promises better times and higher prices for cotton if its recommendations are observed. All papers in the south are requested to keep the committee's report standing.

The committee on organization and by-laws submitted a long report, of which the following is a synopsis:

No one shall be a member who is not a legitimate grower. The association is formed for one year, and the executive committee is given power to continue it longer if good results. The agreement to be sent to all counties in the cotton-growing states for signatures is not to be binding till signed by three-fourths of the cotton acreage in 80 per cent. of the cotton-growing counties, said fact to be determined by the national committee.

Each member binds himself to pay two cents for each acre of cotton planted in 1894, half to be retained in the counties, the balance to be paid into the treasury of the national committee for general purposes.

The county organizations are to be formed on the first Monday of March, 1895.

The national executive committee shall be composed of the national president, who is ex-officio chairman and each state is entitled to one member for every 100,000 bales of cotton raised in 1890, as shown by the United States census.

All state organizations shall meet at the state capitals on the third Monday of March, 1895, and the national committee at New Orleans the first Monday of April, 1895; which shall ascertain whether the agreement is signed by the requisite number to make the same binding. The presidents are charged with the duty of seeing the agreements properly distributed for signatures.

The Special Will be Put on Again.

It is announced that the New York and Florida special which has been a feature of the southern travel for several years, will be put in service again this season over the Atlantic Coast line, the first train running Monday, January 7th. It will leave New York daily except Sunday at 4:30 o'clock p. m., and Washington at 10:48, arriving at Jacksonville the next evening at 7:05 o'clock and St. Augustine at 8:15 o'clock.

Rio Grande Road to be Extended.

It is reported that the Rio Grande railroad, which now turns from Brownsville, to Point Isabel, Texas, is to be extended in a direct line to Monterey, Mexico.

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreet's Report of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says:

"There has been no material improvement in general trade. At large eastern cities only a moderate volume of business is reported, Buffalo and Boston inclining to regard the near outlook the more hopefully. Philadelphia and Pittsburg are naturally affected somewhat by lower quotations for iron and steel and Baltimore prefers awaiting orders from commercial travelers before expressing opinions on the outlook.

General trade is reported quiet at Charleston, Nashville and Memphis, with mercantile collections fair only. At Chattanooga and Atlanta very little is doing in wholesale lines, the former reporting manufactures quiet as a result of prolonged holiday influences and the weather. At Savannah trade is quiet, but improving and collections are only fair. Cotton manufacturers are taking some new contracts, but merchants will act with extreme conservatism. Augusta cotton factories report a fairly good demand and improved collections, though general trade shows no gain. City and country trade is reported fairly satisfactorily by Jacksonville. Damage from extremely cold weather in Florida to fruit and vegetables is quite heavy, orange growers being affected seriously. At Birmingham manufacturers report orders scattered, general trade quiet and collections only fair. There is only a small volume of business at New Orleans and collections are slow. At Galveston trade is very quiet and orders are for needs only.

All western cities announce practically unchanged trade conditions and light or moderate volumes of business, conspicuously Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Louisville, although the Straits city reports cold weather has stimulated orders and Louisville that merchants are more hopeful. At Chicago orders are mostly of the filling-in variety and St. Louis merchants are still working on inventories and starting out commercial travelers. Business is confined mostly to mail orders.

ENDORSED GOV. MITCHELL.

Jacksonville's Board of Trade Says He Did the Correct Thing.

At the annual meeting of the Jacksonville board of trade held last Wednesday evening B. F. Dillon, Florida superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, offered the following resolutions, which were adopted unanimously without discussion:

"Whereas, the governor of Texas recently made an application to the governor of Florida for the arrest of H. M. Flagler upon the charge that Mr. Flagler had, with other parties, on a certain day, in the county of McLendon, state of Texas, entered into an alleged conspiracy against trade, accompanying said application with an affidavit to the effect that he was a fugitive from justice, whereupon the requisition was honored and a warrant was issued; and,

"Whereas, When subsequently Mr. Flagler filed with Governor Mitchell an affidavit stating that he had never been in Texas, nor had any business transactions whatever in that state, Governor Mitchell revoked the warrant already issued; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the action of Governor Mitchell in revoking the warrant for the arrest of H. M. Flagler, a citizen of this state, upon a requisition of the governor of Texas, is endorsed and approved by the board of trade.

"Resolved further, That the board regards Mr. Flagler as one of the most valued and respected citizens of this state, who, as a developer of her resources, has already demonstrated his great faith in and affection for the state of his adoption.

Passenger Rates Demoralized.

The passenger rates from points in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee to points west of the Mississippi, have reached such a point of demoralization that there was a meeting in Atlanta Wednesday of the general passenger agents of the roads interested to straighten out matters and re-establish rates. Nearly every big railroad system in the south was represented.

Food for the Miners.

Governor McKinley, of Ohio, has directed eight hundred dollars worth of food to be shipped to certain miners in the Hocking Valley, who are reported by their committees to be in a state of starvation.

THE BILL DOOMED.

CARLISLE'S FINANCIAL MEASURE PRACTICALLY KILLED.

It Was Effected by the House's Refusal to Limit Debate.

A Washington special says: The Carlisle bill is dead to all intents and purposes. Its defeat was compassed by going into a committee of the whole under the five minutes rule and then striking out the enacting clause. A motion from the committee on rules for the previous question on the rule fixing a date for the vote was voted down. Secretary Carlisle and the committee on rules will confer at once as to the practicability of bringing up the bill again.

It is claimed that there were twenty-five absent members who favored its passage. Every indication, however, points to its withdrawal, for there are known to be several who voted for the previous question, who are opposed to the bill.

Efforts to pass a currency reform measure and to provide needed revenues for the government will not be abandoned. If the bill is withdrawn, renewed efforts will be indulged in by the friends of the measure, and in either the house or the senate a new measure will be sprung almost immediately.

CARLISLE DOESN'T GIVE UP.

Another and later dispatch stated that at 2:45 p. m. Secretary Carlisle arrived at the capitol and held a consultation with Speaker Crisp in the latter's room on the subject of the defeat of the currency bill. Mr. Carlisle, it is understood, was very urgent in his request for an immediate effort to resurrect the measure.

With the single exception of Chairman Springer, the members of the committee on banking and currency stated, after the defeat of the rule, that the bill was killed. They also agreed that no further currency legislation was possible at the present session.

Speaker Crisp and his democratic associates of the rules committee, have realized for several days that there was a majority against the bill and the result was accepted without surprise.

FLORIDA'S PHOSPHATES.

Europe Has Stored Up a Large Supply of Fertilizers.

The phosphate shipments through the port of Fernandina for the year 1894, as compiled at the custom house, aggregated 135,509 tons, an excess of nearly 9,000 tons over those of 1893. Since the discovery of Florida phosphate was made in the latter part of 1889 Fernandina has shipped 448,987 tons, all of which has been hauled to Fernandina from the mines by the Florida Central & Peninsular railway, which company has erected at tide water an immense elevator and long lines of wharves. This elevator has a storage capacity of 9,600 tons. For the year of 1895 the shipments of phosphate from will hardly exceed 125,000 tons, for the European buyers have taken advantage for the last two years of the very low conditions of the market and low freights and have succeeded in storing in Europe the enormous amount of 900,000 tons of Florida phosphate. Now that it is impossible for the price to further decline, they intend to dispose of what they have on hand, which will have a tendency to improve the condition of the market, but cause a slight decrease in the amount of phosphate rock shipped from the state.

GOV. McINTYRE INAUGURATED.

Sworn in as Governor of the Great State of Colorado.

The members of the Colorado state legislature in session at Denver left the capitol building shortly before noon Monday and proceeding to Tabor opera house, met in joint session for the inauguration of Governor-elect McIntyre. The theater was elaborately and artistically decorated for the occasion. Lieutenant Governor Nichols presided, and after a short prayer by Rev. Thomas Uzzell, Governor McIntyre was introduced and the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Hoyt, of the supreme court. This was followed by the delivery of his inaugural address.

HOLDING TO HARRIS

TENNESSEE'S LEGISLATURE ASSEMBLES IN NASHVILLE.

Joint Caucus Names Senator Harris as His Own Successor.

The forty-ninth general assembly of Tennessee met at Nashville Monday. Judge Beard, of the supreme court, administered the oath of office to the members. The house caucus nominated Hon. John A. Tipton, of Tipton county, for speaker. The senate caucus nominated Mann Willis for chief clerk, Reagan Falk was nominated for chief clerk of the house.

Joint Caucus.

The democratic joint caucus met with Chairman Jones, of Hardiman, presiding, and unanimously decided to go into the nomination of a candidate for United States senator and that the majority rule be followed.

Senator Stovall, of Madison, said he wished to place in nomination a man whose name was loved and honored in every valley and on every hillside in the state; a man who had grown gray in the service of the democratic party and won fame throughout the Union. He nominated Senator Isham G. Harris.

The nomination was seconded by several members, and on motion was made unanimous. Messrs. Tipton, Richardson and Heiskell were appointed to escort Senator Harris to the hall.

Nominations for comptroller of the state were next declared in order, and Senator Ledgerwood nominated James A. Harris, the incumbent. Mr. Harris was declared the nominee of the caucus by acclamation.

Mr. Buford nominated Mr. E. B. Craig, the incumbent, for state treasurer. Mr. Craig was nominated by acclamation.

The caucus adopted a motion to adjourn subject to a call by the chairman, who should issue the call upon the written request of fifteen members of the assembly, ten from the house and five from the senate.

Senator Harris here entered the room amid cheering, and taking the stand he returned thanks for the nomination. He said the democracy of Tennessee had always been more generous to him than he had ever deserved. The joint caucus then adjourned.

OLD BOARD RE-ELECTED.

The Central's Differences Satisfactorily Settled.

The annual election for directors of the Central Railroad Company was held at its banking house in Savannah Monday morning. The old board, consisting of the following members, was re-elected:

Hugh M. Comer, Abraham Vetsburg, George J. Mills, J. B. Holst, Joseph Hull, Henry R. Jackson, C. H. Phinizy, Evan P. Howell, Uriah B. Harrold, S. P. Jacques, James Swann and W. S. Tison.

The 42,000 shares owned by the Southern Railway Company was not voted, as the board was agreeable to those who owned them.

It is said that the new organization plan of the road will be out in a few days. The differences between the parties at interest have been amicably settled, and there is very little to be done before it can be given to the security holders of the road.

STATE TREASURER DECAMPS

A special from Pierre, S. D., says: State Treasurer Taylor, who should have turned over his cash to his successor, failed to appear, and his bank, the Redfield National, has closed its doors. The last heard of Taylor he was in New York. On Saturday he should have had $350,000, and should have paid $390,000 to take up funding warrants in New York.

It has been known for some time that the treasurer was hard pressed. He was caught in the Chemical National bank failure in Chicago for a large amount, and he lost $[illegible] in the bank at Milbank, and $10,000 in that at Geldisburg, which failed during the panic. Altogether he lost $100,000. The Redfield National bank is in good condition and it is thought will pay all its debts.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

Samples of the Week of Your Neighbors--Try to Beat It.

Mr. W. H. Bolger is one of those sensible farmers who have resolved to decrease their cotton acreage this year. Last year he planted twenty acres in the fleecy staple and gathered at least a fair average crop but after paying all expenses he declares he cleared more money from the water-melons he sold from a half-acre patch than he did from his cotton, notwithstanding the local melon market last summer was not extraordinarily good. This year he proposes to plant but five acres in cotton, and to greatly increase his corn, potatoe, and other food crops. He intends also to cultivate a large area in groundpeas; and to fatten, on a one horse farm, 8,000 pounds of meat, which he calculates will pay him much better than if the farm were devoted to cotton.

Last spring Mr. Bolger happened to the misfortune of losing all his hogs, except one brood sow of the small-bone guinea breed, and his bacon outlook appeared rather slim. In August a litter of seven pigs was farrowed, and he says he then told his wife they had a prospect for meat. He swapped four of the pigs when four months old, for 304 pounds of dressed meat, and a fifth he has bargained off, for which he will get not less than 100 pounds.

One of them he will turn out while the sorriest of the seven he expects to make weigh not less than 150 at six months old. If every farmer in the South would follow Mr. Bolger's example, cotton would go to 10 cents at least, next fall. Brundidge News.

There is good reason for the popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Davis & Buzard, of West Monterey, Clarion Co., Pa., say: "It has cured people that our physicians could do nothing for. We persuaded them to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they now recommend it with the rest of us." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith & McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

It is with pleasure we note the following: During December Capt. C.C. Gewin killed about 2,000 pounds of meat; J. C. Moore 4 300 John D. Lavender 1 500; M. H. Yerby about 1 100; Jas. W. McCary 4 200; T. J. Harris about 3 500; H. D. Singley 2 000; Jas. and Alex Sledge over 5 000 pounds.

We wish we had a complete list of the amount of meat raised in Hale this year. We are satisfied it would run away up into the hundreds of thousand pounds. Very little "dry salt" from the West will be shipped here this year.

Mr. J. C. Moote killed one of the largest hogs we have yet heard of in this section. After it was cleaned it weighed 442 pounds. That's more than enough meat to last an ordinary family a whole year. Mr. John Martin of Greensboro killed one that netted 404 pounds.--Greensboro Watchman.

Mr. Frak Watkins of this city is the champion hog raiser. He killed five hogs the other day, two of which weighed near 800 pounds, three near 1,100, and the whole five netted something over 1,700.

This is Mr. Watkins's second killing.-- Opelika News.

Mr. Lon Aikin killed two hogs last week; one of which weighed 508 pounds and the other 481 pounds, making a total of 989 pounds.--Tallapoosa New Era.

I am glad to see from your valuable paper a decided increase in hog and hominy produces in our county. I killed three pigs ten and a half months old that weighed 230 230 and 301. Can this be beat?-- John Lovelace, in Florence Times

The South's Resources.

From the Waterloo, Ia., Courier.

At a meeting of northern and southern business men in New York, Secretary Hoke Smith told the company that the south had 550,000,000 acres of land, most of which was tillable, and only one fifth of which was under cultivation. That fifth supplies the union with its cotton and nearly all the sugar grown in this country not to speak of oranges, melons and ohter fruit. Hoke Smith declared that one-third of the agricultural yeild of the entire country came from the one-fifth of the south that is under cultivation. Land can be bought at from $5 to $10 an acre, good land. The yeild per acre is twice as large in the south as in the north ae said. As the mineral resources of the south, they had not yet been so much as touched, and they were unexcelled anywhere.

The secretary declared in the most solemn manner that northern men's interests would be protected if they went south to build homes.

Southern people would guarantee it. At the same meeting a plan and scope committee was appointed to devise ways and means to bring northern capitel and immigration to the agriculture and mines of the south. Some of the best known, most solid men of both sections are serving on the committee.

HARD TIMES.

That is What the People in Texas are Experiencing.

In speaking of hard times the Uniontown Herald says:

"Some are inclined to think there are hard times in Alabama.

Well, we will admit things are not what we would like- but out in some portions of Texas they are having hard times. In some portions of that state the landlord will scarcely get anything for rent of his land, and the rest of the people -well they get nothing. When the price of cotton to the low water mark the tenants, mostly white men told the landlord if he wanted any rent he must pick the cotton.

At the present price there is nothing in it for the tenants and they refused to pick or deliver it.

However the tenants hired out to the landlords in the country round about and picked cotton which others had grown at so much per hundred. Many sections were so remote from business centres, that cotton brought only 3½ cents per pound and after it was picked, ginned etc., there was very little left.

As for cotton seed that is said to be lying about the county in great heaps rotting. It will not bring enough to pay freight on it and it is just going to waste. Such as the above are indications of hard times and sure enough hard times. Alabama has not and never will have any of that sort.

THE FUTURE OF COTTON.

There is no doubt at all that the continuance of the present price of cotton would bankrupt the Gulf States and very seriously affect the trade balances of the country.

They are entirely right, however who say that it is impossible for such prices to continue.

Cotton is below the costs of production, and there is no hope of reducing cost—at least not in the immediate future.

The cost of producing wheat has been greatly lowered by improved machinery, but corn production has been much less affected and cotton least of all. The actual hand-labor cost of cotton greatly exceeds that of any other crop raised on a largo scale in America.

It is plain, therefore, that the necessary effect of present prices of cotton will be a marked reduction in the acreage. Hill lands especially where they are at all worn will have to be put into something else. This will be hard on mortgaged farmers, who get ready money out of nothing else so easily as cotton, but in the long run it will be a great benefit to the cotton States and to the country.

When the cotton States raise their own meat and breadstuffs and manufacture their own surplus raw material they will occupy a respectable position in the world of exchange. Until then they will be at the mercy of English financiers and millowners. Ex--.

This thing of the farmers and little politicians going round over the country crying out "the poor farmer is the worst down-trodden man on the face of the earth, the laws are all agin him." I tell you its a great big lie; it ain't so. Here take any community you like.

Right here is one man with a good farm, good home, plenty to eat and wear, stock in the barn, money in the bank. Right here is another farmer, with farm and houses gone to rack, old, poor scrub by stock, nothing to eat and wear and in debt besides. Now, are the laws all for one and all agin the other one of these farmers? Not much. Go to the town and you will find one lawyer making 10,000 dollars a year and and another fifty cents a day. Are the laws all for one of these lawyers and all agin the other one? Some doctors make 5,000 dollars a year and some are mighty glad to get a 50 dollar case once a year. Are the laws all for one and all agin the other one? No, not much. I tell you it ain't the laws that are wrong; it's the men. Do you get that idea into your noggin? Sam Jones.

ALABAMA CIGARS.

Made of Tobacco Grown at Evergreen are Excellent.

Two years ago Mr. J. K. Hawthorne becoming convinced that he couldn't make anything by raising cotton and appreciating the demand for a varied production on our farms began to raise tobacco in the face of many discouragements. The result of the two years experiment was announced last week. We give a few comments on his cigars, made entirely of Alabama tobacco, by the president of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America. He says: "The sample of cigars were duly received and the news soon spread among the manufacturers that I had a sample of Alabama cigars. They went like hot cakes, and were pronounced first-class.

If all come up to this sample you need have no fear of having a stock on hand branded 'condemned'

The cigar men to whom I gave the samples say they resemble the Havana very much in both appearance and flavor." Alabama is truly the garden spot of the globe, and Evergreen, well its the "healthiest spot on earth."—Evergreen Star

Mr. A. C. Smith has closed the pub-school and will devote himself fully to the law.

Miss Belle Lowery, after a pleasant visit to her friend, Miss Gooden, at Alpine is again at home.

The friends of Miss Mamie Gooden will be pleased to know that on the 11th she was happily married to Mr. Russell of Tennessee.

Dr. V. H. Caine of our town is sure to reach great success in his chosen profession. He is a close student and a young man of splendid character.

Next Sunday will be the regular monthly appointment at the Baptist Church in Clanton.

Rev. Mr. Guthrie preached his first sermon in Clanton last Sunday. He made a very favorable impression on his hearers.

Mrs. Hester has returned from a visit to her daughter in Nashville Tenn.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Jane Lenoir is improving.

News reaches us that Mr. Matt Bean has been paralyzed. We trust he may soon recover.

We are always sorry to see our Chilton county friends mixed up with the whiskey business in any shape. R. A. Miller has been arraigned before the United States Commissioner at Montgomery for retailing liquor without a licence. We trust the facts may prove him entirly innocent of the charge.

Mess. Henry Wilkins and Matthews with their families have gone to Grand saline Texas. We hope they will be successful in their new home.

For Sale.

I have 10 mules for sale, cheap for cash, or on good paper. Apply to John Garner, at Clanton.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, or 220 acres of land for $3 per acre? If that is too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

We regret exceedingly to know of the affliction in the family of Mr. Henry Hardy. Two weeks ago he lost a little daughter aged 11 years, and Tuesday last he lost a daughter 18 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. George Busby have our sympathies in the death of their babe. May they be able to say "the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away blessed be the name of the Lord."

Our sympathies are extended to the family of Mr. Beauregard Johnson in their sad affliction. Last Sunday night they lost their one year old child.

On Monday last death claimed uncle Jimmie Kicker, who resided at Ehrman's Mill. He leaves six sons and a daughter, and a large circle of friends to mourn his departure. He was for many years a member of Chestnut Creek Baptist Church and a consistent Mason. He was buried with Masonic honors. The bereaved have our sympathies.

Mr. George Gray and family have our sympathy in the death of his wife, who died the 9th of January. She was a daughter of Rev. C. C. Billingsley, a good wife and mother.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shumpik a prominent druggist of Minneapolis Minn. CALLING THE ANGELS IN.

We mean to do it; someday, some day,
We mean to slacken this fevered rush
That is wearing our very souls away,
And grant to our goaded hearts a hush
That is holy enough to let them hear
The footsteps of angels drawing near.

We mean to do it: O never doubt,
When the burden of daytime toil is o'er
We'll sit and muse while the stars come out
As Patriarch sat at the open door
Of his tent, with a heavenward gazing eye,
To watch for the angels passing by.

We've seen them afar at high noontide,
When fiercely the world's hot flashings beat;
Yet never have bidden them turn aside
And tarry awhile in converse sweet;
Nor prayed them to hallow the cheer we spread,
To drink of our wine and break our bread.

We promise our hearts that, when the stress
Of life work reaches the longed-for close,
When the weight that we groan with hinders less,
We'll loosen our thoughts to such repose
As banishes care's distracting din,
And then—we will call the angels in.

The day we dreamed of comes at length,
When, tired of every mocking guest,
And broken in spirit and shorn of strength,
We drop, indeed, at the door of rest;
And wait, and watch, as the days wane on—
But the angels we meant to call are gone.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

MICHIGAN'S BENEFACTOR.

AN OFT REPEATED STORY OF TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

When Chas. H. Hackley Has Done for Western Michigan.

(From Grand Rapids, Mich., Evening Press.)

The most beautiful spot in all this city is inseparably associated with the name of Hackley. Chas. H. Hackley has been in the lumber business here continuously since 1866, and in that time has amassed a fortune which gives him a rating among the wealthy men of the nation. But with wealth there did not come that tightening of the purse strings which is generally a marked characteristic of wealthy men.

It is no wonder then that the name of Charles H. Hackley is known at home and abroad. His munificence to Muskegon alone represents an outlay of nearly half a million. For the past twenty years he has been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and rheumatism, also numbness of the lower limbs, so much so that it has seriously interfered with his pleasure in life. For some time past his friends have noticed that he has seemed to grow young again and to have recovered the health which he had in youth.

To a reporter for the News Mr. Hackley explained the secret of this transformation. "I have suffered for over 20 years," he said, "with pains in my lower limbs so severely that the only relief I could get at night was by putting cold water compresses on my limbs. I was bothered more at night than in the day time. The neuralgic and rheumatic pains in my limbs, which had been growing in intensity for years, finally became chronic. I made three trips to the Hot Springs with only partial relief, and then fell back to my original state. I couldn't sit still, and my sufferings began to make my life look very blue. Two years ago last September I noticed an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and what they had done for others, and some cases so nearly resembled mine that I was interested, so I wrote to one who had given a testimonial, an eminent professor of music in Canada. The reply I received was even stronger than the printed testimonial, and it gave me faith in the medicine.

"I began taking the pills and found them to be all that the professor had told me they would be. It was two or three months before I experienced any perceptible betterment of my condition. My disease was of such long standing that I did not expect speedy recovery and was thankful even to be relieved. I progressed rapidly, however, towards recovery and for the last six months have felt myself a perfectly well man. I have recommended the pills to many people and am only too glad to assist others to health through the medium of this wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Wisdom From a Lunatic.

There is a place near Glasgow, Scotland, where a railway track runs for some distance beside the fence of a lunatic asylum. Not long ago some workmen were busy repairing the bed of the railroad when an inmate of the asylum approached one of the laborers, and, from his position on the inner side of the enclosure, began a somewhat personal conversation:

Inmate—Hard work, that!

Laborer—Troth an' it is.

Inmate—What pay dae ye get?

Laborer—Sixteen bob a week.

In Cases of Croup.

A standard medical authority says that the first thing to do for the child is to put his feet into as hot mustard water as he can bear, and be sure that the room is very warm. If possible, put him into a hot bath, and then quickly drying him put him in bed between blankets. Even before putting him in bed give him syrup of ipecac in teaspoonful doses until he vomits. For external applications, take 2 tablespoonfuls of turpentine and 4 tablespoonfuls of goose oil, or sweet oil, or lard oil, mix well and rub thoroughly on the outside of the throat. Saturate a flannel and lay it over the chest and throat. Hot bricks or bottles filled with hot water should be placed at the child's feet and at the sides of his body to induce perspiration. Keep him carefully covered. After the vomiting the bowels must be kept open with syrup of squills. The best drink for the child is slippery elm water. Give plenty of nourishment to keep up the strength.

THE CONGRESS.

THE NATION'S LAW-MAKERS RESUME OPERATIONS.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

Mr. Ransom, of North Carolina, president pro tempore, presided at the opening of the senate Tuesday. The early routine business having been quickly disposed of, Mr. Morgan (democrat of Alabama), offered a resolution which was adopted, calling on the president for reports, documents and other papers relating to the enforcement of regulations, respecting the fur seal fisheries, adopted by Great Britain and the United States to carry out the decision of the Paris tribunal of arbitration, etc. The Lodge resolution, calling for information why the United States warships had been withdrawn from Hawaiian waters was then considered, after which the senate paid a tribute to its late distinguished member, Alfred Holt Colquitt, of Georgia. At 2 o'clock Senator Gordon arose and offered the following resolution: Resolved, "That the senate has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Hon. Alfred Holt Colquitt, late a senator from the state of Georgia. Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the deceased the business of the senate be now suspended to enable his associates to pay proper tribute of regard to his high character and distinguished services." General Gordon, who was the first speaker, paid a characteristically fervid and eloquent tribute to his distinguished and lamented colleague. Senator Walsh followed his senior colleague in a brief address full of eloquence and feeling and breathing a high spirit of reverence and regard for the great Georgian whose seat the eloquent speaker had been called to fill.

Mr. Harris, (dem., Tennessee), who has just been selected for another term of six years in the senate has returned to Washington and was warmly congratulated by his colleagues when he appeared in the senate Wednesday. Mr. Cockrell, (dem., Missouri), of the appropriations committee, reported the urgency deficiency bill, and it was placed on the calendar, Mr. Cockrill giving notice that he would call it up Thursday. Replying to Mr. Quay, (rep., Pennsylvania), Mr. Cockrell said there had been no amendments by the committee to any portion of the bill relating to the income tax.

Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, who was elected president pro tem. of the senate during the absence of Mr. Harris, of Tennessee, resigned that position at Thursday's session. In resigning the position Mr. Ransom expressed his deep sensibility of the honor that had been conferred upon him and his profound gratefulness for the high testimony of the senate's regard. A resolution was adopted electing Senator Harris to the position of president pro tem.

THE HOUSE.

The first business called in the house Tuesday was a resolution from the committee on rules asking the appropriation committee to insert a clause in the Sundry civil appropriation bill, authorizing the transfer of the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, from the jurisdiction of the war department of justice. The resolution, after some debate, was adopted by a vote of 156 to 12. The debate on the currency bill was then resumed. Mr. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, led off in a sensational speech, arraigning and attacking the administration and the president for its attitude on the financial question. Mr. Sibley, though hailing from Pennsylvania, is an extreme free silver man. He was hot in the collar, and he showed it in his utterances, particularly in his criticisms of the president.

There was a good attendance on the floor of the house Wednesday, as notice had been given that a special order to terminate general debate on the currency bill would be reported from the committee on rules, and the prevailing belief was that the fate of the bill would be thus determined. After some unimportant routine business, Mr. Outhwaite presented the special order from the committee on rules. The order provided for the closing of general debate, the consideration of the Springer substitute as an original bill under the five minutes rules for the day, for Thursday and for Friday until 4:50 p. m., when it provided for the report of the bill and pending amendments to the house for a final vote on Saturday immediately after the morning hour. Mr. Outhwaite, democrat, of Ohio, demanded the previous question, when the reading of the rule had been completed. Some confusion was caused by the volley of questions from members which followed Mr. Outhwaite's demand, members being anxious to ascertain the status of amendments after the adoption of the order. Mr. Springer, chairman of the committee on banking and currency, assured the gentlemen that there would be no disposition to shut out members. Mr. Outhwaite made a brief speech urging the necessity for closing the debate on the currency bill and for disposing of it in order that other pressing measures like the Nicaragua bill might be considered. Mr. Bland wanted to know if any opportunity to offer an amendment to strike out the enacting clause (which would kill the bill) would be given. Mr. Outhwaite said that the rule discriminated against no amendment, and Mr. Springer again assured the house that there would be no disposition to cut off members with amendments. After some further wrangling during which Mr. Bland and others loudly protested that the adoption of the rule would cut them off, Mr. Outhwaite rejected all suggestions for amending the rule and demanded the previous question. The republicans voted solidly with the democratic opponents of the measure against ordering the previous question and it was defeated on a rising vote of 92 to 101. Mr. Outhwaite hurriedly demanded the ayes and nays and the roll was called. The roll call was watched with intense interest, but the announcement of the result of the vote only confirmed the defeat of the advocates of the measure. The supporters of the bill made a desperate effort to secure a majority of the votes, but the previous question was again rejected by a vote of 124 to 129.

At the opening of the session of the house Thursday, on motion of Mr. Wise, (dem. Virginia,) the information relative to the establishment of a dam across the St. Louis and Cloquet river transmitted by the secretary of war in pursuance of a house resolution, was referred to the committee on judiciary. On motion of Mr. Turner, of Georgia, Saturday, February 2, was set aside for paying tribute to the memory of the late Senator Colquitt, of Georgia. On motion of Mr. Curtis, of New York, a bill was passed to define the crime of murder in the first and second degrees and manslaughter and rape, mutiny and desertion, and providing punishment therefor, and to abolish the death penalties for other crimes.

A cable dispatch from London says: General Sir John Summerfield Hawkins, royal engineer, C. M. G., who was commissioner for marking out the boundary between the British and United States territories west of the Rocky Mountains from 1858 to 1863, is dead. He was born in 1816.

Dispatches to the Central News (London) from Shanghai say that reports have been received from New-Chwang to the effect that during the assault of the Japanese upon Lou-Chang the town was set on fire and destroyed, rendering 10,000 inhabitants homeless, in a temperature of 40 degrees below the freezing point.

GOULD'S MILLIONS.

An Appraiser Fixes the Value of His Estate at $80,934,580.

A New York special says: Lawyer David McClure, who, in March, 1893, was appointed appraiser by the surrogate to fix the value of the estate of the late Jay Gould, at the time of his death, with a view of determining the amount of tax that should be placed upon the personal property, has made his report, by which he finds the value of the personal estate of the late millionaire to be $80,934,580.79, less the amount of his debts, $6,553,520.71, and less legacies, annuities, etc., to his brother, sisters, grandson, of $1,136,513, making the amount of the residuary estate to be $73,224,547.08. Mr. McClure says, in his report, that it was found at the outset of the hearings that they would be protracted and it was then determined by the executors of the estate to deposit with the comptroller an amount, which, in their judgment, would meet the taxes to be paid upon the property. The executors then paid $600,000 to the comptroller, upon the assumption that the personal estate would not exceed $60,000,000. Each of the six children of Mr. Gould is entitled to a life estate, in trust, in one-sixth of the residuary estate, with the remainder to their children. Under a recent decision of the court of appeals it is held that these remainders are not liable to taxation, which formerly they were. This will reduce the tax considerably, and it is expected that the executors will be entitled to recover from the $600,000, which they paid to the state, a small sum in their favor.

COREA'S KING ASSASSINATED.

One Story Says He's Dead, While Another Contradicts It.

A news agency at Tokio, Japan, reports that the king of Corea has been assassinated.

A special from Yokohama says: "A rumor is in circulation to the effect that the king of Corea has been prostrated by an epileptic fit."

There is no information in the possession of the Chinese, Japanese or Corean legations at Washington respecting either the reported sickness or assassination of the king of Corea, as announced in the above dispatches. The Corean legation officials have been without any telegraphic communication with their country for almost six months, and receive only occasional advices. Several attempts to communicate with the home government have been made recently, but no reply has yet been received.

GOV. "PETE'S" CONTEST.

He Wants to Be Heard on the Election Returns.

A Nashville special says: Governor Turney has sent to the senate and house an address and petition in which he states that he claims to have received the highest number of legal votes cast at the November election for governor and that he was elected.

He says he is informed that on the face of the returns Mr. Evans has a plurality, and he is also informed that there were gross frauds perpetrated.

He, therefore, asks the legislature to take such steps as will permit him to appear before them in joint session, and contest the returns.

A LIAR may tell the truth "occasionally," but he runs such a great risk of having people disbelieve him.

The postoffice appropriation bill passed the house Wednesday afternoon. It carries the special appropriation for fast-mail facilities between New York, Atlanta and New Orleans. There was no opposition to the special appropriation this time.

Mr. Williams, democrat, from the committee on appropriations, reported to the house Tuesday the District of Columbia appropriation bill. It carries an appropriation of $5,393,107, being $225,000 less than the appropriation for the current fiscal year, and $1,824,827 below the estimates on which it is based.

Secretary Herbert has issued general orders to naval officers reversing the former practice of the department regarding the responsibility of pilots on board of warships, which will render it impossible hereafter to shift the blame for injury to a vessel on one pilot as was made in the cases of the Columbia last spring and the Cincinnati last November.

The senate committee on interstate commerce has authorized a favorable report on the bill amending the interstate commerce act so as to permit the issuance of joint interchangeable five thousand mile tickets with special privileges, as to the amount of free baggage that may be carried under mileage tickets of 1,000 miles or more. This is a bill in which the commercial travelers are especially interested and for which they have worked hard. It has passed the house.

Returns of National Banks.

The returns of the condition of the twenty-seven national banks in the state of Alabama, as compiled by Comptroller Eckles, up to December 19th, the last call, show the average reserve held to have been 37.75 per cent; loans and discounts, $5,498,000; lawful money reserve, $99,418, of which $396,700 was in gold, and individual deposits, $3,588,000.

The state of Georgia, exclusive of Savannah, has also twenty-seven national banks, and they held 33.54 per cent. of reserve; had $5,950,000 in loans and discounts; $749,129 in lawful money reserve, of which $245,800 was in gold, and had $4,813,000 in individual deposits.

Currency Legislation Will Not Be Abandoned.

Notwithstanding the reverses suffered by the Carlisle currency bill in the house of representatives, there is to be no abandonment of the effort to secure currency legislation. It is stated by a gentleman conversant with the facts that a new measure, having executive approval, will be introduced in the house in about two weeks. This length of time will be allowed to elapse in order that the confusion and excitement attending the struggle over the first bill may be allayed, and a new start made under more favorable conditions. It is probable that Mr. Springer will not direct the course of the new measure, as the desire will be to urge it along new lines and with new leaders, with a view to separating it as far as possible from any loss of position attaching to the old measure.

THE JUDGES DREW STRAWS.

Mabrey Got the Longest One and is Chief Justice of Florida.

Florida has a very drastic statute against gambling, but its fundamental law embraces a provision which compels its highest tribunal of justice to engage in a game of chance for a big stake. When the supreme court met at noon Tuesday at Tallahassee its first duty was to elect a chief justice, which, by a peculiarity of the Florida constitution, is done by lot. Mr. Justice Mabrey drew the long straw, and this chance makes him chief justice of Florida. He has been on the supreme bench since 1890.

WORK OF SAFE BLOWERS.

They Bind and Gag the Watchman and Loot the Safe.

Seven masked men blew open the safe in the Belmont brewery at Martin's Ferry, O., early Thursday morning and secured $200. They seized John Brooney, the night watchman, and took his revolver and keys. They then gagged him and made him show them to the office. One of the robbers guarded Brooney while the others went to work at the safe. One of the safe doors was blown through the window. After securing the money, they left the watchman bound and gagged and he was not discovered until morning.

FREE HOMES GALORE.

Eight Thousand Acres of Forfeited Railroad Grants Thrown Open.

When Registrar Peter Premeau opened the government land office at Marquette, Mich., Thursday, a long file of prospective homesteaders blocked the corridors and extended outside the building. The first man presenting his application had remained in front of the building since Monday noon, experiencing some very severe weather. Many had been in the line forty-eight hours. A portion of the forfeited railroad land grant in Ontonagon county, containing 8,366 acres, was opened for settlement.

ENTERPRISING BURGLARS

Rob a Bank and Secure Twenty Thousand in Cool Cash.

The Merchants' National bank of Defiance, O., was broken into by burglars a few nights ago and about $20,000 secured. The burglars entered the bank, opened the combination of the vault, and then with either powder or dynamite, blew the small safe inside the vault to pieces. The robbers secured everything of value and made good their escape.

"Yes."

"And does he have an eagle for a pet instead of a canary bird, like mine?"

"Yes."

"And is he the biggest man in the world?"

It is a pleasure incomparable to always stand on the vantage ground of truth.

In a recent article on Coffee and Cocoa, the eminent German Chemist, Professor Stutzer, speaking of the Dutch process of preparing Cocoa by the addition of potash, and of the process common in Germany in which ammonia is added, says: "The only result of these processes is to make the liquid appear turbid to the eye of the consumer, without effecting a real solution of the Cocoa substances. This artificial manipulation for the purpose of so-called solubility is, therefore, more or less inspired by deception, and always takes place at the cost of purity, pleasant taste, useful action and aromatic flavor. The treatment of Cocoa by such chemical means is entirely objectionable. . . . Cocoa treated with potash or ammonia would be entirely unsalable but for the supplementary addition of artificial flavors by which a poor substitute for the aroma driven out into the air is offered to the consumer." The delicious Breakfast Cocoa made by Walter Baker & Co., of Dorchester, Mass., is absolutely pure and soluble. No chemicals, or dyes, or artificial flavors are used in it.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Queen Victoria Has No Family Name.

Following is a letter to a woman writer in the New York Recorder regarding Queen Victoria's name:

"You are a little 'off' when you ask what Victoria of England would think were any 'daring creature' to address her as 'Colonel Guelph.'

"Her idea would simply resemble ours were one to address you as Colonel Smith. Victoria has no name—that is, no family name. In that she is like Moses or Aaron or Charlemagne. She was born in Guelph, but that doesn't entitle her to be called Guelph any more than you have the right to be known as Mrs. New York.

"If she is anything—in the shape of a name as the relict of a dear departed—she is the Widow Wettin. Her husband had a name."

Dr. PIERCE'S Golden Medical DISCOVERY

Cures Ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of Consumption, in all its Earlier Stages.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. Winds Today.

Winds today are large and free,
Winds today are westerly;
From the land they seem to blow
Whence the sap begins to flow,
And the dimpled light to spread
From the country of the dead.

Ah, it is a wild, sweep land
Where the coming May is planned,
Where such influences throb
As our forests can never rob
Of their triumph when they bound
Through the tree and from the ground!

Great within me is my soul,
Great to journey to its goal,
To the country of the dead;
For the cornel tips are red,
And a passion rich in strife
Drives me toward the home of life.

O, to keep the spring with them
Who have flushed the cornel stem,
Who imagine at its source
All the year's delicious course,
Then express by wind and light
Something of their rapture's height?

MICHAEL FIELDS.

Uncle Joseph's Wooing.

One of the prominent figures in our meeting house for many years was that of Uncle Joseph, for thus was he known by the young and old who frequented our religious gatherings.

He occupied the second seat in the men's gallery, and it was with him that the elder shook hands in sign that Friends should separate, when it seemed likely that the spirit would move no others to utter gentle words of blessing or stern warning against the tempter.

As children we regarded Uncle Joseph in the light of a patriarch, although I now know that his years at the time of which I write had scarce reached the limit of a half century.

He was a comely man, straight and tall, his smooth-shaven face beaming with good nature, and his soft blue eye lighted with sympathy, but he was not intellectual. Slow of movement and uncertain in expression, his hearers were often troubled to follow his excellent thought, and it was no uncommon thing for my parents to refer to his ministrations as being "labored." We had a consciousness, based perhaps upon accidental knowledge, that he was uncommonly well to do, and also that there was considerable feeling in the society that Sarah Sidney, with her clear insight and facile speech, would be a fit life companion for the good man. But time wore on, and there seemed no likelihood of a realization of this desire.

I can remember one occasion when the subject really assumed the importance that is usually given to gossip, but it was so lovingly and conscientionsly touched upon that I was greatly impressed.

My father and mother were in the way of inviting many friends to dine with them on monthly meeting day. Quarterly meeting brought even more persons from a distance, and among the children little unaccustomed duties were distributed. I was frequently desired to remain for a time in the front chamber and assist our women visitors in removing their wraps and adjusting the cap crowns that often met with disaster beneath the stiff bonnets. It was always a pleasurable duty, for Friends never forget the young, and as each one grasped my little palm she did not neglect to speak an encouraging word to me.

On the occasion to which I have alluded meeting broke up somewhat later than usual. I hurried home, warmed my chilled fingers and ran upstairs, where a bright fire was burning on the hearth. I glanced about to see that the wood box was full and looked out of the window, where my eye rested upon a short line of carriages all bent in the direction of our home. First came father and mother, grandfather and three younger children, then a vehicle well known to me as that of Elias Chase from Derry Quarter, and thus I counted them off as they drew up beside the horse block.

I missed Sarah Sidney, who generally came with Theophilus Baldwin's family, and, having seen her placid face in its usual place on the seat beneath the gallery, fronting the meeting, I was at a loss to explain her absence. She was tenderly attached to mother, and I could not believe any light matter would take her to another's table.

A gentle voice called me to my duties:

"Why, Katherine dear, thee must have been very spry to get home before us. I was pleased to see thy interest in the meeting today."

The good woman kissed me and thanked me for the little aid I was able to give in unpinning her shawl. Directly afterward, sweet Jane Spencer came tripping up the stairs. She was frequently spoken of as exhibiting "overmuch ardor" in all her good works, but we children loved the enthusiastic little woman.

"O Katherine, I am glad to make use of thy quick fingers. My cap strings are sadly awry. I have been most uncomfortable in them all through the meeting. Our breakfast was a trifle late this morning, and we had far to drive."

One and another arrived, each with a thought of me. "How thee grows, child," or "Thy mother is blessed in her little helpers."

The room was well nigh full, when some one asked the question that had been trembling on my lips.

"Where is Sarah Sidney?"

No one directly replied, but after a moment's reflection nearly all had a suggestion or a little interest in her to express.

"Methought her face bore traces of anxiety this morning. I trust she has met with no further financial disaster. Thee knows, Rhoda, she is benevolent to a surprising degree in one whose purse is not lengthy, and it is therefore a serious matter to be forced to curtail in her giving."

"Sarah is too true a follower of the Great Teacher to be long afflicted by the things of this world," replied an aged friend.

"Ah, Hannah dear," answered the first speaker, "thee has never had the bread and butter trouble, and therefore thee can hardly compass its misery."

I think we all felt the force of this argument, for Hannah was richly dowered. Presently Jane Spencer sighed: "I cannot help wishing that Uncle Joseph would recognize that the hand of the Lord is pointing him to Sarah Sidney."

"If such be the will of our Heavenly Father, I doubt not it will be revealed in due time," and Hannah spoke with great deliberation.

"That is quite true, and undoubtedly it is only those among us who are a trifle worldly minded that show a disposition to hasten these things." Jane Spencer was always very meek under reproof, and I felt glad that others sustained her desire that Uncle Joseph should be a little less deliberate in his action."

"I can hardly think that he realizes Sarah's worth," said a late comer.

"On the the contrary," it was Rhoda Longstreet's voice, "I am sometimes inclined to believe that his doubt rests upon his own merit. If he were of the world's people I should say he was bashful. As it is I call him slow in perceiving his adoption to any peculiar calling."

"Thee may be right," responded Jane Spencer, and I was struck with the note of merry-making that accompanied her words. "If so, I can only wish that somebody would give him a hint, for I really believe that Sarah has perceived their true relationship, and that her spirit is troubled since no sign is given unto her."

"Ah," interrupted Hannah, "shall we never learn that God does not wish us to call upon Him for signs?"

Now it had chanced, although none of those present were at that time conscious of it, that Sarah Sidney had given up her seat in a friend's carriage to a person who was suffering from a weak limb, and had walked briskly along the frozen road toward our house.

Uncle Joseph, too, had chosen to leave his vehicle at home, and, seeing in the distance a familiar, plump little figure, he made haste to overtake her.

For a few moments they talked together of the lesser things of life; then they fell into a silence which was at last broken by Uncle Joseph's voice.

"My mind has dwelt much today upon the Bible teaching of the relation of Ruth and Boaz."

I am sure the throbbing heart beneath the white muslin 'kerchief of Sarah Sidney must have bounded a little at this. He went on:

"Has thee ever thought it over and applied the test to our own lives?"

It was certainly not strange that the good woman hesitated before she answered:

"If thee means to ask whether it has been shown to me that I am chosen of the Lord to be thy companion, I will admit that it has, but, Joseph, thee is not an old man, nor am I a young hand maiden."

Uncle Joseph stopped short in his walk and, catching a frightened look upon the honest face beside him, he gravely said:

"It was not upon that relation that my mind ran. I thought rather of the increased duty in this day and generation which belongs to the husbandman and his gleaners, or in other words, the responsibility of him upon whom the benefits of this world have been showered, and the loud call ever sounding in my ear to extend help to those who need; and it has been whispered to me that thy material goods have been slipped from thee, and—and I wished many times that I might make bold to offer my aid."

Can you marvel if a feeling of faintness crept over the gentle Sarah, or that a beseeching look set the seal upon the awful stillness that followed. Uncle Joseph's voice sounded strange in her ear. She feared she should fall, but as the tones grew clearer something else impressed her.

"Sarah, thee has a more receptive spirt than my own. I have sometimes longed to see aright in regard to the formation of a closer bond with thee, and I rejoice that through my ill-chosen speech thee has been led to point the way."

He took her trembling hand between his own, and smiled down upon the sweet but tearful face; then her lips opened, the pain went forever out of her heart, and she whispered only:

"Dear Joseph."

But her trial was not quite over. We were already summoned to the dining room when Uncle Joseph and Sarah Sidney entered the door together. I glanced about me, and was certain that I saw more than one look of satisfaction exchanged by the company present.

The moment of silent blessing was past. My mother moved as if to begin serving the soup, but she caught Uncle Joseph's eye, and awaited his slow words:

"Dear friends," he said with a little tremor in his voice, "rejoice with me, for today has our beloved Sarah Sidney revealed to me the message that the Lord has given into her keeping."

He paused, and with a flush brightening her soft cheeks Sarah asked calmly:

"Joseph, will thee kindly explain thyself."

I never knew him to do anything so well as he now related to us the manner in which he had obtained an insight into the secret knowledge of Sarah Sidney's heart.

As he ceased speaking her own rhythmic tones filled the room in tender thanksgiving to the Lord for his gift of companionship, and this has evermore remained in my memory as one of the most beautiful and fervent supplications I have been privileged to hear.—Sarah H. Gardner's "Quaker Idyls."

Chinese Formality at the Table.

Lily and bamboo roots, shark's fins and swallow's nests, and many other Chinese delicacies, were now served in abundance, and with the ever accompanying bowl of rice. In the matter of eating and drinking, Chinese formality is extreme. A round table is the only one that can be used in an aristocratic household. The seat of honor is always the one next to the wall. Not a mouthful can be taken until the host raises his chop-sticks in the air and gives the signal. Silence then prevails; for Confucius says: "When a man eats he has no time for talk." When a cup of tea is served to anyone in a social party, he must offer it to every one in the room, no matter how many there are, before proceeding to drink himself. The real basis of Chinese politeness seems to be this: They must be polite enough to offer, and you must be polite enough to refuse. Our ignorance of this great underling principle during the early part of the Chinese journey, led us into errors both many and grievous. In order to show a desire to be sociable, we accepted almost everything that was offered us, to the great chagrin, we fear, of the courteous donors.—Century.

Home-Made Electric Lights.

A petroleum engine is being made by the Thomson Electric Welding Company, of Lynn, Mass., in which that responsible company guarantees the cost of horse power will not exceed one cent per hour. It is very simple, requires practically no attention and the fuel is pure petroleum. With an eight horse power petroleum engine of this character sufficient current can be generated through a dynamo to furnish eighty incandescent lights of sixteen candle power each at a cost of eight cents per hour. The same illumination by gas at $1 per thousand feet would cost over five times as much. The current so cheaply generated can, of course, be utilized in many other ways, as cooking, heating, running fans, sewing machines, etc. The cost of wiring a residence is insignificant, and lamps, motors and other electrical household appliances are yearly becoming less costly.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Church Rich in Silver.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: The erection of the magnificant canopy over the high altar of Our Lady in the shrine of Gaudalupe, Mexico, has been completed. The pillars to support it are each of a solid block of polished Scotch granite weighing seven tons. The diameter of each pillar is three feet, and the height twenty feet. The altar will be ready for dedication December 12, (Guadalupe day), and will be the most elaborate and costly one in America. The additions to the church edifice will not be completed for nearly two years at the present rate of progress. When finished, the shrine of the Lady of Gaudalupe will be one of the notable Catholic church edifices of the world The solid silver altar railing weighs twenty-six tons, and many millions of dollars are in other ways represented in the palatial place of worship.

During 1893, 4,100,000 cattle were slaughtered in the four cities of Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha.

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The senate Thursday confirmed the nominations of A. G. Ware, postmaster at West Point, Va., to be assistant commissioner of Indian affairs.

The president sent to the senate Tuesday the correspondence in the case of the Japanese spies, together with a letter from the secretary of state, in which it is stated that the American consuls had no authority to protect Japanese in China except so far as using their good offices when occasion demanded.

The Hon. Wm. L. Scruggs, ex-minister to Venezuela, spoke to the house committee on foreign affairs, Thursday, as a representative of the government, urging that congress suggest to Great Britain by resolution the advisability of submitting to arbitration the boundary dispute between British Guiana and Venezuela.

At the opening of the supreme court at Washington, D. C., Thursday, Chief Justice Fuller announced in the matter of the United States vs. Eugene V. Debs et al., that the court was unanimously of the opinion that the writ of error would not lie, and, therefore, that their petition for leave to file a motion for the issuing of such a writ has been denied. The petition of the same parties for leave to file a motion for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus, the chief justice announced, would be granted and a rule issued thereon, returnable Monday, January 28th.

The democratic leaders in the house are still devoting themselves to the task of getting a bill upon which they can agree, and which can secure a majority in the senate for the reorganization of the currency. They have been in conference more or less for the last two days, and it is understood that the deliberations are based upon the Jones bill. Mr. Jones has perfected the measure, but he adheres to his original determination not to introduce it, unless he can be reasonably assured in advance of its passage. He and the supporters of the bill are devoting themselves to ascertaining just what support can be obtained.

New Protection Order.

The national cabinet of the recently organized patriotic order known as the American Knights of Protection have adopted resolutions and a declaration of principles, setting forth the purpose and scope of the organization. The object is defined to be chiefly the furtherance of the doctrine of protection to American industries, through tariff and immigration restrictions. The order has located the national assembly offices in Baltimore. General Cyrus Bussey, late assistant secretary of the interior, is president of the order; Representative John B. Robinson, of Pennsylvania, is counselor.

Hints to Americans.

United States Consul Warner, at Cologne, in a report to the department of state, gives some valuable hints to American merchants about the best methods of introducing their wares into Germany. He says that many houses make the grave mistake of confining their operations to the great seaports instead of pushing their goods into the interior. Being sold in the seaboard towns, many American products, especially bacon, and other hog products, are held many months for speculative reasons. Consequently, they deteriorate in quality and appearance and lose in weight and so earn a bad name for all American food products.

To Modify the Copyright Law.

The amendment to the copyright law, which Representative Covert, of New York, has proposed in the form of a bill, is intended to correct a very costly error in the laws now in force. Under the existing statutes any person who reproduces a pictorial likeness of a copyrighted work of art, drawing, statue, photograph or other form, is compelled to forfeit the cuts, and is subject to a fine of $10 for every reproduction in his possession. To do away with these possibilities which the law offers, the amendment proposes to limit the fines which may be levied to twice the value of the copyright of the picture which is trespassed upon.

For Southern War Claims.

What may result in a division of the house on strictly sectional lines will be an order from the committee on rules in the near future, fixing the time for the consideration of a bill to pay certain southern war claims. A bill providing for the settlement of the claims of citizens in both northern and southern states was reported some time ago from the committee on war claims, and is now on the house calendar. Some of the members of this committee learned that another bill, which looks only to the payment of southern claims, is the one which the committee on rules will take cognizance of. The war claims members are exercised over the matter and an effort will be made, when the rule is reported to defeat it, their argument being that the bill reported from their committee is fairly and impartially drawn and the only measure that ought to pass the house.

ATLANTA'S LEXOW

Exonerates Baker and Recommends Suspension of Detectives.

The Baker-Wright committee at Atlanta, agreed on a report at midnight Thursday night. Amos Baker was cleared of the charges against him. The suspension from the force of Chief of Detectives Wright and Detectives Looney and Cason was recommended. Wholesale investigation of the entire police and detective departments by a special council committee of five was asked for.

This report of the committee is for the consideration of the general council and that body has the right to refuse to receive or reject any portion of it. In the meantime the most sensational feature is that the committee recommended the suspension of the three detectives who have figured so prominently in the investigation of the charges against Baker.

It was accepted as a fact by all the members of the board of police commissioners and assumed as a certainty by Captain J. W. English, chairman of that board, that the commissioners would be left to deal with anything that might have been found to be damaging testimony against the detective or police department.

Upon this point, however, the committee found no difficulty in arriving at a decision. They were acting as trusted representatives of the general council and it was to this body they were to look. The members of the Baker-Wright committee decided that the council and the mayor were the powers carrying on the investigation and that it was to these that further investigation should be looked for.

Will Defend America's Cup.

William K. Vanderbilt, Commodore E. D. Morgan and C. Oliver Iselin, of the New York Yacht club, have decided to build a yacht to defend America's cup in the coming yacht races between the New York Yacht club and the Royal British squadron. Mr. Iselin will be placed in charge of the cup defender.

LEFT THEIR CARS.

Five Thousand Trolly Car Men Strike in Brooklyn.

At 5 o'clock Monday morning all the trolly cars in Brooklyn, N. Y., were tied up, the employes refusing to take out the cars. Over five thousand men quit work. This includes the motormen, conductors, electricians, switchmen and other employes at the various power houses. All but one of the surface railroads, and that a comparatively minor concern, are affected.

The men's grievances and demands are thus stated: The state law provides that a day's work for street railway companies shall consist of ten hours, within twelve consecutive hours. It is alleged that the corporations have required the men to work eleven hours, and even, latterly, twelve hours, with no longer interval than ten minutes for lunch and even depriving them of that brief time in most instances.

The wage rate agreed upon a year ago was $2 for the statutory day's work; the companies, it is alleged, have made no allowance for overtime. The men demand adherence to the law regarding the hours in a day's work or $2.25 for a day of twelve hours.

It is Appomattox Again.

"Surrender," Va., the postoffice where, under the famous apple tree, Lee handed his sword to Grant, is "Appomattox" once more. The postoffice department has found a way of bringing about a change by calling the new county seat, formerly known as "Nebraska," "West Appomattox," and restoring to the original Appomattox its historic arms.

PRESIDENT FAURE.

A NEW CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF FRANCE ELECTED.

The Assembly at Versailles—Faure Wins on the Second Ballot.

The French national assembly, composed of the senate and chamber of deputies, met at Versailles at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon to elect a new chief magistrate. In anticipation of the meeting the usually placid palace of Versailles, where the election took place, was humming like a beehive.

The senate is composed of 300 members and the chamber of 584. A president is elected for seven years by a majority of the votes of the national assembly.

M. Challemel LaCour, president of the senate, the presiding officer of the national assembly, called the senators and deputies together at 1 p. m. The proceedings were no sooner opened than M. Henri Michili, revisionist, asked leave to address the assembly with the object of recommending the convocation of a constitutional assembly. The president refused to hear him and ordered that the first ballot be taken. This was proceeded with amid considerable excitement in the galleries, and in the great hall which were crowded to their utmost capacity, with notables representing every profession.

The following are the official figures for the first ballot for president: M. Henri Brisson, 344; M. Felix Faure, 216; M. Waldeck Rousseau, 195. The number of scattering votes was not announced. A majority of the total number of votes cast is required to elect. As they differed greatly from those current in the lobby, many of the members of the national assembly demanded an adjournment, but M. Chalemel-Lacour ordered that a second ballot be taken. Soon after this it was announced that M. Waldeck-Rousseau had retired in favor of M. Faure.

Faure Elected.

The announcement of the second ballot was made amid a terrible din. The Brissonites were so busy groaning, cheering and reproaching their neighbors that they paid no attention to Challemel-Lacour when he arose and read the figures. The president's voice was quite inaudible and his hands trembled violently. The figures generally known were then only approximate—Faure 430 and Brisson 361—but they sufficed to show that Felix Faure was the new president of France.

The scene was absolutely devoid of solemnity or dignity. The Brissonites, who had not only ceased howling, were joined by other malcontents and the windows were fairly shaken by the indescribable tumult. The radicals mounted chairs and benches, shouting: "Down with this president, elected by the right."

The socialists ran up and down the aisles howling "Down with the thieves!" "Down with the Congo adventurers!" "Down with the Panama scoundrels!"

Occasionally, when the din subsided for a moment, the socialists would yell in an ear-splitting chorus: "Hurrah for the social republic!" "Hurrah for the social revolution!"

There have been five presidents of the third French republic.

M. Thiers, elected August 31, 1871; resigned May 24, 1873; died September 3, 1877.

Marshal MacMahon, elected May 2, 1873; resigned January 30, 1879; died October 17, 1893.

Jules Grevy, elected January 30, 1879; re-elected December 28, 1885; resigned December 2, 1887; died September 9, 1890.

M. Carnot, elected December 3, 1887; assassinated at Lyons June 24, 1894.

M. Casimir-Perier, elected June 27, 1894; resigned January 15, 1895.

CHAFFEE & COMPANY FAIL.

The Assetts of the Firm Are Estimated at $400,000.

A well known cotton firm, W. H Chaffee & Co., at New Orleans made application Wednesday before Judge Parlange, of the United States court, for appointment of a receiver. Assets of the firm are about $400,000, principally on the plantations which could not be sold except at a great sacrifice. Liabilities are stated at [illegible]. Creditors are mostly local banks. It is expected that the affairs of the firm will soon be in an easy condition.

The new compulsory school law of New York went in to effect January the 1st.

The attempt of Col. W. C. P Breckenbridge to make a lecturing tour through the country and thu rehabilitate himself, proved a great failure. Scarcely a more brilliant speaker lives than he, yet the people do not propose to lionize a man whose notoriously impure life is a stench in the nostrils of God and man. Something is wrong with society when it knowingly takes into its hearts and homes, and honors either men or women who are known to be grossly immoral. The small audiences which have everywhere greeted Breckenbridge speak in thunder tones to young men who would follow in his footsteps and bids them beware.

DISEASES OF HOGS.

Remedy Prescribed by the Agricultural Department for Cholera.

Washington, Dec. 13.—With estimated losses of between $10,000,000 and $25,000,000 from hog cholera and swine plague in the United States the discussion of the treatments and means of prevention of these diseases in a bulletin issued by the Agricultural Department is of great value to the farmers of this country. The Bureau of Animal Industry has been conducting an exhaustive investigation of this subject, and finds that the agents which destroy the germs of one of these fatal diseases are also effective in the destruction of the other.

Both are spread by infection, and their course varies from one day to three weeks. Both are cause by bacteria. The germs of hog cholera says the report, are very hardy and vigorous, while those of the plague are very delicate and easily destroyed. The latter are found to be present in practically all herds of swine but the former must be introduced from infected herds. The most efficient virus remedy tried by the government agents is the following Wood charcoal, sulphur, sodium sulphate and antimony sulphide, one pound each; sodium chloride sodium bicarbonate and sodium hyposulphite, two pounds each.

These are to be completely pulverized and mixed, and a daily dose of a large tablespoon for each 200 pound weight of hogs given. The medicine may be used also as a preventive of these diseases. It should be put in the feed of the whole herd. To insure successful treatment the animals should be kept in dry and comfortable quarters away from draughts of air. Five or six months should be allowed to elapse after an outbreak before new hogs are purchased or any of the old herd are sold. The report recommends a rigid quarantining of newly-bought hogs and the prevention of their joining those already on the farm for at least six weeks.

During the warm months of the year the swine should have plenty of young grass or clover, and crushed or rolled wheat should be fed to the growing animals.

CHEAP MEAT.

A Correspondent Tells What He Did and Calls for a Packing House.

Goshen Hill, Jan. 15, 1895.

Editor Advertiser:

I was glad to learn, through the columns of The Advertiser, that the business men of Montgomery proposed to build a meat packing house in the near future. Such an establishment would be a great blessing to the farmers of Montgomery and adjoing counties.

The farmers of the section raise their own meat and some to sell.

Were there a market in easy reach, many of us would abandon cotton altogether. Pork can be raised here for less than 3 cents per pound. I have more than enough to supply my family of ten, and it has not cost me more than 3 cents per pound, and when your packing house is established, I abandon cotton and raise pork at a cost of 2½ cents per pound. If that can be done, won't there be money in raising hogs? But some are ready to say it cannot be done. Let me tell you what I did last year: In May I bought a sow and six poor pigs.

I put them in my horse lot where I keep all my logs until September.

I fed my hogs with rotten corn and nubbins, slops and buttermilk until September and then turned them on on a 3 acre lot of Spanish ground peas. In October I gathered my corn and then turned them in my cornfield. I had planted fifteen acres in corn, with each alternate row planted in the common ground pea. I forgot to say that three of the pigs mentioned above had died. My hogs became thoroughly fat on the ground peas.

I fed them a few days on corn alone in December, in order to harden the lard. The sow and three pigs which I had bought netted me 775 pounds of pork, which at 6 cents per pound would have brought me 46 dollars and a half.

Now I don't believe these hogs cost me exceeding 15 dollars. I killed another pig which I had raised, 17 months old, which netted me 379 pounds at I think, still less cost. By planting my entire corn crop as I did the fifteen acres I can produce nearly as much corn as by the usual way, and have seventy-five acres in ground peas, which would fatten many thousand pounds of pork at a nominal cost.

Let Montgomery establish a packing-house by all means, and my prosperity is assured.

James M Carter.

TOBACCO CULTURE.

Preparation of Tobacco Seed Beds.

EDITOR RECORD: Too much care cannot be exercised in preparing seed-beds. The surest plan is to rake off the leaves and lay green poles about five feet apart, then place brush wood uniformly over the poles on the ground and then put on heavy sticks of wood at right angles across the poles and brush, making the latter as flat as possible, the object being to burn the ground and not the air above.

The poles serve to elevate the burning wood a few inches above the surface admitting air (oxygen) freely to secure a good burn to kill all grass and weed seeds and boroughing grubs and the ashes serve as the best fertilizer. As the pile burns down take a hook and pull the large pieces of burning wood to the edge of the bed so as to secure a good burn to the margin of the bed; same day, if possible, dig up the bed well with grubbing hoe (not plow) and be careful not to turn the burnt surface upside down, then with a pronged hoe or rake remove all roots, etc., pulverize thoroughly and level the surface. One heaped tablespoonful of good seed to fifteen feet square mixed uniformly into a half gallon of corn meal or white ashes so as to see when the ground is evenly covered, mark off the rows about 3½ feet across the bed with a stick and then saw broadcast with three fingers, making sure to leave a little to sow across the other way so as to have the seed uniform. Do not rake the seed in, as same will be covered too deep, but with a long switch or very light straight brush, sweep very lightly over the surface and then lay a plank, say a foot square, down across the bed and walk on it, then move it and again walk on it until you go all over the bed. When you will have it sufficiently packed then cover the bed with straight leafless brush and let it remain until danger of frost is over, say April 5th. Better remove it and risk having to protect it against a late frost than let it remain too long in bed, as the plants will be too tender when ready to put out when they are four to six inches high. In case of heavy frost after the plants are up, it would be advisable to protect them with sheets or some other covering.

In your next issue I will give the land best adapted, best fertilizer and preparation of land.

Yours truly, E. K. HAWTHORN.

Mr. W. L. Ward, of Selma, one natures noblemen, spent a day in Clanton this week.

Major Bivings was with his Clanton friends two days this week.

Mr. Croswell spent last Sunday with his wife and baby.

We are glad to learn that Dr. J. S. Johnson who has been quite sick, is convalescent.

The Baptist Conference will be held, hereafter, on Tuesday night after the Third Sunday.

Our neighbor W. M. Gore killed two nice pigs, the raising of which cost very little. One weighed 222 pounds and the other 332 pounds and furnished 8 gallons of lard. He has six more shoats ready for killing from which he expects to make 1,000 pounds of meat. This farmer has most of his cotton crop still on hand.

Rev. Mr. Mize, of Marion, agent for the American Sunday School Union preached in the Baptist church last Sunday night, Those who heard the sermon speak well of it. He is a good man engaged in a good work.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, or 220 acres of land for $3 per acre? If that is too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you

The editor of the View made a trip over the south eastern portion of Chilton county last week. A very pleasant night was spent with Mr. Newton Calloway and family. They are all a hard working set and sure to succeed. The last heavy flood destroyed their mill dam but hard work will soon restore it. In passing we struck hands with our old friend Ellis Gulledge. He has for a month been suffering with a bad hand, but is now about ready to go to work for a new crop believing in Him who sends seed time and harvest.

Through our hurried journey we met Mess. Pinckney Jones, E. E. Estis, G. W. Pierce and brother, S. E. Sneed, J. W. Cooper, J. M. Wyatt, Jno. Allen and others. Every body feels the hard times, but like brave men they are clearing new grounds, repairing fences, making compost, cutting and rolling logs intent on doing their part towards reaping a profitable harvest.

Editor View;

As we haven't heard from our part of the country in sometime, will try to devote a few of my spare moments to that cause.

The farmers in this section of the country are doing very little towards their crops for '95 on account of the bad weather, it is impossible for them to work.

We noticed that a number of people haven't any homes yet in our part of the country.

Mrs. Genetta Jones, who is (82) eighty two years of age is lying very low.

Mr. Bill Armstrong has moved into our country.

Prof. G. L. Spear is speaking of moving to the Shelby Jones place, where he is now teaching.

Mr. E. P. Jones and J. C. Veazey visited Stanton last week, they report a nice time. Mr. E. C. says he is going back soon if the Parson will let his latch stay on the outside of the gate.

We would like to know what has become of the correspondents of the View we like to hear from them all.

THE CONGRESS.

THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS RESUME OPERATIONS.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

Monday was the most thoroughly interesting day of the session in the senate. The two democratic giants of that body crossed swords and fenced fiercely for four hours. The fight was sensational in the extreme. Gorman and Hill crossed swords. They slashed and gashed one another fiercely. The republicans looked on in high glee. Democrats regretted it, because it injures the party. Still they were interested and enthusiastic in their interest. Every democratic senator was arrayed on one side or the other. The senate was packed. Members of the house crowded into the chamber. It looked like older times, when great political struggles were on. After the routine morning business the urgent deficiency bill was taken up, the question being on Mr. Hill's appeal from the decision of the chair ruling out the amendment offered by him to authorize the United States courts to hear and determine questions as to the constitutionality and validity of the income tax. Stewart took the floor and concluded his speech begun Saturday—a free silver speech. Gorman next addressed the senate. He sought to discipline Mr. Hill and criticised the New Yorker for his recent fight against collecting the income tax and censured him for his fight against the tariff bill of last session. Hill took up his foil and responded in a vigorous defense of himself and made a vicious assault upon the Marylander.

In the Senate, Tuesday, Mr. Voorhees, from the finance committee, favorably reported the bill for coinage at the branch mint at Denver. Mr. Manderson secured the passage of two important resolutions calling on the secretary of the treasury for information on the tariff. One resolution asks for quantities of spirits and high wines taken out of bond during the 60 days prior to August 28 last, when the new tariff law took effect, the names of the parties or concerns who took the goods out of bond and all detailed information concerning the same. The other resolution calls on the secretary for full information as to amount of sugar imported during the 60 days prior to August 28, the names of importers, amounts of imports, the country whence it came, etc. The debate was then resumed on the income tax item in the efficiency appropriation bill and Mr. McCall, of Florida, addressed the senate in favor of the appropriation.

The debate on Senator Hill's amendment to the urgent deficiency bill, in reference to testing the constitutionality of the income tax, occupied most of Wednesday's session, and ended in the rejection of the amendment by an overwhelming majority. Mr. Butler favorably reported from the committee on naval affairs the bill for comprehensive revision of the personnel of the navy. Bills were passed to provide for coinage at the branch mint at Denver, Col., authorizing certain naval officers to administer oaths; to exempt from duty foreign exhibits at the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta, and granting the Gilla Valley, Globe and Northern railway a right of way through the San Carlos military reservation in Arizona.

Mr. Pugh, democrat, of Alabama, secured recognition soon after the senate met Thursday to present what he regarded as a solution for the present lack of government revenue. The senator varied the usual custom of introducing a bill by reading the full text of his measure with great deliberateness, and then commenting upon it. The bill provides for the immediate issue of $100,000,000 of treasury notes to meet deficiencies, these notes to be redeemed in coin and to be constantly reissued. It further directed the coinage of the seigniorage, and the deposit of silver bullion from American mints. Mr. Pugh proceeded to urge the gravity of the present situation. It was such that he was ready to surrender long convictions in order to secure a remedy. "Thus far," said Mr. Pugh, "senators have stood here and torn down. It is easy to tear down, but hard to build up. We have torn down until we have pretty nearly torn down this country." Mr. Pugh begged that the finance committee, in which he had great confidence, should do something at once. Mr. Sherman, republican, of Ohio, as soon as Mr. Pugh had closed, rose with another important financial measure. Its reading received the closest attention from senators on both sides. The Sherman bill provided for the issue and sale of bonds under the provisions of the resumption act from time to time, as the deficiencies of the treasury require, the proceeds to be used wholly for deficiencies, the bonds to run five years, and not to exceed three per cent interest. The second section provides that, in lieu of the foregoing, the secretary of the treasury may issue coin certificates in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, bearing three per cent interest, and put the certificates in circulation through the treasuries and postoffices. The third section deals with the deposit of bonds in national banks. Mr. Sherman's bill was referred, without comment, to the finance committee.

THE HOUSE.

Speaker Crisp laid before the house, at the opening of the session Monday, the resignation of John C. Black, of Illinois, who resigned to accept a position of United States district attorney for the northern division of Illinois. Mr. Hatch, democrat, of Missouri, called up the Grout bill to make oleomargerine and all other imitation dairy products subject to the laws of the state or territory into which they are transported, which was under consideration on Saturday. Mr. Bynum, democrat, of Indiana, resumed his hostile attitude toward it, indicating a disposition to filibuster if necessary to defeat it. He also moved for a recess for one hour. On a rising vote the motion was defeated, 3 to 117, Mr. Bynum made the point of no quorum.

Chairman Sayres, of the appropriations committee, reported the sundry civil appropriation bill to the house Tuesday. Mr. Grosvenor, republican, of Ohio, presented a reply to a recent memorial sent to the judiciary committee by Mr. Ritchie, of Akron, O., supplementary charges against Judge Ricks, of the United States court of the northern district of Ohio. Mr. Grosvenor stated that Mr. Ritchie's charge incidentally involved ex-Senator H. B. Payne and Judge Stevenson Burs, and the reply which was presented through him gave a full statement of the pertinent facts in connection with the Ritchie charges. On behalf of these gentlemen, Mr. Grosvenor asked for a full investigation and complete report, censuring and prosecuting, or exhonorating them. Mr. McCreary, democrat, of Kentucky, called up a bill authorizing Lieutenant Colonel Forwood and Surgeon Pensore to accept certain testimonials from the Argentine republic, and it was passed; also authorizing Commander Dennis W. Mullen, United States Navy, to accept a medal from the government of Chili.

Major T. O. Towles, chief clerk of the house, called the house to order Wednesday and read a communication from Speaker Crisp, who is somewhat indisposed, appointing Representative A. M. Dockery, of Mississippi, to conduct the duties of the chair. Mr. McGann, democrat, of Illinois, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution to increase the pay of printers and book binders at the government printing office from 40 to 50 cents per hour. Mr. Sayers objected. On motion of Mr. Cockrell, democrat, of Texas, a bill passed to authorize the Kansas City, Oklahoma and Pacific railroad to construct a railroad through the Indian territory. On motion of Mr. Doolittle, republican, of Washington, a resolution was passed, authorizing the expenditure of $10,000 appropriated for dredging Evertt harbor, Washington, in the construction of a fresh water harbor at that point.

At the opening of the session of the house Thursday, a bill was passed, on motion of Mr. Henderson, of Illinois, to grant Mrs. Sarah A. Clapp the pay and allowances of a surgeon, for services as such in the Seventh Illinois Infantry. The senate amendments to the urgent deficiency bill were disagreed to, and the bill sent to conference. Mr. Richardson (democrat,) of Tennessee, chairman of the committee on printing, then, as a matter of privilege, had read a paragraph printed in a local paper relating to the incorporation in the printing bill, passed at the last session, of a clause extending the franking privilege to members of congress for correspondence with officials and private individuals on official or departmental business. The paragraph indicated that the clause had been incorporated in the bill surreptitiously. Mr. Richardson read from the Record showing that the clause had been debated and adopted by a vote of 42 to 40. The house then went into committee of the whole for the further consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

The report on the industrial condition of the south for the past week shows that the iron producing industry continues to be active. Four furnaces are to go into blast at once; three at Sheffield, Ala., and one at Covington, Va. Southern coal miners are now mining and selling more coal than ever before, and the market for coke can hardly be supplied, owing to the demands of the furnaces. Southern coke has been greatly improved in quality by the use of coal washers, with which all the principal plants are now supplied. The lumber market is improving. Louisiana cypress is in good demand at advancing prices, and poplar is scarce. The official figures of the Poplar Association, show that for 1894 the poplar cut was 56 per cent. of that of a normal year, the shipments 90 per cent. and the stock on hand 40 per cent.

The interest shown by northern capitalists in southern locations for their cotton mills continues to increase. The Boott mills and the Massachusetts mills, both of Lowell, Mass., have applied for charter amendments to permit them to build in the south. It is understood that the last named company will locate in Athens, Ga. Cotton mills, each with $100,000 capital, have been organized during the week at Birmingham, Ala., and Wilmington, N. C., and one with $50,000 capital at Irene, S. C. Others are reported as Ozark, Ala., Flora, Miss., Charlotte and Shelby, N. C., and Portsmouth, Va., and a $50,000 cotton mill enlargement at Raleigh, N. C.

There is also reported steel works at Birmingham, Ala., a $150,000 lumber company at Hinton, Va., $50,000 machine works at Richmond, Va., and a $25,000 foundry at Galveston, Texas; canning factories at Albertville, Ala., and Athens, Ga., flour and grist mills at Rome, Ga., Hadnsville, Ky., Dillsboro, N. C., and Bybee, Tenn., and guano factory at Portsmouth, Va. Machine works are to be built at Shelby, N. C., and Pocahontas, Va., a shoe factory at Pittsburg, Texas, a tannery at Ashland, Ky., sugar mills at Houma, La., and woodworking plants at Cedar Bluff, Ala., Wilson, N. C., Trenton, Tenn., Dallas and Waco, Texas, and Portsmouth, Va.

The enlargements for the week include a cotton mill at Charlotte, N. C., flouring mills at Eastland, Tex., iron works at South Pittsburg, Tenn., and a wagon factory at Raleigh, N. C. Among the new buildings of the week are business houses at Louisville, Ky., Elizabethtown, Tenn., and Fort Worth, Tex., a $15,000 city hall at Biloxi, Miss., a church at Petersburg, Va., an opera house at Bluefield, W. Va., and a $50,000 Masonic building at Columbus, Ga.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

SENATORIAL ELECTIONS.

State Legislatures Choose Their Representatives in Congress.

The following state legislatures balloted for United States senator last Wednesday:

New Hampshire—The legislature in joint session elected William E. Chandler.

Massachusetts—The legislature in joint session declared George F. Hoar to be his own successor.

Maine—The election of William P. Frye to succeed himself was formally announced by the legislature in joint session.

Colorado—The legislature in joint session re-elected Edward O. Wolcott to the United States senate. Lafe Pence, the nominee of the populist party, received a complimentary vote from the members of that party in the assembly.

Montana—Lee Mantle, of Butte, and T. H. Carter, of Helena, were elected United States senators in joint assembly. Both are republicans. Mantle gets the short term and Carter the long term.

Nebraska—The legislature met jointly and listened to the announcement of the election of John M. Thurston as United States senator.

Fatories Resuming Work.

The Singer sewing machine works at South Bend, Ind., employing 800 operators, have resumed operations. There was also a resumption of work in all departments of the Studebaker wagon manufactory, employing 1,000 men.

IN A DAY'S SPAN.

THE LIGHTNING SPECIAL SPEED FROM CHICAGO TO ATLANTA.

Ran it in 16 Hours, 57 Minutes. Brought the Exposition Edition of the Chicago Herald—Broke All Previous Records.

The triumphant culmination of one of the finest strokes of enterprise ever undertaken by an American newspaper was witnessed at the union depot at 6:30 o'clock last evening, when the Chicago Herald's fast special, just sixteen hours and fifty-seven minutes out of Chicago, pulled under the shed.

The moment the dazzling headlight of engine 240, Western and Atlantic road, hove in sight the multitude of representative citizens, city officials, newsboys and every class of people that had gathered inside the depot, sent up a terrific shout, and the Fifth Regiment band struck the inspiring strains of "Dixie."

WELCOME THE HERALD MEN.

The exposition directors and the leading citizens quickly boarded the car and went into the dining car, where they met and congratulated Mr. Robert Ansley, the business manager of the Herald, and Mr. John J. Flinn, of the editorial staff of the Herald, the able special writer of the Herald, who prepared the article about Atlanta and the exposition, which made up the Southern edition of the Herald.

MR. HARMAN HAPPY.

Mr. Charley Harman, the live general passenger agent of the Western and Atlantic, who personally conducted the special from Chattanooga, was on hand all aglow with smiles, shaking hands with everybody.

"One hundred and thirty-eight miles in one hundred and sixty-five minutes, with two stops," was all he had to say to the enthusiastic greetings that he received from every side.

After the general reception in the parlor car was over, the Chicago party was taken in hand by the exposition directors and escorted to the Aragon hotel.

A RAILROAD SENSATION.

The marvelously quick run from Chicago to Atlanta was the sensation of the hour in railroad circles. No such time had ever been made before. During the World's Fair the announcements made in the advertisements that the vestibuled fair specials would cover the distance in twenty-four hours was greeted with incredulity. Nobody believed it, and as a matter of fact, it was a rare occurrence that the distance was covered in shorter time than twenty-seven hours.

To make the run in sixteen hours was a feat unparalleled in the railroad world. It was at the very least eight hours shorter than any known time between the two cities. It marked a new era in fast traveling, and it was meet that the rapid run should be made between Chicago and Atlanta, the two most enterprising and progressive cities in the country.

There were many railroad men who did not believe that the run could be made in anything like the time proposed. They predicted that the train would get into Atlanta about midnight, but they were beautifully disappointed. It is a fact deserving of special mention that the run made over the Western and Atlantic Road, one of Atlanta's lines, was made in as quick time as was made on any other line between Chicago and Atlanta. Mr. Harman made it a point to cover the distance in lightning fashion, and if the train had reached Chattanooga on schedule time, it would have been put into the depot in this city without the loss of a single moment. He had ordered the right of way cleared for the special, and it came through without a hitch.

The train was scheduled for Chattanooga at 3:06, and on the main line, awaiting the coming of the train, was engine 240, one of the smartest locomotives in the South. It is an engine that Charley Barrett has covered a mile in less than fifty-eight seconds with, and is one of the most graceful movers in the world. On it was Billy Harris, an engineer who knows every crosstie between Atlanta and Chattanooga, an engineer who can get every wrinkle out of a mover, an engineer who can ride his box like Snapper once rode the horses—always to win. He was sitting there waiting for Bob Stallings, that conductor who is known all over the South, to wave him out, while Mr. Stallings, with watch in hand, was watching for the coming train to turn the curve a half mile away. Hon. Charles Harman, the general passenger agent of the road, was beside the track fussing because the train was late, and a dozen yardmen were present to do the work allotted to them. Just five minutes after 4 o'clock the train rolled in. A second later the engine was uncoupled and No. 240 was swung in line. In two minutes every axle had been greased, every wheel had been sounded and the train was moving. Mr. Flinn and Mr. Ansley had shaken hands with a number of gentlemen and had been told a dozen times or more that the feat was one of the most remarkable they had ever heard of.

"Is there anything in our way?" asked Mr. Ansley, glancing from the face of his watch into the face of Mr. Harman.

"Not a thing," replied Mr. Harman. "This train has the right of way over everything."

"And what's the distance?" asked Mr. Flinn, glancing at the time table.

"One hundred and thirty-eight miles," was the answer.

"How long will it take us?" asked Mr. Ansley.

"Less than three hours," was the answer. "We will make two stops only, and we will put you in Atlanta in less than three hours."

Three minutes before 7 o'clock the train came into Atlanta, having covered the distance in two hours and fifty minutes, including the two stops of about four minutes each and the slow-up at Howells and the slow pace within the city.

It was a run of 138 miles in 170 minutes, including two stops, and was the best running the train did from the time it left Chicago until it reached Atlanta.

The entire time, including the stops, changes and so forth, was sixteen hours and twenty-seven minutes, as figured by Mr. Stone and Mr. Harman.

That is 987 minutes in which 731 miles were covered.

Right good work it may be considered, at least that is what a great group of railroad men who were about the Kimball after the train came in last night told me.—Atlanta Constitution, Dec. 30th.

THE introduction of fire-arms—and especially of breech-loading fire-arms—and the rapid opening up of one great hunting ground after another, have wrought, within these last sixty years, such incredible havoc (says a writer in the Fortnightly) that great game is now approaching a period of extinction. Men begin to wonder what their descendants of the next century will have left them in the way of sport. North America has almost been destroyed as a game country; the bison has gone—the wapiti, the moose, the caribou, and the bear are going fast. Of South Africa—a country more prodigally endowed by nature than any other part of the world—the same miserable tale has to be told. In India, the same war of extermination has been and is incessantly waged, and with the same results. The Indian lion, the great mailed rhinoceros, the gaur, buffalo, sambur, bear, even the tiger itself, and many other species of great game are vanishing rapidly. In other countries the same process is going busily forward.

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

The leaven of yesterday ruins the cake of to-day. Don't spoil good buckwheat with dying raising-batter—fresh cakes want Royal Baking Powder. Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder—freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Do not forget that no baking powder can be substituted for the "Royal" in making pure, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

The Vineless Sweet Potato.

The vineless sweet potato is probably a sport of the common yam grown in Mississippi and Alabama. It was found near Columbus, Miss., in 1884. Since then it has been gradually distributed throughout the south. Its vines are short, never reaching three feet in length, and oftentimes not over two feet; very stocky and compact in growth. Leaves very large and deeply cut. Both vine and foliage very dark rich green. Roots are medium in size, smooth and excellent in quality. Quite productive and stands drought well.

On account of the character of its vines it may be cultivated late in the season, oftentimes a very important factor in deciding the yield of the crop. It is also known as the bunch, the early bunch, bunch yam and true bunch.

The variety has been grown at the Louisiana station for the past four years, and is there regarded as the greatest acquisition in sweet potatoes thus far obtained.

She Was More Careful.

Miss Maud Adams is a member of the company supporting John Drew, and a good story is going the rounds concerning he quick wit. One afternoon she attended a luncheon party, and met, among others, a young man, recently married, who is noted for his bold manners, and who has won the name of being the biggest bore in society. He asked Miss Adams a number of personal questions, and the hostess was about to speak to him, but he received his just punishment from the young lady he had been bothering.

"Miss Adams," he asked, "will you tell me if you are married?"

"I am not."

"Do you contemplate such a step?"

"I give it no thought."

"And why, pray?" he persisted.

"Because I am not so easily pleased as your wife was."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Very Like a Bottomless Pit.

A wonderful natural cavern was discovered in Lafayette county, Ga., in 1891. It has the usual complement of "rooms," "galleries," "domes" and "pits," but its sole title to being something out of the ordinary in the cavern line is a well-like abyss in one of the rooms, which, as far as any one knows, may once have served as "the chimney of hades." It is known locally as "the bottomless pit." Stones of large size have been thrown into it with a hope that it would be heard to strike the bottom after a while, but, according to reports, there were no reverberating sounds borne back to the ear by which its enormous depth could be guaged.—St. Louis Republic.

The Garden of Dreams.

In the far, purple heart of the twilight, fenced in by the roseate beams
Of the sunset, I know of a garden, of a beautiful garden of dreams.

It is far in the heart of the twilight, and it touches the valley of night,
But the gates to the eastward are open, and lead to the kingdom of light.

And the stars are a-gleam o'er its borders, but still, where the bright tendrils run
Of the vines that are lush in its bosom, there lingers the kiss of the sun.

And fancy is there in my garden, flowing through it in wonderful streams,
And the spray of those streams gem the flowers that bloom in my garden of dreams.

For they are the blooms of the spirit whose roots are deep down in the years,
And the dews that have fallen and blessed them, and made them eternal, are tears.

For thoughts blossom there in my garden, and hopes that are perfect and fair,
And faith, like a beautiful lily, holds its lips to the kiss of the air.

There friendship is blooming in beauty, the sensitive plant of the soul,
And the angels are near it, and guard it, and keep it in holy control.

But the perfect queen rose of my garden is a blossom whose radiant gleams
Have a glow that is sweeter than starlight that smiles o'er my garden of dreams.

For the perfect queen rose of my garden is love, and the crystalline streams
Of fancy would faint if that flower bloomed not in my garden of dreams.

—HOWARD HAWTHORNE M'GEE.

The Parson's Wooing.

They were talking about the strange way marriages were brought about at the sewing circle.

"I'm sure I never expected to marry my husband," said the parson's wife, Mrs. Richards.

"Why, I've allers said you were sent down from heaven ticketed for each other—you'n the Dominie," said Auntie Smith.

"If we were," said Mrs. Richards, "I had certainly lost my ticket. I was a very lively girl, Aunty Smith. I loved to dance and sing, and to enjoy myself generally. I doted on a good play"—here Miss Jones was heard to groan quietly over her back-stitching—"and I had beaux enough with tastes like my own. A clergyman's wife I had often vowed I never would be. And I felt more certain about it than ever whenever my father entertained clergymen. They were, it seemed to me, never young, and never handsome. Their very smiles were solemn, and they generally had weak lungs."

"Yes, poor dears, that's true," said Aunty Smith. "About the lungs, I mean."

"I had a notion," said Mrs. Richard's, "that to be very handsome a man must be a little wicked. The handsomest man I ever saw was a gambler. When I was a little girl, nine or ten years old at most, an old uncle of mine had said to me once, as I stood at the window of his parlor in New York. 'Emma, did you ever see a gambler? That's one. His name is Thompson.' It was as though he had said, 'Did you ever see Satan?' I stared with all my might, and I have never forgotten the face I saw then. 'That a gambler?' said I. 'Oh, uncle, it can't be.' 'She knows a handsome man when she sees one already,' said my uncle. And I always did," laughed Mrs. Richards. "When I was a girl I looked first at a man's face, and then at his figure, and if they did not suit me I never asked about his virtues. As for his talents, I don't believe that either man or woman ever fell in love with talent yet. And you know," continued Mrs. Richards, "Mr. Richards is not a handsome man."

Aunty Smith remarked, with great truth, that "beauty was only skin deep," and Mrs. Richards went on:

"He's portly now, though, and wears whiskers. He is very much improved, indeed, outwardly. Has a will of his own, and shows it. He hasn't weak lungs at forty-five. But when I first saw him he was pale and thin and nervous, and had a bad cough. And though, as pastor of our church, I saw him every Sunday, I forgot him every Monday. Any one I knew seemed more likely to please me than he did. And when he first began to call on me, I've been many a time wicked enough to send him down word that I was out, and hide in the closet, while ma, who had not heard me give the message to the servant, looked for me in all the rooms of the house.

"The young man I used to run about with most drank himself to death ten years ago: but he had cheeks like peaches then, and eyes as blue as a baby's. And how he could sing! And I went down on my knees and thanked God, when I heard the news that it was not I who wept over his grave the day they buried him.

"But I am running away from my point. Mr. Richards preached to me Sundays and called on me Thursdays, and took tea with us over and over again, and my heart never went pitapat once on his account. I began to respect him greatly, and to think he spoke well in the pulpit, and to feel sorry for him somehow, though I couldn't say why, but nothing more. And Jack Falconer took me out to ride, and Will Hunter rowed me across the river, and young Jefferson sent me bouquets; and all that was enough to put a pale young fellow with a low voice and no idea of gallantry, and not a bit of impudence in him, out of any woman's head entirely.

"And to crown it all, there came upon my birthday—a present of a watch and chain from my uncle in New York, and an invitation to spend the winter with his wife and himself. A gay winter it would be, I knew.

"I had my new watch in the parlor, showing it to Fanny Peel, that Thursday, when he rang the bell, and as I had my hair in papers I ran away. Fanny took them out for me, and I went down. She would not go in with me. And I found Mr. Richards, paler and more fidgety than usual, waiting for me. I could not help knowing that he thought a great deal of me by this time, and of course, you know, a girl must like a man a little for that; but I thought I did not like him well enough to let him say what I was afraid he had come to say. Then, too, the congregation was expecting him to marry, and I thought it was rather that he liked me best than that he loved desperately, as I wanted to be loved. Cool affection may do for some women; it never would do for me—never.

"So I misunderstood and changed the subject, and all that. And off he went at last, so pale that I felt sorrier than ever for him. And I went to my room and had a cry, I don't know why. And it was only that night that I remembered my watch. I had left it on the table in the parlor, but it was there no longer; in fact, it was not in the house. We did not suspect Hepsiba, who had lived with us twenty years. There was no one in the house to suspect. But the watch and chain were valuable. The police force of our town consisted of two very stupid old men, and father sent for a New York detective to ferret out the theft. He came down at once, and felt sure of success. I cried about my watch a good deal, and cried a little more about poor Mr. Richards, who had received news that his mother was dangerously ill, and had gone, probably, to her death-bed. But tears hurt no one at nineteen, and I was enjoying my tea very thoroughly when came a tap at the door, and 'May I come in?' announced Mr. Sharp, the detective.

"'Success,' he said, rubbing his hands. 'Your watch is found, miss. The thief was off for ——, with it loose in his pocket. Number 785,694; Geneva, full jeweled; enameled in blue, with diamonds; massive chain, plate marked "Emma from her uncle." All correct?'

"I was so glad. 'Oh, thank you,' I said. 'Who is the man, sir?'

"'A regular one,' said the detective. 'Slim and genteel, disguised as a clergyman. Says he's going to his mother's death-bed. Calls himself Rev. Calvin Richards. Says he took it in a fit of abstraction. I say, ma'am, what's the matter?' for mother had screamed, and I turned faint and clung to papa.

"'It's our pastor,' said mamma. 'It is a mistake. He's picked it up. He does such things often. Went off with a napkin once, from our table. He has a way of picking up things. Where is he?'

"'It's a bad way,' said the detective, 'and he's in jail, ma'am. If your parson is a kleptomaniac, I can't waste my time for nothing.'

"'I'll pay you; only get him out,' cried papa.

"'He ain't a what's-his-name maniac. He's abstracted,' cried mamma.

"'He's abstracted that there watch, anyhow,' said Mr. Sharp. 'And perhaps it's an imposter under the name. Wait until morning.'

"We did wait. I did not sleep, however.

"At seven the next morning we were off for the jail. They were just bringing a burglar, a pedler, a beggar and the Rev. Mr. Richards into court."

"Well?" asked the others breathlessly.

"That's all. I was so sorry for his predicament that when he asked me I married him. Strange courtship, eh?" Pittsburg Telegraph.

Plan for Improving Steamers.

If the owners of the Campania pulled out all her boilers and for every five pulled out put back two new boilers same diameter, same length, same heating surface—in fact, each new boiler an exact facsimile of the old one, except that the iron must be three times as heavy, so as to fit it for raising 500 pounes of steam instead of 180 pounds of steam, and if they alter the first and possibly the second cylinders of their engines (leave the last cylinders alone; they are the true measures of the steam consumed) so as to fit them for working 500 pounds of steam and expanding it down to the same pressure as at present, then I say they will save three-fifths of their present boiler-room, they may dismiss three stokers out of five, retaining only two, and they may reduce their quantity of coal and space for coal to about two-fifths of the present quantity—say from 3,000 tons (if that is the quantity) down to 1,200 tons, and they will still drive the Campania at her present speed—twenty-five miles an hour. But the saving on the coal will be on the coal used for the actual propelling of the ship.—Industries and Iron.

Earthquakes and Electricity.

It has been very generally believed that there is a distinct connection between earthquakes and electricity, but Professor John Milne, of the Japanese Imperial University, who is probably the best living authority states that as the result of many experiments and investigations that there is no discovered connection. In his opinion magnetic and electric phenomena have nothing whatever to do in causing or governing earthquakes—New York Telegram.

Deceived.

"Poor, dear thing; he married for love!" and was unhappy?"

Yes; he found that the girl couldn't even support herself, to say nothing of him!"

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The bill to repeal the differential duty on sugar was reported by the house Tuesday and will be taken up in a few days. Of course the house will pass it with very little debate, but in the senate it is feared it will strike a snag. Everything depends upon the influence of the sugar trust over the senate.

There is likely to be a most interesting discussion in the house committee on labor on the relative merits of the two plans of arbitration, for which Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright and Attorney General Olney are sponsers. The two distinguished authors of the principal bills before the committee will speak, it is expected, in advocacy of their views. If they appear, their speeches will doubtless prove to be valuable additions to the literature of the subject.

Will Renew Efforts.

The latest indications about the halls of congress are more favorable to financial legislation than they have been for several weeks past. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the leading democrats to do something on the financial question. The republicans fear an extra session and are anxious to have something done. They have told the democratic leaders that they will aid in the passage of a financial bill. At the cabinet meeting Tuesday morning it was determined that the administration should renew its efforts to have congress act.

A Bond Issue Probable.

Gold to the amount of $1,700,000, of which $1,600,000 was for export and $100,000 for exchange of U. S. notes, was withdrawn from the New York subtreasury Wednesday. This reduces the gold reserve to $66,775,006. The gradual reduction of the gold reserve has not up to this time given rise to any authorized statement that a third bond issue will soon be made, but a cabinet officer states that another proposal inviting bids for bonds would certainly be issued in the absence of action by congress. At what point the gold reserve would be allowed to decline before the third bond issue would be made was a matter of discretion solely and must naturally be decided by circumstances.

Revenue Receipts Increasing.

A statement prepared at the internal revenue department shows that the aggregate receipts from all sources during the six months ended December 31, 1894, were $81,847,566, which is an increase over the receipts for the same period of last year of $8,919,971. The receipts for the last six months of 1894, and the increase or decrease in the several sources of revenue, are given as follows: Spirits, receipts, $48,836,336, increase $7,735,379; tobacco, increase, $1,193,662, receipts $15,157,649; fermented liquors, receipts, $16,600,377, decrease, $117,660; oleomargarine, receipts, $60,969, decrease, $161,548; miscellaneous receipts, $342,232, increase, $269,639. Of these last receipts, $261,798 were from tax on playing cards.

Senator Jones's Scheme.

In Senator Jones' financial currency bill, introduced in the senate Wednesday, authority is given the secretary of the treasury to issue $500,000,000 of bonds payable in coin of the present standard value, and bearing 3 per cent interest. The bonds are to mature thirty years from date, and may be redeemed in twenty years. The proceeds of the bonds are to be used to defray current expenses of the government and for the redemption of the United States legal tender and treasury notes issued under the act of July 14, 1890. The bonds are to be of the denominations of $20 and $50 and multiplies and will be free from taxes. They must be paid for in gold or the secretary may accept United States notes and treasury notes under the act of 1890. National banks may issue circulating notes to the amount of bonds deposited with the secretary of the treasury, and the tax on such circulation is reduced to one-fourth of 1 per cent. Section 3 provides that no national bank shall retire its circulation without written authority from the secretary of the treasury. Section 4 says that national banks desiring to retire the whole or any part of their circulating notes are required to deposit gold coin equal to the amount of the notes to be raised, and at all times to keep on deposit with the treasurer of the United States in gold coin a sum equal to 5 per cent of their outstanding circulating notes, to be issued for the redemption of such notes. Sections 6 and 7 provide for the displacement of all national bank and United States treasury notes of denominations of less than $10 with silver certificates.

ALABAMA'S TAX.

Joint Committee Forms a New and Equitable Assessment.

A Montgomery, Ala., special says: The joint committee of six, appointed by the legislature to sit during the last ten days of the legislature and formulate a new and equitable system of tax assessment for Alabama, will report, when the law-making body reconvenes, the result of their labors in a most interesting bill and one almost totally different from the law now in effect. The general plan of the bill is as follows:

"1. The proceeding to collect taxes is made against the property and not against the owner 'in rem' and not in person.

"2. The valuation of property is taken from the taxpayer and put in the hands of appraisers.

"3. There are in cities of over 1,000 inhabitants two men, appointed by the city council, who, with the assessor, shall value all property, and outside of such cities the appraisement is made by the assessor and two citizens of the beat, one appointed by the assessor and the other by the commissioner's court. The city shall pay its appraisers, the county its. The assessor shall receive fees only.

"4. The tax year is changed from January 1st to October 1st. This gives more time in which to assess and collect and puts the tax year with the fiscal year.

"5. The assessment must be completed by February 1st.

"6. The assessment shall be returned to the county board of equalization, composed, first, of a man appointed by the governor and paid by the state; second, a man elected by the commissioner's court and paid by the county, and, third, the assessor, who get fees.

"7. A small annual franchise tax is laid on corporations.

"8. No execution shall issue on a judgement until all taxes are paid. If such is brought on a note on which taxes are unpaid the plaintiff shall recover no interest nor costs and no instrument evidencing a debt on which taxes are due can be given in evidence until all taxes are paid and no power of sale in a mortgage can be enforced until the taxes are paid.

"9. There is a small increase in the whisky and brewery licenses.

"10. A small license tax is laid on cigarette dealers.

"11. The bill is non-partisan and provides for representation of different political parties in its machinery.

"12. A state board of equalization is provided for."

The bill is voluminous, comprising some forty pages of foolscap. It contains numerous other provisions of interest. The committee has labored faithfully upon its preparation for ten days and it is believed to be almost perfect as far as the needs of the state are concerned. A conservative estimate is that it will increase the state's revenue about $200,000 and will fill up the hole in the treasury in three or four years.

THE STEAMER WRECKED

And the Fate of Twenty-Six Men is Yet Unknown.

All hopes for the safety of the Graham & Morton screw steamer Chicora, has been abandoned by the finding of wreckage from the vessel off South Haven, Mich. The fate of twenty-six men, who are known to have been aboard when the steamer left Milwaukee for Benton Harbor, Mich., is almost as hopeless. Veteran mariners number every man with the dead.

HEAVY WITHDRAWLS OF GOLD.

Total for the Week Over Six Million Dollars.

The withdrawals of gold from the subtreasury at New York Thursday were $2,780,000, making the total for the week $6,280,000. A fair amount of this gold is light weight and will not be shipped to Europe. Indications point to shipments of nearly $6,000,000, and if leading exporters do not cancel their orders it may reach $7,000,000 and over.

CARS MUST RUN.

SO JUDGE GAYNOR NOTIFIES THE COMPANIES.

The Great Strike in Brooklyn Drawing to a Close.

A Brooklyn, N. Y., special says: Justice Gaynor, of the supreme court, handed down his decision on the application of Joseph Loader for a mandamus to compel the Brooklyn Heights railroad to operate its cars in sufficient numbers to accommodate the traveling public on the Fulton street, Putnam avenue, Green and Gates, and the Tompkins avenue lines.

He signifies his intention of granting a mandamus, the form to be determined on the argument of counsel. Justice Gaynor's decision in part is as follows:

"It is my duty to declare the law of this case. This railroad corporation is not in the position of a mere private individual or company carrying on business for private gain, which may suspend business temporarily or permanently at pleasure. On the contrary, it has a dual relation, a public relation to the people of the state and a private vote of its stockholders."

"It must not be forgotten here, though it may seem to be growing not wholly forgotten elsewhere, that in its chief aspect it is a public corporation having duties to perform to the public which transcend any obligation which, in its private aspect, it owes its stockholders.

"It has received franchises of great value from the state and had conferred upon it the state's transcendant power of eminent domain. In return it took upon itself the performances of public duties and functions, in the performance of which it is in law and in fact not an independent individual or entirety, but the accounted agent of the state.

"Though these principles are old and inherent in the idea of the sovereignty of people, it would seem that in the recent rapid growth of corporate power and of the tendency to use public franchises for the aggrandizement of individuals first, and for the service and benefit of the public second, they have come to be somewhat overlooked and need to be restated. They have often been declared by the highest courts of this state and the supreme court of the United States.

"The duty of the company now before the court is to carry passengers through certain streets of Brooklyn, and to furnish, man and run cars enough to fully accommodate the public. It may not lawfully cease to perform that duty for even one hour. The directors of a private business company may, as dictated by private greed or motives of private gain, stop business and refuse to employ labor at all unless labor come down to their conditions, however distressing, for such are the existing legal industrial and social conditions."

THE MILITIA CALLED OUT

To Assist in Running Brooklyn's Trolly Cars.

About 3,000 millitiamen are under arms in Brooklyn, N. Y., prepared to put down any violence that may be attempted by the striking street railway men or their sympathizers.

The first appearance of the soldiery upon the streets, which was at Twenty-fifth street and Fifteenth avenue, was greeted with jeers and hissing from the men and boys who thronged the thoroughfares, while women at the windows of the tenement houses shook their fists and uttered imprecations at the militiamen. Detachments of troops have been sent to the stations of all the trolly lines which the companies propose to operate.

Reserves are kept at the various armories. The police force is also on duty to a man. The arrangements are to have the police guard the cars on their runs, while the militia guards the power stations and car houses. Special efforts will be made to operate the lines of the Brooklyn Heights and Atlantic Avenue companies.

Cotton Compress Ablaze.

The Tennessee river cotton compress at Chattanooga, with 1,250 bales of cotton, has been almost totally destroyed by fire. The fire is supposed to have originated from sparks from a passing engine.

NELSON A SENATOR.

Minnesota's Governor Honored by the Legislature.

The two houses of the Minnesota legislature, in joint session Wednesday voted for a successor to Senator W. D. Washburn. The developments of the night previous showed that Mr. Washburn's re-election was impossible and his forces tried to throw his strength to ex-Congressman John Lind.

When the two houses had assembled and were organized, the roll call was had and Governor Knute Nelson was shown to have been elected. Before the announcement of the vote there were several changes made by the members and the announcement of the result was:

Nelson, 102; Washburn, 3; S. G. Comstock, 9; J. T. McCleary, 2; Ignatius Donnelly, populist, 13; John Lind, 1; William Mitchell, democrat, 4. Speaker Van Zant thereupon declared that Knute Nelson, having received a majority of the vote, was elected senator for the six years after March 4th next.

The governor was brought before the legislature and returned his thanks for the great honor conferred in a brief speech, and the joint session adjourned.

BORDEN LOSES HIS JOB.

Spain Relieves Him of His Commission as Vice-Consul.

A cable message from Madrid, Spain, to the Spanish minister at Washington, directed him, by order of the cortez, to dispatch to Fernandina two trusted officials in the consular service to investigate the alleged filibustering expedition recently uncovered at that port and especially the connection with it of N. B. Borden, the Spanish vice consul. Under these instructions the Spanish minister appointed for this mission, Senor Petiento, consul general of the Spanish government at Savannah, Ga., and Senor Rosenda Torras, Spanish vice consul at Brunswick, Ga. The two officials arrived at Fernandina Tuesday and their first act was to relieve Mr. Borden of his commission as vice consul for Spain and Fernandina. Bordon submitted gracefully and appeared to be very little concerned about the matter.

TO CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

The Next Encampment to Be Held in Houston, Texas, in May.

The following orders issued from headquarters at New Orleans announce the next encampment of Confederate veterans at Houston:

By order of J. B. GORDON,
General Commanding.
GEORGE MOORMAN,
Adjutant General and Chief of Staff.

PANIC IN PEKING.

Movement of the Japanese on Wei-Hai-Wei Caused It.

A dispatch to the Central News (London) from Shanghai says: "The Japanese movement on Wei Hai-Wei has caused a panic in Tien-Tsin and Peking. The Chinese peace envoys have been ordered to expedite the negotiations with the Japanese government. Japanese cruisers are watching both channels at Wei-Hai-Wei. The attack upon the stronghold may be delayed a week. The siege-trains move slowly, the roads being covered with snow."

Testing the Income Tax.

The petition of John G. Moore, for mandamus against Commissioner of Internal Revenue Miller to prevent the collection of the income tax, has been overruled by Judge Hagner, in the district of Columbia equity court. The case will now be taken on appeal to the United States supreme court in order to test the constitutionality of the income tax law.

Killed by the Cyclone.

A cyclone occurred at Piggott, Ark., Tuesday afternoon, killing two men and seriously injuring nine persons. At McKain's mill, two miles south, several dwellings were totally demolished and eleven persons injured, two of whom will die. No details of the disaster have been received.

CHILTON VIEW.

CHAS. W. HARE, Ed. & Pub

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

CLANTON ALA. JAN'31st 1895.

Hale County's convicts are hired out for $6 per month.

C. J. Woolfolk is still at work for the Montgomery, Maplesville and Tuscaloosa rail road. He expresses no doubt of the success of the enterprise.

Our United States Marshal is getting in his work in Chilton county. Jonas Caver was carried down on a charge of retailing liquor.

The game law for Chilton county has been repealed. We confess our inability to see the reason for such a step. Our county has very few birds at best and if they can be slaughtered the entire year around the supply will soon be exhausted.

Mannings Ballot Reform Meeting in New Orleans was slimly attended, but they claim they had the quality. There being so small a number nearly every man had the opportunity of a speech. One speaker, who reputed to be a Democrat, claimed that the negros in Louisiana voted the Democratic ticket and did not have to be fraudulently counted, but he cant believe that the Alabama negros are thus openly voting the Democratic ticket.

Senator Sayr has introduced a bill to improve the election law now in force in Alabama. It abolishes the registration certificate.

No one is allowed to interfere with the voter in the preparation of his ballot, but gives him a marker of his own selection. The inspectors must be able to read and write and no two of them shall belong to the same political party.

The State and Federal elections are to be held the same day.

There is good reason for the popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Davis & Busard, of West Monterey, Clarion Co., Pa., say: "It has cured people that our physicians could do nothing for. We persuaded them to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and they now recommend it with the rest of us." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith & McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

Mr. R. F. Kolb had been quiet so long some of his friends had been wondering how he was coming on these hard times, but he comes forth once more to publish a message to the Legislature and signs it R. F. Kolb, Governor.

Governor Oates sent a message to the Legislature last week which was full of good sense. He believes the Normal Schools should receive no more money for their support than the prorata for each child in attendance as in our other Public schools. He thinks the Public schools should educate the children for business rather than display.

He deplores the fact that our so called Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges educate more men for the professions than for the industrial pursuits. He believes a committee should be selected to see about uniformity in text books or else allow each county to attend to that duty. He reviewed the financial condition of the state and made good recommendations to our lawmakers.

Carlton Cornwell, foreman of the Gazette, Middletown, N. J., believes that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy should be in every home. He used it for a cold and it effected a speedy cure. He says: "It is indeed a grand remedy, I can recommend to all. I have also seen it used for whopping cough, with the best results." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison Ala.

Unless our officers shall exert themselves to place a few healthy fines on transgressors we shall soon be over-run with more kinds of lawlessness than one or two. It is no kindness to the state nor to the transgressor to pass in silence over his misdoings. Small offenses be condoned will give encouragement in crimes of greater magnitude.

If anyone knows of violations let him report the matter the county Solicitor and then let them go before the county Judge and make affidavit, and thus will proper protection be insured to society.

Senator Hill is right when he says to Democrats "let us not be discouraged by recent events. The tide will turn again very soon.

Let us maintain our party organization in tact, let us re-organize if necessary; let us build them up and strengthen them; let us stand for principal rather mere expediency; let us cut lose from corruption of every sort. It is time for unity, for patience, for courage." If our Democratic legislators and congressmen will show to the people that we are for justice to all classes; that we are opposed to corrupt men and corrupt methods and that our plans for the upbuilding of the country are reasonable we will soon see the true patriots cutting loose from that self seeking hoar which with their gabble have overrun our country and befogged the unthinking.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shumpik a prominent druggist of Minneapolis Minn. "I sold the remedy in this city for over seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50-cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

WHERE GREAT MEN GROW.--It is a noteworthy ethnological fact, that hilly countries, barren of rich soil and plethoric of stone and gravel, are productive of graet scholars, great thinkers, great reformers, great statesmen, while at the same time comparatively few great persons are born in countries where the lands produce almost spontaneously, and where little exertion for a livelihood is required.

Where men must dig for a living, and raise grain among rocks, there is the place were latent powers of mind and body are developed, where men by necessity become self-assertive, inventive, courageous, independent, intelligent, patriotic, aggressive, whom the fetters of slavery cannot bind, and whom despots cannot oppress.—Exchange.

The manufacturers' Record:

The total production of corn in the United States in 1894 was 1.212,000,000 bushels, a decrease of over 400,000,000 bushels as compared with 1891. Fortunately the south had a large crop this year, or otherwise it would have had to purchase its corn at a very high figure because of this great shortage. As the average crop of the United States for some years has been about 1,750,000,000 bushels, the production of the last two years is over 500,000 000 bushels short of the average. The country will therefore enter upon the next crop year with a very small stock of corn on hand so small, indeed, that even should we have another 2,000,000,000 bushel crop, as in 1891, it would require all of this enormous yield to make up for the deficiency of the last two years. Even should such a crop as this be produced prices would probably still be high, because of the decrease in 1894. Another small crop following the one of last year, would necessarily mean exorbitant prices for corn.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, or 220 acres of land for $3 per acre? If that is too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

Our Thanks.

A word to our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown to us in rebuilding our house which was destroyed by fire on the 8th day of January 1895.

J. A. Miller and wife.

Many of our people have an idea that there is small crime attached to the illicit manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. They think that only the United States and State governments are being defrauded. But the worst feature of all is that such business is breeding a set of desperadoes, lawless men in every community where the practice prevails. The men who make and sell whiskey, as a rule, will not scruple to murder the man who interferes with their business. True they are not classed with the brave, but they will waylay in the night or organize a band to do bodily harm to the informer. Illicit distilling and selling liquor bring upon communities that most contemptible of all classes the "White Capper". Such being the real fruit we hope hereafter to hear that all good people in Chilton county openly denounce the infamous business.

The first quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church at Clanton was held last Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Urquart is Presiding Elder. His sermons were solid shots at the indifferent christians and mere professors. He thinks christians should be ashamed to have their church house uncomfortably or uncleanly kept.

The Shelby Sentinel hits the nail on the head. It says if there are no barrooms Calera will need no city government. The city government it seems is kept up simply in order that barrooms shall exist there. Wipe out the barrooms and most of our towns would cease to need a city government.

The county Solicitor promises that he will prosecute, without fear or favor, all parties reported to him from now on and if the good citizens will do their duty some improvement can be hoped for.

Everybody in Chilton country will regret to know that cheap cotton and hard times forced Mr. P. E. Dennis to make an assignment for the benfit of his creditors. Dr. W. E. Stewart is the assignee. It is hoped that assets may fully pay the debts. Mr. Dennis trusted too many people. He hardly knew how to say no to the needy. But he is a man of pluck and will be alright again.

Many stubborn and aggravating cases of rheumatism that were believed to be incurable and accepted as life legacies, have yielded to Chamberlain's Pain Balm, much to the surprise and gratification of the sufferer, One application will relieve the pain and suffering and its continued use insures an effectual cure. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

The readers of the View are gratified at the efforts of this paper to encourage the people to take up anew the battle of life. Our purpose is to ignore as much as possible all questions which will unsettle or divide our people.

Their burdens are heavy enough without being added to by thoughtless newspapers and speakers.

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A WOMAN'S NERVES.

THE STORY OF A WOMAN TO WHOM NOISE WAS TORTURE.

Prostrated by the Least Excitement—Physicians Baffled By Her Case.

(From the Gate City, Keokuk, Iowa.)

Mrs. Helen Meyers, whose home is at 3515 Vernon avenue, Chicago, and whose visit to Keokuk, Ia., will long be remembered, was at one time afflicted with a nervous malady which at times drove her nearly to distraction. "Those terrible headaches are a thing of the past," she said the other day to a Gate City representative, "and there is quite a story in connection with it too.

"My nervous system sustained a great shock some fifteen years ago, brought on, I believe, through too much worrying over family matters, and then allowing my love for my books to get the better of my discretion where my health was concerned. Why, whenever my affairs at home did not go along just as I expected, I would invariably become prostrated from the excitement and I would consider myself fortunate indeed if the effects of the attack would not remain for a week. I was obliged to give up our pleasant home not far from the Lake shore drive, because I could not stand the noise in that locality. I could find no place in the city which I deemed suitable to one whose nervous system was always on the point of explosion. To add to my misfortunes my complexion underwent a change and I looked so yellow and sallow that I was ashamed to venture from the house at all.

"'Madam,' said my doctor to me soon after an unusually severe attack of the malady, 'unless you leave the city and seek some place of quiet, you will never recover.' So I concluded I would visit my uncle, who lives in Dallas County, Iowa, and whose farm would surely be a good place for one in my pitiable condition. I picked up the Gate City one day and happened to come across an interesting recital of the recovery of some woman in New York State who was afflicted as I had been. This woman had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I thought that if Pink Pills cured that woman they might do the same for me. I began to take the pills according to directions and I began to feel better from the start. After I had taken several boxes of them I was ready to go back to Chicago. My nervousness was gone and my complexion was as fresh as that of any sixteen-year-old girl in Iowa, and Pink Pills is what put the color in my cheeks. No wonder I am in such high spirits and feel like a prize fighter. And no wonder I like to come to Keokuk for if it had not been for Pink Pills bought from a Keokuk firm I would not have been alive now," laughingly concluded the lady.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

The Eggs a Grasshopper Lays.

How many eggs does a grasshopper lay? Mahomet, according to the Khalif Omar, said, when these insects fell upon him, that he could read upon their wings the words, "We are the legions of God, and we bear ninety-nine eggs. When we produce a hundred we shall devour the world." In a paper read before the Paris Academy of Sciences, M. Kunckel d'Herculai says that Mahomet was wrong in supposing that the locust laid exactly ninety-nine eggs at a time, although he was quite right in attributing to it extraordinary fecundity. M. Kunckel has been carefully watching some locusts for months, and he finds that one of these insects will lay as many as from 500 to 900 eggs during a season of from ten to eleven months. He points out that if the French government wishes to get rid of the locust plague from which Algeria suffers, it is particularly advisable to kill the insects just before the season when their eggs are laid.—London Daily News.

Tragic.

I've a secret to impart,
Sweet Marie,
Though I fear 'twill break your heart,
Sweet Marie,
For the hired girl's been rash,
And has married her last mash,
And you'll have to cook the hash,
Sweet Marie.

Scrofulous Taints

Lurk in the blood of almost every one. In many cases they are inherited. Scrofula appears in running sores, bunches, pimples and cancerous growths. Scrofula can be cured by purifying the blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great remedy has had wonderful success in curing this disease. It thoroughly eradicates the humor from the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures the sores and eruptions by removing the impurities in the blood.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WHAT THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS ARE DOING.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

Minister Thurston, of Hawaii, occupied a front seat in the diplomatic gallery of the senate when the session opened Monday. The galleries were well filled in anticipation of a renewal of the controversy over Hawaii, which had begun Saturday. Mr. Frye, who had precipitated the conflict, was early in his seat with a bunch of papers before him. Senators gathered in groups during the routine proceedings and discussed the action of the president in sending a war ship to Hawaii and his published statement. Mr. Lodge speedily brought forward the Hawaiian question by presenting the following resolution: "Resolved, That the senate cordially approves the despatch of a ship of war to the Sandwich Islands on Saturday last, and is of the opinion that an American man of war should be kept at Honolulu. Resolved, That prompt measures should be taken to promote the construction of a submarine cable from San Francisco to Honolulu and that no part of the rights and privilges secured to the United States and the Hawaiian government should be abandoned or waived in order to enable any other government to secure a foothold or lease upon any part of the Hawaiian islands. Resolved, That in the judgment of the senate, immediate steps should be taken to secure possession of the Sandwich islands by their annexation to the United States." Mr. Lodge asked immediate consideration of the resolution. "Let it go over," interrupted Mr. Blackburn. The presiding officer construed this as an objection and under the rules the resolution went over until Tuesday.

In the house Tuesday on motion of Mr. Henderson, February 16 was set aside for paying proper tribute to the late Senator Vance of North Carolina. A bill was passed to amend the articles of the navy relative to punishment on conviction by court martial; also on motion of Mr. Reed, republican, of Maine, to grant an American register to the Barkentine, James H. Hamlin.

The credentials of Mr. McMillin, of Michigan, for the term beginning March 4th next, of the late senator Stockbridge, was presented to the senate Wednesday. Mr. Palmer's resolution in reference to bounty payments to Missouri militia was passed. Senator Jones' financial currency bill was introduced. Senator Smith, of New Jersey, also showed up with a currency scheme. He had a bill read which attracted much attention. It provides for a non-partisan currency commission of twelve members to make investigations of fiscal questions and for an issue of bonds to produce revenue for the government. A new and practical turn to the Hawaiian subject was given by Mr. Hale, (republican, of Maine), who introduced an amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill, providing $500,000 for the survey of a cable route connecting the Hawaiian islands and the United States.

There was such a meagre attendance at the opening of the senate Thursday that Mr. Hoar called attention to the absence of a quorum, and a roll call was necessary before business could proceed. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Candler, to prevent the tapping of telegraph wires used by news associations. This is to prevent the stealing of news.

THE HOUSE.

In the house Monday on motion of Mr. Outhwaite, democrat, of Ohio, Mr. J. D. Richardson, of Tennessee, was elected speaker pro tem. during the absence of Speaker Crisp, who is at Asheville, N. C., for his health. On motion of Mr. McRea, democrat, of Arkansas, a resolution was adopted to direct the secretary of the interior to furnish an estimate of the coast of surveying the lands of the Cherokee, Creek and Seminole Indians in the Indian Territory. It was expected that Mr. Boutelle, republican, of Maine, would press his Hawaiian resolution, but he was not present, and Mr. Catchings, from the committee on rules, presented a special order for the consideration of the bills for public buildings in Chicago, Newport, Ky., Brocton, Mass., Patterson, N. J., South Omaha, Pottsville, Pa., and Cumberland, Md., which were favorably reported from the committee of the whole August last.

The railroad pooling bill was favorably reported to the senate Tuesday by Mr. Butler, democrat, of South Carolina. Mr. Chandler stated that the report was unanimous, and gave notice that when the bill was taken up he would offer an amendment concerning the submission of freight and passenger rates to the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Allen, populist, of Nebraska, presented a large bunch of petitions from citizens of Alabama, claiming that they were deprived of a republican form of government, and asking the intervention of congress. Mr. Wolcott submitted resolutions from the legislature of Colorado, reciting the circumstances of default in paying the Pacific railroad debt, and urging the creation of a single government board to secure the speedy settlement of the government's rights.

A reply from Secretary Carlisle to Mr. Dingley's resolution, calling for information relative to the effects of the inauguration of the Behring Sea regulations, decided upon by the Paris tribunal, which was laid before the house Wednesday, drew from Mr. Dingley a statement as to the sealeries situation. He declared that Secretary Carlisle's response showed that the Paris regulations had been a flat failure. Although the government's lessees were allowed to take 25,000 males from the islands, they had not been able to find 16,000, while the Canadian pelagic sealers had taken 60,000, mostly females. In view of these facts, said Mr. Dingley, Secretary Carlisle concluded that within three years, five at the most, if the destruction went on, the Alaskan seal herd would be exterminated. The treasury would world would be deprived of an article of luxury and comfort.

In the house Thursday, on motion of Mr. Sheil, democrat, of South Carolina, a resolution was passed providing for an investigation by the committees on public buildings and grounds, of the office of the architect of the capitol. The house then, on motion of Mr. Sayres, went into a committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. The paragraph in the bill, appropriating $25,000 for general repairs in the customhouse at Chicago was stricken out.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

An avalanche broke over part of Bardonericja, Italy, the southern terminus of the Mount Genis railway. Eighteen Italian soldiers were buried under it.

Rio Janeiro advices state that there is considerable excitement there as to the result of the accusations against Peixoto, Castilho, Monteiro and others, presented by a congressional committee

At Manuel Hilton's sawmill, near Alto, Texas, the boiler exploded, killing four colored men, Tobe Richards, Alex Lewis, Will Lewis and Abner Lee. Alexander Hamilton, Richard Lofton and Noah Miller were slightly injured.

Twenty thousand dollars worth of new machinery has arrived from Boston, for the South Boston iron works at Middlesboro, Ky. The plant will soon start up. It is the only gun and ordinance plant in the south, and employs 500 skilled workmen.

Two children playing east of San Luis, Potosi, Mexico, discovered a cavern. Several men explored the cave, revealing an iron chest, filled with Spanish gold coin, amounting to between $250,000 and $350,000. It is believed that the money was placed in the cave by Franciscan monks.

G. H. Ramsey & Co., the oldest and one of the most popular grocery firms in Jackson, Tenn., have made an assignment for the benefit of the creditors. E. A. Brooks, sheriff of Madison county, was made assignee. The assets and liabilities are not known. Slow collections and the tightness of the times caused the failure.

Augustus Potter, superintendent of the Russell mills, Chiltonville, Mass., has left town and his accounts are in bad shape. The company will probably lose between $5,000 and $6,000, and private individuals will lose heavily. Potter left for Boston, saying he would return at night. He has had two fictitious names on the pay roll for two years, on which he had drawn $2,500 from the company. He borrowed money in amounts ranging from $100 to $700 from private parties.

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreet's Report of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's report on business the past week says: With few exceptions, commercial, financial and industrial features indicate only a retention of the improvement heretofore noted. Among the more favorable phases of trade is found a somewhat improved demand for Bessemer pig iron and steel billets, woolens, rubber goods, shoes, hardware and, to an extent, for leaf tobacco. Although steel and iron have advanced a trifle from lowest quotations recorded, print cloths have gone down to a "lowest price on record." London wool sales opened 5 per cent off, which affected prices here unfavorably. One southern pig iron company is reported to have taken an order under $6, and woolen and cotton manufacturers in eastern, central and middle states declare prices are so low and broken there is practically no profit. General lines of cotton goods are affected by conditions resulting in depressing prints, and, although ginghams are more animated and the demand for woolen dress goods is noticable, domestic woolen dress goods remain quiet, with little new business for the mills.

Jobbers in South Carolina and Georgia complain of slowness in mercantile collections and general trade throughout the south, as at the west and northwest, continues hampered by unseasonable weather. Baltimore reports that southern merchants continue to hold off, as prices of almost all staple lines "are lower than ever." The most favorable report from the south is that the usual semi-annual dividends have been declared by cotton factories, and that the latter have fair orders.

GROWS SERIOUS.

The Street Car Strike at Brooklyn, N. Y., Causing Trouble.

The situation at Brooklyn, N. Y., according to latest reports is growing serious. The troops have been fired upon, attacked with stones, brickbats and other missiles under cover of darkness and fog, yet they have heroically faced the riotous mobs and the wonder is that they withheld their fire a dozen times under serious provocation. They have discharged volleys over the heads of crowds; they have jabbed the street gangs with bayonets; they have done everything but shoot people down.

The point has now been reached when forbearance ceases to be a virtue. The troops have been ordered to fire upon any person seen throwing a missile or shooting at them. Sharpshooters have been detailed to pick off people on house-tops and in windows who throw or shoot, from their sheltered locations, at the troops, the police, or the cars operated by non-union men.

The mobs do not yet appear to realize these facts. The citizens of Brooklyn do not heed the proclamation of the mayor, warning them to avoid crowds, refrain from assembling in the streets and in the vicinity of the car depot. A small battle took place Tuesday in which two men were killed.

SUGAR TRUST WINS.

A DECISION ON THE SHERMAN ANTI-TRUST LAW

By the U. S. Supreme Court in Favor of Sugar Companies.

The important case of the United States against E. C. Knight Company et al., appealed from the court of appeals for the third circuit, involving the constitutionality of the "Sherman anti-trust law" in respect of the violations of the sugar trust, was decided in the supreme court of the United States Monday adversely to the contentions of the government. The suit was begun in the circuit court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, and was brought, in brief, to compel the defenant companies—the American Sugar Refining company, the E. C. Knight Company, the Franklin Sugar Company, the Spreckels Sugar Refining Company and the Delaware Sugar House—to cancel the contracts by which the stocks of the last four named corporations were sold to the American company, through John E. Searles, Jr., in exchange for American company stock and that their several stocks be returned to them, on the ground that the transaction was in violation of the act of July 2, 1890, and that it effected a combination in restraint of interstate commerce.

The circuit court dismissed the case and the court of appeals affirmed that decision. Thereupon the United States prosecuted its appeal to the supreme court of the United States. Chief Justice Fuller announced the opinion and decision of the court. After discussing the legal meaning and effect of the term "monopoly," the opinion proceeded:

"The fundamental question is whether, conceding that the existence of a monopoly in manufacture is established by the evidence, that monopoly can be directly suppressed under the act of congress in the mode attempted by this bill."

WAR-LIKE DEMONSTRATIONS.

Patriotic Mexican Students Offer Their Services as Soldiers.

After a very stormy cabinet meeting at the City of Mexico Monday night, President Diaz notified Guatamala, through its minister, that he would not concede one iota and Guatamala would have to give in to Mexico's demand or suffer the consequences.

Other Central American representatives present at the meeting made the statement to President Diaz that they understood Mexico was trying to grasp Central American territory.

President Diaz denied the assertion and stated that Mexico would have her rights and the boundary lines should be as Mexico claims and that Mexico had all the territory that she needed.

It looks as though the other Central American republics were behind Gautemala.

All the government students marched on the streets with banners shouting "Viva Mexico," "Viva Diaz" and "On to Guatemala." They assembled in front of the palace from 11,000 to 15,000 strong, clamoring for war and pledging their support to President Diaz. They were mainly composed of students of the law and mining and medical schools.

Mexico has been preparing for war for some time, and has about 12,000 troops on the border. All the officers that have not been in active duty have been notified to report for marching orders.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports on the industrial condition of the south for the past week show that there are signs of an increase in general business transactions, collections are well kept up and money is easier than it has been. Home grown supplies have prevented the drain of money which in former years has been sent to the north and west. The iron market quotations do not change, but the demand is large and there are more inquiries as to contracts for future deliveries and stocks do not accumulate on the yards. Steel making in the south is attracting more attention, and it is reported that the Birmingham rolling mills will establish a steel mill at Birmingham and the DeBardeleben Steel company one at Bessemer, Ala. The coal demand is somewhat less active, owing to warmer weather, but is still very large. Information is received that the lumber producers of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas are receiving more orders than for some months past, and that the export lumber movement is growing active again. Much attention continues to be given to the establishment of new cotton mills. A mill with $150,000 capital was chartered during the week at Columbia, S. C.; one to cost $100,000 near Weldon, N. C.; $75,000 one at Walhalla, S. C., and others are reported at Montgomery, Ala., and Willard, Ga. Enlargements of cotton mills are reported at Montgomery, Piedmont and Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Among the forty-four new industries organized or incorporated during the week are: An electrical company with $100,000 capital at Cartersville, Ga.; acid works to cost $60,000 at Cedartown, Ga.; a $50,000 cotton compress at Paris, Tex., and one at Baton Rouge, La.; a $50,000 shoe factory at Athens, Ga., and a $30,000 tobacco factory at Rock Hill, S. C. There is also reported brick works at High Springs, Fla.; canning factories at Berry and Townley, Ga., Jacksonville, Fla., Cartersville, Ga., and Stuart, Va.; electrical plants at Orlando, Fla., and Dallas, Tex., and flour and grist mills at Birmingham, Ala., Jonesdale, Ark., Charlotte, N. C., Columbia, S. C., Fort Worth, Tex., and Indian Mills, W. Va. A tannery is to be built at Orlando, Fla., tobacco factories at Darlington, S. C., and Elizabethtown, Tenn.; a sugar refinery at Whitecastle, La., and woodworking plants at Brewton, Ala., Canton, Ga., Dublin, Miss., and Lewisburg, Tenn.

Water works are to be erected at Springdale, Ark., Waynesville, N. C., and Cleveland, Tenn. The enlargements for the week include an ice factory at Tampa, Fla.; machine shops and foundries at Birmingham, Ala., and Alexandria, Va.; paint works at Cline, Tex., and woodworking plants at Birmingham, Ala., and Memphis, Tenn.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

The senatorial action of the republican caucus two weeks ago was ratified by the South Dakota legislature, Senator Pettigrew being re-elected. Twenty three populists voted for State Senator Crawford.

Frances E. Warren and Clarance D. Clark, republican, were the choice of the Wyoming legislature for United States senators. Warren will serve the long term.

Medical Discovery.
DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS.
Got this Letter day before yesterday.

Penn Yan, N. Y., Nov. 28, 1894.

Your Discovery has done so much for me I am only too glad to tell everybody about my case.

When I began taking it, one year ago last July, I had DYSPEPSIA in its worst form. I was constipated, so much so as to always use injections, and I had a constant PAIN in my STOMACH and LEFT SIDE. My knees were stiff, and I could not sit down on a stool or get down to fix anything on the floor. But now I can sit, or get down on my knees, or do anything in my garden. I feel like a new person. You must know I was discouraged, as I have lost two sisters and an older brother with STOMACH TROUBLE. But I truly believe if they had known of your remedies they would be well, as I am. You can fix up my letter to suit yourself, only do publish it, that women may know what the Discovery has done for me. Yours truly,
Mrs. MARY C. AYRES.

A Moving Mountain.

It has been known for many years that an enormous mass of rock on the Cascades of the Columbia River in Oregon, large enough to be dignified with the name of mountain, is slowly changing position. We translate the following description of the phenomenon from Cosmos, Paris. "It consists of a ridge of brown basalt with three summits, 10 to 12 kilometers long and rising about 600 meters above the level of the river. The idea that this mass is in movement is certainly the last that would occur to the traveler passing it, and nevertheless nothing is more certain; the whole mass is being displaced slowly, but without pause, descending toward the river and showing an intention of damming it some day or other, and so of forming a great lake extending from the Cascades to the Dalles. In this movement of translation and descent it has already submerged part of the forests that line its base; the engineers of the railway that skirts the mass have proved that the line is continually pushed toward the river and that in several years it has been moved two and one-half to three meters. Geologists attribute the phenomenon to the fact that the basalt that forms the nucleus of the mass rests on soft strata through which water constantly percolates, thus snapping the mountain under its base. They think, also, that these strata, even without the aid of water, would probably give away little by little, beneath the mass with which they are loaded."

Girls Who Attract Men.

The girls who attract the best men are almost always a source of surprise to their feminine friends, who are often lost in wonder as to why so many more patent charms should have been passed over in such sections. It is the little mouse of a woman, the shrinking, shy creature left in the background by her bolder sisters, we constantly see brought to the front by the man who has won her love. And men prefer them to any such coquettish invitation as that extended by Mrs. Bond of the nursery rhyme to her ducks, when decoying them to come and be killed, the uncertainty hanging around a being to whom they have to sue.

Every man's ideal of a wife—I mean the normal, honest citizen of our republic, who looks forward to making of himself and his line, stones to support its bulwark—is a girl who may be pretty, who might be brilliant, but who must be good. He also recognizes instinctively that her grace should not be too costly to wear every day. That she shall be cheerful of temper, inclined to take short views of human infirmity, and sound of health, he is apt gravely to consider, within himself, as essential. If all those who, before marrying, omitted to think about those things had done so, it is possible we should hear less today of the incompatibility of man and woman.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A very ignorant and wealthy woman, who was fond of talking about her "art gallery," one day met, at the house of an acquaintance, a lady who had not called on her, although they lived in the same town.

"Come to see me, do!" said Mrs. B——, the patron of art, as the other lady was taking her leave.

"Thank you very much," was the non-committal reply.

"We've got a new picture, too. That ought to tempt you to come, if I can't."

"I should be very glad, indeed, to see it."

"Such a lovely picture! Some times it seems to me I could look at it all day long."

"What is the subject of your picture, Mrs. B——?" inquired the hostess.

"Jupiter and Ten," remarked she, with assurance.

Then some one remembered that the name, "Jupiter and Io," was attached to the picture.—Montreal Metropolitan.

State Aid for Electric Railways.

A project for erecting a perfect network of electric railroads over the state of Ohio is being agitated by Martin Dodge, of Cleveland, O., late president of the Ohio road commission. His plan is for the state and the counties to join hands and construct electric roads between all the county seats in the state, and then to lease such lines to private parties to operate. His plan is to divide the expenses of construction between the state and the counties. It is estimated that about 4,000 miles of road would thus gridiron the state, which would cost about $20,000,000.

A Gentle Corrective

is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor. Being composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, they cost much more than other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four are put up in each sealed glass vial, as sold through druggists, at the price of the cheaper made pills.

"Pleasant Pellets" cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gently acting but searching cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequaled.

As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

A free sample (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.

THE ELBE SINKS

AND OVER THREE HUNDRED LIVES ARE LOST.

Only Twenty of Three Hundred and Eighty Passengers Saved.

A COLLISION AT SEA THE CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

It Was at Night and the Unfortunate Victims Were in Their Berths.

A cable dispatch from London says: The North German Lloyd steamship Elbe, bound from Bremen to New York, was sunk in a collision with a small steamer fifty miles off Lowestoft early Wednesday morning. She carried 380 souls. But twenty-one survivors have been landed, but a few others may still be afloat in one of the ship's small boats. At 10 o'clock Wednesday night the number of lives lost was given out as 350.

The survivors of the wreck were landed at Lowestoft by the fishing smack Wildflower. They are: Stollberg, third officer; Neussel, first engineer; Weser, paymaster; Schultheiss, Linkmeyer and Sitting, assistant paymasters; Furst, chief stoker; Vioebe, steward; Wenning, Singer and Seinert, sailors; Dreson and Batko, ordinary seamen; DeHardee, German pilot; Greenham, English pilot; Hofmann, Lugen, Schiegel and Vovera, of Cleveland, O., saloon passengers; Bolthen, a steerage passenger, and Miss Anna Buecker.

The Elbe left Bremen on Tuesday afternoon. The few hours of the voyage before the disaster were uneventful. At 4 o'clock Wednesday morning the wind was blowing very hard and a tremendous sea was running. The morning was unusually dark. Various steamers' lights were seen in all directions, showing that many vessels were near by. The captain, therefore, ordered that rockets should be sent up at regular intervals to warn the craft to keep out of the Elbe's course. It was near to 6 o'clock and the Elbe was some fifty miles off Lowestoft, coast of Suffolk, when the lookout man sighted a steamer approaching. He gave the word and, as a precaution, the number of rockets was doubled, and they were sent up at short intervals. The warning was without effect. The steamer came on with unchecked speed, and before the Elbe could change her course or reduce her speed noticeably, there was the terrific clash of the collision. The Elbe was hit abaft her engine room. When the small steamer wrenched away an enormous hole was left in the Elbe's side. The water poured through and down into the engine room in a cataract. The room filled almost instantly. The engines were still and the big hulk began to settle.

A Panic on Board.

The passengers were in bed. The bitter cold and rough sea had prevented any early rising, and none except the officers and crew on duty was on deck when the ship was struck. The shock and crash roused everybody. The steerage was in a panic in a moment, and men, women and children, half-dressed or in their night clothes, came crowding up the companion ways. They had heard the sound of rushing water as the other steamer backed off and had felt the Elbe lurch and settle. They had grasped the fact that it was life or death with them, and almost to a man had succumbed to their terror. They clung together in groups, facing the cold and storm, and cried aloud for help or prayed on their knees for deliverance. The officers and crew were calm. For a few moments they went among the terror-stricken groups trying to quiet them and encouraging them to hope that the vessel might be saved. It was soon apparent, however, that the Elbe was settling steadily. The officers were convinced that she was about to founder and gave orders to lower the boats.

In a short time three boats were got alongside, but the seas were breaking over the steamer with great force and the first boat was swamped before anybody could get into it. The other two boats, lowered at about the same time, were filled quickly with members of the crew and some passengers, but the number was small, as the boats had only twenty persons each.

The boat carrying the twenty-one persons who were landed at Lowestoft put off in such haste from the sinking steamer that nobody in it noticed what became of the other boat. The survivors believe, however, that she got away safely. They say that they tossed about in the heavy seas for several hours before they sighted the Wildflower. The little smack bore down on them at once and took them aboard.

The Elbe was commanded by Captain Von Gossel. She arrived at Bremen from New York on January 26, and sailed from Bremen last Tuesday for Southampton and New York.

She was built in 1881 at Glasgow and was of 4,510 gross tonnage, was 420 feet long and had 45 feet beam and the depth of her hold was 36 feet 5 inches. She was a four masted screw steamer and was owned by the North German Lloyd Steamship Company.

A cable dispatch from Rotterdam, Holland, says: The steamer Cratihe, from Rotterdam to Aberdeen, has returned to Matluis, her stem having been stove in by coming in collision with an unknown vessel at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, thirty miles from Hook, Holland. She is not leaking. It is supposed that the Elbe is the steamer with which the Crathie was in collision.

JUDGE ERSKINE DEAD.

He Was on the Federal Bench During Reconstruction Days.

Judge John Erskine, one of Atlanta's pioneer residents, who held the reins of federal justice during the days of reconstruction, died at his home in that city Sunday morning. For nearly two weeks he had been confined to his bed but no one thought his illness amounted to more than a slight indisposition.

Judge Erskine came to Atlanta nearly forty years ago. His public duties brought him in contact with large numbers of people, and his figure, in the course of years, acquired the familiarity of an old landmark. When Judge Erskine came to Atlanta in 1855 he was in the vigor of his intellectual prime and was a man of stout build and rapid movement. He continued to go in and out among the people, first an object of distrust, on account of the federal power that was vested in him, but growing in favor as his locks whitened with advancing years until his ermine was resigned, in the full love and confidence of all who knew him.

The people of Georgia owe much to the courage of this brave-hearted Irishman, who faithfully stood by them at a time of great political excitement and who administered the federal laws with a kind and sympathetic hand.

Though appointed to office by President Johnson, who recognized in him a true and loyal republican, Judge Erskine never made his partisanship offensive and never caused any one to feel the difference that existed between them politically. In this aspect he was an ideal presiding officer of the court and fitly impersonated in his grace and dignity the sovereign law of the land.

As an evidence of the high esteem in which Judge Erskine was held, a meeting of the Atlanta bar was called at the time of his resignation and quite a number of eloquent addresses were delivered. A more appreciative tribute was never paid to a living man. In addition to these oral expressions of love and confidence a portrait of Judge Erskine was placed by the members of the bar upon the walls of the court room.

M. DE GIERS DEAD.

Russian Diplomist and Minister of Foreign Affairs.

M. deGiers, for many years Russian minister of foreign affairs, is dead at St. Petersburg. He was a statesman whose position for many years as the chief counsellor in foreign affairs of the Czar of Russia gave a unique influence on European international affairs. Fortunately for Europe, M. de Giers was devoted to a pacific policy, and it is as one of the trustees of the world's peace that he will chiefly be remembered.

Senator Berry Wins.

Both houses of the Arkansas legislature chose James H. Berry for senator. There was practically no opposition.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WHAT THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS ARE DOING.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

The credentials of Mr. Cullom, of Illinois, for the term beginning March 4 next, were presented to the senate Tuesday by his colleague, Mr. Palmer. The credentials of William H. Sewell, of New Jersey, were presented by Mr. McPherson, who will be succeeded by Mr. Sewell. Mr. Hill (dem., New York) presented a resolution from the New York chamber of commerce, passed with but one dissenting vote, heartily approving the financial course of the president and urging congress to aid in sustaining the government's integrity and in meeting the emergency by an issue of bonds as suggested by the executive. The resolution also adds that while momentary reform is requisite, yet it should not be undertaken until recommended by a thoroughly qualified commission. Mr. Voorhees, from the committee on finance, presented a compilation of all laws bearing on the issue of paper money. It was ordered printed as a part of the financial literature now being prepared. Mr. Candler introduced a resolution that the interstate commerce commission be directed to send to the senate a statement prepared from the latest returns to the office of the commission showing the capitalization of all and each of the eight principal railway lines transporting passengers and merchandise between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard; showing also the proportion which such capitalization bears to the total capitalization of railroads of the United States and including for the last year a statement of the aggregate gross and net income of said lines, also compared with the gross and net income of all the railroads of the United States." Mr. Chandler said this information was necessary to understand the effect of the bill recently reported from the committee on interstate commerce. He quoted the section of the bill allowing pooling and continued: "The authority given by this paragraph is stupendous. Under such authority all the railroads of the country may pool all their gross or net earnings from all sources. They may virtually unite or form one company or partnership, with a capitalization equal to the existing June 30, 1893, of $10,506,235,410; the gross earnings of which were for the year then ending, $1,230,751,874; and the net income after paying fixed charges was $111,508,304. They may agree to commit the management and disposition of this gross or net income to a managing board of even three officers of the various railroads. This board can be given authority and discretion to pay out for the purpose of control of legislatures, state or national, or other public officers, or for any other purpose such portions as they may see fit of the gross or net earnings of this gigantic partnership, and afterwards to divide the remainder of the net earnings among the various companies according to arbitrary fixed portions of one hundred per cent of the whole." The senator then read the amendments he offered in the committee, and which he has since proposed in the senate. He then said he could see no reason for the rejection of the amendments holding that if it is not intended that the interstate commerce commission shall make an investigation, "then the promise is a fraud and deception on the people."

A very animated consideration of the financial question took place in the senate Wednesday. Mr. Cullom, republican, of Illinois, presented a dispatch from all the leading banks of Chicago urging that the president's recommendations be carried out at the earliest day possible. Mr. Vest, democrat, of Missouri, followed with a similar dispatch from the St. Louis chamber of commerce. This was the text for one of the most stirring scenes that the senate has heard in many days. Mr. Vest said the chamber of commerce of St. Louis did not represent the feeling of the people of Missouri, or of the country, on the financial question. He did not believe the people favored a retirement of $500,000,000 of greenback and treasury notes and the substitution of no currency at all. He did not believe in the favored gold obligations running fifty years, with the interest aggregating $75,000,000 at the end of that time. It was a selfish suggestion that posterity should be left to pay this bad debt. The obligation of this senate were as binding toward posterity as toward the present generation. It was as much the duty of the senate to protect the suggestion of the president to look after the present and let the future look after itself. Mr. Vest was putting energy and dramatic force in his speech and was given much attention. "The president has declared war on silver," proceeded Mr. Vest. "He would make us accessories to this effort to fix the gold standard upon us. If the president had the power he would force us to the single gold standard. I will never vote to issue bonds to secure gold and place us on a single gold standard." Mr. Vest closed with the emphatic declaration that party fealty could never lead him to aid in fastening the gold standard on the country. If the St. Louis chamber of commerce wanted some one to help toward that end, they would have to find some one else than him. At 2 p. m. the senate went into executive session and financial debate ceased.

Senator-elect Thurston, republican, of Nebraska, was on the floor of the senate Thursday and was introduced by Mr. Manderson, whom he succeeds. Mr. Hill, democrat, of New York, presented to the senate the petition of the Leather and Hide trade of New York, urging the issue of $500,000,000 of gold bonds. Mr. Peffer, of Kansas, wished to introduce a financial resolution and to preface it with a statement. Mr. Harris, democrat, of Tennessee, objected to the vicious practice of making arguments when measures were presented. Mr. Peffer characterized this objection as cruel in view of the recent wide latitude of financial discussion. The title of his resolution is "To provide for a special election to take the sense of the people concerning several questions as to the financial policy of the government."

THE HOUSE.

The message from President Cleveland to congress upon the financial situation of the government was read to the house immediately after it assembled Monday. At the conclusion of the reading Mr. Springer presented his new bill to revise the currency and banking systems and it was referred to the committee on banking and currency for examination and report. The president's message was referred to the committee of the whole. The Nicaragua canal bill was received from the senate and referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. The house in committee of the whole continued the discussion of the bill to repeal the differential duty of 1-10 of 1 cent a pound on sugar imported from countries paying an export bounty on that article. Its passage was advocated by Messrs. Turner, Wheeler and Terry, and opposed by Messrs. Dalzell, Hopkins and Doliver. After passing two or three private bills, the house at 5 o'clock adjourned.

Mr. Outhwaite, chairman of the committee on military affairs, asked unanimous consent in the house Tuesday for the consideration of a joint resolution to revive the grade of lieutenant-general in the army in order that Major Schofield might be promoted thereto, but Mr. Wadsworth, republican, of New York, objected. The senate bill to authorize the city of Charlotte, N. C., to beautify the United States mint property and use it as a public park was passed.

In the house Tuesday, Mr. Catchings, democrat, of Missouri, from the committee on rules, reported a special order, setting aside the remainder of the day, after the adoption of the order, and Thursday until 3 o'clock, for debate of the Pacific railroad bill and an hour and a half subsequent to that time for debate under the five minute rule, with provision for a vote on the bill and pending amendments at 4:30. Mr. Boatner, democrat, of Louisiana, and McGuire, democrat, of California, protested strenuously against the brief time allowed for debate on a bill of such gigantic importance. But seven hours, said Mr. Boatner, was allowed for debate on a bill which proposes to give away $100,000,000, and condone offenses and crimes with which the people have been familiar for years. Mr. Catchings demanded the previous question on the adoption of the rule, and it was ordered—134 to 14. Mr. Holman demanded the yeas and nays, which were ordered.

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The house ways and means committee, on Tuesday, agreed to report favorably a bill to admit anti-toxine free of duty.

The bill repealing the differential duty of one-tenth of a cent per pound on sugars imported from countries that pay an export duty, was passed by the house just before adjournment Tuesday afternoon, by a vote of 239 to 31.

Inquiries have been made of the law division of the postoffice department as to the legality of the system sought to be enforced by country newspapers regarding the collections of back subscriptions, and the taking of the papers from the postoffice or letting them remain there, if the subscriptions were unpaid. The assistant attorney general has made a search of the statutes and decided that there is no federal law covering such cases and that newspapers are governed by local laws like any other private contract.

A high treasury official, when asked about the statement that the treasury raid could be stopped by paying out silver for greenbacks and treasury notes, said: "Even if it were not the established policy of the government to pay either coin upon demand, in order that they should remain a parity, and we should arbitrarily pay only silver, we would be in the same fix. There is not seven millions of silver in the treasury which could be used for that purpose. We have plenty of silver, but it represents silver certificates and must be used in their redemption."

A Labor Arbitration Bill.

The house labor committee has agreed to report favorably to the house, the labor arbitration bill prepared by Attorney Olney, as amended at the instance of the representatives of railroad employes now in Washington. These amendments relate principally to the manner of choosing the commission of arbitration, and prohibit the issuance of injunctions restraining employes from continuing the strike and putting the railroads temporarily in the hands of receivers for operation. The committee also agreed to report a bill for the issuance of labor bulletins by the bureau of labor.

Justice Jackson to Retire.

Senator Harris, of Tennessee, has introduced a bill in the senate to permit Justice Howell E. Jackson to retire from the supreme court. This means that Justice Jackson, on account of his health, is compelled to retire from the bench. Justice Jackson has been in bad health for a year or more and his retirement has been expected. This opens the way for the president to provide for William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, who was defeated for re-election in the house. There is little doubt but that Mr. Cleveland will appoint Mr. Wilson to the vacancy immediately after March 4th. Later on, when Justice Field retires, Mr. Carlisle may be placed on the supreme bench.

To Doctor American Cotton Seed Oil.

United States Minister Runyon, at Berlin, states that a bill has been introduced in the German reichstag to reduce the duty on imported cotton seed oil from 4 marks to 3.50 marks, but this reduction of duty is to be accompanied by a provision that will make the importation of the oil impossible. The amount of cotton seed oil imported from the United States for the ten months ending October 21, 1894, was 440,896 gallons, of the value of $592,413. As this oil comes into competition with domestic materials from which the Germans make oleomargarine and cheese, the German government has decided that imported cotton seed oil must have added to it some chemical compound in the presence of a German customs officer, which, without changing its character, will render it unfit to be used in the manufacture of any articles intended for human consumption.

Senator Manderson's Scheme.

Among the many financial propositions proposed recently, that submitted to the senate by Mr. Manderson is attracting considerable attention. His scheme embodies the following features: A reserve of $200,000,000 in gold and $200,000,000 in silver; the issue of bonds payable in gold or silver; the destruction of legal tender notes when paid in gold or silver; the exchange, for five years, when demanded, of gold coin for silver coin, and of silver coin for gold coin; the use of new bonds for national bank currency (of not less denomination than $10); the requirement of payment of duties in gold on goods imported from countries having a gold standard, and in gold or silver on goods imported from countries having a silver standard; and, finally, the free coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and the enlarged coinage of subsidiary silver coin.

Gold Withdrawals.

The gold reserve was reduced Wednesday by withdrawals at several subtreasuries to $44,551,322. The withdrawals were as follows: At New York $3,775,000; at Baltimore, $131,740. Total for the day, $3,951,740. Rumors as to what the president and Secretary Carlisle intend to do were plentiful, but no official announcement was given out. No preparations are being made for a bond issue, and none will be made until the president is convinced that congress will not respond to his appeal for financial aid. Unless this congress responds promptly to the president's suggestion, he will, in the exercise of his discretion under the resumption act, direct the issue of $100,000,000 bonds. Under this act there are three kinds of bonds he may issue, viz: Five per cent bonds which run ten years; 4½ per cent bonds which run fifteen years, and 4 per cent bonds which run thirty years. As the president in his recent message favored fifty-year bonds, the general belief is that, if bonds are issued under the resumption act, they will be 4 per cent bonds to run thirty years. Everything is contingent on the condition of the gold reserve. Should the gold withdrawals diminish or cease altogether, the president may not consider another bond issue necessary at this time, as the general condition of the treasury, with $143,000,000 available for expenses and constant improvement daily showing in receipts, is better now than it has been for the past two years.

BUSINESS TALK.

Bradstreet's Report of Trade for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says: Special telegraphic mail advices from the more important distributing centers fail to reveal any marked improvement in the movement of merchandise and products, and the conclusion is forced that the general trade situation remains as previously characterized—small volume, low prices, hand to mouth sales, and the outlook favorable to a very conservative trade for some time to come. Gains in demand have been noteworthy only at eastern woolen mills for men's wear and fabrics.

Wholesale dealers in staples at Augusta, Memphis, New Orleans, and in the west and northwest, at St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis report that the improvement is rather by contrast with recent dullness than with the volume of trade ordinarily transacted at this season.

An exception is in wool sales, which have increased sharply, though prices are no higher. Mills report unexpectedly heavy orders of men's wear, woolens for fall delivery, in spite of foreign competition, clothiers having placed the bulk of overcoatings and general suitings contracts with domestic mills. Transactions in prints and ginghams are of fair proportions, the latter having been stimulated by cut prices. None of the larger eastern cities report a likelihood of demand to anticipate wants. On the contrary, all indications are for a continuance of orders for near-by wants only. At Pittsburg unfavorable weather has checked trading again. Philadelphia textile mills are dissatisfied with the situation and the outlook. Baltimore jobbers say trade is fairly satisfactory.

At the south collections are slow in South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia. More interest is manifested by patrons of Richmond jobbers, and Charleston and Savannah respectively report fertilisers and naval stores more active. At Atlanta jobbers are awaiting results of February settlements before seeking to extend trade.

Misappropriated Funds.

Charles M. Hughes, Jr., ex-cashier of the First National bank of Lima, O., has been arrested by a United States deputy marshal on a charge of misappropriating $140,000 of the funds of the bank.

FIXING FOR BONDS.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY CURTIS CONFERS WITH BANKERS.

A Syndicate of Foreign Houses Agree to Take the Issue.

A New York special says: Assistant Secretary Curtis was at the sub-treasury Thursday morning, and had a lengthy conference with the representatives of large foreign houses. George F. Crane, of Baring, MaGoun & Co., was the first to arrive. Among the other foreign bankers who dropped in were I. Wormser, of Wormser & Co.; E. Thalmann, of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co.; a representative of August Belmont & Co., and Mr. Speyer, of Speyer & Co. It was considered significant that all the visitors were connected with foreign houses.

In the afternoon, J. Pierrepont Morgan, Isaac N. Seligman, of I. & W. Seligman, and Eugene Meyer, of Lazard Freres, were also in consultation with Messrs. Curtis & Jordan. It is understood that the result of the conference is as follows:

A call for subscriptions of $100,000,000 4 per cent bonds will be issued. The syndicate of foreign houses will take whatever bonds the public do not subscribe for on a basis of 3¼ per cent. The foreign bankers were willing to take the bonds at once, but the government wished to give the public an opportunity of securing whatever bonds are desired here. Gold will be brought from abroad to pay for the bonds taken by the foreign syndicate.

Mr. Belmont, it is understood offered to take $50,000,000 4s for the Rothschilds on a 3¼ per cent. basis. The bankers also offered to deposit $30,000,000 of gold in the treasury at once if it could be legally arranged that treasury receipts should be immediately convertible into bonds when delivered. These propositions will be put before a cabinet meeting and if deemed satisfactory, a call for $100,000,000 4s is expected as soon as the cabinet adjourns.

The opinion in Wall street is that the administration will err to issue a general call for subscription, if bonds can be sold abroad by a definite agreement. The gold deposited for bonds taken in this country will be speedily withdrawn again as in the case in the last loan. Only the sale of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 abroad would effectually put a stop to the gold drain by checking the gold exports and restoring confidence among the foreign investors who are pouring their securities into this country. The 4 per cent bond, which it is proposed to issue, would mature in 1909, and on a 3¼ per cent basis would net 105.03 to the government, on a three-quarter basis, 106.65.

The 3¼ per cent. basis would leave a wide margin for possible profit, but the foreign houses would have to face the possibility of a reluctant investing public and wish to provide against the possible contingency that a large portion of the bonds might have to be carried for a long period before becoming absorbed by the foreign public.

Little Hope of Rescue.

Additional dispatches from London state that the loss of the North German Lloyd steamship Elbe, with nearly 400 lives, is the absorbing topic of conversation and comment in all circles. The latest information as to the number of lives lost places it at 374; at least that is the number missing, and there is very little hopes entertained that any of these will eventually be heard from alive. It is true, however, that some Yarmouth and Lowestoft fishing smacks, which are out on cruisers in the vicinity where the Wildflower picked up the Elbe's boat containing twenty survivors, have not yet returned to their home ports, so that there still remains a possibility that one or more of these may have rescued some of the unfortunates of the lost steamer. On the other hand, the weather is unfavorable to the survival of the castaways for any considerable length of time. A heavy northeast gale prevails on the north sea and the weather at Lowestoft and thereabouts is very cold. The gale is increasing to almost a hurricane and accompanied by a blinding snowstorm.

It is no credit to receive the commendation of those who are themselves unworthy of praise.

A CANNING FACTORY.

What better location for a canning factory can be found than right here at Calera? Why should we not have one? It will not require a great deal of capital to start such an enterprise and it would be profitable not only to the owner or promoter but to the town and surrounding country. Union Springs has one and below we give a pen picture from the Herald in regard to same:

From data furnished us by Mr. Shriver manager of the Union Springs Canning factory, we are enabled to compile the following article which will be of benefit to those who contemplate planting for the factory this year.

Dr. C. H. Franklin heads the list of those who met success in planting and raising tomatoes.

The space he devoted to tomatoes was something less than three fourths of one acre; but he had delivered to the factory 124 bushels of tomatoes. This is not all he raised in that patch, for some were sold around the city.

The next successful was a negro Lawson Moon, who lives on the plantion of Mr. Wm. M. Stakley, Sr.

He delivered from less than a half acre 64 bushels. His crop really went to 75 or 80 bushels, for he gathered the fruit too early on more than one occasion and this was a loss to him.

Mr. Wm. M. Stakely, Sr, himself delivered from his garden, to the factory at different times quantities of tomatoes, and he states that an acre of such plants as he had would have yielded 150 bushels.

It can be really seen that money can be made by raising truck for the factory, and every farmer in the vicinity of Union Springs, or in the county, should plant for the canning factory.

The factory will be in full operation this year, and Mr. Shriver can be found there at almost any time. He is willing to give the farmers any information they may want about the crops they wish to plant, for the factory.

One of his suggestions is as follows: Plant 125 acres of tomatoes; 10 of string beans(bunch); 10 of lima or butter beans; 10 of okra.

There will always be a demand for blackberries, huckleberries, peaches, pears, plums, sweet potatoes, cucumbers, and in fact for everything in the garden line. The farmers will always find the factory ready to pay the market price in cash. It will be ready to contract for produce about the 20th instant.

By all means Calera should have a canning factory. Who will take the enterprise in hand? Sen.--

The editor was called by legal business last week to Stanton and Kincheon and this week has taken in Coopers and the region round about. While enroute to Stanton he passed a night under the hospitable roof of Mr. Robt Roebuck.

That gentleman has been under the weather somewhat, but is improving. We have few better farmers than Mr. Roebuck. He raises nearly everything at home and makes his land more productive each year. At Stanton things are humming. W C Dyer has all the orders his furniture factory can keep up with. He is hard working and a good manager. We were pleased to note the improved condition of the health of Mr A A Dyer.

The Stanton Alliance Store under its new name, Stanton Co-operative Association, still has that pleasant and faithful gentleman D J Jandy as its manager. If all pices are good this year he hope to make a good dividend for his stock holders. No one can go to Stanton without feeling sad at the absence of Mr. Richard Coe, who was for so many years the manager of the great milling interest there. That big headed, wide awake business man H. B. Plant now has charge of all the business. He is liked by his men. The mill is running on full time and every body is happy. Our short stay allowed only a handshake with the Post Master and a few other friends.

Mr. Wiley Letcher and his good wife cheered us while on our homeward journey by a division of their lunch. On every farm there were to be seen preparations for the crop. Thousands of tons of compost are only waiting the convenient season.

The experience of Geo. A. Apgar, of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He was troubled with chronic diarrhoea and doctored for five months, and was treated by four different doctors without benefit. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, of which one small bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

At Rest.

On Tuesday the 22nd of January our town suffered a heavy loss by the death of Dr. S. Paisley. He was superintendent of our Sabbath school until failing health prevented. He had held offices of trust and honor and was a gentleman of rare culture and we held it an honor to have him with us. He suffered much from the beginning of a severe attack of pneumonia which he bore with great christian resignation, expressed perfect willingness to die and requested to be buried here. He was 72 years old.

His bereaved family have our deepest sympathy.

PROHIBITION IN HALE

Mobile Register—The Greensboro Watchman opposes the proposition that will be made to the general assembly to allow whiskey to be sold in Gallion beat, Hale county; and offers argument, which bear eloquent testimony to the merrits of prohibition as exhibited in the workings of the law in that county. The Watchman meets the oft repeated claim that prohibition does not prohibit, by declaring that it cannot be shown that the law has been a nullity in Hale county, for it has been strictly enforced. The grand juries of Hale have not failed to indict those unlawfully dealing in liquors whenever the matter was brought to their attention; and the testimony was of such a character as to sustain the finding of a true bill.

The petit juries have also done their duty in the premises.

The result has been an absolute reform, if not in the morals of the people, in their practices, and a marked decrease in the amount of criminal business of the courts.

The Watchman makes another strong point also, when it calls attention to the fact that Hale contains a very large negro population, people "who are most peaceable in the world under ordinary circumstances, but craze them with liquor and your wives, your children and your homes are not safe." The Register echoes this tribute to the natural disposition of the negroes. They are, as the Watchman says, wholly peaceable and useful as citizens, yet they make up three-fourths of the criminal class which fills our jails and penitentiaries, and it is liquor that incites to almost every crime they commit. Take the liquor away and the race problem is well nigh solved without further effort.

A SENSIBLE GIRL.

Health Journal.

A fast young man decided to make a young lady a formal offer of his heart and hand, all he was worth, hoping for a cordial reception. He cautiously preluded his declaration with a few questions, for he had no intention of "throwing himself away." Did she love him enough to live in a cottage with him? Was she a good cook? Did she think it a wife's duty to make home happy? Would she consult his tastes and wishes concerning her associates and pursuits of life? Was she economical? Could she make her own clothes? etc.

The young lady said that before she answered his questions, she would like to assure him of some negative virtues she possessed.

She never drank, smoked or chewed, never owed a bill to her laundress or tailor, never stayed out all night playing billiards, never lounged on the street corners and ogled giddy girls, never stood in with the boys for cigars and wine suppers.

"Now," said she rising indignant, "I am assured by those who know that you do all these things and it is rather absurd for you to expect all the virtues in me, while you do not possess any yourself. I can never be your wife," and she bowed him out and left him on the cold doorstep a madder if not a wiser man.

If we could have the thoughtful attention of Walnut Creek community we would in the greatest kindness say Gentleman and ladies, boys and girls you had better quit your foolishness, and every body apologize to every body else, make friends and start life over again. You have allowed yourselves divided about school teachers, and bad matters are being made worse. So far as we know your teachers are both without superiors, but better far agree to sacrifice them and along with them your own prejudicies and ambitions than to prolong the strife which will end seriously, unless checked.

It wont pay in the end to run blind tigers. The man who is willing to lend himself to the violation of the law will surely be the loser. If a merchant sells bitters, which is nothing but liquor in disguise, he will have trade.

Around him will consort the worst element of the community. They will drink his bitters, buy his goods and when the collecting day comes there will be found quite a large uncollectible account. Apart from it being a violation of law it wont pay to keep blind tigers from a business stand point.

With a few exception it is the unanimous desire of the people of Chilton county that our prohibition law remain in force. The friends of temperance must not be asleep else there is danger that Clanton and other places in this county will be cursed with the open saloon.

A Des Moines woman who been troubled with frequet colds, concluded to try an old remedy in a new way, and accordingly took a tablespoonful (four times the usual dose) of Chamberlains Cough Remedy just before going to bed. The next morning she found that her cold had almost entirely disappeared. During the day she took a few doses of the remedy (one teaspoonful at a time) and at night again took a tablespoonful before going to bed, and on the following morning awoke free from all symptoms of the cold. Since then she has, on several occasions, used this remedy in like manner, with the same good results, and is much elated over her discovery of so quick a way of curing a cold. What is

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

CLEVELAND'S CALL.

A MESSAGE ON FINANCE SENT TO CONGRESS.

Declares He Is Not "Unfriendly to Silver Legislation."

Washington, January 28.—The president today sent to congress the following message on the financial question:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my last annual message, I recommended to the serious consideration of the congress the condition of our national finances, and in connection with the subject indorsed the plan of currency legislation which, at that time, seemed to furnish protection against impending danger. This plan has not been approved by the congress. In the meantime the situation has so changed and the emergency now appears so threatening, that I deem it my duty to ask at the hands of the legislative branch of the government such prompt and effective action as will restore confidence in our financial soundness and avert business disaster and universal distress among our people. Whatever may be the merits the plan outlined in my annual message as a remedy for evils then existing and as a safeguard against the depletion of the gold reserve then in the treasury, I am now convinced that its rejection by congress and our present advanced stage of financial perplexity, necessitates additional or different legislation.

OUR GREAT RESOURCES UNLIMITED.

With natural resources unlimited in variety and productive strength, and with a people whose activity and enterprise seek only a fair opportunity to achieve finational success and greatness, our progress should not be checked by a false nancial policy, and a heedless disregard of sound monetary laws nor should the timidity and fear which engender stand in the way of our prosperity. It is hardly disputed that this predicament confronts us today. Therefore, no one in any degree responsible for the making and execution of our laws should fail to see a patriotic duty in honestly and sincerely attempting to relieve the situation. Manifestly, this effort will not succeed unless it is made untrammelled by the prejudice of partisanship and with a steadfast determination to resist the temptation to accomplish party advantages. We may well remember that if we are threatened with financial difficulties, all our people, in every station of life are concerned and surely those who suffer will not receive the promotion of party interests as an excuse for permitting our present troubles to advance to a distastrous conclusion. It is also of the utmost importance that we approach the study of the problems presented as free as possible from the tyranny of preconceived opinions, to the end that in a common danger we may be able to seek with unclouded vision a safe and reasonable protection.

THE REAL TROUBLE EXPLAINED.

The real trouble which confronts us consists in a lack of confidence, widespread and constantly increasing, in the continuing ability or disposition of the government to pay its obligations in gold. This lack of confidence grows to some extent out of the palpable and apparent embarrassment attending the efforts of the government under existing laws to procure gold and to a greater extent out of the impossibility of either, keeping it in the treasury or cancelling obligations by its expenditures after it is obtained.

TO ISSUE BONDS THE ONLY REMEDY.

The only way left open to the government for procuring gold is by the issue and sale of bonds.

The only bonds that can be so issued were authorized 25 years ago, and were not calculated to meet our present needs.

Among other disadvantages they are made payable in coin instead of specifically in gold, which in existing conditions detract largely and in an increasing ratio from their desirability as investments. It is by no means certain that bonds of this description can much longer be disposed of at a price creditable to the financial character of our government. The most dangerous and irritating feature of the situation, however, remains to be mentioned.

THE MOST DANGEROUS FEATURE.

It is found in the means by which the treasury is despoiled of gold thus obtained without cancelling a single government obligation and solely for the benefit of those who find profit in shipping it abroad or whose fears induce them to horde it at home. We have outstanding about $500,000,000 of currency notes of the government for which gold may be demanded, and curiously enough the law requires that when presented and in fact redeemed and paid in gold, they shall be re-issued. These same notes may do duty many times in drawing gold from the treasury, nor can this process be arrested as long as private parties profit or otherwise see an advantage in repeating the operation. More than $300,000,000 in these notes have already been redeemed in gold, and notwithstanding such redemption, they are all still outstanding.

Since the seventeenth day of January, 1894, our bonded interest bearing debt has increased $100,000,000. For the purpose of obtaining gold to replenish our coin reserve, two issues were made amounting to fifty millions each—one in January and the other in November. As a result of the first issue, there was realized something more than fifty-eight millions of dollars in gold. Between that issue and the succeeding one, in November, comprising a period of about ten months, nearly one hundred and three millions of dollars in gold were drawn from the treasury. This made the second issue necessary and upon that more than $58,000,000 in gold was again realized.

Between the date of the second issue and the present time covering a period of only about two months, more than sixty-nine million dollars in gold have been drawn from the treasury. These large sums of gold were expended without any cancellation of government obligations, or in any permanent way benefitting our people or improving our pecuniary situation.

FINANCIAL EVENTS OF THE YEAR.

The financial events of the past year suggest facts and conditions which should cert[illegible] attention:

More than 172,000,000 of dollars in gold have been drawn out of the treasury during the year for the purpose of shipments abroad, or hoarding at home, while nearly one hundred and three millions of this amount were drawn out during the first ten months of the year, a sum aggregating more than two-thirds of that amount, being about sixty-nine millions, was drawn out during the following two months, thus indicating a marked acceleration of the depleting process with the lapse of time. The obligations upon which this gold has been drawn from the treasury are still outstanding and are available for use in repeating the exhausting operation with shorter intervals as our perplexities accumulate. Conditions are certainly supervening tending to make the bonds which may be issued to replenish our gold less useful for that purpose.

ADEQUATE GOLD RESERVE NECESSARY.

An adequate gold reserve is, in all circumstances, absolutely essential to the upholding of our public credit, and to the maintenence of our high national character. Our gold reserve has reached such a state of diminution as to require its speedy reinforcement.

The aggravations that must inevitably follow the present conditions and methods will certainly lead to misfortune and loss not only to our national credit and prosperity and financial enterprise but to those of our people who seek employment as a means of livelihood, and to those whose capital is their daily labor.

It will hardly do to say that a simple increase of revenue will cure our troubles with the apprehension now existing and constantly increasing as to our financial ability does not rest upon a calculation of new revenue.

The time has passed when the eyes of investors abroad and our people at home were fixed upon the revenues of the government. Changed conditions have attracted their attention to the gold of the government. There need be no fear that we cannot pay our current expenses with such money as we have. There is now in the treasury a comfortable surplus of more than $68,000,000, but it is not in gold and therefore does not meet our difficulty.

SILVER NOT THE ISSUE.

I cannot see that differences of opinion concerning the extent to which silver ought to be coined or used in our currency, should interfere with the counsels of those whose duty it is to rectify evils now apparent in our financial situation. They have to consider the question of national credit and the consequences that will follow from its collapse.

Whatever ideas may be insisted upon as to silver or bimetalism, the proper solution of the question now pressing upon us only requires a recognition of gold as well as silver and a concession of its importance, rightfully or wrongfully acquired, as a basis of national credit, a necessity of an honorable discharge of our obligations payable in gold and a badge of solvency.

WHAT FRIENDS OF SILVER DEMAND.

I do not understand that the real friends of silver desire a condition that might follow inaction, or neglect to appreciate the meaning of the present exigency, if it should result in the entire banishment of gold from our financial and currency arrangements. Besides treasury notes which certainly should be paid in gold, amounting to nearly 500,000,000 of dollars, there will fall due in 1904 one hundred millions of bonds, issued during the last year for which we have received gold, and in 1907 nearly 600,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds issued in 1877. Shall the payment of these obligations in gold be repudiated? If they are to be paid in such a manner as the preservation of our national honor and national solvency demands, we should not destroy or even imperil our ability to supply ourselves with gold for this purpose.

NOT UNFRIENDLY TO SILVER.

While I am not unfriendly to silver, and while I desire to see it recognized to such an extent as is consistent with the financial safety and the preservation of national honor and credit, I am not willing to see gold entirely abolished from our currency and finances. To avert such a consequence I believe thorough and radical remedial legislation should be promptly passed.

I therefore asked congress to give the subject immediate attention.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE.

In my opinion the secretary of the treasury should be authorised to issue bonds of the government for the purpose of procuring and maintaining a sufficient gold reserve and for the redemption and cancellation of the United States legal tender notes and the treasury notes issued for the purchase of silver under the law of June 14th, 1890. We should be relieved from the humiliating process of issuing bonds to procure gold to be immediately and repeatedly drawn out on these obligations for purposes not related to our government or our people.

The principal and interest of these bonds should be payable on their face in gold, because they should be sold only for gold or its representative, and because there would now be difficulty in favorably disposing of bonds not containing this stipulation.

BONDS OF SMALL DENOMINATIONS.

I suggest that the bonds be issued in denominations of twenty and fifty dollars, and their multiples, and that they bear interest at a rate not exceeding 3 per cent per annum. I do not see why they should not be payable fifty years from their date. We of the present generation have large amounts to pay if we meet our obligations, and long bonds are most saleable. The secretary of the treasury might well be permitted at his discretion to receive on the sale of bonds the legal tender and treasury notes to be retired, and of course when they are thus retired or redeemed in gold they should be cancelled.

COULD BE USED BY BANKS.

These bonds under existing laws could be deposited by national banks as security for circulation, and such banks should be allowed to issue circulation up to the face value of these or any other bonds deposited, except bonds outstanding bearing only 2 per cent interest, and which sell in the market at less than par. National banks should not be allowed to take out circulating notes of a less denomination than ten dollars and and when such as are outstanding reach the treasury, except for redemption and retirement, they should be cancelled and notes of the denomination of $10 and upwards issued in their stead. Silver certificates of the denomination of $10 and upwards should be replaced by certificates of denominations under $10.

IMPORTS PAYABLE IN GOLD.

As a constant means for the maintenance of a reasonable supply of gold in the treasury our duties on imports should be paid in all gold, allowing all other dues to the government to be paid in any other form of money.

I believe all the provisions I have suggested should be embodied in our laws if we are to enjoy a complete reinstatement on a sound financial condition. They need not interfere with any currency schem e provided for the increase of the circulating medium, through the agency of national or state banks, since they can easily be adjusted to such a scheme.

BONDS TO RETIRE LEGAL TENDERS.

Objection has been made to the issuance of interest bearing bonds for the purpose of retiring the interest bearing legal tender notes. In point of fact, however, these notes have burdened us with a large load of interest and it is still accumulating. The aggregate interest on the original issue of bonds, the proceeds of which in gold constituted the reserve for the payment of these notes amounted to $70,326,250 on January 1, 1895, and the annual charge for interest on these bonds, and those issued for the same purpose during the last year will be $9,145,000 dating from January 1, 1895. While the cancellation of these notes would not relieve us from the obligations already incurred on their account, these figures are given by way of suggesting that their existence has not been free from interest charges and that the longer they are outstanding, judging from the experience of last year, the more expensive they will become.

RELUCTANT TO SEE MORE BONDS ISSUED.

In conclusion, I desire frankly to confess my reluctance to issuing more bonds in present circumstances, and with no better results than have lately followed that course. I cannot, however, refrain from adding to an assurance of much anxiety, to co-operate with the present congress in any reasonable measure of relief, an expression of my determination to leave nothing undone which furnished a hope for improving the situation or checking a suspicion of our disinclination of disability to meet with the strictest honor every national obligation.

Executive Mansion, January 28, 1895.

A NEW FINANCIAL BILL.

Washington, January 28.—Chairman Springer, of the banking and currency committee of the house, has introduced a bill to carry into effect the recommendations of the president's message.

He has notified his committee to meet tomorrow morning and consider the bill. The bill is as follows:

"An act to authorise the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to maintain a sufficient gold reserve and to redeem and retire United States notes and for other purposes.

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress, assembled, that, in order to enable the secretary of the treasury to procure and maintain a sufficient gold reserve and to redeem and retire United States notes and treasury notes, issued under the act of July 14, 1890, entitled "an act directing the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of treasury notes thereon and for other purposes, he is hereby authorized to issue and to sell at not less than par in gold, except as provided in section 2 of this act United States registered or coupon bonds, in denominations of twenty dollars and fifty dollars and multiples of said sums, respectively, payable in fifty years in gold coin of the United States of the present weight and fineness and bearing interest at a rate not exceeding 3 per cent. per anum, payable quarterly in like coin; and such bonds and the interest thereon shall have like qualities privileges and exemptions as the bonds issued under the act approved July 14, 1890, entitled an act to authorize the refunding of the national debt. Such bonds may be sold and delivered in the United States or elsewhere as may be deemed most advantageous to the interests of the government.

Section 2. That whenever any United States legal tender notes or treasury notes shall be redeemed in gold, they shall be cancelled and not reissued, and the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorised, in his discretion, to receive United States legal tender notes and treasury notes issued under the aforesaid act of July 14, 1890, in payment for any of the bonds issued under the preceding section of this act and the notes so received shall be cancelled and not reissued.

Section 3. That hereafter national banking associations may take out of circulating notes in the manner now provided by law to an amount equal to the par value of the bonds deposited to secure the same. But this provision shall not apply to any bonds now outstanding bearing interest at the rate of 2 per cent only.

Section 4. That hereafter no national bank note of less denomination than $10 shall be issued, and as rapidly as such notes of denominations less than $10 shall be received into the treasury, otherwise than for redemption and retirement, they shall be cancelled and an equal amount of notes of likewise character, but in denominations of ten dollars and multiples thereof, shall be issued in their places. All silver now outstanding in denominations less than $10, shall, when received into the treasury of the United States, be retired and cancelled and silver certificates in denominations less than $10 shall be issued in their stead.

Section 5. That from and after the first day of July, 1895, all duties on imports shall be paid in gold only, and all taxes, debts and demands, other than duties on imports, accruing or becoming due to the United Sattes, shall be paid in gold and silver coin treasury notes, United States notes, silver certificates or notes of national banks.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The report on the industrial condition of the south for the past week shows that information from all the important lumber points in the southern states indicates that the revival in the lumber industry to now a certainty. Favorable reports are received from many manufacturers who are running to their full capacity, with orders ahead. Prices are firm and an early advance is probable owing to the light stocks on hand and to the steadily increasing demand. Coal is quiet, with a continued large output, and with no accumulation of stocks. Iron is unchanged. Production continues to be large, and furnace men report preparations for increasing the supply.

New cotton mill companies are reported as having been organized during the week at Hickory, N. C., with $500,000 capital; at Greenville, S. C., with $250,000 capital; one to cost $150,000 at Albany, Ga.; a $50,000 one at Ozark, Ala., and others at Barnesville, Ga., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

There is also reported the organization at Richmond, Va., of a $300,000 company to manufacture tobacco tagging machines; a $100,000 irrigation company at San Antonio, Texas; a $50,000 sugar mill Pointe Coupee, La., and a $50,000 veneer mill at Central City, W. Va. Car building works are reported at Texarkana, Ark.; machinery works at Tifton, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C.; improvement companies at Augusta, Ga., and Rock Hill, S. C., and flouring mills at Birmingham, Ala., Moorefield, Ky., and Forrest City, N. C. Canning factories are to be built at Greensboro and Ozark, Ala., electrical plants at Florence, Ala., and Shelbyville, Tenn.; marble works at Tifton, Ga., and woodworking plants at Huntsville and Ozark, Ala., Bearden, Mariana and Thornton, Ark., Brunswick and Waycross, Ga., Bridgewater, Raleigh and Rockingham, N. C., Almeda, S. C., and Silsbee, Tex.

The new buildings for the week, as reported to The Tradesman, include business houses at New Smyrna, Fla., Macon, Ga., and Fort Worth, Texas, a Hospital at Augusta, Ga.; a $15,000 school building at Brewton, Ala., and one to cost $20,000 at Troy, Ala., and a masonic building at Louisville, Ky.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Lowest Since 1879.

The treasury gold reserve was reduced Monday to $52,463,178, the withdrawal for the day was officially reported to the treasury as being $3,385,000. Of this amount $3,100,000 was taken out at New York and $285,000 at Boston. Of the withdrawals at New York $2,150,000 was for export. This brings the treasury gold reserve down to the lowest point it ever reached since the resumption of specie payments on January 1, 1879.

Some Curious Trees.

There are many vegetable wonders in this world of ours. Certain tropical trees furnish clothes as well as food, and the inner bark of others is smooth and flexible enough for writing paper. The bread tree has a solid fruit, a little larger than a cocoanut, which, when cut in slices and cooked, can scarcely be distinguished from excellent bread. The weeping tree of the Canary Islands is wet, even in a drouth, constantly distilling water in its leaves, and the wine tree of Mauritus Island furnishes good wine instead of water. A kind of ash in Sicily has a sap which hardens into sugar and is used as such by the natives without any refining. The product of the wax tree in the Andes resembles beeswax very closely. Then there is the butter tree of Africa, which produces as much as a hundred pounds at once, only to be renewed in a few months. This secretion when hardened and salted is difficult to distinguish from fresh, sweet butter. Closely rivaling this is the milk tree of South Africa, the sap of which resembles rich cow's milk and is used as such by the natives. China can boast of a soap tree, the seeds of which, when used as soap, produce strong suds and remove dirt and grease readily. In direct opposition to these useful trees is the man eating plant of the tropics, which resembles Venus' fly trap in its nature. It is a short, thick trunk, armed with narrow, flexible, barbed spines.—Exchange.

A Neglected Opportunity.

Lord Aberdeen once left London at midnight, in a sleeping car, for the north. In the morning he saw a stranger opposite him.

"Excuse me," said the stranger, may I ask if you are rich?"

Somewhat surprised, his lordship replied that he was tolerably well-to-do.

"May I ask," continued the stranger, "how rich you are?"

"Well, if it will do you any good to know," was the reply, "I suppose I have several hundred thousand pounds."

"Indeed!" went on the stranger. "Then, if I were as rich as you, and snored as loud as you, I should take a whole carriage, so as not to interrupt the sleep of others."—Household Words.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW.

You may not know, and if you do not, you will find it useful to bulletin in the kitchen the fact:

That slamming the door of the oven will make cake "fall."

That a little knowledge, far from being dangerous, often saves the cook' cookery from disaster.

That plunging macaroni for a single minute in a bath of cold water after it has been cooked tender in boiling salted water prevents it being "pasty."

That a pinch of powdered sugar, and another of corn starch beaten in with the yolks of eggs will keep an omelet from collapsing. Beat the whites stiff and cut them into the yolks.

That a half-teaspoonful of chicory, to one-third of a cup of Mocha and two-thirds of Java (or thereabouts) gives the rich, dark tint and peculiar flavor of French after-dinner "black coffee."

That a couple of sheets of big newspaper wrapped about ice will keep it half as long again as ice that is uncovered. The paper is much more cleanly than a piece of blanket, as it can be removed daily.

That shaking potatoes after the jackets are off for a minute at the open window will make them "mealy." The cold draught causes the starch cells to burst open, making the feathery white flakes that are in such agreeable contrast to the sodden mass served too often for a potato.

That the secret of making sponge cake is not to beat the air all out of the eggs after it is once beaten. Beat the yolks to a mass of bubbles, and the whites a stiff froth. Then cut them into each other with a few crosswise thrusts of a fork, and cut the eggs into the cake mixture in the same fashion. Do not beat the cake after the eggs are added.

That the crisp, delicious slices of bacon that are a feature of so many appetizing dishes may be had by turning each slice every minute over a hot fire in a pan large enough so that the slices shall not touch; and then as soon as delicately browned on both sides lift from the pan on to a sheet of butcher's coarse wrapping paper (save it for the purpose when it comes from the market clean), and allow the bacon to drain upon it in the oven for another minute.

Children and Money.

Do not indulge the habit of giving your children money in an indiscriminate manner to spend as they like. It leads to a great many ills, not the least of which is an impaired digestion from overeating. A child who has a penny or nickel every time he asks for it can soon make himself ill eating the cheap candy and cakes put up to look so attractive on the outside, and then you rush off for a doctor and fill the child up with medicine as a result of your own selfishness in giving him money to get rid of his importunities. Then it is apt to make the child grow up with extravagant ideas, and stealing is a natural second step when parental indulgence has worn out.—Chicago Record.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood; they will not do duty without it any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or pepsin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way. Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak, nervous feelings are completely cured by the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the whole system.

MRS. K. HENKR, of No. 896 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.

Now, after two months I am entirely relieved of my disease. My appetite is excellent; food well digested; bowels regular and sleep much improved."

Snow Song.

Over valley, over hill,
Hark, the shepherd piping shrill!
Driving all the white flocks forth
From the far folds of the North.
Blow, Wind, blow;
Wierd melodies you play,
'ollowing your flocks that go
Across the world to-day.

How they hurry, how they crowd,
When they hear the music loud!
Grove and lane and meadow full
Sparkle with their shining wool.
Blow, Wind, blow
Until the forests ring;
Teach the caves the tunes you know,
And make the chimney sing!

Hither, thither, up and down
Every highway of the town,
Huddling close, the white flocks all
Gather at the shepherd's call.
Blow, Wind, blow
Upon your pipes of joy:
All your sheep the flakes of snow
And you their shepherd boy!

A LOCK OF HAIR.

Madame Sophie Lebrun was a widow of twenty-seven, very rich, very beautiful, and above all a coquette. Among her admirers, which were many, was Colonel Jean Rapp, who seemed to think that he was held in higher favor than his rivals.

"Madame," he said one day, as he sat beside the object of his adoration in her pretty boudoir, "my leave of absence is nearly at an end. Thursday I must start for the frontier to join the army, and many months will probably elapse before I can return to Paris. Under ordinary circumstances I would gladly respond to the summons to serve my country, but under the present circumstances I shall go with a regret which I venture to hope, although my wish may be a selfish one, that you, too, will share. You must suspect the truth. It is because I am to be deprived of your charming society, my dear friend, that I am loath to depert."

"Colonel, I, too, feel regret. I value your friendship highly."

"I thank you for your kind words. I shall think of them many times when I am far away. But do you think you, also, will not forget? When you are surrounded by your admirers in this gay city, will you you have the time and inclination to remember the soldier who adores you?"

"I shall not forget. But is not your language rather ardent, colonel?"

"It may be too ardent to express sentiments no warmer than those inspired by friendship, but——"

"Stop, please. I know what you would say, and I ask you not to say it, in order that I may not be obliged to make a reply that would cause you pain. If it will give you any comfort," with a fascinating smile that went straigut to her lover's heart, "I will acknowledge that of all the gentlemen with whom I am acquainted I like you the best."

"Then, why not give me hope?"

"I said that I liked you the best. To like is not to love. Moreover, I enjoy my freedom, and do not care to marry any one at present."

"But you will at least give me some slight token of your esteem to carry with me on my journey?"

"I will do so with pleasure."

"When shall I receive it?"

"Tomorrow."

The next day, Tuesday, in the morning, a messenger brought a little package to the hotel where the colonel roomed. He tore off the wrapper with eager fingers and found a small pink box queerly ornamented. He opened it and beheld a lock of brown hair.

"Her beautiful hair," he murmured with delight. "She has simply been coyish. She really loves me, and I shall yet win her. I shall purchase a locket and wear the hair next to my heart."

At noon that day Colonel Rapp lunched in a cafe in company with Count Tallien. When they arose from the table the colonel reached for a cigar case that was in an inside pocket of his coat. In his haste he drew forth not only the case, but also the little pink box containing the lock of hair. The box fell to the floor and Count Tallien picked it up. As he looked at it when about to restore it to the owner, his face assumed a peculiar expression.

"Excuse me," he said, "but if you have no objection, I would like to have you tell me whether there is a lock of hair in that box."

"There is," replied his companion, thoroughly surprised.

"Will you permit me to look at the hair? I have an especial reason for desiring to see it."

The colonel wished he had not exposed the box to view, but concluded, under the circumstances, that it was best to grant the request.

"As I suspected," exclaimed the Count, after he had uncovered the box.

"What do you mean?"

"It is a lock of my own hair."

"Impossible!"

"Quite possible, I assure you. Did not Madame Lebrun give you this box?"

"She gave it to me."

"Then all is clear. Two weeks ago I sent her a lock of my hair in this box. This gift she has in turn sent to you, meaning that you should think the hair was cut from her own abundant tresses. But I know it is my hair, for it is two shades lighter than her own, and coarser, as it might be expected a man's hair would be.

"Sir, be careful. You are offering an insult to a lady. You are charging her with a gross deception of which she is incapable."

"It is no insult; it is the truth. I am doing you a kindness by showing you that this woman is a coquette."

"Enough. I will not listen to any more talk of this kind. I insist upon an immediate apology."

"I will not apologize."

"Take that, then."

As he spoke, Colonel Rapp slapped his companion's face with his right hand.

"I demand satisfaction," said the Count.

"You shall have it."

"When?"

"Tomorrow at sunrise, if it will suit your convenience."

"I will meet you then."

The details of the duel were arranged by the seconds, who were immediately chosen.

At the appointed hour the two gentlemen met at a secluded spot on the outskirts of the city. The seconds and a surgeon were the only other persons present. Pistols were the weapons to be used. It had been arranged that the combatants should stand twenty paces apart, with their backs turned toward each other; that one of the seconds should count one, two, three aloud, and then say fire, at which word the duellists were to wheel about and discharge their pistols.

Pale, but determined, Count Tallien and Colonel Rapp took their places, just as the sun appeared in the east. In the freshness of the morning the scene was exceedingly beautiful; a heavenly peace pervaded it, so that the deed about to be done seemed like sacrilege.

"One—two," said one of the seconds, deliberately.

There was a rustling in the bushes near by, but it was not heeded.

"Three. Fire!"

The duellists quickly wheeled and fired.

The scream of a woman rent the air. Madame Lebrun lay on the ground midway between the fighters.

"I am wounded and shall die!" she cried. "I am punished for my deceit. May God have mercy on my soul!"

"A mere scratch," said the phlegmatic surgeon, after a brief examination.

"Then she will live," said Colonel Rapp, in trembling accents.

"Of course."

"Colonel Rapp, can you ever forgive me?" said Madame Lebrun. "It was Count Tallien's hair that was in the box. I loved you, but it piqued me because you were so confident that I would marry you. Accordingly I sought revenge by practising the deceit, although I did not tell you the hair was mine; I let you infer that it was. Some day I intended to enlighten you on the subject and enjoy your discomfiture. A friend of mine happened to hear the seconds in this sad affair talking over the details of the meeting and hastened to me with the news. I was horrified, and bitterly regretted what I had done. I resolved to prevent bloodshed, and had I not lost my way would have been here before the duel was in progress."

"I freely forgive you, dear," said said Colonel Rapp. "Have you not risked your life to save mine?"

Madame Lebrun rewarded his devotion with a beautiful smile. He took her tenderly in his arms and kissed her.

"Jean."

"Sophie."

A Stuffed Emperor.

One of the most remarkable stuffed skins on record was that of Valerian, Emperor of Rome, who was taken prisoner and afterward kept in chains by Sapor, King of Persia. He was either killed in a tumult or by order of his conquerer, who was perhaps fearful of losing his valuable living trophy, in the year 269. The body of the dead emperor was treated with no more delicacy than when it had held the spark of a living one. It was skinned, the hide, after being tanned, was stuffed, painted red, and suspended in the chief temple of the capital. It remained there for many years, and was the popular spectacle for holiday makers and visitors from the country. But it was put to more important ends than this; it was made a diplomatic engine of much significance and efficiency. In after times it often happened that the Roman envoys at the Persian court had misunderstandings, more or less serious, with the Government to which they were temporarily accredited. When these ambassadors from Rome grew arrogant in their demands, it was the custom to conduct them into the presence of the stuffed skin of the old ex-Emperor of Rome, where they were asked if humility did not become them at sight of such a spectacle.—Hartford Courant.

Dynamite Engraving.

A novel experiment for the purpose of testing the strength of high explosives is the placing of fresh plucked leaves between two plates of panel steel, and exploding dynamite cartridges on the upper plate.

The recoil in such cases is so great and sudden that the upper plate is driven downward with such force and rapidity as to catch exact impressions of leaves before their delicate ribs have time to give way to the force of the blow. This novel method of engraving is one of the wonders of the centuries.—World of Science.

LIL'S ABDICATION.

HAWAII'S QUEEN RELINQUISHES HER THRONE.

Her Action Supposed to be a Ruse to Escape Punishment.

Advices from Honolulu have reached San Francisco to the effect that Liluokalani has abdicated in favor of the republic. This is by far the most important outcome of the late rebellion. The document was drawn up by A. S. Hartwell, at the request of the ex-queen. It was presented on the 26th instant to President Dole. The document, according to the wording, was executed freely and voluntarily. It was addressed to the president. The ex-queen is yet under arrest.

MANY ARRESTS FOR TREASON.

Arrests for treason and conspiracy have been numerous. In all, there are about 350 under lock and key. Their number includes the prisoners of war. It it thought the government has under arrest nearly all who took part in the rebellion.

ONLY LAWFUL GOVERNMENT.

The letter of abdication, among other things, says:

"In order to avoid any possibility of misunderstanding on the subject, although I do not think that any doubt or misunderstanding is either proper or possible, I do hereby fully and unequivocally admit and declare the government of the republic of Hawaii as the only lawful government of the Hawaiian Islands, and that the late Hawaiian monarchy is finally and forever ended, and no longer of any legal or actual validity, force or effect whatsoever; and I do hereby forever absolve all persons whomsoever whether in the Hawaiian Islands or elsewhere, from all and every manner of allegiance, or official obligation or duty to me and my heirs and successors forever, and I hereby declare to all such persons in the Hawaiian Islands, that I consider them as bound in duty and honor henceforth to support and sustain the government of Hawaii."

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreet's Report of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of trade for the past week says: Uncertainty as to the outcome of the financial situation, based on the rapid withdrawal of gold from the treasury, has had a depressing effect on general trade. Mercantile collections, in most instances, are slower than usual at this season. This is emphasized by the fact that Baltimore jobbers are waiting results of sending out bills for last fall's business before determining as to credits to be granted.

In textiles there is little change or prospect of early improvement. General lines of fancy printed fabrics are going from jobbers' hands fairly well, and print cloths are a shade better than a week ago. Every eastern city reporting specifies a moderate volume of business or that general trade is quiet with a hand-to-mouth demand. Providence reports a fair outlook for woolen goods, manufactures and manufacturing jewelers, but the only line in Philadelphia reporting any like activity is dry goods. At Pittsburg there is encouragement because of the outlook for iron and steel.

At the south a better distribution of shoes, clothing, rubber goods, dry goods and groceries is sufficiently conspicuous at Chattanooga and Galveston to mark trade at those points an exception to the rule throughout the South Atlantic and gulf states. The movement of hardware and dry goods from New Orleans has increased, but trade in general is only of moderate proportions.

Big Memphis Firm Assigns.

Craig & Co., of Memphis, Tenn., dealers in hardware, seeds, agricultural implements, one of the largest firms of the kind in the south, have made a partial assignment. The assets are worth $100,000. The liabilities are $65,000. Of these $14,000 are preferred. The creditors are mostly northern agricultural implement manufacturers.

Providing for the Expenses.

The Tennessee state senate has adopted a resolution appropriating $10,000 to pay the expenses of the investigation of the governor's election, not to include attorneys' fees.

EVANS ENTERS A PROTEST.

The Counting of the Vote for Governor of Tennessee Begun.

When the two houses of the general assembly of Tennessee met Tuesday to open the returns of election for governor in November last, Senator Butler, republican, read a protest from Hon. H. Clay Evans, the republican claimant for the governorship.

Mr. Evans protested that the election contest law enacted by the legislature was unconstitutional, and he insisted that the joint assembly open and publish the returns as the constitution required without any interference on the part of the joint legislative assembly.

The reading of the protest was followed by applause from the galleries.

The returns of the counties were then opened and objections were filed by Messrs. Evans and Turney to the reception of the votes of various counties.

When the convention took a recess at 2:30 o'clock sixty-seven counties had been opened. Of the sixty-seven counties opened fifty-one have so far been objected to. The attorneys for both Governor Turney and Mr. Evans made a protest against counting the vote of the four counties of Bedford, Franklin, Henry and Lawrence. The attorneys for Governor Turney objected to twenty-three counties, as follows:

Anderson, Blount, Bradley, Campbell, Cooke, Crockett, DeKalb, Carroll, Carter, Claiborne, Fentress, Granger, Greene, Hamblin, Hancock, Hardin, Hawkins, Johnson, Knox, London, Macon, Marion and Morgan.

The attorneys for Governor Evans objected to twenty-four counties, as follows: Benton, Cannon, Chatham, Chester, Clay, Coffee, Davidson, Dickson, Dyer, Fayette, Gibson, Giles, Grundy, Hardeman, Haywood, Humphreys, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lincoln, Madison, Marshall, Maury, Moore and Obion.

The sixteen counties of Bledsoe, Cumberland, Decatur, Hamilton, Henderson, Hickman, Houston, James, Jefferson, Lake, Lewis, McMinn, McNairy, Meigs, Monroe and Montgomery were not objected to.

Colonel John J. Vertrees acted as spokesman for Governor Turney and Robert Pritchard, of Chattanooga, for Mr. Evans. Governor Turney's other counsel were W. M. Vertrees, J. D. Anderson, J. M. Dickinson, J. W. Gaines and W. H. Carroll, chairman of the democratic state executive committee.

Mr. Evans was on the floor in person and was represented by Congressman-elect Henry R. Gibson, Jesse Rogers, of Knoxville, John Ruhm, G. H. Tillman and W. S. Colyar, of Nashville, and Sam W. Hawkins, of Huntingdon. The returns so far as opened do not vary from the returns received by Secretary of State Morgan. The objections now made are only formal. Specific objections will be filed later.

A RAILROAD WRECK.

Express Train Jumps the Track and Crushes Into a Freight.

The worst wreck that has happened on the Pittsburg, Pa., division of the Baltimore and Ohio road for several years occurred at Woodell, three miles from Washington. The eastbound express, No. 106, jumped the track and entered the siding, crashing into the rear of a freight standing there. Ed Robinson, of Glenwood, flagman, and Frank Kelly, of Glenwood, brakeman on the freight were killed. The engine and baggage car of the express were badly wrecked, but the engineer and fireman escaped with only a few bruises.

COLONEL CLEMENTS.

Alabama's President of Cotton Growers' Association.

Colonel N. N. Clements, of Tuscaloosa, has been commissioned state president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association for Alabama. Mr. Clements is one of the most prominent public men of Alabama, having served as speaker of the lower house in 1890, besides filling other prominent political stations. He commanded the North Alabama men in the late war, and was widely known for his gallantry. Colonel Clements is a large planter.

A College Destroyed.

Bell Haven female college at Jackson, Miss., has been burned. The fire started in the furnace room, through the engineer's carelessness. Loss, $40,000; insurance, $20,000.

THE NORTH RIVER FROZEN.

A New York special says: Wednesday was the coldest since December 31, 1880. In the ferry slips and for about a quarter of a mile out into the North river the ice was solid. Ferry boats had to ram their way into slips and in many cases made a dozen attempts to reach the landing.

THROUGH PENNSYLVANIA.

The coldest weather in February that Philadelphia ever experienced is now manifesting itself. The temperature at the weather bureau is 3 degrees below zero, with no immediate prospect of a rise. The weather is clear. Advices from points throughout the state report extremely cold weather, the lowest temperature being recorded at Cresson, where the mercury dropped to 20 degrees below zero. Cresson is on the summit of the Allegheny mountains. At Reading the thermometer registered 5 below.

COLDEST IN TWENTY-ONE YEARS.

The temperature at the signal office at Baltimore Wednesday morning was 1 degree above zero, the coldest February weather, with one exception, in twenty-one years.

MONEY IN MATCHES.

Annual Meeting of the Match Trust in Chicago.

The stockholders of the Diamond Match Company held their annual meeting at Chicago Wednesday. The annual report showed a surplus of $1,000,000, which will be issued as stock and distributed among the stockholders as additional dividends. The regular quarterly dividend of 2 1-2 per cent on the capital stock of $9,000,000 was declared and announcement was made of an additional issue of $1,000,000 of stock, to which the stockholders will be given the first opportunity to subscribe.

The committee on claims of the senate have decided to report the amendment to the Sundry civil bill providing for the sugar bounty claims of last year without making any recommendation or committing any members to the support of the proposition in order to allow it to come before the senate. It was this feature of the committee's action which Mr. Mitchell wished to explain to the senate when it was objected to by Senator Harris. The amount involved in the claims is estimated at $8,000,000.

BIG TOBACCO LOSS.

A Warehouse in Cincinnati Burns, Heavy Damage.

The Bodman leaf tobacco warehouse at Cincinnati was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The place was full of valuable leaf tobacco in hogsheads, all of which was destroyed. The loss on the stock is estimated at $240,000, and on the building $60,000.

The list of insurance has not yet been made up, but it is said to fully cover the loss. The firemen suffered severely from the bitter cold weather.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The hearing of the Drayton divorce case at Jersey City which was set for Monday in chancery chambers, has been postponed for a week.

The National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union met at Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday. Secretary Dunning, Congressman Stroud and many other Alliance leaders were present.

Two more ballots were taken in the Deleware legislature Monday for United States senator. They resulted as follows: Higgins, 9; Addicks, 6; Massey, 4; Wolcott, 6; Nicholson, 2; Tunnell, 1.

The boiler at Earl, Carpenter & Co.'s ice house at Providence, R. I., exploded Monday, killing two men outright, injuring a third, so that he died within an hour, and wounding ten others, some of them seriously.

Bids for $140,000 six per cent. Hinds county, Miss., funding bonds were opened by the board of supervisors at Jackson Monday. The prices offered ranged from par to 177 for the entire issue. It is the first time in the history of the state, that 6 per cent. county bonds sold for as much as par.

The report from Shanghai that a hunting party from the United States ship Concord has been overpowered and carried off by the natives near Chin Kiang because they had accidentally shot a Chinaman, although not yet officially confirmed, has given rise to grave concern at the navy and state departments.

Advices received at Paris from Montceau Les mines show that fire broke out in the St. Eugenie pit, and while the miners were fighting this fire an explosion occurred which wrecked the galleries and entombed the miners. The rescue party, thus far, has recovered 21 bodies, and has removed from the ruins eight terribly injured miners.

ANXIETY IN FLORIDA.

Orange Trees and Early Vegetables in Extreme Danger.

Thursday morning's weather report, predicting freezing weather in Florida, created consternation among the fruit and vegetable growers and shippers of these products as well as in the general office of the transportation companies which haul them to market. The local signal station issued the following forecast Thursday morning:

"Showers today, followed by clearing weather. Temperature will fall to about freezing Friday morning. Severe freeze Friday night. Temperature will probably go as low or lower than on December 29th; southwest winds, shifting to high northwest."

President George B. Fairbanks, of the Florida Fruit Exchange said: "If Florida has this freeze as predicted today its effect will be far more disastrous than that of December 29th. Then the orange and lemon trees were thickly covered with foliage and were in fruit. The crop was lost, but the trees, except in a few instances, were uninjured. Now the trees are naked and just beginning to leaf out again and to bud. A freeze would kill them. The new crop of vegetables is now in the most tender stage of growth. A freeze would kill the crop."

ALLIANCEMEN IN SESSION.

The Annual Convention of the Order Held at Raleigh.

The National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union was called to order at Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday afternoon by President Marion Butler at the Metropolitan hotel. Many delegates were present from other states. The stage was flanked by national flags. The desk was draped with one, and one was arranged as a frame of a picture of the late L. L. Polk, in memory of whom the alliance held the meeting in Raleigh. Mayor Thomas Badger welcomed the body in behalf of the city, and President Mewborne, of the state alliance, bade them welcome to North Carolina. H. L. Loucks, of South Dakota, and J. B. Snow Song.

Over valley, over hill,
Hark, the shepherd piping shrill!
Driving all the white flocks forth
From the far folds of the North.
  Blow, Wind, blow;
    Wierd melodies you play,
    Following your flocks that go
    Across the world to-day.

How they hurry, how they crowd,
When they hear the music loud!
Grove and lane and meadow full
Sparkle with their shining wool.
  Blow, Wind, blow
    Until the forests ring;
  Teach the caves the tunes you know,
    And make the chimney sing!

Hither, thither, up and down
Every highway of the town,
Huddling close, the white flocks all
Gather at the shepherd's call.
  Blow, Wind, blow
    Upon your pipes of joy;
  All your sheep the flakes of snow
    And you their shepherd boy!

A LOCK OF HAIR.

Madame Sophie Lebrun was a widow of twenty-seven, very rich, very beautiful, and above all a coquette. Among her admirers, which were many, was Colonel Jean Rapp, who seemed to think that he was held in higher favor than his rivals.

"Madame," he said one day, as he sat beside the object of his adoration in her pretty boudoir, "my leave of absence is nearly at an end. Thursday I must start for the frontier to join the army, and many months will probably elapse before I can return to Paris. Under ordinary circumstances I would gladly respond to the summons to serve my country, but under the present circumstances I shall go with a regret which I venture to hope, although my wish may be a selfish one, that you, too, will share. You must suspect the truth. It is because I am to be deprived of your charming society, my dear friend, that I am loath to depert."

"Colonel, I, too, feel regret. I value your friendship highly."

"I thank you for your kind words. I shall think of them many times when I am far away. But do you think you, also, will not forget? When you are surrounded by your admirers in this gay city, will you you have the time and inclination to remember the soldier who adores you?"

"I shall not forget. But is not your language rather ardent, colonel?"

"It may be too ardent to express sentiments no warmer than those inspired by friendship, but——"

"Stop, please. I know what you would say, and I ask you not to say it, in order that I may not be obliged to make a reply that would cause you pain. If it will give you any comfort," with a fascinating smile that went straight to her lover's heart, "I will acknowledge that of all the gentlemen with whom I am acquainted I like you the best."

"Then, why not give me hope?"

"I said that I liked you the best. To like is not to love. Moreover, I enjoy my freedom, and do not care to marry any one at present."

"But you will at least give me some slight token of your esteem to carry with me on my journey?"

"I will do so with pleasure."

"When shall I receive it?"

"Tomorrow."

The next day, Tuesday, in the morning, a messenger brought a little package to the hotel where the colonel roomed. He tore off the wrapper with eager fingers and found a small pink box queerly ornamented. He opened it and beheld a lock of brown hair.

"Her beautiful hair," he murmured with delight. "She has simply been coyish. She really loves me, and I shall yet win her. I shall purchase a locket and wear the hair next to my heart."

At noon that day Colonel Rapp lunched in a cafe in company with Count Tallien. When they arose from the table the colonel reached for a cigar case that was in an inside pocket of his coat. In his haste he drew forth not only the case, but also the little pink box containing the lock of hair. The box fell to the floor and Count Tallien picked it up. As he looked at it when about to restore it to the owner, his face assumed a peculiar expression.

"Excuse me," he said, "but if you have no objection, I would like to have you tell me whether there is a lock of hair in that box."

"There is," replied his companion, thoroughly surprised.

"Will you permit me to look at the hair? I have an especial reason for desiring to see it."

The colonel wished he had not exposed the box to view, but concluded, under the circumstances, that it was best to grant the request.

"As I suspected," exclaimed the Count, after he had uncovered the box.

"What do you mean?"

"It is a lock of my own hair."

"Impossible!"

"Quite possible, I assure you. Did not Madame Lebrun give you this box?"

"She gave it to me."

"Then all is clear. Two weeks ago I sent her a lock of my hair in this box. This gift she has in turn sent to you, meaning that you should think the hair was cut from her own abundant tresses. But I know it is my hair, for it is two shades lighter than her own, and coarser, as it might be expected a man's hair would be.

"Sir, be careful. You are offering an insult to a lady. You are charging her with a gross deception of which she is incapable."

"It is no insult; it is the truth. I am doing you a kindness by showing you that this woman is a coquette."

"Enough. I will not listen to any more talk of this kind. I insist upon an immediate apology."

"I will not apologize."

"Take that, then."

As he spoke, Colonel Rapp slapped his companion's face with his right hand.

"I demand satisfaction," said the Count.

"You shall have it."

"When?"

"Tomorrow at sunrise, if it will suit your convenience."

"I will meet you then."

The details of the duel were arranged by the seconds, who were immediately chosen.

At the appointed hour the two gentlemen met at a secluded spot on the outskirts of the city. The seconds and a surgeon were the only other persons present. Pistols were the weapons to be used. It had been arranged that the combatants should stand twenty paces apart, with their backs turned toward each other; that one of the seconds should count one, two, three aloud, and then say fire, at which word the duellists were to wheel about and discharge their pistols.

Pale, but determined, Count Tallien and Colonel Rapp took their places, just as the sun appeared in the east. In the freshness of the morning the scene was exceedingly beautiful; a heavenly peace pervaded it, so that the deed about to be done seemed like sacrilege.

"One—two," said one of the seconds, deliberately.

There was a rustling in the bushes near by, but it was not heeded.

"Three. Fire!"

The duellists quickly wheeled and fired.

The scream of a woman rent the air. Madame Lebrun lay on the ground midway between the fighters.

"I am wounded and shall die!" she cried. "I am punished for my deceit. May God have mercy on my soul!"

"A mere scratch," said the phlegmatic surgeon, after a brief examination.

"Then she will live," said Colonel Rapp, in trembling accents.

"Of course."

"Colonel Rapp, can you ever forgive me?" said Madame Lebrun. "It was Count Tallien's hair that was in the box. I loved you, but it piqued me because you were so confident that I would marry you. Accordingly I sought revenge by practising the deceit, although I did not tell you the hair was mine; I let you infer that it was. Some day I intended to enlighten you on the subject and enjoy your discomfiture. A friend of mine happened to hear the seconds in this sad affair talking over the details of the meeting and hastened to me with the news. I was horrified, and bitterly regretted what I had done. I resolved to prevent bloodshed, and had I not lost my way would have been here before the duel was in progress."

"I freely forgive you, dear," said said Colonel Rapp. "Have you not risked your life to save mine?"

Madame Lebrun rewarded his devotion with a beautiful smile. He took her tenderly in his arms and kissed her.

"Jean."

A Stuffed Emperor.

One of the most remarkable stuffed skins on record was that of Valerian, Emperor of Rome, who was taken prisoner and afterward kept in chains by Sapor, King of Persia. He was either killed in a tumult or by order of his conqueror, who was perhaps fearful of losing his valuable living trophy, in the year 269. The body of the dead emperor was treated with no more delicacy than when it had held the spark of a living one. It was skinned, the hide, after being tanned, was stuffed, painted red, and suspended in the chief temple of the capital. It remained there for many years, and was the popular spectacle for holiday makers and visitors from the country. But it was put to more important ends than this; it was made a diplomatic engine of much significance and efficiency. In after times it often happened that the Roman envoys at the Persian court had misunderstandings, more or less serious, with the Government to which they were temporarily accredited. When these ambassadors from Rome grew arrogant in their demands, it was the custom to conduct them into the presence of the stuffed skin of the old ex-Emperor of Rome, where they were asked if humility did not become them at sight of such a spectacle.—Hartford Courant.

Dynamite Engraving.

A novel experiment for the purpose of testing the strength of high explosives is the placing of fresh plucked leaves between two plates of panel steel, and exploding dynamite cartridges on the upper plate.

The recoil in such cases is so great and sudden that the upper plate is driven downward with such force and rapidity as to catch exact impressions of leaves before their delicate ribs have time to give way to the force of the blow. This novel method of engraving is one of the wonders of the centuries.—World of Science.

LIL'S ABDICATION.

HAWAII'S QUEEN RELINQUISHES HER THRONE.

Her Action Supposed to be a Ruse to Escape Punishment.

Advices from Honolulu have reached San Francisco to the effect that Liluokalani has abdicated in favor of the republic. This is by far the most important outcome of the late rebellion. The document was drawn up by A. S. Hartwell, at the request of the ex-queen. It was presented on the 26th instant to President Dole. The document, according to the wording, was executed freely and voluntarily. It was addressed to the president. The ex-queen is yet under arrest.

MANY ARRESTS FOR TREASON.

Arrests for treason and conspiracy have been numerous. In all, there are about 350 under lock and key. Their number includes the prisoners of war. It it thought the government has under arrest nearly all who took part in the rebellion.

ONLY LAWFUL GOVERNMENT.

The letter of abdication, among other things, says:

"In order to avoid any possibility of misunderstanding on the subject, although I do not think that any doubt or misunderstanding is either proper or possible, I do hereby fully and unequivocally admit and declare the government of the republic of Hawaii as the only lawful government of the Hawaiian Islands, and that the late Hawaiian monarchy is finally and forever ended, and no longer of any legal or actual validity, force or effect whatsoever; and I do hereby forever absolve all persons whomsoever whether in the Hawaiian Islands or elsewhere, from all and every manner of allegiance, or official obligation or duty to me and my heirs and successors forever, and I hereby declare to all such persons in the Hawaiian Islands, that I consider them as bound in duty and honor henceforth to support and sustain the government of Hawaii."

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreet's Report of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of trade for the past week says: Uncertainty as to the outcome of the financial situation, based on the rapid withdrawal of gold from the treasury, has had a depressing effect on general trade. Mercantile collections, in most instances, are slower than usual at this season. This is emphasized by the fact that Baltimore jobbers are waiting results of sending out bills for last fall's business before determining as to credits to be granted.

In textiles there is little change or prospect of early improvement. General lines of fancy printed fabrics are going from jobbers' hands fairly well, and print cloths are a shade better than a week ago. Every eastern city reporting specifies a moderate volume of business or that general trade is quiet with a hand-to-mouth demand. Providence reports a fair outlook for woolen goods, manufactures and manufacturing jewelers, but the only line in Philadelphia reporting any like activity is dry goods. At Pittsburg there is encouragement because of the outlook for iron and steel.

At the south a better distribution of shoes, clothing, rubber goods, dry goods and groceries is sufficiently conspicuous at Chattanooga and Galveston to mark trade at those points an exception to the rule throughout the South Atlantic and gulf states. The movement of hardware and dry goods from New Orleans has increased, but trade in general is only of moderate proportions.

Big Memphis Firm Assigns.

Craig & Co., of Memphis, Tenn., dealers in hardware, seeds, agricultural implements, one of the largest firms of the kind in the south, have made a partial assignment. The assets are worth $100,000. The liabilities are $65,000. Of these $14,000 are preferred. The creditors are mostly northern agricultural implement manufacturers.

Providing for the Expenses.

The Tennessee state senate has adopted a resolution appropriating $10,000 to pay the expenses of the investigation of the governor's election, not to include attorneys' fees.

EVANS ENTERS A PROTEST.

The Counting of the Vote for Governor of Tennessee Begun.

When the two houses of the general assembly of Tennessee met Tuesday to open the returns of election for governor in November last, Senator Butler, republican, read a protest from Hon. H. Clay Evans, the republican claimant for the governorship.

Mr. Evans protested that the election contest law enacted by the legislature was unconstitutional, and he insisted that the joint assembly open and publish the returns as the constitution required without any interference on the part of the joint legislative assembly.

The reading of the protest was followed by applause from the galleries.

The returns of the counties were then opened and objections were filed by Messrs. Evans and Turney to the reception of the votes of various counties.

When the convention took a recess at 2:30 o'clock sixty-seven counties had been opened. Of the sixty-seven counties opened fifty-one have so far been objected to. The attorneys for both Governor Turney and Mr. Evans made a protest against counting the vote of the four counties of Bedford, Franklin, Henry and Lawrence. The attorneys for Governor Turney objected to twenty-three counties, as follows:

Anderson, Blount, Bradley, Campbell, Cooke, Crockett, DeKalb, Carroll, Carter, Claiborne, Fentress, Granger, Greene, Hamblin, Hancock, Hardin, Hawkins, Johnson, Knox, London, Macon, Marion and Morgan.

The attorneys for Governor Evans objected to twenty-four counties, as follows: Benton, Cannon, Chatham, Chester, Clay, Coffee, Davidson, Dickson, Dyer, Fayette, Gibson, Giles, Grundy, Hardeman, Haywood, Humphreys, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lincoln, Madison, Marshall, Maury, Moore and Obion.

The sixteen counties of Bledsoe, Cumberland, Decatur, Hamilton, Henderson, Hickman, Houston, James, Jefferson, Lake, Lewis, McMinn, McNairy, Meigs, Monroe and Montgomery were not objected to.

Colonel John J. Vertrees acted as spokesman for Governor Turney and Robert Pritchard, of Chattanooga, for Mr. Evans. Governor Turney's other counsel were W. M. Vertrees, J. D. Anderson, J. M. Dickinson, J. W. Gaines and W. H. Carroll, chairman of the democratic state executive committee.

Mr. Evans was on the floor in person and was represented by Congressman-elect Henry R. Gibson, Jesse Rogers, of Knoxville, John Ruhm, G. H. Tillman and W. S. Colyar, of Nashville, and Sam W. Hawkins, of Huntingdon. The returns so far as opened do not vary from the returns received by Secretary of State Morgan. The objections now made are only formal. Specific objections will be filed later.

A RAILROAD WRECK.

Express Train Jumps the Track and Crushes Into a Freight.

The worst wreck that has happened on the Pittsburg, Pa., division of the Baltimore and Ohio road for several years occurred at Woodell, three miles from Washington. The eastbound express, No. 106, jumped the track and entered the siding, crashing into the rear of a freight standing there. Ed Robinson, of Glenwood, flagman, and Frank Kelly, of Glenwood, brakeman on the freight were killed. The engine and baggage car of the express were badly wrecked, but the engineer and fireman escaped with only a few bruises.

COLONEL CLEMENTS.

Alabama's President of Cotton Growers' Association.

Colonel N. N. Clements, of Tuscaloosa, has been commissioned state president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association for Alabama. Mr. Clements is one of the most prominent public men of Alabama, having served as speaker of the lower house in 1890, besides filling other prominent political stations. He commanded the North Alabama men in the late war, and was widely known for his gallantry. Colonel Clements is a large planter.

A College Destroyed.

Bell Haven female college at Jackson, Miss., has been burned. The fire started in the furnace room, through the engineer's carelessness. Loss, $40,000; insurance, $20,000.

THE NORTH RIVER FROZEN.

A New York special says: Wednesday was the coldest since December 31, 1880. In the ferry slips and for about a quarter of a mile out into the North river the ice was solid. Ferry boats had to ram their way into slips and in many cases made a dozen attempts to reach the landing.

THROUGH PENNSYLVANIA.

The coldest weather in February that Philadelphia ever experienced is now manifesting itself. The temperature at the weather bureau is 3 degrees below zero, with no immediate prospect of a rise. The weather is clear. Advices from points throughout the state report extremely cold weather, the lowest temperature being recorded at Cresson, where the mercury dropped to 20 degrees below zero. Cresson is on the summit of the Allegheny mountains. At Reading the thermometer registered 5 below.

COLDEST IN TWENTY-ONE YEARS.

The temperature at the signal office at Baltimore Wednesday morning was 1 degree above zero, the coldest February weather, with one exception, in twenty-one years.

MONEY IN MATCHES.

Annual Meeting of the Match Trust in Chicago.

The stockholders of the Diamond Match Company held their annual meeting at Chicago Wednesday. The annual report showed a surplus of $1,000,000, which will be issued as stock and distributed among the stockholders as additional dividends. The regular quarterly dividend of 2 1-2 per cent on the capital stock of $9,000,000 was declared and announcement was made of an additional issue of $1,000,000 of stock, to which the stockholders will be given the first opportunity to subscribe.

The committee on claims of the senate have decided to report the amendment to the Sundry civil bill providing for the sugar bounty claims of last year without making any recommendation or committing any members to the support of the proposition in order to allow it to come before the senate. It was this feature of the committee's action which Mr. Mitchell wished to explain to the senate when it was objected to by Senator Harris. The amount involved in the claims is estimated at $8,000,000.

BIG TOBACCO LOSS.

A Warehouse in Cincinnati Burns, Heavy Damage.

The Bodman leaf tobacco warehouse at Cincinnati was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The place was full of valuable leaf tobacco in hogsheads, all of which was destroyed. The loss on the stock is estimated at $340,000, and on the building $60,000.

The list of insurance has not yet been made up, but it is said to fully cover the loss. The firemen suffered severely from the bitter cold weather.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The hearing of the Drayton divorce case at Jersey City which was set for Monday in chancery chambers, has been postponed for a week.

The National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union met at Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday. Secretary Dunning, Congressman Stroud and many other Alliance leaders were present.

Two more ballots were taken in the Deleware legislature Monday for United States senator. They resulted as follows: Higgins, 9; Addicks, 6; Massey, 4; Wolcott, 6; Nicholson, 2; Tunnell, 1.

The boiler at Earl, Carpenter & Co.'s ice house at Providence, R. I., exploded Monday, killing two men outright, injuring a third, so that he died within an hour, and wounding ten others, some of them seriously.

Bids for $140,000 six per cent. Hinds county, Miss., funding bonds were opened by the board of supervisors at Jackson Monday. The prices offered ranged from par to 177 for the entire issue. It is the first time in the history of the state, that 6 per cent. county bonds sold for as much as par.

The report from Shanghai that a hunting party from the United States ship Concord has been overpowered and carried off by the natives near Chin Kiang because they had accidentally shot a Chinaman, although not yet officially confirmed, has given rise to grave concern at the navy and state departments.

Advices received at Paris from Montceau Les mines show that fire broke out in the St. Eugenie pit, and while the miners were fighting this fire an explosion occurred which wrecked the galleries and entombed the miners. The rescue party, thus far, has recovered 21 bodies, and has removed from the ruins eight terribly injured miners.

ANXIETY IN FLORIDA.

Orange Trees and Early Vegetables in Extreme Danger.

Thursday morning's weather report, predicting freezing weather in Florida, created consternation among the fruit and vegetable growers and shippers of these products as well as in the general office of the transportation companies which haul them to market. The local signal station issued the following forecast Thursday morning:

"Showers today, followed by clearing weather. Temperature will fall to about freezing Friday morning. Severe freeze Friday night. Temperature will probably go as low or lower than on December 29th; southwest winds, shifting to high northwest."

President George B. Fairbanks, of the Florida Fruit Exchange said: "If Florida has this freeze as predicted today its effect will be far more disastrous than that of December 29th. Then the orange and lemon trees were thickly covered with foliage and were in fruit. The crop was lost, but the trees, except in a few instances, were uninjured. Now the trees are naked and just beginning to leaf out again and to bud. A freeze would kill them. The new crop of vegetables is now in the most tender stage of growth. A freeze would kill the crop."

ALLIANCEMEN IN SESSION.

The Annual Convention of the Order Held at Raleigh.

The National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union was called to order at Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday afternoon by President Marion Butler at the Metropolitan hotel. Many delegates were present from other states. The stage was flanked by national flags. The desk was draped with one, and one was arranged as a frame of a picture of the late L. L. Polk, in memory of whom the alliance held the meeting in Raleigh. Mayor Thomas Budger welcomed the body in behalf of the city, and President Mewborne, of the state alliance, bade them welcome to North Carolina. H. L. Loucks, of South Dakota, and J. E. Dean, of New York, responded. In the evening there was a secret session held for business.

An exchange makes a sensible remark when it said: "raising 5 cent cotton is down hill business but it pays better than to raise a boy to lie around town and eat free grub." No greater injustice can be done a boy than to allow him to lie about in idleness. Lack of employment gives him the opportunity to congregate with those who will lead him astray. Idleness is the breeder of nearly all the vices which vitiate and destroy our pure and thoughtless boys.

The experience of Geo. A. Apgar of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He was troubled with chronic diarrhoea and doctored for five months and was treated by four different doctors without benefit. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, of which one small bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

The editor of the Conecuh Record has just concluded the publication of a splendid story in his paper. "About Our Girls" served to lay before unthinking parents the dangers which everywhere beset the girls who train in "society's" way. In conclusion he adds these words "Is the story true?" will be asked by every reader of these lines. The writer will refer the question to the families who worship at Society's shrine. The skeletons that are hid away in the closets of society people will never be known.

But if the hearts of mothers and fathers could be unlocked, the air would be filled with curses on the german, the theater, the saloon and the card party. If the lights could be turned on to the baseness and the beastliness of some things in society, "the very best"—as it is sometimes called, a cry of indignation would be heard, which would open the eyes and ears of parents to the dangers confronting their daughters.

THE PRESS PILGRIMAGE TO HAVANA

The pilgrimage of the Alabama Press to the shrine of America's great discoverer returning through some of the oldest and fairest cities of the land he discovered, has been successfully accomplished, and after two weeks' excitement of travel and sight-seeing, the pilgrim-editors have laid aside the staff and scrip, in other words, the cane and grip, and settled down again to the quiet ways of the quill. Leaving Montgomery January 11th, one night's journey covered southeastern Alabama and southern Georgia, morning finding us hurrying southward in Florida. But alas, for the evergreen landscapes of our expectation! The frost king had been here before us, and his blighting touch was everywhere to be seen in withered plants, foliage, and whole groves of orange trees.

About 10 A. M., some one announced our approach to Suwanee River, and every body was on the qui vive to see this little stream, immortalized by Glover in one of America's most popular melodies.

The train passed it at a very picturesque bend, and if this could have been the exact spot so pathetically lamented by the Christie Minstrels forty years ago, the "one little hut among de bushes" is one of many now, and "de bushes" have not only grown to lofty trees but some are marked by the hoary beard of old age. The early nightfall of this latitude found us nearing Tampa, and the monotonous scenery of the afternoon tending to drowsiness, we were half asleep when a sudden turn of the road caused us to start, rub our eyes, look and look again. Were we dreaming of the Court of Honor at the World's Fair, or could it be something real?

Some one near exclaimed "Tampa Bay Hotel" and then we knew that this magnificent spectacle before us was the capsheaf of Mr. H. B. Plant's wonderful achievement.

That this Spanish-Moresque palace with its slender towering minarets, made graceful by art, glorified by decorations worthy of royalty, and sparkling with electric light, was the grand result of many years patient study and careful observation in different countries throughout the world.

Too soon like an air-castle, it faded from sight but we were consoled by the promise of realizing this beautiful vision on our return.

So we continued supper-ward to Port Tampa to "The Inn" nearly a mile out on a pier, in the Gulf of Mexico. With our heads full of Grenada, Andalusian maidens, knights of chivalry, tilts, tournaments, guitars and castanets, it was a startling change to step into prosaic old England. But, when standing in the cozy parlor of "The Inn" under the heavy cross-beams of the ceiling, before the wide, antique fire-place, in the mellow glow of the crackling logs (the nights are cool out here on the water) noting the quaint chimney, casement windows, with diamond-shaped panes and beautiful high wainscoting, and with our fancy already bewitched; if a round faced benevolent looking gentleman wearing gold spectacles, followed by a smart young person carrying his portmanteau, had entered and registered as "Mr. Pickwick and Servant" it would have seemed perfectly natural, quite the thing to be expected. After supper and a stroll on the covered promenade in front of "The Inn" we boarded the steamer Olivette, ready to continue our journey down the Gulf.

Starting was slow work, for even in the hurry and bustle of leaving, this magnificent creature did not forget her manners. Without turning her back to the "land of the free" but as if withdrawing from the presence of royalty, she retired slowly and gracefully, keeping her head towards the shore, until out a proper distance, then she turned and sailed rapidly away under the southern moon.

It was a lovely night, the sky so peaceful, and waters so calm, that some of us who had expressed ourselves doubtfully, when questioned as to being good sailors, plucked up courage, assumed a more confident air, and supposed we were no worse than many others. But the rough passage in the morning changed all that, rendering our inward misgivings worse than ever and making the dining-room with its savory odors anything but a popular place. The misery however, was of short duration, and after a morning of fasting and retirement, we were all able to appear at dinner, and to go up on deck afterwards and watch for land. About 2 P. M. a thin coast of earth appearing between sky and sea on horizon was pronounced and soon the "Island City" in all her tropical beauty was in full sight, her lofty palms waving a greeting and beckoning us to stop and see them. We accepted their graceful invitation, and spent the remainder of the day and evening, admiring the tidy, pleasant streets and handsome buildings, and in learning of the surprising commercial interests in cigars, fisheries, turtles and sponges of this busy little city. Being Sunday, and all business suspended, we could not visit the stores, markets, sponge lofts and cigar factories, but found enough to engage our time and attention, in the custom house, masonic temple, San Carlos hall, old barracks, convent, churches, old bastioned fort and lovely flower gardens, brilliant with rare exotics in fanciful-shaped beds with gay borders, looking for all the world like embroidered patch-work. The tropical vegetation being new to some of us, proved very interesting.

Cocoa palms eighty feet high, like tall sentinels guarding the island; a banyan from India, the only one growing out of doors in the United States; wild fig or native rubber trees greatly resembling the banyan; tamarind, lemon, pomegranate and whole forest of bananas and guavas; the flowers being such as night blooming cereus, poncianas and magnolia fruscati.

A curious freak of nature noted in one place, was that of a date palm and fig tree, which having taken root in the same crevice, has grown up together, the fig encircling the palm in a perfect net work of vine-like growth. They seemed equally vigorous in health and neither showed any sign of giving up the struggle for life.

Much impressed and pleased with our visit, and with our respect for the little Coral Polyps, that had given the world this sunny garden spot, vastly increased, we returned to the vessel and at 10 P. M. were out on the water again, this time headed for the ultima thule of the trip.

HAVANA.

The grey dawn of Monday found us all up, eager to watch the entry into port and the sight was well worth the effort. As soon as we anchored, a mile from the landing an agent from the hotel, we had engaged to patronize, appeared among us labelling our baggage.

We were then ready to be lowered into small boats for the shore, and passing a large vessel with a lot of jolly tars high up among the rigging, were soon on land.

The first evidence of being in a foreign country, was a Spanish officer who met us in the wharf-boat and with a spreading sweep of his open hands, indicated, that our portable baggage was to be spread open also. After a hasty inspection, (of course we had nothing contraband.) a hieroglyphic was chalked on each valise and satchel and the freedom of the city was ours. To those of us, who had neglected to bring our Spanish along, or hadn't much to bring, it proved at first an embarrassing possession. But only at first. We soon found, that when our Castilian was exhausted and all signs a failure, the old Indian picture writing would do to fall back upon.

A cab ride of nearly a mile brought us to our destination "Gran Hotel Pasaje" and we drew up before an imposing, white, three storied building, with colonnade the length of the block, and facing a beautiful shady park, where the military are reviewed morning.

The interior arrangement is much like an American hotel, except that every provision is made for comfort in hot weather, which this climate requires. No carpets but tiled floors everywhere, even in the bed rooms where dainty, canopied lace draped snowy beds, invite repose. Downstairs the dining room on the ground floor, level with the side-walk, has front and side opening one court of glass, to be kept open all day, and in the evening small tables are often placed out on the side walk.

After an early Cuban meal of coffee, rolls and fruit, our sight seeing began with a trip to the Grand Market where almost everything eatable and uneatable is offered for sale. Here we found so much that was curious and novel, that we could have spent the whole day without being satisfied. Fruits and vegetables we had never seen, bread made in long twists or as someone remarked "bread by the yard" all kinds of fowls, and what looked very odd to us was the sale of them by portion, a wing, leg, or breast of a chicken cut to suit the customer.

Returning for regular breakfast at 11 A. M., next came an excursion through the handsome suburbs to the cocoa nut and pine apple plantations. En route any objects of interest were noted; cactus hedges eight feet high and two feet thick; calladiums wild by the road-side; bannanas growing along the fences, as common as our blackberry bushes; ruins of cemetery and mortuary chapel 150 years old; but the noblest sight of all was a stately avenue of cocoa palms with their long slender leaves gracefully drooping towards each other, high overhead.

A Des Moines woman who been troubled with frequent colds, concluded to try an old remedy in a new way, and accordingly took a tablespoonful (four times the usual dose) of Chamberlains Cough Remedy just before going to bed. The next morning she found that her cold had almost entirely disappeared. During the day she took a few doses of the remedy (one teaspoonful at a time) and at night again took a tablespoonful before going to bed, and on the following morning awoke free from all symptoms of the cold. Since then she has, on several occasions, used this remedy in like manner, with the same good results, and is much elated over her discovery of so quick a way of curing a cold. Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Last Tuesday the preliminary trial of Wiley Bice charged with assault with intent to murder Jonathan Bice, was held before W. E. Stewart. After hearing the evidence and arguments defendent was placed under a bond of $100. This is substantially the evidence given in. Tommie Ogletree heard Dutch Crosby say that he and Wiley Bice were going to do somebody up and that they were prepared for that business. He believes that they meant Jonathan Bice and went and told him. Bice acting on the suggestion got his pistol. Wiley Bice and Dutch Crosby came into J. Bice's store and said that if they would report a still and get [illegible] they might be able to buy an overcoat too. These two went out the back door, remained sometime when Wiley Bice came back into the store. J. Bice invited him to come up to the Post Office and have a settlement, saying; I have been your friend and would be yet if you would let me, but we will have a settlement and then I'll be one man and you will be another. Wiley accused him of having been his enemy, stirring his wife etc. Jonathan said he was appointed on a committee from his church to investigate certain rumors against his wife and acted for her good and in the interest of the church.

The lie was passed and then a few licks were attempted back and forth then an agreement to postpone further difficulty. About this time Dutch Crosby rushed in exclaiming; I'll show you, I'll show you; at the same time seeking to pull his pistol out of his right hand pocket. J. Bice warned him not to pull his pistol, but on his doing so J. Bice threw his pistol across the counter and simultaneously two shots rang out.

Just about the time J. Bice threw his pistol over the counter Wiley Bice grabbed the pistol with one hand and J. Bice's left wrist with the other, and held him thus until Dutch Crosby had emptied his pistol at J. Bice and put a ball into W. C. Ogletree, and only released his hold after Tommie Ogletree had fired two shots at Dutch Crosby and when at point of a pistol [illegible] it belonged to Wiley Bice and that he got it off of Bice's mantel piece when he went there to get Bice to go with him to Strasburg so that he could hear him tell Jonathan Bice that he and his brother George did not give the still away. This testimony was ruled out.

During the trial the facts were brought out that Wiley Bice had been arrested by U. S. marshal for illicit distilling and placed under bond, and that Jonathan Bice had made his bond for him, and that the entire trouble grew out of that still.

Pure Air and Medicine.

It isn't drugs or medicines that is needed at all; it is plenty of the purest air that can be had. Open the windows and the doors, clear out the cellars and ventilate it thoroughly, remove the dampness, the mustiness, the ancient odor, the smell of decay which greets the nostrils when one enters from the health-giving atmosphere out of doors. Never mind if the outer air bears the taint of the gas house, the manufactory or some other unpleasant thing; it is also mingled with the health and strength-giving forces of nature, and is certainly better for the human system than the same air which has been shut up and contaminated for an indefinite period with no chance for purification. Don't mind even if a little dust is brought in. A few minutes with the duster will put the house in perfect order again, and even at the worst, dust is not half so bad as disease. And as for fear of draughts, with colds and a thousand resultant evils following in their train, nineteen-twentieths of that is imaginary, and the other twentieth is easily avoidable. —Good Housekeeping.

A Kind Friend.

It is good for a man to have a friend who knows how to say the right thing. When Tommers got so hard up that he had to take a job at laying gas pipe he was astonished to find his friend Brown looking down at him in the trench one day.

"This is not the first time I have seen you here," said Brown. "And, by the way, I saw Miss Willis the other day and she asked about you."

"For heaven's sake, you didn't give me away, did you?"

"Well, you know, I cannot tell a lie."

"You contemptible——"

"Hold on. When she asked what had become of you, I told her that the last time I saw you, you were at the corner turning up the street."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Aunt—Why so?

Little Dot—When I was out walkin' my foot began to hurt me so I had to sit right down and take off my shoe; and what do you think it was that hurt? It was a button-hook that had got in my shoe.

Aunt—But where was the luck?

Little Dot—Why, don't you see? I had the button-hook to put on my shoe again.

This medicinal cordial relieves every disturbance of the stomach, liver and bowels, malaria, rheumatism and kidney trouble, and is highly commended by tourists and commercial travelers.

There is no progress, however rapid, but that clouds may intervene.

An Important Difference.

WHAT THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS ARE DOING.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

A sensational episode occurred in the senate as soon as the session opened Tuesday. Mr. Mitchell, republican, of Oregon, rose to make a report on certain sugar bounty claims on which, he said, he desired to make a brief explanation. "There will have to be an explanation when the subject comes up," interposed Mr. Harris, democrat, of Tennessee, "so that it will be a waste of time to have an explanation now. I therefore object." Mr. Mitchell urged that the explanation would not take three minutes, but Mr. Harris shook his head. "Then," said Mr. Mitchell, with growing impatience, "I will not make the report, I will withdraw it. It is most extraordinary that senators cannot submit a brief explanation if they so desire. It is remarkable." Mr. Mitchell's words were snapped out vehemently. "It is needless for the senator to protest," said Mr. Harris. "I object; and I emphasize it, I object." This led to a regular wordy battle. The presiding officer had been rapping vigorously as the controversy proceeded. "The senators must proceed in order," he repeated. The colleagues of the two angry senators gathered about them and their indignant postulations continued in subdued tones. The presiding officer directed the clerk to proceed with other business and the incident was summarily closed.

The senate took up the diplomatic appropriations bill Wednesday and was engaged most of the day in debate over an amendment appropriating $500,000 to begin the laying of a cable to Hawaii.

The credentials of Lucien Baker as senator from Kansas for the term beginning March 4th next were presented to the senate Thursday. A termination to the spirited incident the other day between Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, and Mr. Harris, of Tennessee, occurred when the former presented an explanation of certain sugar bounty claims. Mr. Harris, looking rather serious, spoke of his objection the other day, but said he would not renew it. Mr. Mitchell said he was glad to hear the senator admit that he had made a mistake. It looked for a moment as though the sparks might fly again, but Mr. Harris rose to reply and then sat down again, evidently ready to let the personal incident close. Mr. Mitchell said the sugar bounty claims had brought out a difference of opinion of the claims. There were two propositions submitted. One was to pay in full, the balance of the bounty earned up to the passage of the new tariff act, which repealed the bounty. The other was to pay one half of the bounty for the year 1895, since the passage of the act. The total bounty would be about $15,000,000, and the claims for one half would be $7,500,000. The total of claims before and after the tariff act would thus aggregate about $6,000,000. Mr. Blanchard, democrat, of Louisiana, said these estimates were mere conjecture. The sugar producers questioned their correctness. Mr. Cockrell, democrat, of Missouri, chairman of the appropriation committee, protested against having these bounty claims "dumped" on the appropriation committee. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Pasco declared there was no disposition to shirk responsibility or to "dump" the question on the appropriation committee without action. The claims were finally referred to the appropriation committee.

THE HOUSE.

The omnibus war bill was considered in the house Monday. Some preliminary routine business preceded the presentation of the special order. The conference reports on the fortifications and army appropriation bills were adopted. Bills were passed to authorize the Arkansas and Northwestern Railroad Company to construct a road across the Indian Territory, to authorize the governor of Alaska to create precincts and appoint justices of the peace. Mr. Catchings, from the committee on rules, introduced a special order for the consideration of omnibus war claim bill. Opposition developed and the bill went over without action.

The boundary dispute between Venezuela and Great Britain over the delimitation of the frontier of British Guiana was the occasion of the passage of a joint resolution by the house Wednesday recommending the parties to submit the controversy to arbitration. The joint resolution was reported from the committee on foreign affairs, and was in accordance with the suggestion of President Cleveland in his last annual message. Bills were introduced to obviate objections to the original measures pointed out by the president, to pension Richard R. Knight and to grant the Gila Valley, Grove and Northern Railroad company a right of way through the San Carlos Indian reservation in Arizona. The currency and banking and gold loan bill was discussed for five hours, after which amendments were in order.

The house has discussed plans for financial relief three days, and refused by decisive votes to pass any one of them. When the committee of the whole, at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, concluded its sessions, three propositions were reported to the house for its action—the original Springer bill (known as the administration bill) proposing the issue of $500,000,000 3 per cent fifty-year gold bonds, as amended by the committee of the whole; the substitute proposed by Mr. Reed, authorizing the issue of two-year 3 per cent certificates of indebtedness to meet current deficiencies in the revenue, and bonds to cover the deficiency in the gold reserve with an amendment proposed by Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, reaffirming the declaration of the Mathews resolution of 1878, to the effect that coin obligations of the government are payable in standard silver dollars at its option; and the substitute of Mr. Cox, democrat, of Tennessee, containing a rehabilitation of state banks with an amendment proposed by Mr. Cobb, democrat, of Alabama, expressly declining to confer the right to issue bonds upon the secretary of the treasury. Mr. Bryan's amendment was refused—yeas 127, nays 169—and then Mr. Reed's substitute went the same way by a vote of 109 to 187. This was nearly a party vote, the populists and democrats on one side and republicans in favor of the substitute. The amendment proposed by Mr. Cobb to Mr. Cox's substitute was voted down viva voce, and the substitute itself received but 65 votes in the affirmative to 184 in the negative. Mr. Cox's request for a yea and nay vote was not supported by a sufficient number to secure it. By the unexpectedly large vote of 159 nays and 97 ayes the house, upon a division, refused to order the engrossment and third reading of the amended Springer bill, which announcement was received with applause. A vote by the yeas and nays somewhat reduced the majority against the bill, it resulting yeas 135, nays, 162; present and not voting 4.

NO GOLD BONDS.

MR. CLEVELAND'S FINANCIAL BILL KILLED IN THE HOUSE,

Consequently He Can Issue None But Coin Bonds.

The hopes of the president and Secretary Carlisle of securing from this congress authority to issue gold bonds have gone glimmering.

The house met at 11 o'clock Thursday morning amidst a driving snowstorm and with the wind blowing a blizzard. The consideration of the bill in committee of the whole proceeded until 3:30 o'clock, when the final voting began. A number of amendments designed to perfect the bill, should congress, enact it, were adopted by the committee, and a number of others designed to give real relief to the people were voted down.

Wheeler's proposition to repeal the state bank tax was defeated, as was that of Bell, of Colorado, to sell the bonds for gold and silver and make half of them payable in the one and half in the other metal.

Mr. Hatch's proposition to redeem them in treasury notes issued under the Sherman law and to coin the silver seigniorage now in the treasury failed by only five votes.

Mr. Terry, of Arkansas, proposed an amendment providing for the coinage of standard silver dollars in any one year at the request of any state equal to the number of inhabitants of such state.

The clerk had not finished reading it when the hour for voting arrived, the committee rose, reported progress and the house was face to face with the final scenes. There was great confusion for the moment. Mr. Terry took up a position immediately in front of the speaker's desk, in the middle aisle, and made the point of order that as his amendment was being read when the committee rose, it should be regarded, as pending and be voted on by the house. His point was promptly ruled out of order amidst the laughter of all who noticed what a cold trail Mr. Terry was on. Then the house began voting and voted down every material proposition as fast as it could get to it.

The minor amendments to the bill adopted in committee were agreed to without a division, but when it came to Mr. Reed's substitute, it was done to legislative death by nearly eighty majority. Then the bill itself was buried beneath an adverse majority of nearly thirty. And thus ends for this congress all hope, chance or prospect of legislating absolute gold bonds into existence.

THE ELBE INQUIRY.

Inquest Over the Body of One of the Victims.

A coroner's inquest on the body of Friedrich Ernst, which was picked up by the fishing smack Verena, was begun at Lowestoft Tuesday. It is now said that Ernst was not a steerage passenger, but a seaman belonging to the crew of the Elbe. The coroner, in opening the proceedings, said it was his intention to make a thorough inquiry into the circumstances of the loss of the Elbe and would adjourn the inquest for three weeks after the formal evidence had been taken, in order to communicate with the board of trade in regard to the exact course to be pursued. The German vice consul and an agent of the North German Lloyd's Steamship Company were present.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all over the south, for the past week, indicate that the cotton planters are aroused to the necessity of reducing the crop, and that the area to be planted next season, as shown by the demand for fertilizers, will be much less than last year, it being too early as yet to make a definite estimate.

The interest in establishing new cotton mills is now very great in all parts of the south. During the week a $400,000 mill was reported to be established near Aiken, S. C.; one with the same capital at Macon, Ga.; a $250,000 one at Baton Rouge, La.; one with $100,000 capital, at Dawson, Ga.; two at LaGrange, Ga., one of them with $100,000 capital; a $75,000 woolen mill at Chattanooga, Tenn.; a $50,000 cotton mill at Waco, Tex.; one with $35,000 capital at Augusta, Ga., and others at Athens, Barnesville, Cartersville and Chipley, Ga., Franklinton, N. C., Laurens and Rock Hill, S. C., Belton and Temple, Tex., Norfolk Va. It is also reported that a large mill at New Hartford, Conn., is seeking a location in the south.

Iron producers say that the unsettled condition of financial affairs is preventing large sales of pig iron, but the output has not been reduced. Coal mining is active in all southern mines, and the demand for coal and coke continues to be large. Lumber production increases and prospects are favorable.

Among important new industries in the south, reported during the week, are: A phosphate mining company and fertilizer works at Charleston, S. C., with $250,000 capital; a manufacturing company with $150,000 capital at New Berne, S. C.; a $100,000 brick plant at LaGrange, Ga.; a $100,000 compress at Waco, Tex.; a $100,000 land company at Columbia, S. C.; a $50,000 trunk factory at Petersburg, Va., and a $50,000 lamp black factory at Savannah, Ga.

There was also reported among the fifty-four new industries of the week organized or established in the southern states: A flouring mill at Gainesville, Fla., a foundry at Aiken, S. C.; mining companies at Clement's Depot, Ala., Austin, Tex., and Big Stone Gap, Va.; a $50,000 paper mill at Lexington, Ky.; a $25,000 bleachery at West Point, Ga.; tobacco works with $50,000 capital at Winchester, Va., and woodworking plants at Brewton and Bedford, Ala., Newport and Pine Bluff, Ark., Crandalls, Fla., Adel, Ga., Ashland and Guthrie, Ky., High Point and Weldon, N. C., and Lewisburg and Riceville, Tenn.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

The Professor's Mistake.

The college boys are laughing over a little joke that they played on one of the professors this week. This particular professor is somewhat nearsighted, as are most professors. The boys thought that they would play a harmless joke on him. So one of them got his coat and hat and fixed up a passably good dummy before the said professor came into the class room. When he came in the first thing that met his eyes was a student who was ill-mannered enough to wear his hat in the class room.

"Will that gentleman sitting between Mr. A and Mr. B remove his hat?" the professor said mildly.

"Will that gentleman with his hat on please remove it?" again spoke the professor.

The hat and coat suddenly disappeared and the recitation went on as if nothing had happened. It is doubtful if the professor knows now that he had been fooled.—Syracuse Post.

A BRIGHT STAR.

A SKETCH OF THE MAN WHO LED MARY ANDERSON TO FAME.

Also Played Leading Roles With Booth, Barrett and Thorne.

(From the St. Louis Chronicle.)

One of the most conspicuous figures in the Stageland of America to-day is John W. Norton. Born in the seventh ward of New York City forty-six years ago, the friends of his youth were Thomas W. Keene and Frank Chanfrau. We find Keene a star at the age of 25 and Norton in the flower of early manhood the leading man for Edwin Booth at the famous Winter Garden Theatre. He was starred with Lawrence Barrett early in the 70s, and alternated the leading roles with Charles Thorne at the Variety Theatre in New Orleans. Early in the Centennial year, in Louisville, Norton met our Mary Anderson, then a fair young girl who aspired for stage fame, took her under his guidance and, as everybody knows, led her to fame. Mr. Norton is now the proprietor of the Grand Opera House in St. Louis, the Du Quesne Theatre, Pittsburg, and one of the stockholders in the American Extravaganza Company.

One afternoon early in June he hobbled into his New York Office on Broadway and encountered his business manager, George McManus, who had also been a rheumatic sufferer for two years. Norton was surprised that McManus had discarded his cane. Who cured you? he asked. "I cured myself," replied McManus, "with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"I was encouraged by Mr. McManus' cure and as a last resort tried the Pink Pills myself," said Mr. Norton to a Chronicle reporter. "You have known me for five years and know how I have suffered. Why, during the summer of 1893 I was on my back at the Mullanphy Hospital, in this city, four weeks. I was put on the old system of dieting, with a view to clearing those acidulous properties in my blood that medical theorists say is the cause of my rheumatism. I left the Hospital feeling stronger, but the first damp weather brought with it those excruciating pains in the legs and back. It was the same old trouble. After sitting down for a stretch of five minutes the pains screwed my legs into a knot when I arose, and I hobbled as painfully as ever. After I had taken my first box of Pink Pills it struck me that the pains were less troublesome. I tried another box, and I began almost unconsciously to have faith in the Pink Pills. I improved so rapidly that I could rise after sitting at my desk for an hour and the twinges of rheumatism that accompanied my rising were so mild that I scarcely noticed them. During the past two weeks we have had much rainy weather in St. Louis. But the dampness has not had the slightest effect in bringing back the rheumatism, which I consider a sufficient and reliable test of the efficacy of Pink Pills. I may also say that the Pink Pills have acted as a tonic on my stomach, which I thought was well nigh destroyed by the thousand and one alleged remedies I consumed in the past five years."

The greatest conqueror is he who can conquer himself.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Speaking from her Experience,

After years of practical use and a trial of many brands of baking powder (some of which she recommended before becoming acquainted with the great qualities of the Royal), Marion Harland finds the Royal Baking Powder to be greatly superior to all similar preparations, and states that she uses it exclusively, and deems it an act of justice and a pleasure to recommend it unqualifiedly to American Housewives.

The testimony of this gifted authority upon Household Economy coincides with that of millions of housekeepers, many of whom speak from knowledge obtained from a continuous use of Royal Baking Powder for a third of a century.

Do You Suppose,

That St. Valentine was selected as the patron of all lovers because he lost his head?

That you would be really happy if you had everything you want?

That men really believe one-half of the "smart" things they write about women?

That man is such an inferior creature after all?

That an education of mind and heart makes a woman any less the good housekeeper?

That any two mothers will ever have the same ideas about the bringing up of children?

That a taste for neatness, tidiness and general snugness, lessen one's taste for things intellectual?

That this world was made for your special benefit?

That the troubles you worry over are half as serious as you think them?

That your baby boy is really the brightest child ever born?

That the person who chews gum in public is a lady?

That your granddaughter will smile at your finery as you do at your grandmother's?

That it really is so much harder to say the pleasant thing than the disagreeable one?

That the world would be as wicked as it is if Satan was as indolent in doing evil as many Christians are in doing good?

That our professions will help us much if our lives do not come up to them?

That we will all wear immense bustles again if fashion commands it?

That we can give money to the Lord acceptably, while our legal debts remain unpaid?

That the time will ever come when an editor does not receive every day, on an average, three important letters, requiring an answer, but without a signature?

That the average man will know what to do with himself when the millennium comes?—Womankind.

To Accelerate Industry.

The old colored uncle applied to the druggist for some whisky, not because he needed it, but because he wanted it.

"We can't let you have it, uncle, except for medicinal or mechanical purposes. You are not sick, are you?"

It was a powerful temptation, but the old man overcame it.

"No, sah," he said, weakly.

"And you don't need it for mechanical purposes?"

"What's dem, sah?"

"Oh, well, for manufacturing or other industries."

"Dat's it, sah; dat's it," exclaimed the old fellow, with a brightening face. "De boss done tol' me I had to be mo' induschius er he wan't gwinter hab me 'roun' no longer, sah, an' I spec' you better lemme hab a leetle liquor, to kinder lub'icate my j'ints. Milk for Babes.

If care is taken in procuring pure milk from a healthy cow it will answer every purpose—provided the milk is kept clean and free from germs. Many careful housekeepers cannot realize how very great must be the care exercised with milk. It should never be allowed to stand uncovered, and should never be used unboiled. Dr. A. Jacobi, a recognized authority, in a recent article says, "after having been boiled, the milk destined for the use of a baby during the day ought to be kept in clean bottles, containing from three to six ounces, up to the cork, and the bottles turned upside down and preserved in a cold place. Such a bottle will keep longer than milk preserved in the usual way. Before being used, it ought to be heated in a water bath. By repeating this heating of the whole amount of the day's milk several times during the twenty-four hours, fermentation will be retarded, and digestibility improved."—Womankind.

Only a Box of Cigars.

She got out of her carriage and walked into the cigar store, at the same time unfastening her sealskin coat.

"I want a box of cigars for my husband, please. Let me see all kinds."

"Now here are some Key West goods we can sell for $8, and here are domestics from that down to $2.50," said the obliging clerk.

She looked at them carefully.

"You may wrap up that box for $2.50," said she, with dignity. "I like the shade better. It will about match his smoking jacket."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Hard Beat.

"Oi dunno phwat Oi'm goin' to do," said the policeman, disconsolately. "Oi'll hov to give up me job an the foorce unless they transfer me."

"Greenies" Not All From the West.

"Some of the greenest people in the world come from the old settled states," remarked the head clerk of an uptown hotel. "Some of our far western guests are a trifle crude in dress, and care little for style at the dinner table, but they never refrain from pressing the electric buttons about the house for fear it will call out the fire department. I have known rural visitors from the interior of New York state to abstain on the representation of the mischievous bell boys, who had caught on to their verdancy, and who would walk down six flights of stairs to make known their every want."—Washington Post.

A MOUNTAIN HEROINE.

BY W. J. LAMPTON.

The man from Chicago had told his story, and while the listeners in the smoking car were digesting it, a quiet man, smoking a bad cigar, gave a slight cough indicative of beginning a yarn himself. The listeners gave him their attention at once.

"Let her go," said the man from Chicago encouragingly.

"How did you know I had anything to say?" asked the man.

"You looked it," said Chicago.

"Well, I have," laughed the man, "and I've got an affidavit to go with mine. Have you got one for that you told?"

"Oh, yes," grinned Chicago, "and I'll show it to you when you've had your say."

"Don't forget that, gents," said the man, turning to the listeners. "And now for mine. Five years ago I was a deputy United States marshal in southeastern Kentucky, and most of my business was with moonshiners. I had pretty fair success and bagged a lot of them, but there was one, the chief of the gang and the worst of them all, that we couldn't get our hands on. One day, however, word came to me that he was at his cabin in the mountains, and if I could get there with a force of men we might surround the place and capture him, as he had just come in and expected to get out again before we should hear anything of him. In ten minutes I was on my way to his cabin with ten men, all armed with heavy revolvers, and all moving out by different ways, so as not to excite suspicion and let him get on to our movements. We were to meet at a point about half a mile from his house and then swoop down on it and take him in. The first part of the programme went off all right, and an hour after I had heard he was at home I had his house surrounded. Then I rode up to the door and yelled 'hello,' and a woman came out.

"'Where's your husband?' I asked, for I knew her quite well.

"'What do you want uv him?' she responded.

"'I want to see him.'

"'Well, you can't.'

"'But I'm going to, just the same. I heard he was here not an hour ago, and he's got to come this time.'

"'I reckon not,' she said, and dodged in, shutting the door after her with a slam, and barring it on the inside, as I could very plainly hear.

"Then, before we had a chance to make a rush, a gun went off in the house and a bullet went 'spat' against a tree near me. I thought it was time to get under cover, and did so with promptness and dispatch, and at once ordered my men to close up and fire on the house. This they did with pleasure, but we might as well have fired at a stockade, for the cabin was built of heavy logs, and nothing short of a mountain howitzer could have had any serious effect upon it. We banged away, though, and every now and then a shot came from the inside disagreeably near us. One time, when one of my men showed up where he could get a shot at the only pane of glass visible, two shots came after him so closely that he stayed in hiding for the rest of the time. This was about nine o'clock in the morning, and we at last concluded that, as there were children and a woman in the house with our mountaineer, we could not very well burn it down, even if we could get close enough to fire it; we would simply camp on their trail and starve them out. So we took our places to command every point to prevent escape and waited. At intervals a shot would come from the cabin, but we would pay no attention to it, thinking that our man might think we had gone and come out, but he didn't, and the long day wore on. It was raining, too, after noon, and we were decidedly uncomfortable, but we had our game caged and we were bound to get him or stay there a year. However, it was not to be that we were to remain quite that long, for about eight o'clock in the evening, when it was so dark we couldn't see our hands before us, and had come up so close to the cabin that we trusted to our ears instead of our eyes to catch the moonshiner in case he tried to get away under cover of darkness, the door was thrown open and the woman called:

"'What is it?' I asked from behind a stump in the yard.

"'You can come in ef you wanter,' she replied.

"'Tell your old man to come out.'

"'I won't do nothin' uv the sort,' she said in a most womanly fashion. 'Ef yer want him, come in atter him.'

"I parleyed awhile, fearing treachery, but when she handed out two guns and punched up the fire on the hearth, until the cabin was brilliantly lighted, I called up my men and went inside, the woman standing meanwhile in the middle of the floor, with four or five children clinging to her skirts. Every man of us had his revolver in his hand, and we expected trouble, though it was hardly likely under the circumstances. Once inside, we had made a thorough search of the one room of the cabin in a very few minutes, and as the floor was mostly earth we did not feel like going for a cellar, notwithstanding there was no sign of the moonshiner in the room where we were. He was clean gone, and there could be no doubt on that point. It was so unexpected and disappointing that I looked at the woman helplessly. In reply she laughed at me.

"'Where's your husband?' I asked, because there wasn't much else to say.

"'How do I know?' she answered provokingly.

"'Hasn't he been here all day?'

"'Course he hain't. He ain't that big a fool.'

"'Who's been doing the shooting then?'

"'Me,' and she gave me the laugh again.

"'You?' I gasped.

"'Course me. Why not me?' she laughed again. 'Can't I shoot?'

"I new that she could, and did not compliment her on it.

"'Hasn't he been here?' I asked.

"On this question she shook herself loose from her children and stood straight before us.

"'Yes, he has,' she said; 'he wuz here not five minutes afore you come with yer gang. I seen one uv you that I knowed, and I shoved Bill out and told him to run, and I'd take keer uv the balance. Bill run, and you fellers know the rest. He's got twelve hours the start uv you'uns, and ef yer want ter go atter him, you kin; but it's powerful dark goin' in the mountains, and yer better stay and take supper with me and try it in the daylight.'

"It was a true story, too, every word she said, and we tried to do something with her for resisting officers, but not much, for somehow we felt she acted the heroine, and we let her off with only a reprimand. As for Bill, he never came back while I was there."

"You needn't show your affidavit," said the man from Chicago, when the story had ended, and the ex-deputy smiled at him blandly.—Detroit Free Press.

Hawk and Crows.

The other morning a blue hawk dived into a flock of quail at the edge of some second-growth timber near where Farmer Harrison Tabor was ploughing, in Eaton township, Penn. It disabled a quail, but failed to secure it, and the frightened birds arose and and settled down around the ploughman. Tabor stopped the team, and while the startled game birds sat trembling on the soil, the crippled quail joined them. The others flew to the woods presently, and the hawk sailed around and kept an eye on the wounded quail. Tabor ended the disabled quail's sufferings, and at noon set it upon the ground as though it were in the act of pecking, and with fifty feet of fish line fixed a snare for the hawk. When he returned to the field after dinner, the hawk was yanking and fluttering it the end of the line, fifty feet up in the air, one of its feet having been caught in the snare. Tabor drove the team into the woods, and within half an hour he saw eight crows flying toward the flapping hawk with cries of delight. They began out of hand to whack the hawk, and they cawed triumphantly as they kept it spinning and twitching at the line. The screaming quail-killer lowered and raised itself, but the cruel crows had got at it for good, and they belabored it ceaselessly till it dropped to the ground, where they pounded it to death. Then they went cawing to the woods, and a few seconds later a fox stole out of the brush, set his tusks into the hawk, snapped the fish line in two, and disappeared in the timber with his prize.—New York Sun.

American Horses Abroad.

In his report the Secretary of Agriculture says that there is a growing demand in England for American horses. During the first nine months of the year 1894 the English market took 2,811 American driving horses, at an average value of $139 per head. Last year the average price of those shipped was $230. A sound light draught horse, in good condition, of the size and weight adapted to omnibus work in cities, will generally bring in Liverpool or London, $150. Nearly all the shipments of horses thus far from the United States to England have been through English buyers. Arriving in England, the animals are put out to grass, as a rule, for a month at least, and are then sold at auction. Canada has about an equal share with ourselves in the English horse market, although Canadian shipments have the reputation of being somewhat better in quality.

The average price of Canadian geldings during the last nine months has been $160, as against $139 for American. The English understand perfectly well that prices of horses have fallen in the United States on account of the extensive substitution of trolleys and bicycles for horses, and it is generally conceded that a considerable demand for American horses will soon spring up throughout Europe. The great omnibus and tramway companies of London are recruiting their stocks from the United States and Canada very generally at the present time.—New York World.

"Provided, however, that no part of the proceeds of the sale of such bonds nor of the notes redeemed with such proceeds shall be available for the payment of the current expenses of the government."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 8 to 5, those voting in the affirmative being Wilson, of West Virginia, Turner, of Georgia, Cochran, of New York, Montgomery, of Kentucky, Stevens, of Massachusetts, Tarsney, of Missouri, democrats; Reed, of Maine, Payne, of New York, republicans. The negative vote was cast by McMillan, of Tennessee, Bryan, of Nebraska, Wheeler, of Alabama, Whitney, of Michigan, democrats; Hopkins, of Illinois, republican. Grosvenor, republican, of Ohio, who was present did not vote, inasmuch as he was opposed to the proposition, but was willing that it should be brought before the house.

The report accompanying the resolution includes a copy of the president's recent message to congress bearing upon the subject, and also a a copy of the contract made by the treasury department with the European syndicate for the purchase of the new bonds.

The Contract.

Following is the text of the contract between the treasury and the syndicate:

"This agreement entered into this 8th day of February, 1895, between the secretary of the treasury of the United States, of the first part, and Messrs. August Belmont & Co., of New York, on behalf of Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, of London, England, and themselves, and Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York, on behalf of J. S. Morgan & Co., of London, and themselves, parties of the second part, witnesseth:

"Whereas, It is provided by the statutes of the United States (section 3700) that the secretary of the treasury may purchase coin with any of the bonds or notes of the United States authorized by law, at such rates and upon such terms as he may deem most advantageous to the public interest, and the secretary of the treasury now deems that an emergency exists in which the public interests require that, as hereinafter provided, coin shall be purchased with the bonds of the United States of the description hereinafter mentioned, authorized to be issued under the act entitled 'an act to provide for the resumption of specie payments,' approved January 14, 1875, being bonds of the United States described in an act of congress approved January 14, 1870, entitled 'an act to authorize the refunding of the national debt;' now, therefore, the said parties of the second part hereby agree to sell and deliver to the United States 3,500,000 ounces of standard gold coin of the United States, at the rate of $17,-80441 per ounce, payable in United States 4 per cent thirty-year coupon or registered bonds, said bonds to be dated February 1, 1895, and payable at the pleasure of the United States after thirty years from date, issued under the act of congress of July 14, 1870; January 20, 1871, and January 16, 1875, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable quarterly.

"First—Such purchase and sale of gold coin being made on the following conditions: 1. At least one-half of all coin delivered hereinunder shall be obtained in and shipped from Europe, but the shipments shall not be required to exceed 300,000 ounces per month, unless the parties of the second part shall consent thereto. 2. All deliveries shall be made at any of the subtreasuries or at any legal depository of the United states. 3. All gold coins delivered shall be received on the basis of 25 8-10 grains of standard gold per dollar if within the limit of tolerance. (4.) Bonds delivered under this contract are to be delivered free of accrued interest, which is to be assumed and paid by the parties of the second part at the time of their delivery to them.

"2. Should the secretary of the treasury desire to offer or sell any bonds of the United States on or before October 1, 1895, he shall first offer the same to the parties of the second part, but thereafter he shall be free from every such obligation to the parties of the second part.

"3. The secretary of the treasury hereby reserves the right, within ten days from the date thereof, in case he shall receive authority from congress therefor, to substitute any bonds of the United States bearing 3 per cent interest, of which the principal and interest shall be specifically payable in United States gold coin of the present weight and fineness for the bonds herein alluded to; such 3 per cent bonds to be accepted by the parties of the second part at par, i. e., at $18,-60465 per ounce of standard gold.

"4. No bonds shall be delivered to the parties of the second part, or either of them, except in payment for coin from time to time received hereunder; whereupon the secretary of the treasury of the United States shall and will deliver the bonds as herein provided at such places as shall be designated by the parties of the second part. Any expense of delivery out of the United States shall be assumed and paid by the parties of the second part.

"5. In consideration of the purchase of such coin, the parties of the second part, and their associates hereunder, assume and will bear all the expense and inevitable loss of bringing gold from Europe hereunder; and, as far as lies in their power, will exert all financial influence and will make all legitimate efforts to protect the treasury of the United States against the withdrawals of gold pending the complete performance of this contract.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all over the south, for the past week are to the effect that the lumber producers in the Central Southern and South-eastern states will organize for mutual benefit, and the preparations indicate that an advance in prices will be ordered at an early day. New mills are being built in large numbers. Cotton mills are occupying much attention. The most important of the new ones for the week are the Laurens, S. C., mill, with $200,000 capital, one at Kosciusko, Miss., capital $100,000, and others at Sheffield, Ala., Jackson, Tenn., and Roanoke, Va. The cold weather has materially interferred with all kinds of business. The demand for pig iron has fallen off somewhat, and the market is dull.

Among the important new industries established or organized during the week are the American Plaster Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $200,000; the Siloam Springs Improvement Co., of Siloam Springs, Ark., capital $100,000; the San Antonia, Tex., Pressed Brick Co., capital $50,000, and the Dunford Paint Manufacturing Co., of Atlanta, Ga., capital $50,000. THE TRADESMAN also reports the incorporation at Macon, Ga., of the T. J. Bell Lumber Co., with $30,000 capital; the George Officer Lumber Co., of Eddy Lake, S. C., capital $25,000. An irrigation company with $80,000 capital has been chartered at Austin, Tex., and a $25,000 Artesian Wells Company at Moody, Texas.

Agricultural implement works are to be built at Nashville, Tenn., fibre works at Talahassee, Fla., a flouring mill at Fincastle, Va., and an ice factory at Nashville, Tenn. There is also reported tobacco factories at Tampa, Fla., Dover, Ky., and Rock Hill, S. LA GASCOGNE SAFE.

THE LONG MISSING STEAMER REACHES NEW YORK.

Delay Caused by a Broken Piston. Joy at Her Safe Arrival.

The French line steamer La Gascogne, concerning which so much anxiety has been felt for the past several days is safe.

The big steamer, eight days overdue, dropped anchor at the bar at Quarantine, Staten Island, just before mid-night Monday night, with all well on board, and a sigh of relief goes up from two continents. The delay was due to a broken piston rod, and to the terriffic gales which have swept the north Atlantic for the past week or more, and brought disaster to many a stanch craft. Captain Battledon and officers and crew of La Gascogne brought the ship and passengers through the gales and made port without help. From the time they left Havre, on January 26th, until Monday, they spoke to no trans-Atlantic steamer, and saw only a four-masted schooner, the one which reported at St. Pierre Miquelon, N. S., as having seen a large steamer off the banks apparently in distress some days ago.

The United Press tug, Fred B. Dalzell, with representatives of a number of New York papers on board, was the first tug to reach La Gascogne. The disabled steamer had left Fire island twenty-five miles astern and was eight miles to the eastwast of Sandy Hook lightship.

It was 9:45 o'clock p. m. The big liner was limping into port at half speed with two big red lights, signals of distress, at the foremast.

Story of the Trip.

The tug lay alongside half an hour and the following story of the trip was obtained:

The steamer left Havre January 26th. On the first day out 449 miles were logged, on the second day 407 miles, on the third, after traveling 380 miles, the piston rod broke and eighteen hours were spent in making repairs. When they were completed the ship steamed at nine miles an hour, making in all sixty-six miles on the 29th. On the 30th, 31st and February 1st 215, 215 and 280 miles a day were made, respectively.

On February 2d the piston rod broke down again. The break was more serious this time. Sea anchors were put out, and for forty-one hours the ship was hove to, making repairs. On the 4th the first severe weather was experienced and the ship was blown 150 miles out of her course.

On the 5th, the repairs having been completed, 103 miles were traveled. The ship was then clear to the northward of the track of trans-Atlantic steamers, and was, therefore, not seen by the many steamers which passed over the regular track.

Struck by a Cyclone.

On the 7th the machinery broke down for the third time. The heavy cyclone struck on this day and the ship hove to with sea anchors out all day. No headway was made and owing to the motion of the ship, repairs were difficult. On the next day the chief engineer, who had been at his post day and night, completed the repairs and the ship proceeded 131 miles.

On the 9th, for the fourth time, the machinery broke down and only seventy-four miles were made.

On the 10th 150 miles were made and on the 11th, to the great rejoicing of all on board, Fire Island was sighted and the ship crept up to her anchorage off the bar.

The United Press tug was received with a cheer by the anxious passengers. They crowded to the rail, yelled and clapped their hands with all the enthusiasm of the French race. The officers refused to allow any one on board and would not come to the rail to talk. The passengers were more obliging.

H. Clay Evans' Answer.

Hon. H. Clay Evans, republican claimant to the governorship of Tennessee, has filed with the speaker of the senate his answer to the petition filed a few days ago by Mr. Turney, the present incumbent. The answer replies to Mr. Turney's allegations of fraud in the gubernatorial election and gives Mr. Evans' reasons for his claim that he was elected over Mr. Turney.

THE SOUTHERN'S STATEMENT.

Vice President Baldwin and the Grievance Committee Confer.

There was a conference in Washington Wednesday between W. H. Baldwin, third vice-president of the Southern railway, and the grievance committee of the employes with respect to the petition filed some time ago on the part of the employes of the road asking for a restoration of their former wages and salaries.

It is remembered that in October, 1893, on the old Richmond and Danville, now a part of the Southern, the wages of the men were put down from 5 per cent to 20 per cent, according to the amount received.

In November of the same year the wages of the employes of the old East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, which is now also a part of the Southern, were cut from 5 to 15 per cent, according to the amounts received.

On the 9th of December last, after these old roads had passed into the hands of the Southern Railroad Company, the employes sent a committee to Mr. Baldwin, third vice-president, asking to have their farm wages restored to them.

After an extended conference, and a full discussion of the proposition to restore the wages the men had received prior to the reduction made by the old companies while in the hands of receivers, Mr. Baldwin asked an adjournment for sixty days until a statement could be prepared by the company on the subject. The men were very willing to comply with this request, and the sixty days adjournment was freely allowed. This adjourned meeting was held Wednesday.

The company makes a full statement to the employes, the drift of which is towards a much larger outlay by the company in the payment of its men. The wages of the men on the two systems, meaning the old East Tennessee and the old Richmond and Danville, have been equalized on a basis that caused the company to pay out more money than heretofore. The average of wages is much higher, as is shown by a comprehensive and lengthy statement which Mr. Baldwin, on behalf of the company, gave out to the committee.

GRAVE CHARGES

Preferred Against North Carolina Officials.

Before the North Carolina legislative committee on education grave charges have been made by R. E. Peel, an attorney, against State Superintendent of Public Instruction John C. Scarborough, and Major S. M. Finger, ex-state superintendent.

Mr. Peel made general charges of favoritism of certain school book publishers, namely, the University Publishing company, of New York, and insinuates that compensation was the reason of this discrimination.

The charges produced a sensation in Raleigh, but they are not believed. It is stated that Peel is making the attack for Ginn & Co., whose agent, Walker, of South Carolina, is on the ground.

Major Finger and Superintendent Scarborough indignantly deny the charges or, rather, the insinuations.

WASHED INTO THE SEA.

Houses at South Bay, Cape Breton, Wiped Out of Existance.

Telegraph advices received from South Bay, Cape Breton, state that the place has been wiped out of existence by the storms of last week. The property washed into the sea includes fish houses, wharves, boats, stores and fishermen's dwellings. No lives were lost, but several families living on the beach were rescued with great difficulty and saved nothing, but the clothes they wore.

Green Cove reports that the storm was the most disastrous ever known on that coast. Boats and fish houses were nearly all swept out to sea or wrecked on the beach. No mail has been received since February 2d, and there is no telling when the roads will be cleared.

A Big Mining Deal.

John E. Smith has sold his one-fourth in the Moose mine at Cripple Creek, Col., to J. K. Maynard, of Utica, N. Y. The amount of stock held by Smith was 162,000 shares and the price paid was at the rate of 50 cents a share, or $81,000 cash. Mr. Maynard placed the value of the mineral in sight at $256,000. Dividends to the amount of $84,000 have been declared in the past twelve months. This sale was the largest spot cash mining deal ever made in Cripple Creek.

Gov. Oates vetoed what is known as the Alien R. R. bill. The house failed to pass it over his head.

The sayre election law has been so amended that we trust the future holds more peace for the citizens of Alabama.

C. A. Tompkins was offered $1,000 to espouse the cause of the Southern Railway and lobby for the alien R. R. bill. He declined. So did ex Governor Jones.

O. W. O. Hardman, Sheriff of Tyler Co., W. Va. appreciates a good thing and does not hesitate to say so. He was almost prostrated with a cold when he procured a bottle of Chamberlain' Cough Remedy. He says "It gave me prompt relief. I find it to be an invaluable remedy for coughs and colds." For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison

Earnest and inteligent men are begging the farmers of the South to plant only 25 per cent of the usual amount of cotton and put the other 75 per cent of land in other crops. Men who are studying the markets do not believe that the next crop can possibly bring over 4½ cents. Everything points to that fact and it behooves us as sensible people to first make sure of the home supplies and then figure on the cotton.

Mr. J. A. Logan has been appointed President of the Cotton Growers Protective Association for Chilton county. He issues a call to our citizens to assemble in the Court house Saturday 10 A. M. March 9th to perfect a county organization and to elect delegates to the state Convention which will meet in Montgomery on the 3rd Monday in March 1895. He earnestly urges that our people remember that this is to be no political meeting, but one at which the living question will be discussed. It will cost practically nothing to join this County organization, but will be of untold benefit to the county. The View bespeaks a hearty co-operation with President Logan.

The experience of G. [illegible] of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He was troubled with chronic diarrhoea and doctored for five months and was treated by four different doctors without benefit. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, of which one small bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

A most pathetic appeal from Galloway Nebraska reaches us. The committee depict in plain words the suffering of a people who for two years have lost their crops.

They need money now especially with which to buy seed for the farmers and will most gratefully acknowledge the receipt of any amount our readers may contribute.

We will take pleasure in forwarding the contributions of our readers.

We who are in this God favored country should not close our hearts to the appeals of our suffering brethren.

Even Manning, the Populite leader seems pleased with the contest law. He expressed a noble sentiment when he said he desired to see the day when we could discuss our differences on a plane higher than mere partisan ground.

Mrs. Emily Thorne, who resides at [illegible], Washington, says she has never been able to procure any medicine for rheumatism that relieves the pain so quickly and effectually as Chamberlain's Pain Balm and that she has also used it for lame back with great success. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, and Smith and McNeill' Jemison, Ala.

THE PRESS PILGRIMAGE TO HAVANA.

Arriving at the plantation, we were tendered a most delicious feast of perfectly ripe pine-apples, such as we had never tasted before, while dark-eyed children shyly offered us nosegays of the pink pine-apple buds and golden buttercups. Returning, we stopped to explore the ruins of an old castle, and after driving past many handsome residences and institutions of learning reached the hotel in time for dinner at 6. The proprietress of the hotel, Madame Gonzalez, is English American, having lived some time in New York. She was greatly interested in the party, declared it the most charming, that had ever visited "The Pasaje," and treated each and every member with the most distinguished consideration.

To her, we are indebted for some of our best impressions of Havana.

The programme for the evening was the Spanish Opera. The House was like an American in arrangement, but they have the same way as at the market, of selling tickets by portion. If one only wishes to remain through one act he only buys a part of a ticket. The next morning, we went shopping in the fashionable quarter, where the street, including sidewalks, is only eighteen feet wide, the sidewalks two feet each, and it is covered by thick awnings, stretched from side to side, protecting from both sun and rain, forming a delightful arcade for the fair senoras, who, save a little lace drapery, wear nothing on their heads. Many beautiful things are offered, but the souvenir stores were the chief ones patronized by our party.

After breakfast, came a ride to the botanic gardens, cemeteries, jails, and military works, returning by the grand old cathedral, distinguished as containing the tomb of Christopher Columbus. Whether it be true or not, that his remains repose in a golden casket behind the tablet bearing his name, at the left of the altar, the great antiquity of the place itself, crowded with the memories of three centuries of ceremonial rite, popular pageant and chivalrous festivity renders it to many visitors the greatest attraction of the city.

At the time of our visit, a dozen or more priests were chanting mass and the drowsy tone of their voices the soft murmuring from the confessionals, and the dim light on the old, old images and paintings made it an easy matter to conjure up scenes of pomp and pageant, long since lost in "Death's dateless night." By the magic torch of fancy, we could see processions coming.

First, to celebrate some church anniversary, for those days, the altar and throne were the foundation of society. With the banner of Ferdinand and Isabella at the head; the bishop in most gorgeous vestments marching under a damask canopy, surrounded and followed by bearers of standards, relics and images; hooded monks, gay peasants in quaint attire; and haughty nobles in rich Spanish, wearing accoutrements inherited from the days of chivalry, the two-edged sword and ponderous arquebus; while from this venerable building as they approach, the mighty organ and surpliced choir pour forth the grand Te Deum. Next, a bridal procession. But before we could decide whether it would do to have the fair senoritas wear the large sleeves of the present mode, our guide, who was not afflicted with speculative retrospection marshalled us out past the tomb which when completed, is to receive the remains of Columbus, out the front door, and back to the hotel.

That evening a reception was tendered to meet the Consul-General, followed by a ball, some also attending the theater. The rest of our stay was spent in visiting the cigar factories, picture galleries and public buildings, when we were ready to return. We had had perfect weather, had spent our time industriously as possible and felt much profited by the visit.

We had seen many things to admire, and some to condemn. It was a matter of great wonder how those Cubans endure their heavy burden of taxation. Almost everything is taxed by Spain, even the hotel register. To the signature of each guest, a five-cent stamp is affixed, and the clerk showed us an old volume, that had cost the proprietor $600.

We left the harbor, as we had entered, by the small boats to the elegant Mascotte. Soon after, we were under way on the return trip, touching Key West that evening, making Port Tampa the next afternoon, and that night delightfully domiciled at the far-famed Tampa Bay Hotel.—

Tampa Bay Hotel.

We arrived at this beautiful place after dark, about the same time we had passed it, the week before, and the pleasure of our expectation then, found full realization now. If it had seemed like a lovely vision outside, it was like fairyland within. After a royal entertainment in the grand dining hall and an hour among the art treasures of the drawing room and parlors, we were invited to a reception held by the Mayor and citizens of Tampa in the elegant music room. Several fine selections by orchestra, were followed by addresses of welcome from the Mayor and representatives of the city, and responses by members of the party.

Mr. H. B. Plant, President of the Plant System, was also present, and extended to each member a cordial welcome. The remainder of the evening was devoted to music, pleasant intercourse and dancing.

We had only one day to spend here and it passed all too quickly in examining the wonderful attractions and surroundings of this grand resort. It is beyond the scope of this article to attempt any description of it. Indeed, it is so far above the prosaic and commonplace, that only as it is reflected in the brilliancy of a poet's mind, can any adequate portrayal be given.

But it is the opinion of people of extensive travel and observation, that in its unique character, it is unsurpassed in either this country or Europe.

There may be more expensive buildings, more massive piles of architecture, more gorgeous effects in upholstery and more valuable collections of antiques. But there is no place where such artistic conception and exquisite taste have been combined for a similar purpose, with such a happy result.

In this respect it stands alone—unrivaled. Furniture gathered from royal palaces, once used by celebrated monarchs, paintings by the old masters, and other art treasures, executed when Terra Florida was a wilderness, have been brought together in such perfect harmony, that each seems to have been especially designed and created for the place it now occupies.

But our time was limited, and we were due elsewhere, so with keenest regret we took leave of this American Alhambra, where feasting is poetic, comfort supreme, and life one long summer day.

We awoke the next morning at Kissimmee, and after breakfast at the Tropical Hotel, were conveyed by special train to the St. Cloud sugar-farms. It was not the season for sugar making, but we visited the factory and heard the process described. It sounded very extravagant to hear them speak of using sugar for fuel, but, as they explained it is only the waste or refuse, hardly fit for any other purpose.

At noon of that same day we enjoyed a drive through beautiful Orlando seeing just enough of that delightful little city, to make us wish for more. The afternoon and night were spent at its rural neighbor, Winter Park, where we found another of the grand hotels of the Plant System. The Seminole, another model of comfort, ease, luxury and pleasure.

The next day, Sunday, was passed at quiet, restful Sanford.

By this time, nearly all of us were begining to feel a little tired and were glad to adopt the Alabama motto as a programme for the day.

Monday morning, after a delightful drive through the town and surroundings, we took the steamer, City of Jacksonville, for the ever memorable trip down the historic St. John's River called by the Indians Wolaka, (Chain of Lakes,) and by the French, Riviere du Mai.

Each of these names is characteristic, for it is a chain of lakes, and in this genial climate where the air is so pure, and the sky so clear it is always like any other river, in the balmy month of May.

The most interesting part of it is between Sanford and the draw bridge at Palatka. As we sat on the guards of the boat, winding in and out the curves of the channel we seemed to be passing a wall of pictures. First delicate pastels; as a background of dark pines with light blue haze appeared against a clear sky, with a middle distance of bays, magnolias and oaks, and here and there a thatched fishing hut among them, and a foreground of the river with masses of water-lilies and wild-fowl flitting over them; next, came rich oil paintings: sunset hued foliage, contrasting with dark evergreens, savannah grass and a tasteful white landing and pier in front; and then again, crayons of somber tone, as whole cemeteries of dead trees, their shrouds of grey moss fluttering in the breeze, swept by us.

Mr. McCarrel has moved into Mrs. Givings house and Mr. Jones into the McRee house.

We regret to know that Mrs. J. G. Lowery has been quite unwell.

During the past week Mrs. Felix Woodyard has been quite ill. No sister was ever more faithful in ministering to a sick brother than she has been and we fear she over taxed her strength.

We are through with the mud. There is great cause for thankfulness, that our people generally remained in good health during the severe weather, and so far as we learn there was not much suffering for fires and food.

Mr. R. T. Grant will on every third Sunday morning before preaching at Chestnut Creek church conduct a singing exercise, to which he invites everybody. The books used C, C & C.

We regret to know that Butler Lowe continues quite ill. Few young men in our county have more friends than Butler and the universal prayer is that his life may be spared.

Mr Davis one of our esteemed citizen, who for years suffered with a cancer, died last Sunday night.

Mr. E. G. Rollins and family have our deepest sympathies in the loss of their daughter.

Monroe Abney colored, was placed in jail here Monday charged with having killed Lewis Rasberry also colored, of Randolph.

A Des Moines woman who been troubled with frequent colds, concluded to try an old remedy in a new way, and accordingly took a tablespoonful (four times the usual dose) of Chamberlains Cough Remedy just before going to bed. The next morning she found that her cold had almost entirely disappeared. During the day she took a few doses of the remedy (one teaspoonful at a time) and at night again took a tablespoonful before going to bed, and on the following morning awoke free from all symptoms of the cold. Since then she has, on several occasions, used this remedy in like manner, with the same good results, and is much elated over her discovery of so quick a way of curing a cold. For sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

One of the saddest things which has happened in the annals of our County was the death of W. C. Ogletree of Strasburg. Our readers remember that while trying to act as peace maker he was shot by Futch Crosby. Mr. Ogletree was a good man and the mainstay of a large family. His widow and children have our deepest sympathies.

Citizen of Chilton county, will all the money made by every man making and selling liquor in this county pay for loss of so good a man as the late W. C. Ogletree. Not alone is that man guilty of his death who fired the fatal shot, but every man who in that community gave countenance to the hell born traffic is a partner in the crime.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

A financial bill on the lines of the President's last message to congress was presented to the senate Wednesday by Mr. Vilas, democrat, of Wisconsin. Its reading was followed with much interest, and it brought out a brief, but spirited debate. The measure is entitled a bill "To save the American people $16,174,770." It recites the President's statement that he has agreed to the issue of $62,400,000 of bonds payable in "coin," and an interest equivalent to 3¾ per cent., but had retained the right to issue bonds payable in gold at 3 per cent., if congress granted the authority. The bill states that this difference in interest amounts to $539,519 per year, or $16,174,770 on the the thirty years during which the bonds will run. It is provided that the secretary of the treasury shall be authorized to issue $65,000,000 of bonds at 3 per cent interest payable in gold in thirty years. The bonds are to be used in redeeming legal tenders and are to be exempt from taxation. Mr. Hoar, republican, of Massachusetts, rose as soon as the bill closed and addressing himself to Mr. Vilas, said: "Will the senator tell us as to the authority for the great savings he sets forth? Who are the persons with whom this arrangement for buying bonds have been made? Where is the contract? We ought to be fully informed." "I am not the keeper of executive documents," responded Mr. Vilas. "The president has given us his views in his message." "But," insisted Mr. Hoar, "we should have details. We have only a statement of certain facts and conclusions by the president but there is an entire absence of details." "I have no more details than any other senator," said Mr. Vilas. Mr. Wolcott, republican, of Colorado, gave a new turn to the discussion. "The morning reports tell us," said he, "that these bonds are being taken in London at 112¼ and by this means the syndicate of Jewish bankers who have taken the bonds are netting a profit of 8 per cent." Mr. Vilas said this was an additional reason why a new form of bonds should be authorized.

When the senate met Thursday the high tension over the financial situation was clearly evident from the animated groups of senators, who discussed the subject. From this a rumor soon gained circulation that the suggestion had been made that a resolution be introduced directing or advising the executive branch of the government to cancel the contract with bankers for the sale of $62,400,000 of bonds. With the several financial bills on the the calendar and on the table, it was felt that decisive action one way or another was not far off. Mr. Platt presented a petition and gave dramatic details concerning barbarious executions in the Choctaw Indian country. He said the facts, if known, would shock the civilized world, as they presented barbarities unparalleled in this country. The petition urged that a law be passed giving an appeal to Indian courts. Mr. Platt said the time had been reached when such a law was imperative in order to end the shocking condition of affairs. A favorable report was made by a special committee allowing $115,000 to the widows and children of those killed at Ford's theatre disaster in Washington. Mr. Call brought forward his irrepressible resolution for a senate investigation of the Honduras lottery company's operation in Florida.

THE HOUSE.

The bill making appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the government was passed by the house Tuesday afternoon, after three days' discussion, practically as the committee on appropriations reported it. The bill carried a total of $21,805,726 as it came to the house. As it passed the total was $21,825,976. Most of the day's session was spent in discussing the appropriation for paying pension office employes. Other business transacted included the passage of the following measures: Senate bill setting apart certain lands in Mississippi for the benefit of the mechanical and agricultural schools of that state; house bill authorizing the restoration to the public domain of certain live-oak reservations in Mississippi and Alabama, containg about 75,000 acres, which were originally set apart for naval purposes. Speaker Crisp announced the appointment of the following members on the part of the house of the joint congressional commission to arrange a programme of exercises for the opening of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military park next September: Messrs. Kilgore, Morgan, Wheeler of Alabama, Cox of Tennessee, Maddox, Grosvenor, Keifer, Strong and Avery. At 4:30 o'clock the house adjourned.

The house devoted Wednesday after the morning hour to business reported from the committee on the District of Columbia. On motion of Mr. Talbot, of Maryland, who desired to call up the naval appropriation bill, it was agreed that the house should meet Thursday at 11 o'clock. The house non-concurred in the senate amendments to the bill for the examination and classification of certain mineral lands in Montana and Idaho and ordered a conference. Mr. Van Voorhis, republican, of New York, introduced a resolution bearing on government financial matters, the main tenor of which was to request a report from the committee on ways and means of the testimony, evidence and statements made by Secretary Carlisle before that committee regarding the recent bond contract. The New York representative was very anxious for this information, and Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the committee, assured Mr. Van Voorhis that he had a copy of the contract in his pocket, and would at the proper time present it. This was done later in the shape of a report from the ways and means committee on the president's message, relating to the $62,000,000 bond contract, and which report contained a copy of the contract. It was soon evident that there was a disposition to know what the minority of the committee thought of the matter, and the house adopted a motion which will allow them to present their views on the subject. The report was ordered printed and referred to the calendar. The house, at 5:10 o'clock, adjourned.

Another day's debate in the house upon the financial question has but served to emhasize the fact that no legislation affecting the financial situation is to be expected from the fifty-third congress. A week ago the house refused, by a vote of 163 to 135, to adopt the last Springer banking and currency bill, which contained a provision authorizing the issue of long-time interest-bearing bonds, and Thursday, by the still more decisive vote of 167 to 120, it declined to authorize the issue of $65,000,000 3 per cent. gold bonds with which to replace the 3¾ per cent. bonds negotiated with the Morgan-Belmont syndicate in payment for the purchase of 3,500,000 ounces of gold coin. The consideration of the joint resolution for this purpose reported Wednesday from the committee on ways and means, by Chairman Wilson, occupied all of the session of six and a half hours, and the discussion attracted an attendance of spectators which overflowed the public galleries. The debate followed in a general way the lines of the debate on the Springer bill last week, but the opposition this time was much more aggressive than on that occasion. Mr. Wilson was aided in advocacy of the measure by Mr. Reed, republican, of Maine; Payne, republican, of New York; Turner, democrat, of Georgia, and Bynum, democrat, of Indiana; all members of the committee on ways and means, who urged that the joint resolution was a business matter merely, disassociated from politics or anything of that kind, the passage of which would result in a saving of $16,000,000 to the people. Their efforts were seconded by Messrs. Daniels, republican, of New York; Stone, republican, of Pennsylvania; Coombs and Hendrix, democrats, of New York; Springer, democrat, of Illinois, and Cooper, democrat, of Florida. Speeches against the joint resolution were made by Messrs. McMillin, democrat, of Tennessee; Wheeler, democrat, of Alabama, and Grosvenor, republican, of Ohio, members of the committee on ways and means; Messrs. Livingston, democrat, of Georgia; Northway and Hulick, republicans, of Ohio; Bland and Hatch, democrats, of Missouri; Kemp, populist, of Nebraska; Simpson, populist, of Kansas, and Van Voorhis, republican, of New York. The vote was taken at 5 o'clock upon the question, "shall the joint resolution be engrossed and read a third time?" the result being as stated—yeas, 120; nays, 167. A motion by Mr. Bland, democrat, of Missouri, to reconsider the vote was, on his motion, laid on the table. "The bill is dead," officially declared the speaker, and at 5:30 o'clock the house adjourned.

DEPOSITING THE GOLD.

Thy Syndicate Has Already Sent in Over Four Million Dollars.

The official figures of the gold deposits on account of the Belmont-Morgan bond syndicate show that $3,340,000 has been deposited and $1,050,000 received after hours on storage, making a total of $4,390,000. The depositors are the Chase National bank, $500,000; Park National, $1,000,000; Harvey, Fish & Sons, $1,640,000; Morton, Bliss & Co., $450,000; Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., $300,000; C. E. Gregory, $500,000.

The assay office has weighed $2,890,000 coin, which produces an actual weight of 155,221.19 ounces, a loss of 115.81 ounces, or $2,154 to the syndicate, caused by abrasion of the coin. At this rate the government will make about $50,000 on the transaction, as the coin can be paid out at its face value, although received from the syndicate at its bullion valuation.

The subtreasury has issued certificates for $2,044,000 gold, weighed and accepted at the assay office at the syndicate price of $17.80¼ per ounce. These certificates are convertible into 4 per cent. bonds at their face value.

GOV. TURNEY'S DENIAL.

He Charges That the Republicans Disregarded the Law.

A Nashville special says: Governor Turney's attorneys have filed his defense to the cross petition of Mr. Evans. After affirming the truth of all contained in his original petition, he charges that Evans has not made such denial as puts at issue allegations in the original petition, and that it must necessarily be taken as true under the law; that poll-tax receipts were not required in twenty-six specified counties. It is charged that Evans simply claims that the poll tax law is unconstitutional, and that when judges allowed a man to vote, his vote cannot be changed. It is insisted that Evans can have no investigation where he made no objections. It is insisted that, where the law was not enforced, the entire vote must be cast out. The charges made by Mr. Evans are denied in detail, and it is charged that republicans have systematically, deliberate and studiously disregarded the election laws by direction of their accredited leaders.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR CONVENTION

The Seceders Met a Cold Reception at Columbus.

The miners' Knights of Labor convention began at Columbus, O., Monday with forty delegates in attendance. Master Workman Phil H. Penna, called for the report of the committee on credentials. There were no contests. The report of the New Orleans delegates was then called for. Around this report all interest centers. The delegates will advocate the withdrawal of the miners from the general assembly of the Knights of Labor on the ground of Sovereign and Hayes's alleged high-handed action in excluding them from that convention.

A New Organization to Be Formed.

At a meeting at Columbus, O., the Knights of Labor miners decided to secede from the general assembly and form a new organization. The new organization will be formed at once.

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEWSY ITEMS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The senate has confirmed the nomination of Brigadier General Thomas Howard Ruger to be major general.

There was a good deal of excitement in the house Thursday over the situation. The administration was both attacked and defended for the last bond contract.

The naval medical board has rejected T. A. Jonas, appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate, to be an assistant paymaster in the navy. The candidate, who is a son of ex-Senator Jonas, of Louisiana, and a nephew of representative Meyer, of that state, was rejected on account of physical infirmity.

The treasury gold reserve stood at $41,215,181 Tuesday, the lowest point it is likely to reach for some time, as the gold of the Belmont-Morgan syndicate will now begin to make its appearance in the reserve and swell its proportions until it again climbs to the $100,000,000 mark. It is said at the treasury that more than half of this gold will come from abroad, and none of the gold paid in on this side will be taken from the New York banks.

For the Free Coinage of Silver.

The senate finance committee was in session Tuesday morning. By a vote of 6 to 5 a favorable report on the bill providing for the unrestricted coinage of silver, as provided for in the Jones bill, was authorized. The bill reads:

"That from and after the passage of this act the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized and directed to receive at any United States mint, from any citizen of the United States, silver bullion of standard fineness, and coin the same into silver dollars of 412½ grains each. The seigniorage on said bullion shall belong to the United States and shall be the difference between the coinage value thereof and the market price of bullion in New York on the day the deposit is made, and all expenditures for coinage done under the provisions of this act shall be paid out of said seigniorage, and the secretary of the treasury shall deliver to the depositors of such bullion standard silver dollars equal in amount to the price thereof as aforesaid; and whenever said coins herein provided for shall be received into the treasury certificates may be issued thereon, in the manner now provided by law."

Subsequently Mr. Jones reported the bill to the senate, the title having been changed so as to make it read: "A bill for the unrestricted coinage of silver." It will be seen that it fixes the value of silver at the market price in New York, instead of London, as originally provided in the Jones bill, and eliminates that clause which provides that certificates shall be of denominations less than ten dollars.

Agreement to Take the Bonds.

Unless congress in ten days passes a law authorizing the issue of gold bonds bearing 3 per cent interest, running thirty years, or otherwise relieves the treasury in the replenishment of the gold reserve, Secretary Carlisle will, by direction of the president, sell 4 per cent bonds to the amount of $62,400,000 for gold. Arrangements whereby this can be done and $65,000,000 in gold be received for the bonds have been perfected, and the contingent contract was signed Saturday. This official memorandum of the transaction was made public at the treasury. It is as follows: "The contract was made with August Belmont & Co., of New York, on behalf of Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, of London, and J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York, on behalf of J. S. Morgan & Co., of London, and themselves, and provides for the delivery to the United States of 3,500,000 ounces of standard gold coin of the United States to be paid for in United States 4 per cent bonds.

"A large number of other banks and financial institutions are interested in the transaction, but their names are not mentioned in the contract itself. The department does not know in what proportion the various parties are to furnish the gold coin or reive the bonds, as this is a matter for arrangement between themselves.

"By the terms of the contract the parties are to bear all the expenses of bringing gold from abroad and they are, so far as it lies in their power, to exert their financial influence and make all legitimate efforts to protect the treasury against withdrawals of gold pending the complete performance of the contract. No bonds are to be delivered except in payment for gold actually delivered. In view of the possible failure of legislation in congress, negotiations have been pending for some time at Washington and abroad and the terms of this contract are the best that could be procured with a coin bond. The contract was drawn up by Attorney General Olney and secretary Carlisle, and submitted to J. Lynde Stetson, counsel for the bankers.

GENERAL BETHUNE DEAD.

He Was at One Time the Owner and Manager of Blind Tom.

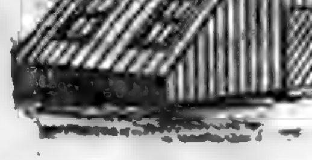
General James Neil Bethune, a distinguished Georgian, who was the owner and for many years the manager of "Blind Tom," the famous negro pianist, died at his son's residence at Washington, D. C., Wednesday, aged ninety years. He was graduated from the university of Georgia in 1827, served as solicitor general of his county, edited The Times and Sentinel and The Enquirer at Columbus, Ga., and served as a colonel in the Creek war of 1832. In recent years his home has been near Warrenton, Va., and he has been visiting his son during the past few months. In 1855 he lost a leg by a fall from a horse. General Bethune leaves six children, among whom are Judge J. D. Bethune, of Arizona, and Mrs. N. T. N. Robinson, wife of the assistant solicitor of the treasury. The remains will be taken to Columbus, Ga., for interment beside those of his wife.

The engines of a first-class man-of-war cost about $700,000.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

A CHEAP POULTRY HOUSE.



POULTRY HOUSE.

A building for wintering a flock of laying hens, as shown in the accompanying illustrations from sketches by J. W. Caughey, will accommodate fifty hens. The building is six feet high by thirty feet long, and twenty feet wide, the space for laying and roosting being separated by a wire netting partition, where the feed and heater is located. A farmer's wife will find that a small building of this kind, costing not over twenty-five dollars, will meet her home needs and be handy to her kitchen door in cold weather when the ground barn is a long distance away. The ground plan shows the arrangement, which is very simple. The nest boxes, the dust box H, the roost R, the doors D, the heater B, and the feed box, are shown in the diagram. This house is practical and cheap. The roof is covered with tar or felt paper, to shut out the rain and snow.—American Agriculturist.

GROUND PLAN.

GROOMING HORSES.

It is surprising how far a good cleaning goes to keep a horse in tip-top condition, but how to do it thoroughly is not known by many who go so far as to call themselves great horsemen. If the curry-comb is a new one be very careful as to how hard you press on it, as the sharp teeth will go right through the hair of the animal and rest on the skin which will make it very painful when it is drawn over the body. Do not go through the grooming process when the animal is in the stall, as by this the dirt is only stirred up and is sure to settle more or less on the horse after you are all through. Have some place in the yard, or just outside the barn, and, after tying the horse securely, commence with the curry-comb at the top of the animal's neck and work backward until you have reached the hocks of his hind legs. Then with a stiff brush rub him all over, running the brush the opposite way to which the hair lies, for by doing this you will bring to view a lot of dirt that the curry-comb has failed to find. The next runover will be with the brush in one hand and a curry-comb in the other, scraping the brush with the curry-comb every time you run it over the horse's coat. Now if you have a mane brush, groom the animal's head very gently and also give his mane and tail a liberal amount of elbow grease. Now as you have done about everything that will tend to stir up the dust that was in the animal take a large piece of cloth and gently rub the hair, running the cloth the same way the hair lies, and you will then be wonderfully surprised to learn you have made the former rough-looking horse shine and become sleek-looking. It would be well to clean out all four feet every morning, as manure is sure to make the hoof rot or become soft or crumbly.—New York Witness.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

A neat and attractive appearance of products offered for sale often has much to do with the price received.

The most prosperous communities are those where the farms are of moderate size and thoroughly cultivated.

The Asiatic breeds are generally fair winter and early spring layers. They make excellent mothers and good table fowls.

A piece of rock salt placed in the horse's manger, so that he may lick it, will be found very beneficial to his health.

There are many wastes on farms. Looking after the little things, as well as the greater ones, is what counts for profit.

The male exerts the stronger influence upon the offspring, and for this reason a pure-bred male is of the utmost importance.

Increasing the product for the farm by extensive culture and careful management, shows thrift as much as an increase in the acreage.

In-breeding in the hands of the skilful breeder has been an important factor in producing animals of model form now known as the improved breeds.

If butter is long in coming, stir in three tablespoonfuls of good dairy salt to every two gallons of cream and churn at a temperature of about sixty degrees.

The shortage of feed has been a great educator, and it is probable that hereafter farmers will care for and save their fodder as they now do their hay.

As the last quart of a milking is richer in cream than the first three quarts, so the last pound a well-fed cow eats is worth as much as the first three pounds in profit.

In mulching for winter protection it is quite essential to understand the nature of the work. The idea of the mulch at this season is to keep the soil in an equal temperature throughout the winter.

With all stock, exercise tends to develop the muscles, and has a tendency to produce lean meat, and not fat. The foundation of lean meat is the natural growth of the animal, while the laying on of excessive fat is a cultivated tendency.

Young trees should be mulched both summer and winter. The mulch can be taken up in the rainy season and the soil stirred, but it should be replaced during dry seasons and cold winters. The trees require mulching for winter as soon as the first heavy weather approaches.

The Southern growers of peach trees say that it is impossible to successfully cultivate the peach without a free use of the pruning-knife. Every winter they should be gone over, and the weak, starved shoots cut off. Only the strong, healthy, vigorous branches are left to bear leaves and flowers by the expert peach grower.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Perfumes as Preventives of Mouldiness.

Mouldiness is occasioned by the growth of minute vegetation. Ink, paste, leather and seed most frequently suffer by it. A clove will preserve ink; any essential oil answers equally as well. Leather may be kept free from mould by the same substances. Thus, Russian leather, which is perfumed with the tar of birch, never become mouldy; indeed, it prevents it from occuring in other bodies. A few drops of any essential oil will keep books entirely free from it. For harness, oil of turpentine is recommended.

Alum and resin are used to preserve bookbinders' paste, but ineffectually, oil of turpentine succeeds better; but, by small quantities of oil of peppermint, anise, or cassia, paste has been preserved for years. Dr. MacCulloch recommends the addition to the flour and water of some brown sugar and a little corrosive sublimate; the sugar keeping it flexible when dry, and the sublimate preventing it from fermenting and from being attacked by insects. A few drops of any essential oil may be added to the paste when it is made. It dries when exposed to the air and may be used merely by wetting it. Seeds may also be preserved by the essential oils; and this is of great consequence when they are sent to a distance. Of course moisture must be excluded as much as possible, as the oils or ottos prevent only the bad effects of mould.—Ex.

To Make a Chair Cushion.

Not a new way, but a very good and simple way to make a chair cushion is as follows:

When it is desired to give the cushion height, square corners may be secured by turning in the corners, after the cushion is filled, and sewing together the two vertical edges thus formed; the amount turned in decides the height or thickness of the cushion. This is much smaller than the sewing of a strip between the top and bottom of the cushion. In covering the same plan may be pursued, except that the material for the top should be cut large enough to cover the sides and front, turning over the lower edge where it may be faced with anything convenient. If preferred, the cushion proper may be made in the way described, and the cover made with a strip of the same or a contrasting material sewed between top and bottom to form the sides.—Womankind.

A CLOSE CALL.

Pretty young Mrs. Carpenter (she was always spoken of as "young" to distinguish her from her husband's mother, who lived next door), stood watching her husband till he turned the corner and was out of sight.

But he never once looked back. In fact, they had just quarreled, and that was why her eyes were brighter than usual, and her cheeks—which John used to say reminded him of blush roses—were scarlet instead of pink.

Such a foolish thing to quarrel about, too—a little innocent looking pat of butter! But then it was strong; that is, John said it was. Whereat Mrs. John helped herself generously, and said it was good enough for her, and she couldn't afford to pay forty cents a pound for butter when she could get good for thirty.

Then, John inquired if he didn't give her money enough to pay her grocery bill, and said it wasn't good enough for him; perhaps she had been accustomed to eating such stuff! (he actually went to the extent of calling it stuff!) and I can't begin to tell you all the foolish things that those two hot-tempered young people, who loved each other dearly, said. It ended finally in John's flinging himself away from the table, without tasting the lemon pie, his favorite dessert, which the tired little housekeeper, remembering his fondness for, had taken time to concoct in the midst of all her pickling and preserving.

John began to get together his fish lines, flies and other traps, which he wanted to take away, for he and six other young men were having a half holiday, and had engaged the boat Bonnie Belle for an afternoon's fishing on Great Lake.

He worked hard, this young fellow, as foreman in a close, stuffy factory, and a half day's recreation in the pure air was a rare event with him. But somehow he did not enjoy the prospect very much after the war of words at the dinner table. He wished he hadn't spoken as he did. If May would only come and help him—but she held herself aloof while he was getting ready. She had intended to slip some lemons and sugar into the basket; a pail of lemonade would be so refreshing, imbibed in the shady glen, after the row across the lake. But now, if he wanted lemons, he could help himself, she thought, after the way he had talked.

He was a long time getting ready, and she wondered, as he fumbled with the lines and hooks, if he really would go off without kissing her. Her anger would have melted in a moment at the first pacific sign from him; but she would not beg for a kiss, no!

He started for the door. She had a great mind to follow him there, but pride kept her back. He was outside the door now; she hastened after him. "If he looks round I'll let him see I'm ready to make up," she thought. But he did not; and so Mrs. John went back to the little dining-room, and began to clear the table, feeling herself a much injured wife, and rather glad, on the whole, that she hadn't given in.

But gradually better feelings prevailed; scarlet cheeks faded back to pink agian, and temper brightened eyes became dim with tears.

She watched the clock anxiously. How slowly the hours passed! Two, three, four, five o'clock. "In an hour he will be here," she said to herself joyously, and she bustled round to prepare an extra nice supper. She even went to the corner grocery for a pound of the forty-cent butter.

Six o'clock came, but no John. Half-past six—seven. She was walking the floor in her unrest, and now went out and stood at the gate. She could see knots of people talking excitedly along the street. A freckle-faced boy running by stopped.

"D'yer hear 'bout the axident? The Bonnie Belle struck by a squall and seven men drowned."

"What's that?" asked a feeble old man, coming out of the next house. "Who says my boy's drowned? Why, he can swim! There ain't water enough in Great Lake to drown John Carpenter."

The wind blew his scanty locks over his wrinkled old face; his faded blue eyes wandered piteously round and finally rested on John's wife.

"Don't you believe it," he said, tremulously, patting her arm with his uncertain, shaking hand.

But apparently she did not hear him. Drowned! Her John—and she let him go to his death without a kiss!

The freckle-faced boy looked at her uneasily, digging his bare toes into the ground.

"I didn't know as Mr. Carpenter was along," said he, apologetically, forgetting for the moment his own importance as the bearer of news in view of her silent misery.

Some one took hold of the wife and led her into the house. She groped her way like a blind person. They said she had better lie down on the lounge awhile, and she obeyed. She could not see anything now.

"I am dying," she thought, and was happy in thinking so.

Then she floated away into darkness, on and on, for a long time apparently.

Finally she saw a light, and opening her eyes saw—yes, it was—John!

Was she indeed in the other world, and was John waiting for her? She spoke his name.

"She's coming to; she knows me," said the familiar voice.

But how far off it sounded! And so did her own voice when she spoke.

"Where am I?" she asked, faintly.

"Here, dear, in the dining-room," said John again.

He was on the floor beside the lounge, his face close to hers. Their lips met in a long kiss.

"John," she said, solemnly, "I thought we were both in another world."

"I did have a pretty close call," said he, "and it was hard work bringing you back."

"The others?" she asked, tearfully.

"Will and I are the only ones left of the seven," he replied, with a sob.

"Oh, John! It might have been you!" she cried, throwing her arms around his neck.

Just then a feeble old man who was sitting close to his son said fondly, in tremulous tones—

"I knew there wasn't water enough in Great Lake to drown my John!"—Waverly Magazine.

Some Big Counties.

East of the Rocky mountains there are only twelve counties in the United States containing more than 5,000 square miles. Not one of these is in New York State, the largest county of which, St. Lawrence, covers only 2,900 square miles. One of the twelve is Aristook, the forest county of northern Maine, between New Brunswick and the St. Lawrence. Another is Dade county, Florida, which includes the everglades of Florida, along the Atlantic coast, and has an area of 5,600 square miles and a total population of 900. Cherry county, Nebraska, in the extreme northeast of the state, with the Snake river dividing it in half, has an area of 5,668 miles. Three northern counties of Minnesota lying south of Nanitoba and west of Lake Superior, Beltrami, Itasca, and St. Louis, have respectively 5,040, 5,430, and 5,860 square miles. The last county includes the important city of Duluth, but the first has a population of only 300 and the second only of 750. The population Dulth is 35,000.

Two counties of Idaho—Bingham, containing the lava fields, and Idaho, south of the Nez Perces' reservation—contain more than 10,000 square miles each. Two counties in Texas, Pecos and El Paso, have more than 5,000 square miles. Pecos, which is in the extreme west of the state, on the Rio Grande, has 6,700. El Paso, which adjoins it on the Rio Grande, has 9,750. One county of Colorado, Arapaho, has an area of 5,220 square miles, but it is still more notable from the fact that it has a population of 150,000, including the city of Denver. Routt County, in the same State, has an area of 6,000 square miles. On the Pacific slope counties, like trees and fruits, are of gigantic size. Six counties of Oregon, three counties of Washington, seven counties of Nevada and seven counties of California, have more than 5,000 square miles. The largest of all in the United States is the county of San Bernardino, to the east of Los Angeles. Its area is 21,000 square miles, nearly half the size of New York State, and 5,000 miles larger than New Jersey, Delaware, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.—Chicago Times.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

Uncle Sam's Bond Account.

Here is a little table showing how the bond account stands:

Face of loan, $62,315,000.

Syndicate premium at 104.49—$2,797,943.

United States gets $65,112,943.

What inside jobbers pay, $69,948,587.

Inside Jobbers profit to 118—$3,583,113.

The public pays and the United States should have received $73,531,700.

The United States has lost $8,418,757.

Compounded as a sinking fund at 4 per cent for thirty years this lost profit would be $27,628,676, or nearly one-half the original loan.

Jones's Bill Withdrawn.

Senator Jones and the other silver men have abandoned the fight for the passage of the free coinage bill, or for a resolution declaring for free coinage, in the senate. They did not push the matter further because by so doing it might have delayed the passage of appropriation bills and have brought about an extra session. Further, there was nothing to be gained by pushing the matter. It was evident that owing to dilitory tactics no free coinage bill could pass during the few remaining days of this session, and as the senate had, by a majority of nine, expressed its sentiments in favor of the free coinage of silver, it was useless to push the matter further.

The Secretary Notified.

United States Treasurer Jordan sent this telegram to Assistant Secretary Curtis Wednesday afternooon:

"New York, February 20, 2:30 p. m.—Inform the secretary that the syndicate has completed the matter of the purchase of gold coin on this side and have now turned in $123,000,000 gold coin in exchange for United States notes in excess of contract."

This is undesstood to mean that $30,000,000 in gold have been secured by the Belmont-Morgan syndicate in America for payment of the bounds, the balance, nearly $35,000,000, having been secured in London, when more than four times the allotment for that side was subscribed for. So far $23,052,370 in gold have been received by the treasury from the syndicate and $22,060,820 in certificates issued to it. It will probably be several weeks before the bonds are ready for delivery.

To Save the Petrified Forest.

A memorial from the legislative assembly of Arizona has been presented to congress, requesting that the lands covered by the petrified forest be withdrawn from entry until the advisability of making a public park of it can be settled. The lands are in Apache county, are ten miles square, and according to the memorial, are covered by trunks of trees some of which measure over 200 feet in length and from seven to ten feet in diameter. The legislature represents that "ruthless curiosity seekers are destroying these huge trees and logs by blasting them in pieces in search of crystals which are found in the centre of many of them, while carloads of the limbs and smaller pieces are being shipped away to be ground up for various purposes." To make it a public park would preserve the tract from vandalism and injure no one, as there are no settlers upon it.

Pay for the Sugar Growers.

There is every probability that the senate will pass the bill paying to sugar growers of this country a bounty on all sugar grown up to the time the new tariff act went into effect and on all that will be produced under licenses authorized prior to the repeal of the McKinley act up to the time of the expiration of those licenses, July 1st next. An amendment to this effect will be offered in the senate to the sundry civil bill as a committee amendment. The vote on this question, when the matter was in the committee, was a tie, owing to the absence of Mr. Cullom, who is sick. For this reason it was not made a part of the bill, but the omission was made with the understanding that an amendment should be reported in accordance with the views of Mr. Cullom, and the amendment should have all the force as if originally reported by the committee as a part of the bill. Mr. Allison is now engaged in drawing up the amendment. It will carry an appropriation of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and will give a bounty of 2 cents a pound on all sugar produced up to August 28th and 8-10 of a cent a pound on all sugar made under licenses that were granted prior to the repeal of the bounty law.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Heavy snows have blockaded railroads and highways in the interior of Newfoundland.

It is said that Mexico's negotiations with Guatemala are proceeding slowly but on the whole satisfactorily.

A committee of the New York legislature is now investigating the recent street car strike in Brooklyn.

At Evansville, Ind., Captain John Ingle was appointed receiver for the Evansville, Paducah and Tennessee River Packett company.

At New Orleans a mistrial has been entered in the case of ex-Councilman Thriffiley, on trial for proposing to receive a bribe from Superintendent Marshall of the L. & N. railroad.

At a meeting of District Assembly 75, K. of L., it was voted to call off the strike on the trolley railroads in Brooklyn, N. Y., with the exception of the Atlantic Avenue company's system.

The destitution in St. Johns, N. F., is increasing. Between 5,000 and 6,000 persons are not receiving relief. The government announces its intention of proceeding with relief works at once.

At Pueblo, Mexico, four of the prisoners implicated in the Scott camp shooting affair were shot by order of Captain Fragoso. Nearly all the bandits have now been captured or killed.

At Fall River, Mass., the agent of the Chace mills has agreed to pay his weavers for all cloth woven in a print cut over forty-six yards long. A strike had been ordered at the mill by the Weavers' Union, but the concession is deemed satisfactory.

At Duluth, Minn., William McKinley, one of the best known men in northern Minnesota, and a heavy owner in mining and lumber lands all over the country, has made an assignment. The liabilities are estimated at from $300,000 to $600,000, while the assets are small.

At Milwaukee, Wis., the J. Oberman Brewing company has gone into the hands of a receiver, and will be continued in operation under the direction of Judge Johnson. J. Oberman, individually, has also made a voluntary assignment. The assignment of the company is for $120,000.

Referee W. G. Choate, of Brooklyn, has decided that ex-Boss McKane, of Gravesend, now in Sing-Sing, swindled the widow of Paul Bauer out of large sums of money and that he must make restitution. Paul Bauer was McKane's friend and the latter administered on his estate.

SMALLPOX IN ST. LOUIS.

Eighty-Five Cases of the Dread Disease Reported.

At noon Wednesday eighty-five cases of smallpox were reported, and this number is expected to be increased when the complete returns are received. The health officers are beginning to realize the gravity of the situation and are making energetic efforts to check the spread of the disease. Two cases were discovered in the schools for colored children and the schools were ordered closed. So far the disease is mainly confined to the colored population, but it is feared the contagion will spread to the white people through the medium of porters, coachmen and waiters, who frequent the infected districts. The daily supply of vaccine virus was exhausted an hour after being received. It is estimated that an average of 2,000 persons are vaccinated daily.

Cotton Mill Operatives on Strike.

The Galveston, Texas, cotton mill operatives, nearly 500 strong, went on strike Tuesday on account of a request from the management of the mills to work an extra hour each day. This, the operatives declared, was too long for the women and children to work, and they concluded to strike. The extra hour was asked for by the management on account of the mill being shut down three days during the severe cold weather.

OATES VETOED IT.

ALABAMA'S RAILROAD LITIGATION BILL FAILS,

And the Matter Will Now Have to be Settled in the Courts.

A Montgomery special says: The house of representatives promptly declined to pass the bill involving the litigation over the ownership of the Alabama Great Southern over the governor's veto. The matter will have to be settled in the courts, where a suit is now pending between the two contestants, the Southern and the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

This has been the most spirited contest ever known in the Alabama legislature, the bill having passed through both houses several times by reason of amendments being tacked on. It finally passed both bodies in due form and went to the governor for his signature. He vetoed it on account of its unconstitutionality in that it discriminated against alien stockholders. The house by a vote of 53 to 35 declined to pass the bill over the veto of the executive and thus settled the matter finally.

S. A. L. BOYCOTTED

By the Southern Railway and Steamship Association.

Notice of boycott has been served upon the Seaboard Air-Line by the Southern Railway and Steamship Association. The Seaboard Air-Line was not a member of the association, but on account of alleged irregularities Commissioner Stahlman has served notice to members of the executive board and the rate committee of a withdrawal of prorating arrangement and the application of local rates on traffic to and from the Seaboard Air-Line, including the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad.

The boycott, involving, as it does so large a mileage as the Seaboard's, is one of the most important efforts of the kind ever undertaken by the commissioner.

In fact the legality of a boycott of an association like the Southern Railway and Steamship association has not yet been finally tested, in all cases some kind of settlement having been reached before the courts were appealed to.

THE LOAN SUCCESSFUL.

It is Subscribed for Many Times Over in London and New York.

Advices from London state that Messrs. N. M. Rothschilds & Son declare that the new American loan has proved a colossal success. Though the opening of subscriptions only began Wednesday morning, the amount of the loan allotted to Europe has been covered very many times over both with them and with Messrs. J. S. Morgan & Co. It is impossible as yet to give the exact amount of the bids, as applications are still coming from London, and the country is yet to be heard from.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that the success of the loan is a tribute to the power of Messrs. Rothschilds and a mark of confidence in the great wealth and financial ability of the United States.

THE LOAN IN NEW YORK.

Messrs. August Belmont & Co., and J. P. Morgan & Co., the managers of the bond syndicate, closed the subscription list for the new 4 per cent bonds at 10:20 o'clock Wednesday morning, the amount having been subscribed for many times over.

Ambrose Smith, a well known and popular attorney, convicted of having appropriated to his own use one thousand dollars, which he had collected for a client, was also sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS DEAD.

He Was the Foremost Leader Among Colored Men.

A Washington special says: Frederick Douglass, the foremost leader of the negro race in the world and one of the most picturesque characters in American history, died Wednesday night at his home in the suburb of Anacostia. His death was sudden and unexpected, as he had been in apparent good health up to the day of his death.

Frederick Douglass was born in Tuckahoe, near Easton, Talbot county, Maryland, February, 1817. His mother was a negro slave and his father a white man. He was a slave on the plantation of Colonel Edward Loyd until at the age of ten he was sent to Baltimore to live with a relative of his master.

He learned to read and write from one of his master's relatives, to whom he was lent when about nine years of age. His master later allowed him to hire his own time for three dollars a week, and he was employed in a ship yard, and in accordance with a resolution long entertained, fled from Baltimore and from slavery, September 3, 1838. He made his way to New York, thence to New Bedford, Mass., where he married and lived for two or three years, supporting himself by day labor on the wharves and in various workshops. While there he changed his name from Loyd to Douglass.

He was aided in his efforts in self-education by William Loyd Garrison. In the summer of 1841, he attended an anti-slavery convention at Nantucket, and made a speech which was so well received that he was offered the agency of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society. In this capacity he traveled and lectured through the New England states for four years. Large audiences were attracted by his graphic descriptions of slavery and his eloquent appeals.

In 1845 he went to Europe and lectured on slavery to enthusiastic audiences in nearly all the large towns of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. In 1846 his friends in England contributed $750 to have him manumitted in due form of law. He remained two years in Great Britain and in 1847 began at Rochester, N. Y., the publication of "Frederick Douglass' Paper," which title was changed to "The North Star," a weekly journal, which he contributed to for some years. His supposed implication in the John Brown raid in 1859 led Governor Wise, of Virginia, to make a requisition for his arrest upon the governor of Michigan, where he then was, and in consequence of this Douglass went to England, and remained six or eight months. He then returned to Rochester and continued the publication of his paper.

When the civil war began in 1861, he urged upon President Lincoln the employment of colored troops and the proclamation of emancipation. In 1863, when permission was given to employ such troops, he assisted in enlisting men to fill colored regiments, especially the 54th and 55th Massachusetts.

His Career as a Lecturer.

After the abolition of slavery, he discontinued his paper and applied himself to the preparation and delivery of lectures before lyceums. In September, 18[illegible] he became editor of the New National Era, in Washington, which was continued by his sons, Lewis and Frederick. In 1871 he was appointed assistant secretary to the commission to Santo Domingo; and on his return President Grant appointed him one of the territorial council of the District of Columbia.

In 1872 he was appointed elector at large for the state of New York, and was appointed to carry the electoral vote to Washington. In 1876 he was appointed United States marshal for the District of Columbia, which office he retained until 1881, after which he became recorder of deeds in the district, from which office he was removed by President Cleveland in 1886.

In the autumn of 1886 he revisited England to inform his friends of what progress he had made as a fugitive slave of the African race in the United States, with the intention of spending the winter on the continent and the following summer in the United States.

His published works are entitled, "Narrative of my Experience in Slavery," Boston, 1844; "Life and Times of Frederick Douglass," Hartford, 1881; "My Bondage and My Freedom," Rochester, 1855.

The experience of G. [illegible] of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He was troubled with chronic diarrhoea and doctored for five months and was treated by four different doctors without benefit. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, of which one small bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

The Senate refused to confirm the appointment of Col. Tonstall, but did confirm the appointment of Col. Harvey Jones for commissioner.

The time is now fully upon us when every good citizen must do his duty towards the suppression of crime. No man must be allowed to violate the law by reason of his financial, social or official station and then go free from arrest and punishment. Good citizens should not hesitate to make affidavits for the arrest of violators, then the officer receiving the warrant of arrest should search every nook and corner of the land until he is sure the criminal has departed the realm.

There is too much of a tendency in this country for officers and people alike to wait for the Governor to offer a reward. And sometimes the friends of the accused work up the demand for this reward and then bring in the escape and claim the reward, hoping to use that fund to bring him clear of the charges. The duties and obligations of citizenship sit too lightly on the hearts of our people. There must come reform in this matter or our country will go from bad to worse.

Mrs. Emily Thorne, who resides at Toledo, Washington, says she has never been able to procure any medicine for rheumatism that relieves the pain so quickly and effectually as Chamberlain's Pain Balm and that she has also used it for lame back with great success. The Alabama Legislature has enacted a law by which temperance people can more easily secure the indictment and conviction of liquor sellers. This law now allows the fact of a party's having procured a revenue licence from the United States Government to be competent evidence against him when on trial for violating the prohibition law, and it allows parol evidence to prove the existence of such license. If you have reason to believe one is selling liquor write to the U. S. Revenue Department at Birmingham and ask if that party has been granted a license. In order that our readers may know who in Chilton county hold U. S. license to manufacture and sell liquor the View will make investigation and publish such names. The View will not hesitate if necessary to fight single handed this infamous traffic which is destroying the souls and bodies of our people and actually threatening to overthrow the peace of our county. But this paper does not stand alone, scores of good people all over the county are heart and voice with it and all agree that violators must be brought to justice.

The County Court House needs painting, the Court room needs a thorough cleaning, windows and a new carpet on the floor and new covering for the Judge's stand and the tables, before spring Court.

THE PRESS PILGRIMAGE TO HAVANA.

But if it was beautiful by day, it was doubly so by night, when the brilliant head-lights of the boat casting a weird reflection on the shore, revealed a series of fantastic scenes. When it illuminated those long stretches of dead trees, we could see the spectral forest, described by Jules Verne in the centre of the Earth, and in the fitful change of light and shadow, could almost discern those mammoth shapes moving among them.

Early Tuesday morning, we arrived at Jacksonville, the metropolis of Florida, and the Saratoga of the South. Here as at every place visited in this lovely lake-land, we found awaiting us the welcome of long expected guest, and every hospitable attention. After breakfast at the handsome St. James, we were ferried over the river to take the train for Pablo Beach, one of the prettiest spots on the Atlantic coast, where the wide almost level beach of white sand looks like an immense ball-room with its white drugget spread. We spent an hour in the exhilarating atmosphere of this place, and returned to Jacksonville.

In the afternoon, we were offered a drive to various points of interest, through beautiful streets, some of them lined with stately spreading shade trees, water and live oaks, magnolia and Orange.

Meeting overhead, they convert the roadway into a leafy arcade, festooned with tufts of the graceful Spanish moss. Along the route, we noticed many handsome public buildings, elegant churches, charming residences and beautiful flower gardens.

After a drive, we visited the souvenir and curiosity shops where we found an endless variety of beautiful constructions in every Florida product. A concert was given at the Hotel that evening, and some of us found for a time the theatre also, and our visit to Jacksonville was ended, our only regret being that we could not remain longer.

The story of the next day was that of quaint, curious and beautiful St. Augustine. We arrived early and were soon settled at the elegant Hotel Cordova, one of the Spanish palaces embracing the Alameda on three sides, the others being Ponce De Leon and the Alcazar, its adjunct. All three are under the same management.

The Cordova, formerly Casa Montez, is the oldest and differs from the others in style of architecture. It is Spanish-Moresque and they Spanish Renaissance. To the Spanish, this difference would mean a great deal. The Cordova is after the style of the old castles built under Moorish dominion, its massive tower, battlements, and heavy arch being suggestive of war rather than peace. The others represent the best school of Spanish art at a later period, when the hated Moors had been expelled from Granada, and when Ferdinand and Isabella were in power.

The first object of our sight-seeing was this stately neighbor, Ponce de Leon, the magnificent structure which has given its impress to the town, rendering St. Augustine famous for the splendor of her modern architecture, as well as for her antiquity and historic associations.

We found this beautiful palace with its towers, courts, fountains, loggias, superb decorations, and costly works of art, even more wonderful and interesting than we had expected, so we returned for a longer visit in the afternoon. Space forbids anything more than general impressions, but one of the strongest made upon us was the historic symbolism of the decorations. It begins at the gateway, where lion masques, the heraldic of the house of Leon are carved in the gate-posts; and a stag's head the sacred totem of Seloy, the little Indian village found by the first settlers on the site of St. Augustine is placed over the archway. This beautiful conception is carried through other decorations and on the ceiling of the alcoves of the dining-room the whole history of Florida is written in pictures.

Another building not far away suggests this same history. A short walk, and crossing a moat, we came to old Fort Marion with its court, casemates and dungeons. Its harsh, gray walls are bare and ugly, but they have seen many of the events which the beautiful decorations of Ponce de Leon commemorate. Their eloquent record is not of years, but of revolutions; not of decades, but of changes on the map of the world. But more interesting even than political mutations are the romantic incidents relating to those, who at different times, have been confined within their space. Indian warrior, English prisoner, and noble victim of Spanish hate all confided their woes to these silent witnesses of their misery. They have heard the piteous pleading of the wife for imprisoned husband, and they have heard the heavy bolt shot home, after refusing her prayer. They have heard the voice of command, the tread of battalions, the roar of cannon, the shout of rescuers and the wail of the vanquished.

The hand of Time is softening their outlines; fig-trees are growing from their crevices; tiny flowers on the ramparts, and summer grass Time's banner of peace, on their outer surface. So these two great attractions of the town, lordly Ponce de Leon and venerable Fort Marion stand not far apart in space but centuries in time; the old and the new, the chronicle of the past and the architectural pride of the present, perpetuating the history of Old St. Augustine. In the evening a grand orchestral concern was given in the rotunda of Ponce de Leon, followed by a ball at the Hotel Cordova, and our visit was over.

The next morning we turned our faces homeward. This time the journey through southern Georgia was made in daylight, so we made short stops at Waycross and Thomasville, reaching Montgomery, at 10.45 Thursday night, Januaty 24 tired out. For the great success of the trip, as well as for our individual pleasure and profit, we are largely indebted to the able managers, Messrs. J. A. Roundtree, Secretary of the Association, and Lee McLendon of the Plant System.

So thoroughly were all preliminary arrangements made and so carefully was every step of the itinerary considered, that when accomplished by the party it seemed as if an advance courier had just been there to make especial provision for our ease and comfort. All the worrying details of pass ports, fares and guides were assumed by them.

They set the limits of American forbearance to these foreign potentates, and we had only to follow.

The trip itself, that is, the exact accomplishment of the itinerary without accident, mishap, or change, (except as desired by the party,) speaks for the means, by which it was effected, with the exception of the boat ride on the St. John's and the short run from Jacksonville to St. Augustine, it was all, including the steam-ship conveyance to Havana and return, the work of the magnificent Plant System.

O. W. O. Hardman, Sheriff of Tyler Co., W. Va. appreciates a good thing and does not hesitate to say so. He was almost prostrated with a cold when he procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says: "It gave me prompt relief. I find it to be be an invaluable remedy for coughs and colds." For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNiell, Jemison

A Word About Hard Times.

We ought to prayerfully consider the situation. If our cribs and smoke houses were empty now, as they have so often been in the past and we had the money to buy those supplies, we would call it flush times; but this money is in another form, and we are crying hard times

If the "flush times" described above were here we would be giving to missions, ministerial education and every good cause; but, brother, hasn't the Lord any claim on the contents of your crib and smoke house? Will you let your minister and missionary suffer, and the young preachers quit college, while your cribs are full of corn and you have meat and syrup to spare?

"Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God. When thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses and dwelt therein; and thy silver and gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied, and thou say in thine heart my power and the might of mine hand hast gotten me this wealth.

But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is he that has given thee power to get wealth".

In the place of "silver and gold" suppose you put "provisions." It is far better than silver and gold. Since God has blessed the country with an abundance to live upon, don't let us go back on his cause in the times of greatest need.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......... $75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Melilotus, under the same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year.......... $100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each.......... $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.......... $75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, 220, acres of land for $8 per acre? If that too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

Do you know.

That the titles to your property are perfect? If there is doubt confer at once with Chas. W, Hare and H. I. Honeycutt who can furnish you a complet abstract.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Send us the news.

The bright days are making everbody happy.

We welcome Mr. Calloway from Coosa county to our town. He has entered school under Prof. McMorries.

Mr. W. L. Ward, of Selma was with us last Monday.

Don't forget to attend the farmer's meeting here on 9th of March. This will be an important gathreing.

Some of our admiring subribers can bring us a couple of gallons of cane syrup and get credit on their accounts.

Rev. J. G. Lowery preached at Mulberry last Sunday. He preeched against the corruption of the times.

Rev. Mr. Guthrie filled his Clanton pulpit last Sunday and at night. His sermons are strong and clear. He believes in churches paying their debts. Don't think a revival can be had unless they do.

Prof. Glass had brief a visit from his sister, Miss Glass, and her pupil, Miss Curtis, of Kentucky last week. We trust that the fair visitors were pleased with our city.

Miss Shackelford is now giving her pupils music lessons at the home of the editor of the View.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolen were called to Goodwater last week to attend the funeral of Mrs. Nolen's grandfather, Mr. Robert Crew.

Messrs. Troy and Adams, two young attorneys from Montgomery, spent a few days in Clanton last week. We would be pleased to have those gentlemen locate in Clanton. They are both wellequipped for the practice of law and would be valuable additions to the Clanton bar.

A number of our saw mill men and Mr. Wm. Wadsworth from Autauga held some kind of a meeting here one day last week. We suppose their effort was to put up prices or to agree on prices.

Reader, of what account are in your county and community? Are you a producer or merely a consumer? If you are a mere idler be sure that Satan will find something for your hands to do.

Every man, woman, and child in the community should seriously ask the question what can I do to make my neighborhood increase in those qualities which shall render it more desirable as a dwelling place. Do good to all men and as much as lieth within us let us be at peace with all men.

The family of Mr. Farrior, at Dudleys old mill, have both sickness and want to contend with. Their condition appeals for help.

A Des Moines woman who been troubled with frequent colds, concluded to try an old remedy in a new way, and accordingly took a tablespoonful (four times the usual dose) of Chamberlains Cough Remedy just before going to bed. The next morning she found that her cold had almost entirely disappeared. During the day she took a few doses of the remedy (one teaspoonful at a time) and at night again took a tablespoonful before going to bed, and on the following morning awoke free from all symptoms of the cold. Since then she has, on several occasions, used this remedy in like manner, with the same good results, and is much elated over her discovery of so quick a way of curing a cold. For sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Quite a crowd was in town last Wednesday to hear the testimony in the trial of J. Bice and Tommie Ogletree charged with assault with intent to murder Dutch Crosby. The day was consumed in the examination of witnesses for the prosecution, Mr. Ogletree was discharged and J. Bice held under bond of one hundred dollars. Dr. Edgar Givhan testified as to how often he had seen Dutch Crosby since the shooting, the character of his wounds, the statements made him by Dutch Crosby, at whose houses he has seen Crosby since the shooting, at whose request he visited and treated Dutch Crosby, whose pistol Dutch Crosby said he did the shooting with, the purpose of his getting Wiley Bice to go up to Strasburg with him, the size of the ball cut from W. C. Ogletree. Wiley Bice denied that Dutch Crosby said anything to him about a still, or about going to J. Bice's to mention the still. He also denied Dutch Crosby's getting his pistol. He was not clear just which one pulled pistol first J. Bice or Dutch Crosby. The remainder of the testimony that we heard had an air of doubt as to which first fired, but all agree that Wiley Bice caught hold of J. Bice's pistol.

One witness testified to seeing Dutch Crosby shoot W. C. Ogletree. One or two witnesses swore that J. Bice procured his Winchester and fired one shot at Dutch Crosby as he ran from the store. There is great interest in the matter because all parties have many friends who deeply regret the entire occurrence.

We have heard it remarked that according to population there were more people in Clanton at outs with each other than in most any other place. If this is a fact it ought not so to be. True, honest and brave men and women will not intentionally wrong others, and in most cases where we have misunderstandings if we would go in the right spirit to the supposed offender it should be an easy matter to explain and start over. We can't believe that our community is cursed with people who will deliberately and intentionally try to injure others. If such is the fact they are to be pitied. Their spleen may hurt others financially, socially or otherwise but not half so much as their own consciences make them despise themselves.

The dart may be used secretly and the offender never be discovered, yet the miserable coward will receive the lashings of conscience each time he looks upon his innocent victim. But it should be the aim of every citizen to do these things which tend to produce the greatest harmony.

Mr. E. H. Smith of Energy presented us with a mess of seedless or bunch yams. It is a delightful eating potatoe. The vine grows not more than 2 feet but the potatoes grow in bunches about the root, averaging about 6 potatoes to a bunch. Off of one eleventh of an acre he raised 35 bushels. He will sell either seed potatoes or the slips. This strikes us as being a good potatoe for our farmers to try. It keeps well and has splendid flavor.

Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Boiled Milk.

Some very interesting experiments have lately been made in France by Dr. Chamouin in the line of boiling milk to free it from being a means of infection and contagion. There has been a great prejudice in this country against boiled milk for infant feeding, but the idea that the boiling process does away with the nourishing properties and digestibility is done away with by Dr. Chamouin's experiments. He fed a number of kittens on boiled milk and a number on fresh milk. Those fed on the boiled milk were twice as fat and healthy as those fed on fresh milk.

He further carried on experiments in Paris which assured him that the infant death rate could be made much less, were the thousands of infants hand fed, given boiled milk instead of fresh milk.

This series of experiments has been very interesting from the reason that boiled milk has been used, with unqualified success, in rearing my own babies, as fat and healthy a set as one could desire. The amount of milk used in a day was placed in a fire crock and boiled. The thick top or scum lifted off and the crock covered and put away safely, was all there was as to trouble. A tiny granite saucepan held just enough for a meal and that meal was slightly warmed, not heated hot, before putting it into the bottle.

Boiling milk is, indeed, a simple precaution against the bowel ailments of infants, so simple every mother should try it.—Womankind.

Fast Living.

The most remarkable instance of rapid growth is said to be recorded by the French academy in 1729. It was a boy six years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height. At the age of five his voice changed, at six his beard had grown, and he appeared a man of thirty. He possessed great physical strength, and could easily lift to his shoulders and carry bags of grain weighing two hundred pounds. His decline was as rapid as his growth. At eight his hair and beard were gray; at ten he tottered in his walk, his teeth fell out, and his hands became palsied; at twelve he died with every outward sign of extreme old age.—Times and Register.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my child of impure blood and eruptions on the head. She would scratch her head so that it would bleed. The sores spread behind her ears, and the poor child suffered terribly. I doctored her the best I knew how but the sores did not get any better. But thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Olive Ointment, she is now well as any of the children. She is as large and healthy as any child five years old. This is all the medicine we take, for I do not think there is any better." GEORGE DANCER, Lawrence Station, N. J.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WHAT THE NATIONS' LAW-MAKERS ARE DOING.

The Proceedings of Both Houses Briefly Epitomized.

THE SENATE.

There was a large attendance on the floor of the senate Tuesday and the galleries were well filled, in anticipation of a struggle, and perhaps a vote on the silver bill, which had been adroitly forced to the front as the unfinished business. There was hardly an absentee on the democratic side, indicating the anxiety of the different elements to present full ranks on the impending contest. A report from the secretary of the treasury was read in response to the resolution concerning the need of legislation to meet the deficiencies. The secretary stated that an available balance of $99,875,000 exclusive of over $55,000,000 gold reserve is on hand. Mr. Blackburn, democrat, of Kentucky, reported from the conference committee on the diplomatic and consular bill that an agreeant had been reached on all the items except the $500,000 for beginning the Hawaiian cable. The report was confirmed and a further conference directed on the Hawaiian cable item. Mr. Jones, in charge of the silver bill, got on his feet with a request that the senate proceed with the regular order, which was the silver bill. Mr. Hill objected to displacing morning business. "Then," said Mr. Jones, "I will move to take it up at once." It was apparent that a vote was imminent. Thereupon Mr. Voorhees, democrat, of Indiana, arose and presented the credentials of Mr. Wilson, the new senator from Washington, and he was sworn in. Mr. Jones yielded further for the resolution of Mr. Gorman, which was agreed to, for senate sessions beginning at 11 o'clock on and after Wednesday. Mr. Jones now presented his motion to take up the silver bill. Great interest was shown while the yea and nay vote was being taken. The motion prevailed—36 to 27. Then the tug of war was on. The bill was read in full. In the opening skirmish, Mr. Jones said the friends of his bill were willing to put the matter to a test now, without a word of debate. If the opponents of the bill saw fit to resist, and to discuss it, of course its friends could not help it; but they had to make an earnest effort to get a vote. Mr. Jones added that he did not propose to jeopardize any appropriation bill. There was plenty of time to pass them all. It was apparent, however, that no vote could be taken at once, nor at any time that could be definitely stated; so Mr. Jones said he had only to request that the debate would proceed as rapidly as possible and that the vote might be had at the earliest possible hour.

The senate began its 11 o'clock sessions Wednesday, rendered necessary by the pressing demands of the appropriation bills. Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, in charge of the silver bill, which still held its advantages as the unfinished business, circulated among his associates. Mr. Platt, republican, of Connecticut, Mr. Higgins, republican, of Delaware, and other republican senators were evidently prepared to carry forward the opposition to the silver bill and Mr. Higgins secured the floor for a speech but Mr. Jones soon came forward with an important announcement. "The friends of the regular order—the silver bill," said he, "have no wish to risk the danger of an extra session of congress. They so stated at the outset. The events have shown that this danger might be incurred and that the great appropriation bills might be put in jeopardy. For that reason, the friends of the silver bill have authorized me to say that it will not be further pressed at the present session of congress." The presiding officer presented the Wolcott silver resolution, declaratory in favor of silver coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1, but stating that it was inexpedient at this late day in the session to take up the silver bill. Mr. Call sought to take up the Indian appropriation bill but it was cut off by objection. Mr. Higgins then addressed the senate on the Wolcott resolution. He argued that it was meaningless and could effect nothing. It would not receive executive approval even if it went through congress. He said the repeal of the Sherman law was notice to the world that the United States would no longer be the patient ass to bear the burden of silver. At 12 o'clock, the hour of unfinished business arrived and a sharp controversy arose as to the precedence of various bills. The Wolcott resolution, under the rules, went to the calendar. Mr. Gorman appealed to senators to stop the fruitless discussion on the pending Wolcott resolution, and to take up the appropriation bills which were demanding attention, if it was hoped to pass them. He then moved to take up the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Butler, in charge of the pooling bill, objected, and demanded a roll call. The motion prevailed—55 to 12. The effect of the vote was to displace the silver bill as the unfinished business, and to send it back to the calendar. The Indian appropriation bill being taken up Mr. Higgins continued his interrupted speech on the finances.

There were just sixteen senators present when the 11 o'clock session of the senate opened Thursday, and Mr. Walcott, republican, of Colorado, suggested the absence of a quorum. Senators were hurriedly summoned and forty-responded, two more than the necessary number. Mr. Irby, democrat, of South Carolina, presented credentials of B. R. Tillman from South Carolina, for the term beginning March 4 next. Mr. Turpie, democrat, of North Dakota, offered a resolution from the committee on foreign relations, expressing the high appreciation of the senate as to the distinguished honors accorded by the Mexican government on the occasion of the obsequies of the United States minister, Mr. Gray, and directing the secretary of state to forward copies of the resolution to the authorities of Mexico. The resolution was agreed to. The house joint resolution was passed for the suspension of certain features of the law authorizing the transportation of goods through the United States to the free zone of Mexico, so long as the Mexican free zone law exists. The senate rejected the motion of Mr. Gorman to reconsider its action in adopting the conference report amending the income tax, and then took up the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Gorman's purpose was to require corporations to make report of all their high salaried officials.

THE HOUSE.

In the house, Tuesday, the senate amendments to the house bill to authorize the Oklahoma Central railroad to construct a railroad through Oklahoma and Indian Territories were agreed to. The consideration of the naval appropriation bill was then resumed, the pending question being the decision of the chair (Mr. O'Neill, of Massachusetts), on the point of order raised by Mr. Sayers against the item in the bill authorizing the secretary of the navy to enlist in his discretion 2,000 additional seamen with which to man the new ships. The chairman (Mr. O'Neill) announced his decision overruling the point of order. Mr. Sayers appealed from the decision of the chai.

At the opening of the session of the house Wednesday some time was spent in unraveling a tangle produced by the passage by the house under a misapprehension of a bill to increase the pension of Thomas Corrigan, late company B, 388 Illinois infantry, to $50 per month. The bill was returned to the house in response to a resolution, and by unanimous consent the vote was again taken on the recommendation of the committee of the whole that the bill lie on the table. Messrs. Hull and Larey, of Iowa, insisted that the bill was meritorious and that the recommendation of the committee of the whole should be disagreed to, and this action was taken by a vote of 48 to 100. Mr. Sayers' motion to strike out the provision in the house for the three new battleships in the naval appropriations bill, was lost—43 to 121.

The house, Thursday, by a vote of 174 to 152 refused to concur in the senate amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, appropriating $500,000 for the Hawaiian cable.

COTTON AND FERTILIZERS.

South Carolina Farmers Vote to Reduce the Acreage.

A convention of alliancemen and farmers called by President Evans to consider the fertilizer and cotton acreage questions, met in the hall of the house of representatives at Columbia, S. C., Wednesday night. It included about fifty representative planters from all sections of the state. Congressman-elect J. William Stokes introduced a series of resolutions suggesting that farmers purchase commercial fertilizers upon a contract to pay for them in cotton currency on November 1st. For acid phosphate, 175 pounds in middling cotton, or $10 in money per ton, was suggested; for kainit, 190 pounds or $11, and for ammoniated fertilizers 300 pounds or $17—these prices to be for the goods free on board in Charleston. Freight, if prepaid by sender, is to be paid in cotton at 5 cents.

It was resolved, also, that planters use as little commercial fertilizer as possible, and several speeches were made favoring its total disuse. With regard to the cotton acreage, it was resolved that it be cut down to the point at which cotton may be produced strictly as a surplus crop and without interfering with the productions of bread and meat and other supplies necessary to sustain farming operations. A resolution favoring a horizontal reduction of 33 per cent, after debate, was lost.

The railroads were asked to reduce the freights on fertilizers 20 per cent. A committee was appointed to issue an address to the farmers setting forth the action of the convention, and, at 11:15 p. m., the convention adjourned. It was declared in the convention that the suggestions were to be considered as merely advisory and not binding upon those present. In all the speeches a strong sentiment in favor of reducing the acreage was manifested.

FLOUR COMBINE ROUTED.

The Crown Mills Seem to Have Whipped Out the Would-Be Trust.

A San Francisco special says: The Union flour mills of Stockton purchased last year by the Sperry combine for $294,000, has closed down. Of the thirteen mills owned by this syndicate in various parts of the state, only three are are now in operation.

The closing down is said to be due to the strong opposition of the Crown mills, for which that company vainly offered one million dollars. Had the bid been accepted, the flour trust would have been in as complete control as the sugar trust. Instead a bitter fight has been waged in the course of which prices of flour has fallen from $5.50 to $2.85 a barrel. The Crown mills are said to be backed by Balfour, Guthrie & Company, Schwabacher Brothers and ex-Mayor Grace of New York.

The war has been too hot for the combine and all of the closed down mills have been dismantled.

HONORING DOUGLASS.

The North Carolina House Adjourns as a Tribute.

A great sensation was created at Raleigh, N. C., Thursday by the adoption in the house of a resolution, introduced by a negro, that when the general assembly does adjourn, it adjourn in honor of Frederick Douglass.

The resolution was passed by a vote of 34 to 20, all the democrats voting against it. A resolution to adjourn on February 22d, in honor of Washington's birthday, which is a legal holiday in the state, was voted down. The same body also refused to adjourn in honor of General Lee, on January 19th.

PROMPTLY REPULSED.

Chinese Attack the Japs and Are Badly Beaten.

A dispatch dated Kai Ping, on the 17th, says that about a thousand Chinese troops attacked the Japanese outposts at Kumo-Cheng in the morning and were repulsed promptly. The Chinese retreated precipitately, leaving thirty dead on the field. The number of wounded had not been ascertained. The Japanese suffered no loss whatever.

AN ALPENA MIRACLE.

MRS. JAS. M. TODD, OF LONG RAPIDS, DISCARDS HER CRUTCHES.

In an Interview with a Reporter She Reviews Her Experience and Tells the Real Cause of the Miracle.

(From the Argus, Alpena, Mich.)

We have long known Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapids, Alpena Co., Mich. She has been a sad cripple. Many of her friends know the story of her recovery; for the benefit of those who do not we publish it to-day.

Eight years ago she was taken with nervous prostration, and in a few months with muscular and inflammatory rheumatism. It affected her heart, then her head. Her feet became so swollen she could wear nothing on them; her hands were drawn all out of shape. Her eyes were swollen shut more than half the time, her knee joints terribly swollen and for eighteen months she had to be held up to be dressed. One limb became entirely helpless, and the skin was so dry and cracked that it would bleed. During these eight years she had been treated by a score of physicians, and has also spent much time at Ann Arbor under best medical advice. All said her trouble was brought on by hard work and that medicine would not cure, and that rest was the only thing which would ease her. After going to live with her daughter she became entirely helpless and could not even raise her arms to cover herself at night. The interesting part of the story follows in her own words:

"I was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and at last did so. In three days after I commenced taking Pink Pills I could sit up and dress myself; and after using them six weeks I went home and commenced working. I continued taking the pills, until now I begin to forget my crutches, and can go up and down steps without aid. I am truly a living wonder, walking out of doors without assistance.

"Now, if I can say anything to induce those who have suffered as I have, to try Pink Pills, I shall gladly do so. If other like sufferers will try Pink Pills according to directions, they will have reason to thank God for creating men who are able to conquer that terrible disease, rheumatism. I have in my own neighborhood recommended Pink Pills for the after effects of la grippe, and weak women with impure blood, and with good results."

Mrs. Todd is very strong in her faith in the curative powers of Pink Pills, and says they have brought a poor, helpless cripple back to do her own milking, churning, washing, sewing, knitting and in fact about all of her household duties, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Value of Our Cereal Crops.

The report of the statistician of the agricultural department concerning the area, product and value of the cereal crops for 1894, which has recently been published, contains some very significant figures. The report states that the corn crop of the year is one of the lowest on record, the yield per acre being but 19.4 bushels. The area harvested in the corn-producing states has been reduced by severe drought and dry winds to 62,582,000 acres from the 76,000,000 acres planted. The crop has been about 1,212,770,000 bushels, and the estimated value is fixed at $354,719,000. The wheat crop is slightly above the average. The entire product of the country is 460,267,416 bushels, which is valued at $225,902,025. This represents the entire product of 34,882,436 acres. The rate of yield has been 13.2 bushels per acre, and the average value per bushel 49.1 cents. The estimates of the area, product and value of the other crops are as follows:

The estimates for oats are: Area, 27,023,553 acres; product, 662,086,928 bushels; value, $214,816,920; yield per acre, 24.5 bushels.

Rye—Area, 1,944,780 acres; product, 26,727,615 bushels; value, $13,394,476.

Barley—Area, 3,170,602 acres; product, 61,400,463 bushels; value, $27,134,127.

Buckwheat—Area, 789,232 acres; product, 12,668,200 bushels; value, $7,040,230.

Potatoes—Area, 2,737,973 acres; product, 170,787,338 bushels; value, $91,526,787.

Disinterested Kindness.

"Won't you have another piece of pie, Mr. Claverly?" asked Tommie.

"Thank you, Tommie," replied Mr. Claverly, "it's very kind of you."

"Oh, that's all right," returned Tommie, with energy. "I'm a-lookin' out for myself, too. Ma said if it was necessary to cut another pie, I could have two pieces."—Harlem Life.

Metallic Carpets.

Lowell parties are reported to be experimenting with a process for making metallic yarns for use in carpets. The process consists of a foundation of a metal coating on an inferior surface, and weaving the strands in certain proportions. The object is to secure greater durability and strength than it is possible to obtain from the use of yarns made from our animal or vegetable fibers. A non-oxidizable metal is employed and this is dissolved and applied to the surfaces of threads, rendering them like metal in appearance and general characteristics. The metallic composition is composed of aluminium, borax, alum, litharge and wax. These compounded with white lead and one or two other substances produce a metallic coating that it is as flexible and soft as common paint would be, yet to all appearances the covering is as metal, very much resembling aluminum. Various substances can be used for the core or body of the thread, among others wood pulp, jute, cotton, flax, etc. The metallic coating is applied to the yarns automatically in a device consisting of a chamber in which the ingredients are put, and through which the yarns are drawn, the coating adhering to the surface of the threads.—Industrial World.

Columbus and the Historic Egg.

At last science has demonstrated how our discoverer made his egg stand on end and secured the means by which to make his expedition a success.

The egg was first laid down on its side on a plate and the dish moved about with the hand in a circle till the egg catches onto the movement and begins to rotate on a sidewise axis; as the speed is made to increase it is gradually brought upon its tip end, spinning like a top, when the plate can be placed on the table with the egg on end in a condition that would well illustrate the earth on its polar axis.

Do You Wish the Finest Bread and Cake?

It is conceded that the Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest of all the baking powders.

The purest baking powder makes the finest, sweetest, most delicious food. The strongest baking powder makes the lightest food.

That baking powder which is both purest and strongest makes the most digestible and wholesome food.

Why should not every housekeeper avail herself of the baking powder which will give her the best food with the least trouble?

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

Certain protection from alum baking powders can be had by declining to accept any substitute for the Royal, which is absolutely pure.

Hypnotization.

This growing force; at first a vague, laughed at fad; in the hands of the charlatan, a humbug and a nuisance; yet has more potency than we probably ever dream of. "Hypnotization," says Binet, "can be produced by strong and sudden excitement of the senses. The patient becomes hypnotized, and hence obedient to the hypnotizer." Bovis Sidas in The Atlantic Monthly for February, attributes mob cruelty and disturbance to hypnotism. "The mob is hypnotized by a strong, sudden action, and becomes for a time obedient to him who hypnotized it; that is, to the ring leader, to the hero." Again Krafft-Ebing tells of a peculiar state, namely, fascination. "In this state the patient feels herself to be a pure automaton, and knows herself as absent from the body, existing only as an image in the experimenter's eye. This disappearance of the consciousness of personality is of great interest." A similar state but of less intensity, we find in the mob when fascinated by its hero; something approaching the hypnotic state of fascination. Again we find in our courts that the person who actually put to death another was acquitted of the crime while the hypnotizer under whose spell the act was done was convicted and punished as the real criminal. We sincerely hope, however, hypnotic influence will not be added to that other and threadbare legal fraud, insanity, to further "cheat the gallows of its dues."

Another prominent investigator on hypnotism is Professor Alfred S. Warthen, demonstrator of medicine in the University of Michigan. According to that eminent authority, The Medical News, some remarkable results proceeded from Professor Warthen's experiments with music on mesmerism. The patient was first hypnotized and Wagner's "Ride of the Walkure" was played at him on the piano. Immediately the subject showed intense excitement; appeared to be in great agony and he broke out in profuse perspiration. On awakening from his trance, the patient declared that he had not perceived the music as sound, but as feeling; as if he were riding furiously through the air.

Another extraordinary effect was produced on a hypnotized patient by suddenly changing from the music of Wagner to other and inferior strains. "The subject's face became ashy pale, the pulse dropped from 120 to forty beats per minute and became irregular, soft and small; the respirations were decreased in number and became sighing in character. On being awakened the subject said he had been oppressed by a horrible fear because everything had suddenly seemed to come to an end." The inference is perfectly plain. Professor Warthen has established the fact that devotees of music drama are mesmerized and incapable of independent thought or emotion while the drama is being enacted.

The memory of Wagner just as fully hypnotizes the German as the photograph of the diabolical Svengali influenced Trilby long after his death.

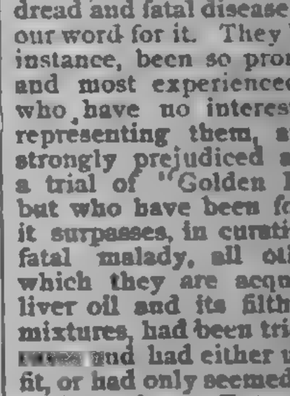
Smoking and Sense.

Edison says that when he is busy and deeply absorbed in his work he consumes about twenty cigars a day; when he is less active mentally, about ten. They are always strong cigars. The inventor says that this excessive smoking has never, so far as he can discover, done him any harm, and if it did he would be certain to stop the habit. His family has been one of smokers, his grandfather, who lived to be 108, having been an inveterate smoker and a chewer of tobacco as well.—Public Opinion.

Mrs. Strongmind—What would the men say if 1,000,000 women should rise in their righteous wrath and demand the ballot at the point of the bayonet?

Mr. Strongmind (abstractedly)—Oh, rats, I suppose.—Truth.

THE ONWARD MARCH



of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

A bill has just passed congress providing for two new district judges for United States courts in the Indian Territory. For these two new judges must be appointed.

Senator Allen, from the committee on forest reservations, has favorably reported the amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropriating $300,000 for the purchase of seed for the inhabitants of the drouth stricken districts.

The senate finance committee has ordered a favorable report on the amendment to the civil sundry bill to provide for the appointment for a commission of nine on behalf of the United States to attend international conference upon the rehabitation of silver, in case one shall be decided upon.

The senate committee on finance has ordered a favorable report on the resolution introduced by Mr. Wolcott providing for the appointment of delegates to the international monetary conference, should such a conference be called by any of the European powers. The appointment of nine delegates is provided for, three to be appointed by the president, three by the senate and three by the house of representatives.

Senator Mills has given notice of the following amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill: "And all laws which authorize the secretary of the treasury to sell bonds of the United States for any purpose are hereby repealed." The amendment is intended to follow the paragraph in the bill making provision for the collection, safekeeping, transfer and disbursement of public money, and for transportation of notes, bonds and other securities.

The president has nominated John W. Showalter, of Illinois, to be United States circuit judge for the seventh judicial district, and Olin Welborn, of California, to be United States district judge for the southern district of California. Judge Showalter, is a resident of Chicago and a man of about fifty years of age. He is acknowledged to be one of the best lawyers at the bar. He formerly filled an honorable place on the bench as one of the judges of a state circuit court.

For Increasing the Navy.

In the senate naval affairs committee a resolution was adopted by the unanimous vote of the committee, recommending the increase of the navy as provided in the new naval appropriation bill as passed by the house. The action was taken merely as an expression on the part of the committee to the senate committee on appropriations. The committee agreed to report an amendment to the naval bill for the appropriation of $100,000 for a dock yard at Mare Island, and another providing that officers of the navy detailed for shore duty shall receive sea pay while performing this duty. The latter amendment passed the senate as a part of the naval bill of last session, but was defeated in the house.

Bonds Ready for Delivery.

The last process in the printing of the new bonds, that of numbering them, was begun Tuesday at the bureau of engraving and printing, and the first batch is ready for delivery to the treasurer. Under the terms of the contract the treasury bears the expense of their delivery to all points within the United States, but not beyond the limits of the United States. So far the syndicate has not indicated when they desire the bonds delivered, or where, and they will be retained in the treasury until such instructions are received. Whenever the syndicate indicate their desire, accompanying their instructions with the certificates of the gold they have deposited, bonds—registered or coupon—of the denomination asked for will be forwarded where they desire. New York will probably receive the first batch of the new bonds this week. It is probable, also, the treasury will be asked to deliver the European allotment of the new bonds, transmitting the bonds direct from Washington to London, the syndicate paying the expense of their ocean transit.

BISSELL RESIGNS.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL QUITS HIS JOB.

Private Interests Assigned as the Cause for His Action.

Postmaster General Bissell set at rest all doubt as to his purpose of remaining in the cabinet by tendering his resignation to President Cleveland Wednesday afternoon. This action was not taken hastily. As far back as the early autumn Mr. Bissell felt that his law practice at Buffalo required his personal attention, and at that time he notified the president that sooner or later he would be compelled to retire to private life. Nothing further passed between the two gentlemen with reference to the matter until ten days ago when Mr. Bissell again assured the president that he must resign his portfolio.

The letter of resignation is said to have been brief and to have been couched in the usual formal terms. It recites the fact that he deems it advisable to retire from the cabinet and that he will do so upon the appointment and qualification of his successor. The letter was written by the postmaster general at the close of office hours Wednesday and was by him personally handed to his chief, a little after 5 o'clock.

What Mr. Bissell Says.

In speaking of the matter Mr. Bissell said: "I have placed my resignation in the hands of the president. The reason is that my professional work at home demands my attention, and I feel that I cannot longer remain away from it.

"The business of the department is in good condition and its transfer to my successor can be made without affecting the public service. I have found my work agreeable, although at times quite onerous. I confess I leave it with regret because I have become deeply interested in it, and had a desire to accomplish something more in the development of the postal service than I have found possible in these two years of effort.

"I deeply regret also that I am thus compelled to sever official relations with the president and his cabinet which have been satisfactory and cordial throughout. Perhaps, without impropriety, I may say now that all rumors of disagreement between the president and his cabinet have been without foundation. I doubt if there ever was a more harmonious cabinet than the present one and its members are a unit in support on every public question."

There is no reason to doubt that Mr. Bissell's successor will be Congressman William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, the author of the tariff law. But for the fact that the president intended making Mr. Wilson a member of his official family, a tender of the Mexican mission, it is said would have been made to him. The president has been sincerely desirous of appointing Mr. Wilson to some office of dignity and importance. When the president learned ten days ago that Mr. Bissell purposed soon to retire from the cabinet, he decided then that he should be succeeded by Mr. Wilson. This at least, is the story given out by Mr. Wilson's friends.

HAMMER'S SHORTAGE.

How He Managed to Hide it on the Bank's Books.

The officials of the First National bank, of Lynchburg, Va., with the aid of Defaulting Teller W. G. Hammer, have been engaged in going over the affairs of the bank. A statement for publication will disclose a shortage of not over $23,000, covering speculations of nearly thirteen years. Hammer concealed the transactions through the means of teller's checks whenever there was to be a count, and whenever the bank examiner would make his appearance Hammer would borrow from the other banks to make his cash good, after which he would promptly return the money. It is ascertained with a reasonable certainty that the bank will not lose over $23,000.

Dynamite Thieves.

Le Petit Journal, of Paris, says the prefecture of police has made the discovery that dynamite factories in the suburbs of Paris have recently been extensively robbed of their product. The presumption is that the thieves are anarchists.

THE MINES ABLAZE

AND TWENTY CONVICTS STIFLED BY SMOKE.

Two of Them are Dead—Twenty-three Mules Also Perish.

A Birmingham, Ala., special says: Shortly after 2 o'clock Sunday morning the engine room in the rock slope at Pratt mines was discovered on fire. In the slope there were twenty convicts and the first they knew of the fire was the dense smoke that began filling the vacant space. The men huddled in a bunch and found fresh air at the air shaft. It was decided to stick together, and as the air became more and more suffocating with the hot smoke, they all began to give up hope.

John Patton and Louis Stevens deserted the crowd and attempted to make their way to the cage leading out of the mine. They were not seen alive any more.

In the stable in the mines were twenty-three fine mine mules. As soon as they began smelling the dense smoke they set up a loud bellowing. Through the entire mines the noise of the suffocating animals could be heard.

As soon as possible an alarm was given on the outside. Willing hands went to work and were fighting the fire.

Three hours after the discovery was made the fire was extinguished. The fire was of incendiary origin, as no fire is used in the engine, compressed steam being the power, sent in from the outside.

The fire, after destroying the little room, caught to seven tram cars and the oil that was about the place caused the smoke to be thicker.

As soon as the fire fighters could get beyond the engine room a horrible sight met their eyes. One of the men's heads was battered almost to a jelly, as he tried to kill himself before suffocating.

The mules had kicked one another almost to a pulp.

The other eighteen men were gotten out, and though none will die, several are in quite a bad condition. The mules were worth $3,000.

The dead convicts were sent up for grand larceny from south Alabama.

IN ONE PULPIT FIFTY YEARS.

Dr. Hoge Celebrates His Semi-Centennial at Richmond Va.

The celebration of the semi-centennial of Rev. Dr. Moses O. Hoge's pastorate of the Second Presbyterian church at Richmond, Va., commenced Tuesday night with a general outpouring of the people. At 6 o'clock there was a banquet to specially invited guests at the Masonic temple, and afterward a public reception. Thousands attended the latter, and at times the building was so crowded that the doors had to be closed to prevent others from attempting to enter. The governor and his staff, a delegation from the Soldiers' Home, the First regiment, Lee Camp of Confederate Veterans, the Stuart Horse Guard, and other organizations attended.

Dr. Hoge was presented with engrossed resolutions adopted by the congregation of Beth Ahaba synagogue, and a handsome silver berry bowl by the ladies of the Hollywood Confederate Memorial Association.

Among the telegrams of congratulations received was one from Cardinal Gibbons.

The celebration was continued Wednesday night with religious services in Dr. Hoge's church, on which occasion he preached a sermon reviewing the fifty years of his pastorate.

IN POSSESSION OF OUTLAWS.

Fifteen Robbers Hold Up a Houston and Texas Express.

A special from Dallas, Tex., says: Fifteen robbers held up the northbound Houston and Texas Central express train at the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Central railroad crossing Wednesday evening. The fireman and engineer were compelled to leave the engine and the robbers cut loose the baggage and express cars and put their men on the locomotive; jerked open the throttle and went north, leaving the rest of the train on the track. It is thought they will run the express car to White Rock creek and rob the Wells Fargo safes. It is said the safes contain a large amount of money.

POPULISTS MEET.

NATIONAL REFORM PRESS ASSOCIATION IN SESSION

At Kansas City to Consider Party Questions.

One hundred and fifty members of the National Reform Press Association met at Kansas City Friday for the purpose of considering questions looking to the advancement of the principles advocated by the populist party.

The first day was largely spent in considering the advisability of establishing a national news bureau in Kansas City. The matter was finally referred to a committee of five for consideration and report.

Dr. S. O. McClallin, editor of the Advocate of Topeka, put on his war paint and made threats that unless the people's party managers come around to his way of thinking, he proposes to create a disturbance within the ranks which may have the effect of disrupting the present organization. McClallin charges that there is an effort to betray the party into the hands of enemies.

Hon. H. E. Taubeneck, the chairman of the people's party national organization sent an ultimatum from Washington setting forth his views as to how the party should be managed, and threatening that unless these are carried out he will resign his present position.

OUR NEW MINISTER TO MEXICO.

Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, Nominated and Confirmed.

The president Saturday sent to the senate the nomination of Senator Matt W. Ransom, of North Carolina, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Mexico.

Immediately after the nomination of Mr. Ransom was received, Mr. Blackburn moved an executive session, and the nomination was forthwith taken up and confirmed by the unaimous vote of the senate.

Senator Ransom is admirably equipped for any diplomatic mission. He has served in the senate for nearly four consecutive terms, is a born diplomat, speaks French and Spanish, and is thoroughly at home in the Greek and Latin classics. He is sixty-eight years old, but is strong and active. He, last fall, made a most vigorous campaign of his state, speaking nearly every day, and often traveling all night. For twelve years he has been a member of the national democratic and the national executive committees.

NEW SCHEDULE SIGNED.

Agreement Reached Between the Southern and Its Employes.

After a conference, at Washington, D. C., lasting three days, between Third Vice President Baldwin, of the Southern railway, and the federated board of the employes' organizations that are mainly interested in the new schedule of rates proposed by the Southern railway, an agreement was reached after a very harmonious discussion of the schedule in all its phases. This schedule was signed by the men at the office of Mr. Baldwin, and it practically remains as it was first offered, with some modifications of the rules in instances where it was pointed out to Mr. Baldwin that the men thought they should be differently prescribed. The schedule will go into effect May 1st on all the lines of the Southern railway, and in case either side should wish to make a change in the future, sixty days' notice to the other party will be required.

The Crew Rescued.

A dispatch was received at the maritime exchange at New York Saturday morning from Bermuda stating that the steamer Trinidad, which arrived there Friday, reports that she passed a schooner having on board the crew of the schooner John M. Moore, Captain Doughty, which sailed from Brunswick, Ga., for Philadelphia January 30th.

They Want Him Recalled.

A petition asking the United States government to recall Mr. Ryan, United States consul at St. John's, N. F., has been signed by a number of citizens. The petition also asks for the reappointment of Thomas N. Molloy.

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreets' Review of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of trade says: General trade during the week, a short week, has been more irregular. A moderately improved demand has shown itself at cities along the Ohio river valley and in the lower and upper lake regions, coincidence with the partial disappearance of the extremely unfavorable weather, south, southwest and elsewhere to a smaller extent, practically impassable roads have retarded already slow collections and prevented purchases of goods even in the face of requirements.

The success of the latest emergency bond issue has revived confidence somewhat in the general financial situation. The success of the bond issue here and abroad has given a strong undertone to the New York speculative stock market, in spite of the fact that the public here and abroad continue to stand aloof from any participation. The approaching adjournment of congress and the evident fact that the bond syndicate is in position to control the exchange market and prevent gold shipments for some months has considerable effect on sentiment. The belief that the railroad pooling bill will be abandoned had no effect.

At the south the relative greatest improvement, present or prospective, is reported by Galveston, due to better weather throughout Texas, and by Memphis, although collections are slow there. Birmingham and Jacksonville make like reports. The influence of bad weather, heavy country roads, checked demand and retarded collections in whole or in part, characterizes reports of trade at Charleston, Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta and at New Orleans, where business has been practically suspended for two days by storm.

WAR CLOUDS VANISHING

And Sweet Peace May Yet Cover Guatemala and Mexico.

A special dispatch from the city of Mexico says: The severe illness of Emilo DeLeon, Guatemalan minister to Mexico, has delayed active negotiations on the international boundary question which has now resolved itself largely to routine business, auditing work and diplomatic correspondence. It has been generally accepted now for over a week that there is not the slighest prospect for war, unless things should take an utterly unlooked for turn.

General Louis Torres, governor of Sonora, who has been conducting the campaign against the rebellious Yaqui Indians, has been summoned to report in this capital. It is thought his coming has a bearing on the Mexican forces now on the Guatemalan frontier, but as the amount of indemnity to Mexico is practically all of the question now at issue between the two governments, this is denied as a reason for his coming.

THE REX CARNIVAL.

New Orleans and Mobile Surrender to His Majesty.

A New Orleans special says: The weather forecast for Monday predicted showers, and it was feared that rain would interfere materially with the parade, but throughout the day there were no showers, and the temperature was too warm for overcoats. The streets were swarmed, and at times a block of the principal ones occurred, even before Rex arrived. All indications seem to point that this will be the greatest of all the carnivals.

At Mobile.

The mardi gras carnival opened brilliantly at Mobile with an immense crowd of strangers already present and was added to by every incoming train. The weather was delightful and clear and the whole population was out of doors. All day individual maskers and detached groups were about the streets, the various clubs and other buildings were decorated and the whole city was in a grand holiday good humor.

REMAINS OF FRED DOUGLASS

Escorted to Rochester, N. Y., and Consigned to the Tomb.

The train bearing the body of Frederick Douglass and escort arrived at Rochester, N. Y., Tuesday morning and was met at the depot by Mayor Lewis, members of the council, the Douglass League, honorary and active pallbearers and a cordon of police. The station was filled with a surging mass of people. Crowds thronged Central avenue, Clinton, East Main and Fitzhugh streets and thousands followed the procession to the city hall. Here the crowd was so dense that it required the utmost efforts of the police to open a way for the procession. People anxious to get a last look at the dead man followed after the procession and for four hours the corridors were crowded. At 1:30 o'clock the remains were taken to the Central Presbyterian church, where the final services were held.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TROUBLE.

Chief Arthur Still Trying to Settle the Matter in Dispute.

Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is still at San Francisco, Cal., pending the adjustment of the difficulties between the Southern Pacific and the engineers. It was supposed that the trouble was settled, but having heard the company's ultimatum, of $4.70 a day in the mountains and $4.50 for valley engineers, this places all the engineers on a more equitable footing. But the men making the mountain run do not relish a reduction of the rate paid to valley engineers. The company's offer is still unaccepted. It is understood that the railroads will maintain its ruling, and that there will be no more concessions to the men.

IRON MAKERS' TRUST.

A Scheme to Unite the Manufacturers of England in a Big Combine.

A cable dispatch from Sheffield, England states that a scheme has been published proposing to 200 iron firms of South Yorkshire, Lancashire, Derbyshire, Staffordshire and Shropshire to form an organization to be known as the Midland Trade Association, which will regulate the prices of all classes of manufactured iron.

Heavy fines will be imposed for breaches of agreement and a committee of twenty will manage the affairs of the association. The operatives have consented to join.

FIRE AT HOT SPRINGS.

Three Lives Lost and Twenty-Eight Buildings Destroyed.

Fire broke out in the Ledgerwood bakery at Hot Springs early Friday morning. The bakery is situated in the southern part of the city, where boarding houses abound, and in an hour three women had been burned to death, six boarding houses, several storehouses and fifteen cottages, in all worth $200,000, had been swept away.

Woodruff Convicted at Last.

The jury in the case of ex-State Treasurer William E. Woodruff, at Little Rock, Ark., reached a verdict late Saturday night, finding him guilty, and assessed his punishment in the penitentiary for one year. Woodruff was charged with embezzling state funds. He was tried twice before, but the state failed to convict. The case went to Perryville on a change of venue filed by his attorneys.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all over the South for the past week indicate that the manufacturing industries in all sections are quite active. Lumbermen are making combined efforts to control the production and to sustain prices, and the steady increase in the demand for lumber is causing an increase also in the number of new mills. New cotton mills, and enlargements of existing ones, continue to be established. Reports for the week include three mills at Atlanta, Ga., respectively of 30,000, 25,000 and 20,000 spindles; a $100,000 mill company at Lattimore, S. C., and others at Pensacola, Fla., Elberton, Ga., Newberry and Union, S. C.; a knitting mill at Anniston, Ala., and the enlargement of a cotton mill at Waco, Texas. The coal mining output continues large, and the demand is less active. There is no change to report in the iron industry.

Among the fifty new industries established or incorporated in the south during the week are a $100,000 car coupler company at Waco, Texas; a $40,000 electrical plant at Florence, S. C.; stove works with $20,000 capital at San Antonio, Texas, and a $10,000 woodworking plant at Little Rock, Ark. Agricultural implement works are to be built at Brenham, Texas: flouring mills at Waynesville, N. C., and New Orleans, La.; a foundry at Avondale, Ala.; and ice factories at Plaquemine, La., and Fairmount, W. Va. Phosphate works are reported at Albion, Fla.; soap factory at Shreveport, La.; starch works at Columbia, S. C., a tannery at Intermont, Va., tool works at Harriman, Tenn., and woodworking plants at Bolling, Luverne, Piedmont and Salem, Ala., Fayetteville and Little Rock, Ark., Orange Bluffs, Fla., Aberdeen, Ashboro and Berry, N. C., Newberry, S. C., and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Among the enlargements for the week are brick works at Pittsburg, Texas; a canning factory at Portsmouth, Va.; an ice factory at Atlanta, Ga., and a planing mill at Brookhaven, Miss. The new buildings as reported include a $50,000 church at Bowling Green, Ky., and one to cost $25,000 at New Orleans, La.; a $100,000 court house at Waco, Texas; a $90,000 one at Paris, Texas, and one costing $30,000 at Pensacola, Fla.; a $30,000 government building at Camden, Ark., and a $40,000 school building at Waco, Tex.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

GEORGIA'S EXHIBIT.

The Exposition Company Offers to Furnish a Building.

A meeting of the state exposition board was held at Atlanta to confer as to the building to hold the state's exhibit. Plans were submitted by which the exposition company guarantees a building to hold the state exhibit. The building will be about 100 by 200 feet, and will be constructed with a view to accommodating the special exhibit it will hold.

After the meeting there was a conference between Commissioner Nesbitt and state Chemist Payne and State Geologist Yeates, with a view of settling upon the amount of money to be used in the different departments.

NEGOTIATIONS IN ABEYANCE.

Adjustment of Trouble Between the Southern and Its Men Delayed.

Messrs. F. P. Sargent, chief of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen, and E. E. Clark, of the Order of Railway Conductors, who have been in Washington to assist in the adjustment of the wage controversy between the Southern Railway and its employees, have left the city for New York. By the time they return Vice-President Baldwin, of the Southern Railway, is expected to be back from the south and negotiations between him and the employees committee will be resumed.

THE LOAN REFUSED.

North Carolina's Legislature Defeats a Bill Appropriating $10,000.

A Raleigh special says: The president and members of the Ladies' Monumental Association, together with a number of other ladies, filled the lobbies and galleries of the senate chamber Saturday to hear the debate on the bill to lend the association $10,000 with which to pay for the statuary for the monument. The debate continued three hours, but the bill failed to pass—yeas 8, nays 28.

The Crew Rescued.

A dispatch was received at the maritime exchange at New York Saturday morning from Bermuda stating that the steamer Trinidad, which arrived there Friday, reports that she passed a schooner having on board the crew of the schooner John M. Carnegie Works Close Down.

About 1,500 employes of the Carnegie steel works have been thrown out of employment by the closing down of a number of departments in the plant at Homestead. The converting mill, the ten-inch, twenty-three-inch, thirty-three-inch, thirty-six-inch and forty-inch mills are all idle on account of a scarcity of orders. Work will resume as soon as orders are received.

Camberlain's Cough Remedy gives the best satisfaction of any cough medicine I handle, and as a seller leads all other preparations in this market. Week before last Deputy Collector A. K. McLeod, Messrs. W. F. Adams and Jas. A. Dudley made a raid out near Clanton, capturing a 60 gallon copper still, 95 gallons low wine and 300 gallons corn Beer.

The still was located in a field midway between the houses of J. A. and J. H. Cleckler. Both these parties were arrested, and carried to Montgomery and placed under bond to await the action of the U. S. Grand Jury.

"Perhaps you would not think so, but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Syrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. New York is one of the healthiest places on the Atlantic Coast and yet there are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is when you have one get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure, relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison Ala.

FICTITIOUS NAMES

Judge Montgomery, of the Inferior Criminal Court, this morning after the short session of court was over addressed the police officers and other officers of the court on the question of taking bonds under fictitious names and the putting of fictitious names on the court dockets. "This court will not in the future permit any such practice," said Judge Montgomery, "and the officer who continues the practice will be held in contempt of the court. Nothing helps more to increase crime than to allow the violators to come to the understanding that when they are arrested their names will go down fictitiously on the docket. The practice must stop." LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

From Dr. Hawthorne.

Atlanta, Ga., February 28.—Editor Constitution: Is there not an unmistakable significance in the fact that a national convention of women at Washington city, made up substantially of the same material that constituted the recent woman's suffrage convention in this city, devoted a day to the glorification of a dead negro who had been the cheif apostle of the infamous doctrine of miscegenation? Does not this notable event forewarn the women of this country of the terrible vortex to which these feminine eulogists would lead them?

Do not the utterances of Susan B. Anthony and Rev. Anna Shaw on that occasion, taken in connection with similar deliverances of certain negro orators in a recent meeting in this city, indicate very clearly that miscegenation is a living issue in the politics of this nation, and that at a very early date it will be inserted in the platform of the women suffragists? Is it not time for the manly men and the womanly women of our land to anathematize this mischief-breeding woman's rights craze? There is nothing that will match the midnight wail of the screech owl but the poetry of some cadaverous, impecunious bard, when he echoes the miseries of a woman who wants to wear her husband's clothes.

I suppose that these doleful songsters will now invoke the muses in an effort to bemoan the wrongs of a man who wanted every black man to have a white wife, and every white woman to have a black husband.

No man has a the prophetic gift to see the hurtful and shameful complications in which a woman will involve herself when she assumes to be wiser than the God of the Bible. Who can predict the ultimate absurdities into which this peripatic woman's right menagerie, headed by Susan B. Anthony, will drift? I cannot believe that the self-respecting women of Georgia will turn away from such counselors as Miss Helen Howard Gatewood and the noble wife of our noble governor to follow the footsteps of women who beland a negro for marrying a white wife.

I is refreshing to read the following paragraph from the pen of one of Georgia's most gifted editors:

"The society that applauds a white woman eulogist of a negro whose life was spent in advocating social equality is no better than the negro who is eulogized."

An acquaintance with the people of the south extending through a period of nearly three-score years warrants me in saying that vigorour and timely article yesterday on "What Does It Mean?" will be overwhelmingly endorsed from Maryland to Texas. No southern newspaper can live and link its destiny to the cause of woman's suffrage.

The southern politician who does it will be buried "without benefit of clergy," and epitaphed with the ridicule of his more sensible fellow countrymen. J. B. Hawthorne

JUMBO JOTTINGS

We wish to state to the public that our side of the county is not quite desolate.

Prof. Streck, who took charge of a five months school at the Gore school house, closed at the expiration of two months and returned to his home at Verbena.

Owing to the disagreable weather farmers are behind with their work in our section.

Miss Sophia Mullins has absented herself from us for a protracted visit to Clanton.

Miss Katie Thompson recently visited her parents near Clanton.

Mrs. Jas Osteen has a severe attack of La Grippe.

Mrs. Ida Traywick is the happy mother of a fine daughter.

Miss Ada Goodgame had six new students to enter her school last week. Miss Ada has proved to be the most thorough teacher that we have had for sometime.

Mrs. Dickey mother of Mrs. Jef. Stephens was buried at the Stephens' cemelerery three weeks ago.

We extend our sympathy to the bereaved.

Mr. R. F. Bates has completed his new residence which added greatly to the looks of his place.

We are sorry to state that wildcatting and public drunkenness reign supreme in our country.

May the View ever survive.

Mr. B. Wrenn, Passenger Traffic Manager for the Plant System, is distributing in Cuba, through his agents, a Spanish edition of 10.000 copies of the Prospectus of the Cotton States and International Exposition. He writes that a special ship will sail for Jamaica about the last of March.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres........................ $75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Melilotus, under the same conditions................ $75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions........................ $75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year........................ $100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each........ $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs........................ $75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size or his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, 220, acres of land for $3 per acre? If that too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

Do you know.

That the titles to your property are perfect? If there is doubt confer at once with Chas. W. Hare and H. I. Honeycutt who can furnish you a complet abstract.

The bride and groom are both over eighty years of age.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anthing. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it" he says. "And have since been free from all pain." He now recomends it to persons similarly afflicted. GIVE A KIND WORD WHEN YOU CAN.

Do you know a heart that hungers
For a word of love and cheer?
There are many such about us;
It may be that one is near,
Look around you! If you find it,
Speak the word that's needed so,
And your own heart may be strength ened
By the help that you bestow.

It may be that some one falters
On the brink of sin and wrong,
And a word from you might save him—
Help to make the tempted strong.
Look about you, O my brother!
What a sin is yours and mine
If we see that help is needed
And we give no friendly sign!

Never think kind words are wasted—
Bread on waters cast are they,
And it may be that we shall find them
Coming back to us some day;
Coming back when sorely needed
In a time of sharp distress;
So, my friend, let's give them freely:
Gift and giver God will bless.

WORK OF CONGRESS

THE CLOSING DAYS BRING HUSTLE AND HURRY.

Brief Outlines of Proceedings of House and Senate.

THE SENATE.

The Indian appropriation bill was passed in the senate late in Saturday's session, having occupied the attention of the body for four full days. Its consideration was interrupted at 3 o'clock p. m. by a motion to take up and consider the pooling bill, but that motion was defeated by the very decisive vote of 24 for and 42 against. After the bill was thus shelved, for the present at least, a somewhat angry discussion upon it was started and was kept up for nearly two hours, with Senators Butler, democrat, of South Carolina; Gorman, democrat, of Maryland; Chandler, republican, of New Hampshire, and Wolcott, republican, of Colorado, as the participants. At 1:30 o'clock p. m. while the Indian bill was under consideration a message was received from the president, and as the sheet of yellow tissue paper on which lists of nominations appear was handed around among the senators nearest the principal entrance door, it was known that it contained the nomination of Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, as United States minister to Mexico. Senator Blackburn, as soon as he looked at the list moved that the senate proceed to executive business. There was no objection; the galleries were cleared and the doors closed; and, within five minutes the public was again admitted, the nomination of Mr. Ransom having been in the meantime instantly and unanimously approved and confirmed. The pending business was resumed. After the passage of the Indian appropriation bill, the sundry civil appropriation bill was laid before the senate and became the unfinished business. The session closed with the delivery of eulogies on the late Representative Shaw, of Wisconsin, and the senate, at 6:35 o'clock, adjourned until Monday at 11 o'clock.

The belated appropriation bills were before the senate Monday with the prospect of work early and late to complete them. Mr. Cockrell, chairman of the appropriation committee, made a statement of the need for night sessions and speedy work. There were, he said, the sundry civil and the executive, legislative and judicial bills on the calendar; the navel bill would be on hand and the deficiency bill to come over from the house. "These bills need attention as fast as the senate is able to work," said Mr. Cockrell. He asked that a recess be taken from 6 o'clock to 8 o'clock p. m. and the session then to continue until 11:30 p. m. Mr. Chandler gave notice that if this arrangement were agreed to, he would object to anything outside of the appropriation bills. Mr. Cockrell said this was the understanding. Mr. Manderson, republican, of Nebraska, said there were too few senators to make such an agreement. The presiding officer construed this as an objection and the request went over. At this point several senate pages struggled in with an enormous floral horseshoe which was placed on the desk of Mr. Ransom, nominated and confirmed as minister to Mexico. The proposed purchase by the government of the historic property of the late James G. Blaine, on LaFayette square, in order to avoid its use for theatre purposes, occasioned some debate. Mr. Palmer, democrat, of Illinois, said some of his Chicago constituents were interested in the proposed theatre. He opposed the government purchase, saying there was no public requirement for the property. Mr. Palmer made a point of order against the amendment. Mr. Gorman presented a partial agreement of the conferees on the District of Columbia appropriation bill. It was confirmed on the items of agreement, and a further conference ordered. The sundry civil bill was then taken up. The item for the examination of subsoil for the lot for the new public building at San Francisco was changed, to make it mandatory on the secretary of war to have two or more army engineers to continue the investigation. The appropriation of $75,000 for a public building at Annapolis, Md., was struck out on motion of Mr. Gorman.

A financial discussion was imminent when the senate met Tuesday. The rapid work done at the session Monday night had cleared away most of the formal matter preceding the important provision for issuing $100,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness to relieve treasury deficiencies. The resolution concerning the Mexican free zone, to include the entire length of the zone, was agreed to. Mr. Voorhees, from the committee on finance, offered an amendment to the sundry civil bill embodying the recent resolution of Mr. Wolcott for participation by the United States in an international monetary conference. The sundry civil bill was then taken up. Mr. Cockrell offered a committee amendment, which was agreed to, appropriating $4,000 to Colonel Ainsworth, chief of the bureau of records and pensions of the war department, to reimburse him for legal expenses resulting from the Ford's theatre disaster. An additional $10,000 for heirs of two additional victims of the Ford's theatre disaster was allowed. Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, spoke against the proposed committee amendment, reducing the appropriation for protecting public timber lands from $90,000 to $60,000. A letter from the commissioner of the general land office was read showing the value of this service. Mr. Berry urged an enlargement of the service and moved an increase. Mr. Gorman said the places in this service were well recognized as comfortable positions for "political favorites." "So gross was the abuse; so useless the offices," continued Mr. Gorman vehemently, "that congress cut down the appropriation $40,000 and I regret to say the officer in authority exceeded that appropriation by $45,000."

After working until midnight Tuesday night, the senators were slow in arriving Wednesday morning and only a dozen were on hand when consideration of the sundry civil bill was resumed. The way was cleared for the long pending contest over the financial amendment to the sundry civil bill. It provides an issue of $100,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness of small denominations, bearing 3 per cent. interest, in order to meet deficiencies in the treasury. "I make a point of order against this financial amendment on the ground that it is general legislation," said Mr. Berry, of Arkansas. Mr. Hill, of New York, offered a further amendment that all treasury notes and United States notes, when presented to the treasury, shall not be re-issued, but cancelled. Mr. Mills, of Texas, rose to suggest that the point of order was of such importance that he hoped the presiding officer would submit the question to the senate. The vice-president ordered a roll call and called on the sergeant-at-arms to maintain order. Mr. Gorman then secured the floor and made a lengthy speech on the financial amendment. He concluded by appealing for action and not failing to provide for all emergencies. Mr. Mills spoke of the public abhorrence of a national debt.

THE HOUSE.

After the transaction of some miscellaneous business, the house at Saturday's session proceeded, in committee of the whole, to further consider the general deficiency appropriation bill for the current year. The first items brought before the committee were several amendments providing extra pay for certain employes. The annual controversy over these extra payments was resumed. Protests were made against the practice by Messrs. Dockery, Sayers and Dingley, but nearly every proposition to pay certain named employes additional sums to their salaries was agreed to, as well as Mr. Tracy's amendment to pay all employes a month's extra salary. After this the motion was amended so as to include members' clerks. Without completing the consideration of the general deficiency bill, the house devoted the rest of the session to the delivery of eulogies upon the late Senator Z. B. Vance, of North Carolina.

Fully thirty members crowded into the arena in front of the speaker's chair when the house met Monday, all pressing for unanimous consent to consider bills of local import. There were several considered and passed before the "regular order" was demanded. The senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill were non-concurred in, and the bill was sent to the conference. Tuesday was set aside for District of Columbia business, and the house went into committee and resumed the consideration of the deficiency appropriation bill. The pending amendment was to pay $17,500 to Charles Morgan, C. B. Payne and the Southern Steamship Company for extra compensation as mail contractors before the war. Mr. Dockery, democrat, of Missouri, raised a point of order against the amendment. The committee rose temporarily to agree to a partial conference report on the District of Columbia appropriation bill, and send it to a further conference, after which the chair sustained the point of order. The amendment to pay Great Britain $425,000, the amount of the awards made by the Bering sea tribunal of arbitration against the United States, precipitated a long debate. Mr. Breckinridge, democrat, of Kentucky, in charge of the bill, explained the decision of the Paris tribunal against the unjust and illegal seizures in Bering sea. Twenty vessels flying the British flag, engaged in a lawful trade, had been seized and in some cases their masters had suffered imprisonment. The United States had agreed to the rule of damages, Great Britain having obtained judgment. The only question is as to the assessment of the damages of Great Britain, through Sir Julian Pauncefote, has demanded $500,000, and Secretary Gresham has agreed to $425,000.

The house met at 11 o'clock Tuesday. Mr. Henderson, of North Carolina, chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, immediately called up the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill, much to the disappointment of members who were clamoring for unanimous consent to consider bills. The senate amendment providing that railway mail clerks hereafter appointed should live somewhere along the route to which they are assigned; but that clerks heretofore appointed should not be required to change their residence was the only question in dispute. The amendment was designed to destroy the effect of general order 379, issued by the postmaster-general requiring clerks to live on the line of their route. When the order was issued many clerks lived off their line, since then eight hundred have changed their residences. Mr. Henderson read a letter from the postmaster general earnestly protesting against the amendment. As it was evident the amendment would occasion some debate, Mr. Henderson withdrew the conference report in order to give Mr. Catchings an opportunity to present the special order giving until 3 o'clock to the committee on labor, and Wednesday to the committee on public building and grounds. The special order was adopted without division, and Mr. McGann, chairman of the labor committee, called up the national arbitration bill, entitled "A bill concerning carriers engaged in interstate commerce and their employes." The purpose of the bill is to provide a board of conciliation, consisting of the commissioners of labor and the chairman of the interstate commerce commission, whose duty it shall be, when a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor or conditions of employment arose between a carrier under this act and employes, seriously interrupting the business of said carrier, to put themselves in communication with the parties to said controversy, and shall use their best efforts by mediation and conciliation to amicably settle the same, and if such efforts should be unsuccessful, should at once endeavor to bring about an arbitration of said controversy by submitting the same to a board consisting of three persons, one to be chosen by the employes, one by the employer, and these two selecting the third. After some discussion the bill passed the house without division.

The speaker laid before the house Wednesday the president's veto of the bill to pension Eunice Putnam. Mr. Cockrell, democrat, of New Jersey, moved concurrence in the senate amendment to the joint resolution prohibiting the importation of goods in bond to the United States through the free zone of Mexico. Mr. Crane, democrat, of Texas, vigorously opposed the concurrence, which struck out the provision limiting the prohibition from any port from Laredo, Texas, to the Pacific coast. This amendment, he declared, would effectually prohibit the importation of goods through the United States into Mexico, unless the latter country abolished the free zone. But 12 per cent. of the goods remained in the free zone. He replied with vigor to the slander that the zone was the abiding place of smugglers and outlaws. Mr. Cockrell's motion was agreed to. Mr. O'Neill, democrat, of Massachusetts, presented the conference report on the pension appropriation bill. An agreement had been reached, he explained, on all points.

FRED DOUGLASS' FUNERAL.

Religious Services Over His Remains at Washington.

The funeral services over the remains of Fred Douglass took place at Washington Monday afternoon.

Before the removal from Cedar Hill, Annacotia, Mr. Douglass' late residence, brief services for the immediate relatives, consisting simply of a prayer and the reading of the scriptures were concluded. The Metropolitan church had already been prepared for the reception of the body of the dead man and was beautifully decorated with flowers, ferns and palms.

Among the floral pieces sent to the church was a beautiful design prepared at the instance of the Haytien government. As soon as the casket was in place before the altar, the doors were thrown open and the people admitted to the church to pay their last respects. A great crowd passed in and out and while colored persons predominated among the waiting multitudes, there were hundreds of white people. The people in front of the church, for a square on either side, was fairly blocked with carriages.

The funeral sermon was then delivered by Rev. Dr. Jennifer, of the Metropolitan church. Speaking of Douglass as his pastor, Dr. Jennifer said:

"Mr. Douglass was a Christian. He broke with the American church and with the American Christian dogma when he saw that it sanctioned and sustained the enslavement and bondage of a brother. He held Christ above creed and above the church. In this soul conflict he blundered into bewilderment, but his deliverance came and he has often spoken to me of the joys of his soul in God."

Tributes to the memory of the dead were paid by Rev. N. H. Stevenson, of the Anacostia Baptist church, and Dr. J. K. Rankin, president of Howard University. Mr. John Hutchins, of Boston, an old friend of Douglass, sang a hymn by special request and was followed by Clement Haytiens, minister to the United States from Hayti.

Remarks were made by Mrs. Susan B. Anthony, who also read a letter from Elizabeth Cady Stanton, extoling his virtues. Mrs. Mary Wright Sewall, president of the woman's council, also spoke. The closing prayer was offered by the Rev. Anna Shaw.

Among those present at the services were Justice Harlan, of the supreme court, Senators Sherman and Hoar and a number of members of the house. There was also a large delegation from the woman's council.

T. Beauregard, Braxton Bragg, Leonidas Polk, W. J. Hardee, John C. Breckenridge and others. The survivors of these commands are requested by the assistant secretary of the Shiloh Battlefield Association, Captain James Williams, of Savannah, Tenn., a confederate officer to send him their names, postoffice address and the company and regiment they served with at that great battle, while Colonel E. Hamner Sent to Jail.

The preliminary trial at Lynchburg, Va., of Walker G. Hamner, the defaulting teller of the First National bank, and R. H. Neither Hamner or Pannill could give bond, and they were accordingly committed to jail.

and those soon to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its tortures, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

MRS. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost death. Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stouter now than I have been in six years. A Country Without a Newspaper.

A country without a newspaper is, in these days, a curiosity indeed. Andorra is believed to be the only civilized state in the world in which not a single newspaper is published. Andorra is a little republic—about thirty-six miles long by thirty broad—situated on the north side of the Pyrenees, next the Spanish province of Lerida and the French department of Ariege. It is nominally under the protection of France, but its 14,000 inhabitants speak the Spanish language. Here, then, is an opportunity for an enterprising journalist. He need not be afraid of duels, for, though firearms are plentiful enough, it is said that there is not a single inhabitant who could hit a cow at a hundred yards.

Spurgeon on Smoking.

Most of the stories about the late Mr. Spurgeon have been told, but here is one which appears in Mr. Adderly's magazine, Goodwill, which may be new to many: "Many years ago I met the late Mr. Spurgeon, who was a great smoker, at the supper table of a friend. Over our pipes he said: 'Once a pious lady took me to task about my smoking, and said: 'Do you read anything in the Bible about smoking?' 'No,' I answered, 'but we do read of the people passing through the Valley of Baca.' '—(Ps. lxxxiv, 6, Bible version.)"—New York Post.

PROGRESS OF THE SOUTH.

What a German Paper Says of Our Recuperation.

The Der Auswanderer, or the Emigrant, as it would be called in English, is the title of a very interesting German periodical published in New York.

It has given much attention to the south and has frequently expressed the opinion that this is the most inviting section of the country. In its last issue this paper publishes statistics showing the remarkable development of the south.

The population of the states that composed the Southern Confederacy—namely Virginia (including West Virginia), North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Tennessee Arkansas—amounted in 1850 to 9,103,329. In 1890 it had grown to to 16,499,069. Here is an increase of 7,365,740, or, say 80 per cent. In the same period the population of the North Atlantic division, including New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, increased only 64 per cent. This happened in spite of the enormous waste of life in the south during the war and the large immigration from the Confederate states immediately following the war.

In 1860 the taxable real estate in the eleven states named was valued at $1,854,918,940. In 1870 this had shrunk to $1,241,746,068, when reduced to a gold valuation, a reduction necessary in order to compare it with 1860 or 1890. This showed a shrinkage of $613,167,675, due to the ravages of war, in the destruction of buildings, fences and the depreciation of the land. If this loss seems too small we have first to remember that the taxed real estate was much less than the total of this kind of property and that the census was taken five years after the war closed, during which time the people of the defunct Confederacy had been making strenuous exertions to repair their broken fortunes, though their efforts were largely counteracted by the carpetbag governments that had been set up over them. Now in 1890 the value of taxed real estate in this section has risen from $1,241,746,068 in 1870 to $2,268,790,613.

The assessed valuation of personal property, liable to taxation, in the states that seceded was $2,478,844,459. This included 3,521,110 slaves. The Emigrant estimates the assessed value of these at $1,551,344,351, or $470 per head. This seems rather high, but the deductions are not essentially affected by this. In 1870 this property was all gone, and the total assessed value of personal property was reduced to $490,060,246. In 1890 the figures had risen to $1,243,046,448. In other words, the increase of the assessment of personal property liable to taxation between 1870 and 1890 was about 150 per cent. The increase has not been sufficient to cover the loss of the slaves, but in all other respects it has been very great. When we note the decrease of personal property assessed between 1860 and 1870 was about four-fifths of the assessment of 1890, the progress since 1870 is shown to be phenomenal. We must note also that the increase in the assessment of real estate since 1870 has been nearly equal to the loss in personal property since 1860.

While most of the states that seceded have a smaller assessment of personal property than in 1860 (including slaves), there is one notable exception. The assessment of personal property in Texas rose from $155,316,322 in 1860 to $257,005,507 in 1890. Every one of these states increased its assessment of personalty between 1880 and 1890, some of them 200 or 300 per cent., and Texas more than 500 per cent.

In no other part of the world has such a record of recuperation and progress been made, and yet the south has just begun to develop her immense resources.

Moriarty.

"It is strange," said a well informed Irishman, "how most people insist on saying 'Moriarity,' giving the word five syllables. I venture to say that no man on earth is named Moriarity, with that extra 'i.' The right name is Moriarty, with only one 'i.' The mistake originates from Billy Emerson's famous song about the Irish policeman, 'Are You There, Moriarity?' The writer of the song needed an extra syllable in the main line to bring out the rhyme, and he put an 'i' in the name to give the singer a chance to say 'Mori-ar-i-tee.'"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

And the Best Blood Purifier is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which Purifies, Vitalizes and Enriches the Blood

At this season everyone should take a good spring medicine. Your blood must be purified or you will be neglecting your health. There is a cry from Nature for help, and unless there is prompt and satisfactory response you will be liable to serious illness.

This demand can only be met by the purifying, enriching and elements to be found in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Blood-Vitalizing

"My mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Wolfe, at the age of 73 years, was attacked with a violent form of salt rheum; it spread all over her body, and her hands and limbs were dreadful to look at. At the same time, my little daughter Clara, who was just one year old, was attacked by a similar disease, like scrofula. It appeared in under each side of her neck; had the attendance of the family physician and other doctors for a long time, but seemed to grow worse. I read of many people cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla. As soon as we gave Hood's Sarsaparilla to Clara, she began to get better, and before the first bottle was gone, the sores entirely healed up and there has never been any sign of the disease since. She is a Healthy Robust Child.

Her grandmother took Hood's Sarsaparilla at the same time, and the salt rheum decreased in its violence and a perfect cure was soon effected. It took about three months for her cure, and she ascribes her good health and strength at her advanced age to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has certainly been a Godsend to my family." MRS. A FOURTH PARTY

TO BE LAUNCHED BY THE EXTREME SILVERITES.

An Address Issued Setting Forth the Platform of the Organization.

The American bimetallic party was launched upon the sea of politics at Washington Tuesday. It is a new party which its promoters hope will take in the great mass of democrats and populists. This movement is a result of a conference which began at the headquarters of the American Bimetallic League on February 22d last. The conference was attended by men of all parties, democrats, republicans and populists alike, who were dissatisfied with existing party conditions respecting the monetary questions and sought relief therefrom. There were present at various times men from most of the states, among them being Senators Jones and Stewart, of Nevada; Tillman, of South Carolina; Butler, of North Carolina, and Mantel, of Montana; Representatives Hatch, of Missouri; Skinner, of North Carolina; Pence, of Colorado; Hartman, of Montana; Talbut, McLauren and Shell, of South Carolina; Denson, of Alabama; Bryan, of Nebraska; Coffin, of Wyoming, and Governor Evans, of South Carolina. These gentlemen all favored affirmative action of some kind, but differed as to the policy to be pursued, while all agreed to the platform adopted.

A Message to the People.

The following address to the people of the United States was furnished to the Southern Associated Press:

"The money question is now indisputably the dominant issue in the United States, and will remain so until settled, and settled rightly. Other questions, however important, must wait for this, which, to a greater or lesser extent, involves all others. The issue is between the gold standard, gold bonds and bank currency on the one side, and the bimetallic standard, no bonds and government currency on the other.

"1. On this issue we declare ourselves to be unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, and demand the immediate return to the constitutional standard of gold and silver, by the restoration by this government, independently of any foreign power, of the unrestricted coinage of both silver and gold into standard money, at the ratio of 16 to 1, and upon terms of exact equality, the silver coin to be a full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts and dues, public and private.

"2. We hold that the power to control and regulate a paper currency is inseparable from the power to coin money; and, hence, that all currency intended to circulate as money should be issued, and its volume controlled, by the government only, and should be legal tender.

"3. We are unalterably opposed to the issue by the United States of interest-bearing bonds in time of peace, and demand the payment of all coin obligations of the United States, as provided by existing laws, in either gold or silver coin, at the option of the government, and not at the option of the creditor. On this issue we appeal from the dictation of the money power to the intelligence and patriotism of the American people."

An address to the people of the United States, accompanying the statement, is an argument upon the issues set forth in the statement. In it appears these paragraphs:

"The purpose of this movement is not to array section against section, nor class against class; not to require anybody to give his party relations on other questions, or to sever his party relations for any other purpose than to unite in a common cause—the cause of justice against injustice, and prosperity instead of adversity, of continued employment of labor instead of forced idleness, of abundance and happiness instead of want and misery.

"There can be no doubt, moreover, that a return to the standard of gold and silver will promote in the highest degree the business interests of the entire country, while the continuance of the present policy must necessarily be attended by a further fall of prices imperiling business enterprises still more, and prolonging indefinitely the present stagnant condition of trade and industry."

The Signers.

The address is signed by the following executive committee appointed by the bimetallic conference, called to meet at Washington February 22, 1896:

A. J. Warner, president American Bimetallic League, chairman; John P. Jones, of Nevada, William M. Stewart, of Nevada, J. L. McLaurin, of South Carolina, Anson Walcott, of Indiana, George C. Merrick, of Colorado, Henry Jones, of Georgia, J. C. Green, of California, Joseph Sheldon, of Connecticut, C. J. Hillyer, of the District of Columbia, Byron E. Shear, of Colorado, and Mortimer Whitehead, of New Jersey.

This is followed by the suggestion of the name of Joseph C. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, as the party's candidate for president, and a request for correspondence upon this subject to be addressed to General A. J. Warner, chairman of the executive committee, American bimetallic party, Sun building, Washington, D. C.

A committee, consisting of the following named gentlemen: A. J. Warner, president American Bimetallic League, chairman; Hon. W. M. Stewart, United States senator, Henry Jones, of Georgia, Hon. Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, Anson Walcott, of Indiana, J. L. McLaurin, of South Carolina, was appointed to select a provisional national committee to consist of one member from each state and territory and the District of Columbia, to take charge of this movement, in the several states and territories.

Charles L. Fair is a millionaire in fact. In exchange for his surrender he received $500,000 in cash and securities and satisfactory covenants from his two sisters for a similar amount, payable in April, 1897. The first half million was paid in $100,000 cash and the balance in gilt-edged securities. It was after this agreement had been reached that Fair's attorneys dismissed the suit which tied up his mother's estate.

The Indiana Legislature Passes an Appropriation Bill.

A RESUME IN BRIEF

OF THE WORK OF THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

The Issues that Dominated the Three Sessions.

The three sessions of the fifty-third congress which expired at noon March 4th, 1895, were dominated by three controlling issues—the first by the silver question, the second by the tariff question, the third by the financial question.

On the 7th of August, 1893, the congress convened in extraordinary session for the avowed purpose of repealing the compulsory silver purchase provision of the law of 1890. This was the silver session. Mr. William L. Wilson, chairman of the ways and means committee, prepared a bill in conformity to the recommendation of the president's message and on the 28th of August, 1893, this measure passed the house. The senate, in the meantime, had been preparing, through the committee on finance, a substitute bill, and on the 1st of November this senate substitute received the approval of both houses and became a law by the approval of the president. This measure, and the repeal of the remaining vestiges of the reconstruction federal election laws, closed the important work of the extra session.

Tariff Legislation.

Upon its meeting in regular session in December, 1893, congress entered upon the consideration of the revision of the tariff. As in the case of the silver question, but in a much more pronounced manner, the house "proposed" and the senate "disposed." The Wilson tariff bill, passed by the house February 1, 1894, was set aside for the Jones-Gorman compromise tariff bill, adopted by the senate on the 5th of July, 1894, after four months' debate, and the house was given the option of the "senate bill or nothing." It took the senate bill and sent it to the president. On the 15th of August, 1894, President Cleveland permitted the bill to become a law without his approval, and in an informal manner communicated to individual members of congress his dissatisfaction with the inadequacy of the changes made in the tariff system.

Supplemental to the passage of this tariff law, the senate entered upon a profitless and inconclusive investigation of rumors that senators had been improperly influenced to vote for the senate sugar schedule and had speculated in stocks of the so-called "sugar trust company."

The Financial Session.

The third and last, or "financial" session of the fifty-third congress has been especially marked by the refusal of both houses to put into legislative shape the recommendations of the president for the alleviation of the stringent financial situation. The president in his annual message called attention to the continual depletion of the gold reserve and complained that though it was "perfectly and palpably plain that the only way under present conditions by which this reserve when dangerously depleted can be replenished is through the issue and sale of bonds of the government for gold," congress has not only thus far declined to authorize the issue of bonds best suited to such a purpose, but there seems a disposition in some quarters to deny both the necessity and the power for the issue of bonds at all.

The banking and currency committee of the house, with the approval of the administration, submitted a financial measure, which among other provisions, materially modified the national banking laws and repealed the restrictions on state bank circulation. This bill was defeated by six majority. It was followed by a second message from the president, received by both houses of congress December 28th, in which the president said that whatever might have been the merits of the original plan proposed by him, he was "now convinced that its reception by congress in the advanced stage of the financial situation necessitated additional or different legislation." He once again recommended the passage of a law authorizing the issue of low interest-bearing bonds to maintain the gold reserve. The banking and currency committee responded to this suggestion by offering on the 1st of February, 1895, a bill to "authorize the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to maintain a sufficient gold reserve and to redeem and retire United States notes."

Issue of Bonds.

After only two days' debate this bill was also defeated by a majority of 27. On the next day the president informed congress that he had negotiated a conditional sale of over sixty-two millions of dollars of 4 per cent. coin bonds to a syndicate largely representing foreign capitalists, having no other resource left because of the "omission thus far on the part of the congress to beneficially enlarge the powers of the secretary of the treasury in the premises." This last message went to the ways and means committee, whose chairman, Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, seven days after its receipt, reported a resolution authorizing the issue of $65,116,275 of gold 3 per cent. bonds, as recommended by the president. The measure was called up on February 14th and defeated the same day by 47 majority, after a stormy debate.

These three financial measures, with the general appropriation bill, consumed the greater part of the session. Early in the session the democratic caucus of the senate agreed that the following matters should be considered—a financial measure of some sort, details not designated; the bankruptcy bill; the bills for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona; the Nicaraguan canal bill, and the state bank tax repeal bill.

EVANS' MANIFESTO.

He Says the Investigation is Being Conducted Unfairly.

H. Clay Evans has issued a manifesto addressed to the people of Tennessee in which he disclaims all responsibility for the gubernatorial contest, which he calls a farce, and for the cost attending the play. He says that from the first there was no doubt as to his being elected, the only question being as to his majority. Immediately the whole machinery of the state government was set in motion to set aside and reverse the will of the people. Gross fraud and conspiracy was charged and revenue agents were sent into every county. He then cites the withholding of official information for weeks after the election. He charges that the general assembly set aside the mandates of the constitution in not opening the official returns for a month after the assembling, when they should have been opened before January 15th. He charges that the contest law was passed for the emergency and the occasion. He says he was surprised to learn that Turney's case hinged upon the one technicality of non-production of poll tax receipts and argues that if a voter produces his receipt in August that should be satisfactory evidences to judges of the November election. He charges that the committee to investigate proceeded to legislate, make judicial rulings and decisions, emasculated his pleadings and eliminated his most serious charges.

The committee refused to investigate the charges made in over twenty strong democratic counties. He says the action of the committee leaves but little to be determined except the cost of the investigation. He says he has received many inquiries as to why he contests and therefore, writes this letter. The entire power of the state government is against him. The coal oil inspectors, entire revenue department, railway tax assessors and even the state superintendent of public instruction have abandoned their offices and taken the field against him. Neither he nor his counsel has done anything to bring shame to the name of Tennessee, but are fighting within the laws and constitution in defense of right and justice.

A Civil Right Suit.

Minnie Meyers, colored, has sued the Louisville and Nashville railroad for $25,000 damages under the civil rights law. Last June she bought a first-class ticket from Cincinnati to Lexington, Ky. When the station over the river at Covington, Ky., was reached, she was removed from the ladies' car to the one partitioned off for colored people.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas, for the postoffice department, has given out the statement regarding the new lottery law just passed, which prevents express companies from carrying lottery matter.

A statement prepared at the immigration bureau shows that the total number of immigrants arriving at the ports of the United States during the seven months ended February 1, 1895, was 113,375, as against 189,582 for the seven months ended February 1, 1894, a decrease of 76,207 or 40 per cent.

Comptroller Eckles has ordered Bank Examiner Johnson to take charge of the First National bank of Texarkana, Tex., which closed its doors Thursday night. The capital of the bank is $50,000, and on its last report held $60,000 in loans and discounts and owed depositors and other debts amounting to $45,000.

The bureau of engraving and printing has printed and delivered at the treasury department $15,000,000 of the coupon bonds, and $10,000,000 of the registered bonds sold to the Morgan-Belmont syndicate. The syndicate has paid in about $38,000,000 in gold and received receipts for the same, but as yet has not expressed any desire for the delivery of the bonds. The receipts, of course, carry interest from their date, and to all intents and purposes can be negotiated and passed from hand to hand the same as the bonds could be.

During the last session of congress there were referred to the senate committee on finance a total of 178 measures and documents of various kinds pertaining to the financial affairs of the government. Action of some kind was taken with regard to forty-seven, leaving 131 still standing on the calendar. Most important among the measures upon which the committee failed to act may be classed the propositions to prohibit the future issue of bonds of any kind, the repeal of the state bank tax and to provide for the temporary deficiency in the revenue by the free coinage of silver.

The treasury gold reserve stood Tuesday at the close of business at $91,636,000. The slowness with which the syndicate is paying in the gold is causing some comment. While it would be untrue to say that a hitch has occurred between the government and the syndicate as to gold being paid in, it is strictly correct to say that the treasury officials are vexed at the exactions which are being made by the bond purchasers. It is intimated that the treasury situation had some connection with Secretary Carlisle's determination at the last moment not to accompany the president to North Carolina.

Amendments to Civil Service Rules.

Further amendments have been made in the civil service rules with the approval of the president. One of the amendments gives the commission authority to reject the application of an applicant who has been guilty of infamous or of notoriously disgraceful conduct. Prior to this amendment the commission only had the power to refuse certification in such cases. Age limitations have been prescribed for the new classes brought within the classified service by the recent extension. These limits are for messenger or for assistant messenger not under eighteen, for page or messenger boy not under sixteen nor over eighteen years of age. A proviso has been added which authorizes transfers from one department in Washington to another without examination.

Sugar Planters After the Bounty.

Claimants for the sugar bounty provided for by congress in its closing hours are not allowing grass to grow under their feet. The bill carrying the bounty payment clause was signed by the president shortly before noon Tuesday and Wednesday morning's mail brought to the treasury department several claims for sugar bounty. It will be some time before the different appropriation bills can be properly digested to see what they do contain, and whether the amounts appropriated are immediately available or come out of the appropriations for the next fiscal year. Should all the items carried in the general deficiency bill be payable during this fiscal year the deficit will be swollen some $8,000,000 or $10,000,000. Already the excess of expenditures over the receipts aggregate more than $38,000,000, with indications of an increase during April next, because of the heavy interest payments of from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

More Battleships.

The naval appropriation bill, which was disposed of by the house agreeing to all the amendments imposed by the senate, authorizes the secretary of the navy to enter into contract for the construction of two sea-going, coast-line battleships, of about 10,000 tons displacement, to cost, exclusive of armament, not exceeding $4,000,000 each, one of them to be built on the Pacific coast. It also authorizes the construction of six light-draft, composite gunboats of about 1,000 tons displacement, and fixes a limit of $230,000 for each, not more than two to be built at one yard; and three torpedo boats, to cost not exceeding $175,000 each, one to be built on the Pacific coast, one on the Mississippi river, and one on the gulf of Mexico. A provision directs the president, if he finds that these ships cannot be built at a fair price at the places mentioned, he may authorize their construction elsewhere in the United States. The bill carries an appropriation about $2,000,000 less than when it passed the house.

Talk of an Extra Session.

A cabinet officer, it is said, is authority for this notable statement, the accuracy of which would be questioned were it not for the source from which it comes. He said:

"There is a general assumption that it is definitely decided that there will be no extra session. The decision is erroneous. Whether there will be an extra session or not depends upon circumstances. The public is not aware of the fact that the president almost decided last Sunday that there should be an extra session. The subject was considered by the cabinet. The immediate cause was the sundry civil and deficiency appropriation bills. The president was very much disposed to veto both of them. At one time he had nearly decided to do it, but he concluded that it would be better to allow the country to have rest for a time, and to wait the progress of events, and not to call an extra session. But, if there shall be a run upon the treasury gold, and the reserve shall be depleted in spite of the arrangement which has been made to protect the gold, the president, unquestionably, will convene the next congress as soon as that fact shall be made clear or probable."

This statement is of much significance, and the public will watch the treasury gold reserve with increased intensity.

ANNA GOULD WEDS.

Her Marriage With Castellane a Gorgeous Affair.

The marriage of Miss Anna Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, to Count Paul Ernest Boniface de Castellane was solemnized at New York, Monday at noon, Archbishop Corrigan officiating.

The wedding took place at the home of George Jay Gould, Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street. The palatial dwelling of the head of the Gould family, with its spacious rooms furnished in oriental splendor, was a fitting place for the ceremony, which could not be held in the cathedral, owing to the fact that the bride is a protestant, the canons of the church of Rome prescribe baptism in that faith before the solemnization of the rite of matrimony before the altar of the church.

Miss Gould is a Presbyterian, and while she consented to the Catholic ritual, declined to join that church. A special dispensation was therefore, obtained and the nuptial mass was omitted from the ceremony.

Invitations were accordingly limited to relatives and about seventy-five intimate friends, making less than one hundred in all, as the house would not accommodate more.

The scene within the dwelling was gorgeous in the extreme. The hall was banked with palms, ferns and potted plants. The East India room, in which the ceremony was performed, the music room opening out of it and the library upstairs were elaborately decorated, the prevailing tone being pink and white American beauty and bridal roses, Japan lilies and lilies of the valley used by the thousands.

20,000 MINERS

BATTLING AGAINST CAPITAL IN THE PITTSBURG DISTRICT.

The Coal Operators Are Anxious to Compromise.

A strike among the miners of the Pittsburg, Pa., district is on. As a result of the action taken at a convention, secret orders to suspend and remain out for the 69 cent rate were sent wherever the constituency could be reached by wire. The action was unexpected and bears out the threat of the district officials that the operators would not have twenty-four hours' notice in which to prepare for the suspension. Ten thousand men are affected. When the convention adjourned every delegate having telegraphic communication with his constituency wired home that the strike was on. It is stated that not another ounce of coal will be mined in the communities notified until the 69 cents is restored. The plan was laid in convention to notify or confer with the association of operators. The demand for an immediate strike was so strong that it was ordered, and all other matters pertaining to it were lost sight of.

LATER ADVICES.

A special under date of March 7th from Pittsburg says: The strike of the miners of the Pittsburg district is on in full force, and it is expected to see a general suspension of work. There are three companies whose mines it is thought will stay at work and the men employed in these mines aggregate less than one thousand.

At the Monongahela mines, near Monongahela City, Wednesday night, the men held a meeting, and after completing the loading of a barge at the request of the superintendent, quit work.

All the miners of the fourth pool are expected to come out. There is a good boating stage, and the operators are desirous of continuing work. Some of them have proposed compromises, but in each case the scales have been rejected with the demand for the rates decided upon by the convention.

WORK GENERALLY SUSPENDED.

Latest reports received at the miners' headquarters in Pittsburg show a general suspension of work throughout the district. From the report of the commissioner of labor, showing the number of miners employed in the district, it is estimated that the number who are on strike is over 21,000, and that the number employed at mines where there will be no strike is about 1,300.

The men are determined to win, although each one will have to rely on his own resources for support during the suspension, as the organization has not the funds to pay the strike benefits.

ALABAMA COTTON GROWERS

Meet and Take Action Regarding Reduced Acreage.

A convention of representative Alabama cotton-growers was held at Birmingham to take action on the plan recommended by the American Cotton Growers' Association, held recently in Jackson, Miss., to reduce the acreage of this year's crop as the only remedy to raise the price of the staple, decided to cut down the year's production by 50 per cent. The decision becomes operative provided three-fourths of the cotton growers of the south agree to it. The 50 per cent. idea has become general throughout the south, associations for the purpose having been formed in every county seat, and there appears to be little doubt that the necessary number will sign.

The Crew Rescued.

A dispatch was received at the maritime exchange at New York Saturday morning from Bermuda stating that the steamer Trinidad, which arrived there Friday, reports that she passed a schooner having on board the crew of the schooner John M. Moore, Captain Doughty, which sailed from Brunswick, Ga., for Philadelphia January 30th.

Shoup Re-Elected.

George L. Shoup was re-elected United States senator from Idaho on the first ballot, receiving the entire Mormon vote. A grand celebration was held in Boise in honor of his re-election.

CLANTON ALA. MAR. 14th 1895.

The merchants of this county should heartily co-operate with the farmers in bringing about an organization that will redound to the mutual advantage of all. This is no political matter. The farmer and merchant alike are in the welk and can by helping one another and talking to one another make better progress in getting out. Every merchant in the county should be here Saturday March 30th.

Mr. C. N. Belms has this in the Ozark Banner Advertiser which will be found interesting and advantageous:

Farmers and others who are troubled with these pests - I have invented a trap which will catch all them in little while. Take a common wash pot, filled it about half full of water, then put cotton seed on top, about half an inch in depth. Place in your crib, or barn near some boxes, and next morning look for results. In this way I caught 49 rats in four nights.

"Perhaps you would not think so but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Syrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. New York is one of of the healthiest places on the Atlantic Coast and yet there are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is when you have one get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure, relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison Ala.

The Cigarette Law.

For the benefit of some of our readers who may not remember we will state that the law in referance to cigarettes enacted by the last General Assembly was approved February 18th and went into effect on the 24th. The license outside of corporate towns is: For the state $5.00 for the county $2.00 and fee for Probate Judge 50 cents, making total $7.00. For corporate towns of 2000 inhabitants or less for the state $10.00; county $5.00, fee 50 cents total 15.50. Towns of 2000 and not over 5000, $15.00 to state; $7.50 for county; fee 50 cents making total $23.00. Over 5000 $25.00 for state; $12.00 for county 50 cents fee, total $38.00. -Ex.

About 25 farmers met in the Court House last Saturday to consider the matter of reducing the cotton acreage, as well as the advisability of forming a Cotton Growers Protective Association. Mr J. A. Logan, one of our best farmers was chairman. On calling the meeting together he made a good speech showing the necesity of our people pulling together. This is not a political move but a bread and meat question which should command the earnest attention of all. Practical remarks were made by Messrs. K. Wells, Alfred Baker, Chrichton, Peyton Mims, Mastin Marlar, and Hare. Mr. Marlar organized himself last Fall on the cotton question and has only planted some 12 acres, Mr. Wells has not for 20 years bought meat, corn or potatoes for his family. Mr. Mims is living at home. The general trend of the remarks was to the effect that less cotton and more home supplies is the motto of Chilton's farmers. The meeting appointed Messrs. J. A. Logan, K. Wells, and O. M. Mastin to represent Chilton county in the meeting to be held shortly in Montgomery.

A special call is made upon all [illegible] to meet on Saturday 23rd of March and select delegates to meet in Clanton at 10 O'clock Saturday March 30th for the purpose of perfecting an organization of the farmers and merchants of this county. Let every reader of the View interest himself in the matter and help move [illegible] successful.

ANSWERS TO INFIDELS.

The Baltimore Cathedral was filled to its utmost capacity last Sunday. Cardinal Gibbons preached at the solemn high mass and the sermon gave evidence that his eminence must have had in his mind the eloquent and unnamed Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll. The text was the gospel of the day, Isaiah ix. "Arise, shine, for thy light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon you thee," etc. The cardinal said:

"It is fashionable as well as profitable to cast odium or ridicule on Christianity and on the scriptures which are the basis of the Christian religion. A man of limited capacity, but fluency of speech and shafts of wit, may propose objections and difficulties in a half hour which may take a learned man a month to answer.

"I would ask you, my brethren, to have three answers ready in your mind when you are confronted by any difficulties against Christianity. First ten thousand difficulties do not desroty a single fact of revelation. Ten thousand layers of fog and cloud do not blot out the sun of the heavens nor diminish his splendor.

"Second, the Christian religion has been in possession 2,000 years and has been cherished by the wisest and best men in every age and country, and it is stronger today than it was ever before.

"Third, all of the civilizations of the past and all existing civilizations today worthy of the name have been based on the doctrinal and moral principles of the Bible

It is time enough to surrender our Christianity when some better system is brought forward to supplant it. When we contrast the weakness of the apostles with the formidably work marked out for them truly we may exclaim with the Apostle to the Gentiles: "The foolish things of the world hath God chosen that He might confound the wise, and the weak things of the world hath God chosen that He might confound the strong, and the things that are contemptible, and the things that are not, that He might bring to naught the things that are, that no flesh should glory in his sight."

It may be interesting and instructive to us to consider some of the principal causes which, under the irresistible influence of God's grace, operated so powerfully in the rapid diffusion of the Christian religion. First the Christian religion gave the pagan world a rational idea of God. It proclaimed God essentially one and self-existing, of a God existing from eternity. This idea of a supreme being, so consonant to our intellectual conception was in striking contrast with the low and sensual notions which the pagan world ascribed to their divinities.

Second, the Christian religion not only gave man a sublime idea of his creator, but gave him also a rational idea about himself.

Hitherto man was a mystery and a riddle to himself. He knew not whence he came or whither he was going. It rescued him from the frightful labyrinth of error in which paganism had involved him

The Christian religion gave not only light to his understanding but peace as well to his heart

It brought him that peace of God which surpasseth all understanding and which springs from the concious possession of the truth.

The Chistian religion has now, as it has ever had, a message for the capitalist and workman.

It admonishes the employer to compensate the laborer by fair and just wages, and, what is more, to bestow upon him kind and considerate treatment, and to keep in view the golden maxim of Christ: "Whatsoever you would that men should do to you, do you to them." All the works of God have one striking characteristic; they all bear the divine stamp of individuality. There are no two stars alike in magnitude and splendor.

Each of you was created alone, you had a seperate growth, a seperate sanctification, and will have a seperate death. You are judged alone, you are rewarded alone and you are punished alone. Each man stands on his own foundation

"What a man soweth, that shall he reap also."

But above all, God loves each one of you personally. He does not contemplate the human family in the mass, as we regard a heap of sand. He has loved each of you with an eternal love. Let us ask Him to come and reign over our souls, intellect, will and memory."

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six mouths preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......... $75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year.......... $100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each.......... $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.......... $75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, 220, acres of land for $3 per acre? If that too high, how about 40, 80, or 120 acres at $2,50 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anthing. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it" he says, "And have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

The attendence in our Sabbath school is increasing since the weather has become more favorable.

Dr. G. C. Osgood,

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,

To Whiten the Hands.

Coarse and red hands may be whitened by using a few grains of chloride of lime added to warm soft water for washing. All rings and bracelets must be removed before this is used, as the chloride of lime will tarnish them. A soap containing this ingredient may be prepared as follows: White powdered castile soap, 1 pound; dry chloride of lime, 1½ to 2 ounces. Mix and beat this up in a mortar to a soft mass with a sufficient quantity of rectified spirit. Divide the mass into tablets and wrap it up in oil silk. It may be scented by adding to the mixture a couple of drams of oil of verbena. In using chloride of lime it is very important to be careful to avoid getting any of the powder into the eyes, as it is exceedingly irritating and may even cause blindness.—Popular Magazine.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PISO'S CURE FOR [illegible]

THE FINAL SCENES.

WHAT CONGRESS DID IN ITS DYING MOMENTS.

The Usual Scenes of Dissolution Mark the Closing Hour.

In the early hours of Monday morning, the senate passed a number of bills that were unobjected to. On motion of Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, the house bill was passed amending the copyright law by limiting the severity of the penalty imposed on newspapers for violating the law in producing copyrighted photographs, etc. Mr. Dubois, of Idaho, offered a resolution amending the rules to provide for the distribution of appropriation bills among several committees of the senate, instead of confining them as now to the committee on appropriations, except the river and harbor bill, which at present goes to the commerce committee. He asked its present consideration, but Mr. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, objected, and Mr. Dubois gave notice that he would call up the resolution on the first Monday of the next congress. At 4:05 a. m., a recess was taken until 9 o'clock with the understanding that no business was to be transacted until 11 o'clock, except in connection with conference reports. Only Messrs. Manderson, Pettigrew and Mitchell, of Wisconsin, were at their desks when the vice-president rapped for order at 9 o'clock after a recess of less than five hours. Another short recess was taken to allow the tardy members to come on deck.

At 9:45 a. m., when the proceedings were resumed, the vice-president announced his signature to the deficiency bill. This was the last formality before taking the important measure to the president. This was the last of the appropriation bills, and thus all of the great measures for carrying on the government were either at the executive mansion or on their way there. Little was done before 11 o'clock, unanimous consent having been given to confine the business to conference agreements. Not knowing this, Mr. Call, of Florida, made a parting effort to launch a senatorial investigation of the alleged lottery iniquities in Florida. Being informed by Mr. Harris of the agreement, Mr. Call wanted to know what the senate proposed to do at 11 o'clock. "It will do what it pleases," said Mr. Harris, with his usual explosiveness. "On the contrary," retorted Mr. Call, "the senate never does what it pleases, but what a few pleases." "It seldom does what the senator from Florida pleases, but always what it pleases," added Mr. Harris. Then the senators lapsed into inaction, waiting for the concluding hour to arrive.

At 10:45 a. m. Voorhees offered a resolution, which was adopted, for the appointment of a joint committee of the two houses, two senators and two members, to wait upon the president of the United States and inform him that congress, having completed its business, was ready to adjourn. The vice president named Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Sherman as the senate members of the committee.

The Behring sea question made its appearance briefly, when Mr. Gray, (dem. of Delaware), asked unanimous consent to take up the bill already passed by the house concerning Behring sea regulations, which he said were essential to the preservation of the fur seals. Mr. Morgan, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, objected. This ended the chances of the bill. Resolutions were adopted for a recess investigation of senate chamber ventilation and for continuing the committee assignments until December next.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, presented a graceful compliment to the vice president, who had temporarily left the chair, in the form of a resolution thanking him for the ability, dignity and impartiality with which he had administered the duties of presiding officer. There was a unanimous adoption of the rule.

Mr. Call again endeavored to secure his Florida lottery appropriation, but Mr. Gorman cut it off.

Mr. Ransom, the new minister to Mexico, presented his resignation from the printing committee, which was to sit during recess.

It was now 11:30, and there was great confusion on the floor. Mr. Call was again to the front with his lottery investigation resolution, declaring vehemently that Mr. Gorman was seeking to suppress an inquiry demanded by the religious community. He demanded a yea and nay vote. To the surprise of every one, including Mr. Call, the resolution was taken up, 35 to 18. For a moment it was believed the resolution was adopted and the presiding officer so announced. The final vote was interrupted by other business. Mr. Call did not press the motion further.

At 11:40, with only twenty minutes remaining, a joint resolution was passed for extra compensation of employes. A messenger rushed away with it in a race to get to the white house and secure the president's signature within twenty minutes.

The thanks of the senate were expressed in a resolution offered by Mr. Manderson for the courtesy and impartiality with which Mr. Harris had served as president pro tem of the senate. Mr. Harris then took the chair and returned his thanks for the flattering resolution.

At twelve minutes to 12 the last enrolled bill was reported to the senate as signed by the vice-president, but it seemed impossible to get the executive signature in time.

At this moment Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Sherman appeared at the door.

"The committee has called on the president," said Mr. Voorhees, "and has notified him that the work of congress was at an end. The president states that he has no further communication to make and he tenders his congratulations to congress on the conclusion of its labors."

The vice president rose as the clock pointed to two minutes to 12, for a parting word to the senate.

The last words were uttered by the vice president, being time to conclude at 12, he brought his gavel down sharply and declared the session at an end. There was no demonstration and no applause. Senators began bidding their adieus.

The appearance of the chamber, the weary look of worn-out senators, was evident that the end had come.

INCIDENTS IN THE HOUSE.

At 8 o'clock Monday morning when the house reconvened for its final session, after its recess, there were exactly eleven members on the floor. The speaker was at his post. All persons present looked tired and worn out. In the public gallery opposite the speaker's gallery lounged a half dozen belated visitors, who had remained there all night. Mr. Dockery was in the watchtower, looking after Uncle Sam's strong box, but he allowed several bills to go through by unanimous consent. One by one members began to arrive and the galleries began to fill. At 9 o'clock Chairman Sayres, of the appropriation committee, entered the hall from his committee room. Although he had been almost constantly at work for forty-eight hours, he was buoyant and light of step, overjoyed that the last appropriation bill had passed.

The senate bill appropriating $300,000 for increasing the width of the channel across the bar of the Savannah river was passed. Mr. Grosvenor created the first flurry by a brief but sharp speech, contending that the republicans were the true friends of bimetalism. The repeal of the Sherman act two years ago, he said, had accomplished more than any other influence to bring about the hopeful condition for silver we now observe the world over. He predicted great results from the proposed monetary conference. Mr. Grosvenor's speech precipitated quite a stir among the silver men. They all rushed forward and appealed for recognition. A few of them succeeded in crowding in a few words before the debate was cut off and at 10 o'clock, Mr. Dockery moved a recess until 11 o'clock. The motion prevailed. At 11 o'clock, when the confusion had ceased, the usual committee, consisting of Messrs. Catchings, Mississippi, Outhwait, Ohio, and Reed, Maine, were appointed to join a similar committee from the senate and inform the president that congress was ready to adjourn. The speaker appointed Messrs. Rusk, Merredith and Coffee on the committee on accounts to serve during the recess.

Under the current resolutions providing for the participation of congress in the dedication of the Chickamauga Military Park, the speaker appointed as representatives of other armies than those engaged at the battle of Chickamauga, Messrs. Hatch, of Missouri, Culberson, of Texas, Reed, of Maine, Sayers, of Texas, Talbot, of Maryland, Sickles, of New York, Wilson, of West Virginia, Mallory, of Florida, Boutelle, of Maine, Alexander, of North Carolina, Henderson, of Illinois, Hooker, of Mississippi, Tarsney, of Missouri, Henderson, of Iowa, Bingham, of Pennsylvania, Draper of Massachusetts, Kiefer, of Minnesota, Harrison, of Alabama, English, of California, Marshal, of Virginia, Van Voorhis, of Ohio, and Lapham, of Rhode Island.

Another recess of fifteen minutes was taken, after which Mr. Hatch asked unanimous consent that for the remainder of the session the wives and families of members who were unable to gain admission to the galleries be allowed on the floor of the house. No objection was forthcoming, and the ladies crowded through the doors and down the aisles, taking every seat that was vacant. The committee appointed to wait on the president appeared and informed the speaker that the president had no further communication to make to congress.

Mr. Cannon, republican, of Illinois, then obtained recognition and in a graceful speech offered a resolution of thanks to the speaker. Such a resolution usually comes from one of the leaders of the majority. The resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That the thanks of the house be extended to the speaker of the house for the impartial and dignified manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of this house and performed the arduous duties of the chair."

A great burst of applause greeted the presentation of Mr. Cannon's resolution.

Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, who was in the chair, called for a rising vote on the question. Every member, save Mr. Reed, of Maine, and Mr. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, arose to his feet, and Mr. Hatch declared the resolution unanimously adopted.

A moment later when Speaker Crisp ascended the rostrum, the applause and cheering were renewed. The speaker bowed his acknowledgements, and after hearing Mr. Cannon's resolution, he delivered his valedictory, thanking the body for its uniform kindness and courtesy to him as its presiding officer. He then announced the appointment of Messrs. Culberson, of Texas, Hill, of Illinois, and himself, under the resolution adopted Sunday night, as members of the monetary commission.

Then the end came. The hands of the clock pointed to 12.

"I now declare the third session of the fifty-third congress," said the speaker, "adjourned without a day." The silver mace was lifted from its malachite pedestal, the flag above the house was lowered and, amid cheers and cat calls from the galleries, a rush was made for the doors. But from the press gallery came the sound of music. The newspaper correspondents were singing the doxology: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." The members paused to listen and applaud, and, as the chorus ceased, pushed out, and in a few minutes the hall was deserted.

BANK ROBBERS FOILED.

One is Killed and the Other Captured. The Cashier Wounded.

Adel, the county seat of Dallas county, Iowa, twenty-two miles from Des Moines, was the scene of a bold bank robbery Wednesday morning, followed by the pursuit of the amateur bandits, the killing of one, the capture of the other, and the formation of an angry mob about the county jail threatening to have the life of the living robber. The funds of the bank were saved by the presence of mind of the cashier, who, after receiving a load of lead in his body, swung shut the door to the vault and turned the combination.

Mexican Clover for Poor Soils.

A Maryland writer in the American Cultivator says: We have plenty of poor, thin soils in the North which might well be improved with a crop or two of the great Southern grass for poor land—the Mexican or Spanish clover. In most of the piney-woods counties along the Atlantic coast, and back some distance from the Gulf of Mexico, the sandy soil is too thin and poor to support any of the true clovers, but as they are planted today with Mexican clover they produce bountiful crops of grass that stock relish, and which is excellent for the soil, either plowed under or simply as forage.

Very extensive tracts of the South owe a complete regeneration to this new plant. Planted early in the season the Mexican clover there produces a good hay crop in the fall, and supplies enough seed for another crop the following spring. The plant is an annual, but the seed that it drops into the soil survives the coldest winter, and takes complete possession of the ground before the weeds. If other crops are planted at the harvesting time in the fall they will be protected by the stubble of the clover, and as soon as they are cut the next summer the Mexican clover will immediately spring up to take their place.

The Mexican clover travels easily, very probably by means of the birds, which are fond of its seeds, and occasionally it will be found growing in places where one least expects it. Nevertheless it is not a disagreeable plant to restrict if properly attended to in time. It would be a great blessing to have it extend over a great many of the barren hillsides of the North where nothing but a few weeds and wild grasses seem to grow.

On very light, sandy soil where the true clovers would make no stand at all, I have seen the Mexican clover produce a fair crop of hay, and sow enough seed for another season. The seeds need cultivated soils to germinate in, and sometimes they will lie dormant on uncultivated soils for several seasons without growing. A little cultivation of the soil with the plow and harrow makes them spring up as if by magic. The value of such a crop on a very poor piece of land is readily appreciated. Besides returning vegetable material to the ground, the roots form a sort of matted sod which will collect drifting debris, and in time make the soil thicker and much better adapted to the growing of general crops. Horses and cattle both like Mexican clover, and in the south many grow it simply for this purpose, preferring it, everything considered, to most other grass plants. As to its relative value as a stock food there will probably be considerable difference, but almost all agree that it is unexcelled as a forage plant, and for cultivation on poor soils where the land will not support any of the true clovers. And this applies to the north as well as to the south, although judging from the cultivation of it in the past, the reverse would seem to be the prevailing opinion.

SERVED IN THE WAR.

THE GRIP ALMOST WON WHERE THE BULLET FAILED.

Our Sympathies Always Enlisted in the Infirmities of the Veteran.

(From the Herald, Woodstock, Va.)

There is an old soldier in Woodstock, Va., who served in the war with Mexico and in the war of the rebellion, Mr. Levi McInturff. He passed through both these wars without a serious wound. The hardships, however, told seriously on him, for when the grip attacked him four years ago it nearly killed him. Who can look upon the infirmities of a veteran without a feeling of the deepest sympathy? His townspeople saw him confined to his house so prostrated with great nervousness that he could not hold a knife and fork at the table, scarcely able to walk, too, and as he attempted it, he often stumbled and fell. They saw him treated by the best talent to be had—but still he suffered on for four years, and gave up finally in despair. One day, however, he was struck by the account of a cure which had been affected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He immediately ordered a box and commenced taking them. He says he was greatly relieved within three days' time. The blood found its way to his fingers, and his hands, which had been palsied, assumed a natural color, and he was soon enabled to use his knife and fork at the table. He has recovered his strength to such an extent that he is able to chop wood, shock corn and do his regular work about his home. He now says he can not only walk to Woodstock, but can walk across the mountains. He is able to lift up a fifty-two pound weight with one hand and says he does not know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others, but knows that they have done a great work for him.

He was in town last Monday, court day, and was loud in his praise of the medicine that had given him so great relief. He purchased another box and took it home with him. Mr. McInturff is willing to make affidavit to these facts.

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills state that they are not a patent medicine, but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner, who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. The pills are also a specific for the trouble peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slightest danger. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price (50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy,

Dear Sir:

I am the little boy you sent the Discovery to about six weeks ago. I used two bottles and also the salve. When I began to use the medicine my sores were as large as a quarter of a dollar, and now they are as large as a ten cent piece and I feel much better. Mamma and I feel very thankful to you. I shall write again and tell you how I am getting along.

He Changed His Mind.

"Have you carefully considered all that I have said, my boy?" asked the old gentleman the day after he had given his son a little fatherly advice.

"Yes, father," replied the young man meekly.

"You are getting near the age at which a young man naturally begins to look around for a wife, and I don't want you to make a mistake."

"I'll try not to, father."

"No butterflies of fashion, my boy, but a girl of some solid worth; one who has some practical accomplishments."

"Yes, father."

"Never mind the piano-player; never mind the dancing and the small talk. When you find a girl who can cook, my boy, it will be time to think of marrying. When you find a girl who can make up her own bed, knows how to set the table without forgetting something, is able to put up the preserves, and, above all, is good at sewing, go in and win her, my boy, and you will have my blessings."

"I have resolved, father, to seek such a wife as you describe," said the young man, with determination. "I see the folly of seeking a wife in society. I will go to a female employment office for servants this afternoon, and see if I can find one that will answer. And then I'll have mother call on her, and—and——"

"Young man, I'll break your neck in about a minute!"

"But you said——"

"Never mind what I said. I've changed my mind."

Preferred the Burglar.

The burglar's wife was in the witness box and the prosecuting attorney was conducting a vigorous cross-examination.

"Madam, you are the wife of this man?"

"Yes."

"You knew he was a burglar when you married him?"

"Yes."

"How did you come to contract a matrimonial alliance with such a man?"

"Well," the witness said, sarcastically, "I was getting old, and had to choose between a lawyer and a burglar."

The cross-examination ended there.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

Marquis Imperiali, first secretary of the Italian legation, called at the state department Wednesday morning and directed the attention of the officials to the news from Walsenburg, Col., of the assassination of four Italians. He asked that the good offices of the state department be used immediately to prevent the further killing of his countrymen.

Secretary Herbert has issued an order for the release from the naval academy of a Japanese cadet named Takasaki, who desires to engage in the war with China and incidentally get the benefit of the rapid promotion now taking place in the Japanese navy. If Takasaki returns to the United States within a reasonable time he will probably be allowed to resume his present status at the academy and continue his studies there.

The Spanish minister at Washington, Senor Murnaga, had received no reply up to Thursday noon from the captain general of Cuba regarding the firing upon the American steamer Allianca, by a Spanish gunboat on the 8th instant. Senor Murunga is satisfied that the moment the captain of the gunboat makes his report to the captain general it will be in turn forwarded to the minister. When this report is received it will be at once laid before Secretary Gresham in order that he may be made acquainted with the Spanish side of the case, which will then be carefully investigated.

Notice is given by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and August Belmont & Co., syndicate managers, that they are now prepared to exchange their full paid allotment certificates for the definitive United States 4 per cent. bonds of 1925, upon presentation of the former at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., at New York. The coupon bonds of $1,000 can be delivered at once if desired. Holders desiring registered or coupon bonds of smaller denominations must deposit their allotment certificates with the firm to be forwarded to Washington. They must also furnish particulars as to the denominations required, and in the case of registered names, in which the same are to be issued. Bonds in coupon or registered form will be delivered at any subtreasury in the United States without expense, at the request of the depositor.

The Income Tax Case.

The arguments as to the constitutionality of the income tax are continuing. It will be some time, even after they cease, before a decision is rendered. If the court decides against the tax an extra session will be inevitable. At the treasury the clerks are doing some mighty figuring on the possibility of it being declared unconstitutional. They say that if this tax cannot be collected, receipts will fall behind expenditures $20,000,000 and $30,000,000. Without that tax there would not be enough revenue to run the government through the fiscal year. Nothing could be done in that event but to call congress together in extraordinary session. There is a great deal of debate as to what the decision of the court will be. The best opinion is, however, that there will not be two votes on the supreme bench cast against the legality of this tax.

To Be Open to Settlement.

In the early history of our navy the policy of setting aside naval reservations in the gulf country—Florida, Alabama and Mississippi—was established. This was done for the purpose of reserving for naval purposes the live oak and other valuable timber on them, then extensively used in ship building. The change in naval architecture and the practical abandonment of wooden ships made the longer holding of these reservations useless, and Secretary Herbert recommended that they be restored to the public domain. Congress approved the recommendation and passed the necessary law, and Secretary Herbert Thursday certified the lands to Secretary Smith, who will open them to settlement under the land laws. The lands in Florida are not included and will be examined further before being transferred.

The Coal Costs Too Much.

After many years of dissatisfaction over the prices for coal exacted by the Panama Railroad company from the United States war vessels, the navy department has declined to have further dealings with that concern, and will secure coal supplies from another source. Heretofore naval vessels at Colon were obliged to get their coal from the railroad company at $11 per ton. The navy department protested that this rate was exorbitant, and contended that the fact that the United States government kept vessels at Colon to protect the company's property was additional reason why the price should be reduced. The company refused to lower the rate and Secretary Herbert has directed that hereafter United States naval vessels that would otherwise coal at Colon shall go to Cartagena for the purpose. Cartagena is only a day's run from Colon, and the department has made arrangements to obtain coal there at $5.50 per ton.

Gain of the Gold Reserve—Receipts and Expenditures.

The treasury condition for a third of March shows that the receipts aggregated $9,325,000 and the expenditures $11,354,000, or an excess of the expenditures over the receipts of $2,029,000. An element of uncertainty not heretofore entering into treasury calculations has now to be considered. It is the large sums of money appropriated by congress in the deficiency apppropriation and sundry civil appropriation bills. Many of these items were made immediately available, and the payment Monday of $615,000 on the "civil and miscellaneous" accounts shows that some of them have begun to reach the cashier's desk. The customs receipts show a continued and sustained improvement, being for the fiscal year up to date $105,877,000, or nearly a million more than for the same time last year.

Internal revenue receipts are $5,000,000 in excess of this time last year, but improvement in both sources of receipts must be shown for the last third of the fiscal year or government revenues for the entire fiscal year will fall considerably below the estimates.

Consul Williams Not Yet Recalled.

There has been a space of over a week since the cable report came from Madrid that a cabinet council had agreed to ask the recall of United States Consul Williams at Havana. Since then there has been no official demand for his recall. Mr. Williams has stated in Havana that he had not heard of the contemplated recall, and yet the Spanish officials at Madrid have not denied the original report that a demand for his recall had been agreed upon. Under these circumstances officials intimate that the return of President Cleveland from his hunting trip and the recovery of Secretary Gresham from his attack of grip will lead to a clearing up of the situation, as the absence of the two chiefs most concerned with diplomatic affairs is regarded as explanatory of the inaction covering seven days since the report first came from Madrid. Spanish officials at Washington will say nothing on the subject either confirming or denying the report, but it is believed they would take occasion to dismiss the report if it was entirely groundless.

STATE COMPETITION OPPOSED.

Tennessee Coal Operators Prepare a Formal Protest.

A convention of the coal mining interests of Tennessee was held in Chattanooga last Tuesday and was attended by representatives from nearly every mining company in the state. The meeting was called to protest against the state entering the market as an extensive miner of coal to the detriment of individual enterprise and free labor. S. B. Luttrell, vice president of the East Tennessee Coal Company, was elected chairman and Colonel T. H. Heald, of Knoxville, secretary. A resolution was unanimously carried that a committee of three appointed by the chairman, should be sent to Nashville to intercede with the legislature in the interest of proper protection of those interested in coal mining, the expenses of such committee to be prorated among the companies.

RIOTS IN NEW ORLEANS.

A MOB OF WHITES FIRE UPON NEGRO LABORERS.

Four Killed and Eight Wounded.

THE POLICE WERE POWERLESS TO QUELL THE CONFLICT.

A British Subject Fired Upon and Wounded—Troops Called Out.

There were two separate and distinct riots at New Orleans Tuesday, both probably resulting from the same plan. One occurred on the river front near the French market, where the ship Engineer was loading for Liverpool. The other occurred about four miles distant in the direction of Carrollton, at the foot of Philip street. Only one man, William Campbell, colored, was killed in this affair.

The names of the dead are: William Campbell, Jules Carrabee and two unknown negroes, who have not been identified—four in all.

The wounded are: James A. Bane, purser of the steamship Engineer, dangerously wounded; Henry Brown, colored, will recover; Leonard Mallard, colored, has since died; Tim Persten, colored, may recover; Louis Cast, colored, will recover; Billy Williams, colored, will recover; Frank Lighthall, colored, slightly wounded; Robert Brooks, white, shot in the leg, not dangerous.

Doubtless a number of other negroes were slightly wounded, but ran away and cannot be identified.

The first scene of the conflict was on the river front between Stann and Dumaine streets. Three men were killed almost outright, while a number were wounded.

The killing was done by a mob of white men numbering about 200, who were armed with pistols and Winchester rifles. The negroes were about to start to work on board the steamship Engineer lying at that point, when white men approached from all directions. All were armed and many took positions behind box cars and poured volley upon volley into the negroes. Those who were on the scene say that it reminded them of a battlefield so fast and furious was the firing.

The negroes were given no quarter and were shot down like dogs. Not only were the darkies shot down, but severel innocent persons suffered. Among those killed was Jules Clice Carabee, a shoemaker, who happened to be in the vicinity. James Bane, the purser of the Engineer, was standing on the levee, near his ship, when the attack was made, and he received four wounds, three in the head and another in the arm. He was fired upon by several men who aimed over the heads of three policemen who were kneeling behind some freight just on the edge of the wharf. His wounds may prove fatal.

As near as can be stated, the shooting occurred a few minutes after 7 o'clock. There was a dense fog prevailing and this afforded the white men an excellent chance to do their bloody work. At the time there were only six policemen on the scene, and there were no arrests effected, as the police were as badly frightened as the negroes. The attackers were composed of two parties. A large number of men appeared at the corner of Dumaine street, and equally as large a mob came from the corner at St. Ann street.

Resulted from Labor Troubles.

The levee riots resulted from an old quarrel over the loading of cotton vessels. The business has in the past been monopolized by the white crew, who screw or load the cotton bales into the holds of vessels. They constitute one of the strongest labor unions in the country. They have an annual income of $50,000, and have $160,000 in bank. They have dictated terms on the levee, commanding wages of $5 or $6 a day for their men, although the work is by no means arduous.

At the beginning of the present season, the white laborers, considering that there was not enough business for them and the negroes, concluded to drive the latter from their work. The ship agents, under orders from the ship owners abroad, who are mainly English, stuck to the negroes, and the result has been a running warfare for the past three months, in which a number of levees were sacrificed and some property destroyed. The war began with incendiary fires, which destroyed the wharves of the West Indian Steamship Company, with $250,000 loss; the wharves of the Texas and Pacific, with 25,000 bales of cotton; loss $500,000.

These measures being ineffective, various riots followed directed against the negroes, mobs of white men raiding the vessels in port and putting out the negroes working at them. Seeing defeat still threatening them, riots were decided on in order to bring the matter to a crisis, which has very thoroughly been done.

To Punish the Rioters.

As soon as the details of the trouble were received, steps were taken to reassert the authority of the law and punish the riotert. The cotton exchange, the board of trade, produce exchange, maritime association, sugar and rice exchange, fruit exchange, young men's business league, mechanics, dealers and lumbermen's exchange, the clearing house, the bureau of freight and transportation and the wholesale grocers' association at once held called meetings and appointed delegates to a conference to consider the situation and decide upon what action should be taken, the universal sentiment being that great vigor was needed. Governor Foster was at once telegraphed, and he left Baton Rouge on the earliest train. He reached New Orleans at 6 p. m., and agreed to meet a delegation from the joint conference committee of the exchanges.

British Consul Takes It Up.

In the meanwhile, in anticipation of more trouble, the militia was ordered to be in readiness to be called out at a moment's notice. The firing on the British steamer Engineer and Niagara and the fatal shooting of the purser of the former vessel, was brought to the attention of the British consul, and he, as well as the British ship agents in New Orleans telegraphed to the British ambassador, notifying him of the outrage and calling on him for protection to the lives and property of British subjects in the city. The riot was also called to the attention of the grand jury by Judge Moise, of the criminal district court, and it began an investigation, particularly in regard to the failure of the authorities and the police to preserve order, suppress the riot and arrest the rioters. Mayor Louisiana, and that the matter may be investigated."

London News on the Riot.

The London Daily News, commenting on the race riot in New Orleans, says:

"The negroes are now being lynched in bulk in New Orleans. If it were not for the looks of things, they might as well return to their ancestral seats in Dahomey. New Orleans is a more respectable address than Dahomey, but the citizens of the two localities are much the same."

Fitzpatrick, Chief of Police Journee and others were summoned before the grand jury and testified. The general disposition is to lay the blame for the loss of life on the mayor, who was warned of the probability of trouble, but refused to take action. Nor is the governor held blameless, as the present troubles have existed for four months, and no attempt has been made in all that time to suppress them.

The Governor in Conference.

The conference between the governor and representatives of commercial bodies lasted till midnight. The governor stated to a reporter that the whole situation had been carefully considered. He will remain in the city as long as necessary, personally in charge of affairs. He said the only definite plan he would pursue would be the maintenance of law and order, and that it must and shall be maintained at all hazards. Vigorous and effective measures will be put into operation for this purpose. He is assured of the hearty co-operation of all good citizens. In the meantime he issued a proclamation calling the militia out to preserve order.

Appealed to Sir Julian.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador at Washington, has received a telegram from the British consul at New Orleans, informing him of the shooting, during the riot, of Purser Bain, of the British steamer, Engineer. The consul added in his telegram that the city was in a terrible state of excitement and the men of the Engineer were fearful that they might be attacked. He, therefore, earnestly requested that some action be taken to insure their safety. Speaking of the matter, Sir Julian said:

"You know, the city of New Orleans is very much pertutbed just now, but the governor of the state, I am assured, is able to quell the disturbance. As soon as I received the telegram from Consul St. John, I turned the matter over to the secretary of state, and he informed me that he would communicate with the governor of JOBBERY CHARGED.

The Indications Are That Tennessee Was to Be Robbed.

A Nashville special says: The penitentiary committee heard only three witnesses Wednesday. The most interesting testimony was by Representative King, who said that he was satisfied that the specifications were loaded, as they called for quartered oak walks in front of cells, affording a chance to make $40,000. They also called for copper knees under the roofing, when ordinary wire could be used and fully $20,000 saved by the contractors. He also told of information he had received at Knoxville to the effect that John Houk was to have been paid $7,500 for delaying Commissioner Young, who is his father-in-law, and causing him to miss the train the day before the bids were to have been opened, the presumption being that the parties alleged to have agreed to pay Houk would have had some advantage through Young's absence. Commissioner McDowell later stated to the committee that the bids were not opened on the day originally set, because of Judge Young's absence, he having telegraphed that he had missed the train. The bids were opened the next day when Judge Young was present. The committee's sessions are secret.

SPAIN'S EXCUSE.

Unofficial Statements in Regard to the Action of the Gunboat.

A special cable dispatch from Havana, signed by the editor of La Lucha, says:

"No official report of firing upon a merchantman flying the American flag by a Spanish man-of-war has been made here. It is thought that since the Cuban coast is being watched by Spanish naval vessels, one of them fired on a suspicious vessel which did not obey its signals to stop."

A special cablegram from Colon, referring to the same episode, says:

"The Colombia line steamship Allianca, which was fired on by a Spanish war vessel off the eastern point of Cuba, on March 8th, took no war materials when she sailed on March 5th. Her 1,700 tons of general freight and 200 tons of bananas quite filled her. Cubans here say the Allianca was fired on probably in the belief that she was a filibuster. They say it is an old Spanish custom to fire on any suspicious vessel."

MAYOR FITZPATRICK CLEARED.

New Orleans Chief Executive Exonerated From Charges of Malfeasance.

In the civil district court at New Orleans, Thursday, Judge King read his decision in the case of Mayor John Fitzpatrick, against whom articles of impeachment have been filed by the Citizens' Protective Association.

The suit grew out of the fight against the city administration inaugurated last summer by the citizens. There were some dozen charges against the mayor. He was accused of malfeasance in office, favoritism and other charges of a similar character. The decision was all in his favor, the judge finding him not guilty on either of the charges.

The acquittal of the mayor is considered a great victory for the political ring, of which Fitzpatrick is the acknowledged leader. The courtroom was crowded with spectators. There was also present the counsel who appeared in the case.

For more than seventeen years Charles A. Sturges was head bookkeeper and cashier for Proctor & Gamble, soap manufacturers, at Chicago. He is now a defaulter and fugitive from justice. The exact amount of his defalcation will not be given out by the firm whose money he took, but it is said the figures will not fall short of $25,000.

SOLDIERS FOR CUBA

SPAIN TO SEND OVER 12,000 PICKED MEN.

The Islanders are Earnest in Their Fight for Independence.

Dispatches from Madrid, Spain, says: A credit of $1,000,000 to be used in suppressing the Cuban insurrection, has been cabled to Captain General Calleja, in Havana.

The preparations to ship more troops to Cuba are pressed forward with great rapidity. In addition to the three transports which have already sailed, half a dozen or more troop ships have been made ready to leave. Cadiz and Santander as soon as the infantry shall be got aboard. The total number now under orders for the Cuban campaign is twelve thousand. Not a few of the soldiers are veterans of the previous campaign. They and the other experienced men have been distributed among the regiments so that every company of new recruits may have a backbone of tried campaigners. All seem equally anxious to go to the front. Despite the terrors of the Cuban climate for the European Spaniard there are numerous volunteers from all parts of the country. The popular excitement is beyond anything warranted by the sanguine reports given out by the government.

ALL NEWS OF SPANISH ORIGIN.

The latest news received at Tampa from the Cuban revolutionary movement is wholly of Spanish origin. The Cuban patriots of the city have received no news from the field direct, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The last news they had from Marti and Gomez was the 25th of February. Since that time nothing has been heard from them, nor direct from any of their generals on the field. La Lucha and other Havana papers were received Monday containing news as sent out by the Spanish government. The government admits that Moncada, an insurgent general, at the head of 1,000 men, routed and captured a thousand troops at Baire. Many were killed. The insurgent, Masso, has marched through Mancadillo and Bayamo, and through many towns, killing many government troops, capturing many more and securing arms and ammunition in large quantities. The Cubans in Tampa are satisfied with the revolution so far.

WORTH IS DEAD.

Brief Sketch of the Famous Milliner's Life.

A Paris special announces the death in that city of Charles Frederick Worth, the famous "man dressmaker."

Worth was born in Bourne, Lincolnshire, England, in 1825. At the age of 18 he was apprenticed to a printer, his parents desiring that he learn that trade, but he evinced a strong hostility to handling type and abandoned the printing office after he had served seven months.

He then went to London and through the assistance of a friend secured a position in a draper's (dry goods) shop, which position he left to enter the employment of Swan & Edgar, drapers, where he became a favorite.

He first conceived the idea of designing fashions through conversations with the buyers of Swan & Edgar, and frequently made suggestions which the heads of departments were not slow to see in a favorable light. The more he talked with the buyers the more he resolved to go to Paris and soon began the study of French.

When about 21 years of age he went to Paris, and shortly after his arrival in that city secured a position with Gaglin & Co., and in a few years was placed at the head of a department. In his new capacity he inaugurated many new departures.

While in the employ of Gaglin & Co., he received medals for displays at the London and Paris expositions. Later he established the firm of Worth & Beberg and in 1870 founded the famous house of Worth. His fame as a dressmaker abounded, and among the many admirers of his skill was the Ex-Empress Eugenie for whom he made a great many elegant dresses.

It has been said that while Paris rules the world in fashion, the man who ruled Paris—M. Worth—was a Lincolnshire, England, lad, so that really it was an Englishman who was the arbiter of the world's fashion.

OUR FLAG FIRED UPON.

An American Mail Steamer Chased by a Spanish Man-of-War.

The American mail steamship Alliancia, while proceeding from Colon to New York on the morning of the 8th instant, sighted a barkentine rigged steamer under the land off Cape Maysie, the eastern edge of Cuba, which headed directly toward her.

At 7 o'clock, when about two and a half miles distant, the stranger hoisted the Spanish flag, which was saluted by hoisting the American ensign and dipping it, which act of courtesy was answered by the Spaniard. At 7:15 she fired a blank cartridge to leeward, which was soon followed by another. The American ensign was again hoisted and dipped, but the course and speed of the ship was not changed, as no hostile demonstration was anticipated, as the Alliancia was more than six miles off the land at the time.

The Spanish man of war was not satisfied with even the double salute to her flag, but proceeded to chase the American at her full speed, judging from the smoke that came from her funnels, and seeing that the Alliancia was drawing away from her, she hove to, to bring the guns to bear and fired a solid shot which struck the water less than an eighth of a mile away from the ship and directly in line. This was followed by two more solid shots which fortunately did not reach their mark, though they struck the water in plain sight of the ship, the Spaniard plainly showing the intention to hit her if she could.

Captain Cross, of the Alliancia, knowing he was more than two leagues from land and on the high seas, did not consider it his duty to detain his ship to find out the reason for such an outrage, even for so summary a demand and so ordered full steam and gradually drew out of range.

The chase was kept up for more than twenty-five miles before it was abandoned. If the Spaniard had had more speed or her gunners been better marksmen, no doubt the incident would not have ended so fortunately for the American.

This outrage has been reported to the secretary of state by Captain Crossman and no doubt a prompt demand will be made on the Spanish government for an explanation of the insult, and a reason required for the attempt made to stop an American mail steamer on the high seas in time of peace.

Captain Crossman has written a letter to the secretary of state at Washington, giving a full statement of the Spanish warship's conduct.

THE DISPENSARY LAW VOID.

Judge Simonton Decides That the Act Does Not Always Hold.

Judge Simonton, in the United States circuit court at Charleston, S. C., Tuesday, rendered a decision in a habeas corpus case, which was brought to test the constitutionality of the dispensary law. The defendants, J. B. Jervey, master of the schooner Carolina, his son and a sailor were arrested some time ago on the charge of violating the dispensary law. This schooner was seized at the landing and her cargo of whisky from Savannah was seized and confiscated, and so was the vessel.

The defendants gave bail, and were surrendered by their bondsmen to the sheriff, who held them. The writ of habeas corpus was then sued out for their release. The court asks, "Is the act of the legislature of South Carolina, upon which this arrest was based, in conflict with the constitution and laws of the United States?"

Incidentally, the court says that the dispensary law has become fixed in the legislation of the state. It is for the interest of all her citizens that it be settled and the constitutionality of all its parts be ascertained, and that speedily. But the court finds this arrest in violation of the constitution and the inter-state commerce act and orders that the prisoners be discharged from custody. The court says: "The clause of the dispensary act, so far as it has been made to apply to these petitions, is absolutely void." This decision will probably carry the dispensary law up to the United States supreme court.

Victory for Women Suffragists.

Assemblyman Nixon's concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to the constitution giving women right to vote, passed the New York assembly by a vote of 80 to 31. The resolution now goes to the senate.

Market Letter.

Cotton. An active market today is the result of conflicting advices received here from the South as to the probability of a reduction in acreage. The belief has been created that the acreage will not be as much reduced as was thought probable when cotton was selling at ½ cent a pound lower and many commission houses are in receipt of telegrams from the South, stating that there will be little or no reduction. Our cables from Liverpool tell us that that market was adversely affected by receipt of advices similar to those referred to above and the response in that market to the advance here was not equal to expectations. Our opening was somewhat lower but the market soon developed unusual strength, and advanced quickly to the best prices of yesterday from which point there was a sharp reaction caused by heavy offerings by prominent operators identified with the short side.

A reaction at the close of business was due to the pressure to liquidate long cotton and large sales by those who have for some time past been looking for a break in the market on account of the heavy movement.

The fact remains however, that the cotton in New York is held in very strong hands and does not yet show signs of being liquidated.

"Perhaps you would not think so but a very large proportion of disease in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Syrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. New York is one of the healthiest places on the Atlantic Coast and yet there are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is when you have one get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison Ala.

Merchants and Farmers Agree.

We have been informed of a most novel plan to be tried by the farmers and merchants of two coun ried out by co-operation of the two interests. The merchants have agreed among themselves, and with the farmers, that after January 1, 1896, they will not sell on credit any corn, hay, oats, potatoes, peas, or similar products to any farmer.

The soil of the counties is well adapted to the growing of food products, and the idea is to put the farmers under the stern necessity of raising such crops. The merchants also agreed that they will give no farmer credit or assistance who will not give attention first to food crops and raise at home all he needs for home supplies. The merchants at the same time pledged themselves that they will do all in their power to develope a home market for agricultural products; that they will buy whatever corn, hay, peas, bacon, tallow, hides, etc. that the farmers may have to sell.

Both parties to the agreement, according to the report, are thoroughly in earnest, and will endeavor to live up to the letter and spirit of the bargain. And this plan may prove the solution to the problem which has vexed our people for years right here in Alabama.

A great many people may be induced by it to at least follow the "live at home" policy and when this is done this section will again become prosperous and independent. —Advertiser.

The following address issued by the business men of New Orleans has the proper ring about it. That city for days was in the hands of a mob who would neither work nor suffer others to work, going so far as to shoot down innocent negroes and whites who insisted on working:

To the People of New Orleans:—

The acts of lawless violence that have been witnessed on the levee front during the past forty-eight hours, on heels of events covering many months, which have seriously injured the fair name of this city throughout the world, call for an expression on the part of the merchants of New Orleans. We have patiently stood interference from organized labor, which has cost us and the city and State many hundred thousand dollars, and with our business drifting from us because of want of confidence elsewhere born of labor troubles interruations we have quietly stood by, hoping against hope that we could by moral suasion and fair offers bring about a peaceful and amicable solution. Every effort in this direction has failed and we find that mistaking our forbearance for fear, an armed mob has taken possession of our wharves and landings, determined to uphold the minority who insist that the merchants of New Orleans shall intrust the conduct of their business to them.

It is not a question of wages or compensation, but simply and solely one of whether the merchants of New Orleans shall conduct their own business in their way, or whether they shall be dictated to by a handful of employees. We say a handful, as the men who insist on dominating our business methods are 2,000 of about 50,000 male adults of this city.

These 2,000 insist that the means of subsistence of 48,000 and their families shall be stopped, unless they are allowed to dictate.

It is useless to enter into details. The facts are too well known to every man, woman and child to need recital. The time has come when forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. We cannot longer treat with men who, with arms in their hands, are shooting down an inoffensive people because they will not think and act with them.

For these reasons we say to these people, that cost what it may we are determined that the commerce of this city must and shall be protected; that everyone who desires to perform honest labor must and shall be permitted to do so, regardless of race, color or previous condition. No man shall be interfered with in the pursuance of his daily avocation, and that we insist on the right of every employer to hire whom he may choose and have his work performed in such a manner as he may direct.

We do not deny the right of workingmen to combine on the ground for mutual protection, or to stop work if they choose, but we deny their right to prevent others from working, and we warn these men who have taken the law in their own hands, that the conditions they have brought about must cease. We are willing to meet them amicably, if they will return to peaceful methods, and accept

METHODS OF RESTRICTION.

During the past few years there has been a marked tendency to restrict naturalization and foreign immigration. Two recent judicial decisions in this connection serve to indicate this tendency. Judge Roger A. Pryor, of New York, sprung a sensation recently by refusing to issue naturalization papers to three applicants because they couldn't speak English.

Soon after this Judge Henry J. Edmunds, of the St. Louis Criminal Court, announced that he would hereafter act on the same principle, and that no foreigner will be naturalized in his court who cannot understand the English language and speak it intelligently. Judge Edmunds said that he had many reasons for adopting this policy, but the main one was the poor jury service from which his court suffered.

Every time he calls a jury panel from one to twenty men asked to be excused on the ground that they cannot speak English. The business of the court has in this way been greatly delayed and the judge subjected to much annoyance.

Judge Edmunds believes that the rule he has established will induce many foreigners to learn to speak the language of the country in which they desire the privileges of citizenship. The restriction of naturalization means the restriction of immigration to a large extent. Though many millions of foreigners have come to our shores and among them are now some of our best and most industrious citizens who have helped to build up the greatest nation on the globe, the feeling in favor of a restriction of foreign immigration is daily growing stronger. Leagues with this end in view are being formed.

The Immigration Restriction League of Boston is now engaged in sending out circulars containing information of measures proposed for the cutting off of a large part of the inflow, for there is no doubt but that many foreign paupers and criminals take advantage of our lax laws and flock to this country.

The League gives the following information for 1893 and 1894, as taken from the reports of the Superintendent of Immigration.

	1893.	1894.
Total immigration	440,793	289,020
Per cent of lecrease	1,630	2,389
Per cent of decrease		35
Number debarred from entrance	1,630	2,389
Estimated emigration (bureau of statistics		190,840
Per cent of when emigration is immigration		66
Per cent of those unable to read their own language	14	14
Per cent of those unable to write their own language	27	19
Per cent of immigrant from Austria-Hungray, Italy, Poland and Russia to total immigration	43	43
Per cent of immigrants from United Kingdom, France Germany and Scandinavia to total immigration	48	49
Per cent of those with no occupation, and farmers, laborers and servants to total immigration	81	77

As a measure for restricting immigration the League has proposed a law which is to provide that the head-money collected from alien passengers under the act of August 3, 1882, to regulate immigration, shall be $10 instead of $1, as provided in said act as amended by the act of August 18, 1894, making appropriations for sundry civil expenses, and such head-money shall be converted into the treasury, as provided in said last mentioned act. And this law shall apply to all persons between 14 and 60 years of age who cannot both read and write the English language or some other language.

The effect of it would be to restrict foreign immigration to practically the best element of people, who would make a good citizenship and who are always welcomed to the "land of the free and home of the brave."

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres........................$75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions....................$75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions........................$75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year........................$100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each........$100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs....................$75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

At the Baptist church every 3rd Sunday morning and night, Prayer meeting Tuesday nights. At the Congregational church every 1st Sunday. At the Episcopal church every 5th S. and Tuesday nights after 3rd Sundays. At the Methodist church every 2nd and 4th Sundays, morning and night, Prayer meeting on Wednesday night.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Rev. Jos. Wells of Perry county gave our town a pop call last week. He is a young man of considerable usefulness. In a few weeks the farmers will feel that they got a late start.

Dont neglect to send delegates to the farmers and merchants meeting to be held in our Court house, Saturday March 30th.

"Mullins The Shoe Man" dont mean that he is made out of leather, but simply that he can fit your foot with any sort of leather you may fancy.

There will be regular services at the Clanton Episcopal Church on the 5th Sunday morning and night. Elders Smith and Tichnor will officiate.

"Mullins The Grocer" means just what it says that is that he buys and sells all classes of groceries from home made hams and sides up to Western Bulk.

Rev J. G. Lowery preached a very able sermon last Sunday morning on the duty of churches towards their pastors. Congregations night and morning were good.

Among the visiting attorneys here last week were Messrs. Alex Troy and W. L. Martin two of Montgomery's most accomplished and useful citizens.

Mrs. Hunt and daughter, of Jemison visited Mr. J. H. Hunt and family last week.

We welcome to our town Mr. Parker and family of B man. Mrs. Parker united with the Baptist Church last Sunday.

Mr. Tipton Mullins left last Tuesday for Birmingham, where he will spend several months in the study of law.

He is one of the brightest young men of our county, thoroughly ambitious to attain a position of usefulness and has the best wishes of many friends for success.

The sudden and mysterious disappearance of Dr. Little of Verbena, is distressing in the extreme. Searching parties have been busy for four days and nights, and further than finding where his tracks led into the creek no positive clue, we hear, has been gotten.

It is almost certain that he got lost Saturday night and in trying to cross the creek got beyond his depth.

Our readers recall the pleasant and profitable meeting held here last spring by the pastor and visiting brethren at the Baptist Church. The meetings appointed for the 5th Sunday and Saturday before in this month promise to be equally as interesting. Several Christian workers will be present. The young people are requested to select and practice songs for the occasion.

Last week during the Chancery Court Mr. Jos. Downs of Coopers was examined touching his qualification for admission to the bar. Messrs. Alex Troy and W. L. Martin assisted by the Chancellor, examined him. His answers showed a very fair acquaintance with the elementary principles of law. He was highly complimented and received many congratulations on his creditable examination.

Send to the View for your Waive notes, Deeds and Mortgages.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it" he says, "And have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

There's never a rose in all the world
  But makes some green spray sweeter;
There's never a wind in all the sky,
  But makes some bird's wing fleeter;
There's never a star but brings to heaven
  Some silver radiance tender;
And never a rosy cloud but helps
  To crown the sunset splendor;
No robin but may thrill some heart,
  His dawnlight gladness voicing;
God gives us all some small, sweet way,
  To set the world rejoicing.

LILY LOQUACITY.

Farmers were entirely rained out last week, consequently they are getting badly behind and their cry for the past week has been, "When can we plant corn?"

The young people have been meeting at Mrs. Mollie Rasberry's to practice singing on fourth Sunday nights, all seem to enjoy it very much.

There are some persons in the world called christians, whose righteous indignation is terribly aroused if the young people meet together and try to improve the divine art of singing; but if the praise offering at the Sabbath school is as crude, inarticulate and unintelligible as a fishmonger's cry, they are quiescent.

It is hoped that we will have some fruit this year.

Mr. William Jones, has move to Mr. Walker's place.

There was to be an entertainment at Mr. C. Deadwilder's last Friday night but the rain prevented many from going.

Clint.

For seven years or more Mrs. W. D Louder, of Quincy, Ky, was subject to severe attacks of cramp colic. Mr. S R. Morse, a druggist of that place, recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has effected a permanent cure, saving her much suffering besides the trouble and expense of sending for a doctor, which was often necessary. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiel and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Dear Sirs—Some time ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. My whole body was a perfect sore, my hair was all gone and I was totally blind in one eye. I finally was induced to try a bottle of your great blood medicine, and, to the surprise of all my friends, in four weeks I was sound and well, my sight was restored and my hair grown out again. I am still sound and hearty, and have never felt a symptom of the disease since taking the V. V. V.

A Bank Failure.

AN INVESTIGATION DEMANDED.

A general banking business is done by the human system, because the blood deposits in its vaults whatever wealth we may gain from day to day. This wealth is laid up against "a rainy day" as a reserve fund—we're in a condition of healthy prosperity if we have laid away sufficient capital to draw upon in the hour of our greatest need. There is danger in getting thin, because it's a sign of letting down in health. To gain in blood is nearly always to gain in wholesome flesh. The odds are in favor of the germs of consumption, grip, or pneumonia, if our liver be inactive and our blood impure, or if our flesh be reduced below a healthy standard. What is required is an increase in our germ-fighting strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood and makes it wholesome, stops the waste of tissue and at the same time builds up the strength. A medicine which will rid the blood of its poisons, cleanse and invigorate the great organs of the body, vitalize the system, thrill the whole being with new energy and make permanent work of it, is surely a remedy of great value. But when we make a positive statement that 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the early stages of the disease, be CURED with the "Discovery," it seems like a bold assertion. All Dr. Pierce asks is that you make a thorough investigation and satisfy yourself of the truth of his assertion. By sending to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., you can get a free book with the names, addresses and photographs of a large number of those cured of throat, bronchial and lung diseases, as well as of skin and scrofulous affections by the "Golden Medical Discovery." They also publish a book of 160 pages, being a medical treatise on consumption, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, which will be mailed on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.

Cannons Made of Stone.

The most wonderful cannons on record are those which are described by Brydone, whose travels in Sicily and Malta won well-deserved renown towards the end of the last century. Many facts and stories he recounts that seem strangely old-world to us, though the date is little more than a hundred years ago, so grandly did the French revolution transform Europe.

Malta was full of wonders more or less droll while the Knights held it. But nothing equalled the stone guns. Everybody knows that the fortifications were cut out of the solid rock, but Brydone was right in saying that a kind of ordinance used to defend them was unknown to all the world besides.

As we understand his description, the knights left a great block of stone where they hollowed out an embrasure in the cliff, which afterwards they shaped and bored in the form of a gigantic mortar. These engines contained a whole barrel of gunpowder. That shoveled in, they plugged it with a great piece of wood, fitted exactly to the bore, as wadding, and loaded up with cannon balls, shells and other deadly materials.

About fifty of these remarkable guns commanded the spots which a hostile ship was most likely to approach. "The mouths of some are six feet wide, and they are able to throw 10,000 pounds' weight of balls or stones." The range is not stated, but the falling projectiles covered an area of the over 300 square yards.

Remuneration.

The tall, graceful girl's thoughts were with her suitor.

"I wonder," she mused, "what he takes me for?"

Her father divined her meaning and smiled.

"The sum," he observed, "is quite satisfactory—much less, I may say, than I expected he would ask. Yes."

His eyes rested upon the glowing coals and he was seemingly unaware that she was looking at him intensely.

Nine Styles in a Century.

"Though the fashion in woman's dress has changed a hundred times in a hundred years," said a young lady of observation to a writer for the New York Sun, "it has been a change of detail rather than of style, while of changes of costume, that is, of dress which can be said to mark a historical epoch, there have been but two. Similarly in man's clothing there has been but one radical change of costume during the century—that from the breeches to the trousers, with the interregnum of the pantaloons. The change in woman's attire, which was sufficiently radical to be called a change of costume, occurred in 1819-20, when the classical renaissance, with its immodesty, its single garment, and its waist under the shoulders, went out, and woman became the bodiced and petticoated creature that you know her today.

"Of styles as I understood the term, that is, changes of distinctive fashion in woman's garb, there have only been nine during the past 100 years, which I think is greatly to her credit. What are they? Well, that's rather a hard question to answer. Let me see, now:

"From 1795 to 1819 or 1820 was the era of the short waist.

"From 1820 to 1825 were the days of the middle waist, short dress, no sleeves below the shoulders, or elbows at the farthest, and natural shoulders.

"From 1825 to 1835 there was a distinctly marked spell of broad shoulders, big sleeves and bell skirts. In fact our present fashions have been considerably based on that decade.

"From 1835 to 1843 there were sloping shoulders and big full skirts.

"From 1843 to 1865 there was the reign of the crinoline, the longest rule of a fashion that ever prevailed, I guess.

"From 1865 to 1882 was a period of evolution. The train grew into being, the skirts shrank little by little, growing slimmer and slimmer, until the outlines of the figure were once more revealed.

"From 1882 to 1887 was the period of the bustle—just that.

"From 1887 to 1892 was the fashion of the paniers and princess dress.

"With 1892 came in the re-establishment of big sleeves, and I'm sure that you'll agree with me that there never was a style so fetching as that with which we make ourselves beautiful for you today. But that's a peculiarity of all fashion. That which is worn is the fashion, and that which is the fashion is so becoming that we wonder when we think how we ever could have worn anything else."

It Stopped Right There.

The young man with the blue necktie and with seven freckles on his nose, yanked the hotel register around and wrote "R. L. Nubbins and wife" on the page with a good deal of flourish. Then the clerk wheeled it back again, and taking in the inscription, he looked at the new arrival.

"I presume," he said with a sly smile, "that you want the bridal chamber?"

"I do if it don't cost any more than any other," replied Mr. Nubbins, not at all disturbed by the discovery of his secret.

"But it does cost more," said the clerk, somewhat astonished.

"What's the price?"

"Fifteen dollars a day."

"What price is the others?"

"We can give you a very good room for $3 a day each."

"Does that include feed?"

"Certainly; this hotel is run on the American plan."

"Well, give me one of them," said Mr. Nubbins.

The clerk hesitated. He didn't want to lose a customer for the bridal chamber.

"Are you sure," he said coaxingly, "that you prefer one of the other rooms?"

Mr. Nubbins was a bit nettled.

"Say, young fellow," he asked, "what do you take me for, anyhow?"

"Um—er," stammered the clerk. "Well, I took you for a newly-married man, and they always select the bridal chamber. It's so much finer, you know."

"That's all right," said Mr. Nubbins, tapping the counter with his finger. "I may be fool enough to get married, but you can bet your year's wages that it stops right there. You can give me one of them $3 rooms." And for two or three days Mr. and Mrs. Nubbins were just as bright and happy and laughing as if they had bought the entire hotel.—Detroit Free Press.

They Met by Chance.

Maiden Aunt—I hope you did not make any chance acquaintances on the train, Maud?

Miss Maud Brisk—I am sorry to say, auntie, that I sat for a little time in the lap of an Episcopal bishop and watched a United States senator stand on his head in the lunch-basket of a total stranger.

Aunt—Horrors, child! What can you mean?

Maud—It was not premeditated, I assure you, auntie; but when our train collided with another we were so upset by the shock that we were hardly responsible for what we did.—Truth.

Counsel—Well, after the prisoner gave you a blow, what happened?

Prosecutor—He gave me a third one.

Counsel—You mean a second one.

Prosecutor—No, sir. I landed him the second one!

LANE'S WARNING.

HE ISSUES AN ADDRESS TO THE COTTON GROWERS.

The Rise in Prices a Scheme to Hoodwink the Farmer.

The Hon. Hector D. Lane, president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association, has issued the following address:

"To the Cotton Growers of the South:—I wish to call the attention of the cotton growers to the strategic movement being made by cotton manipulators to delude them into the suicidal act of planting again a large acreage in cotton. That uneasiness has been felt in Liverpool for some time in reference to a decreased acreage goes without saying, and had these conditions not have existed, cotton values would have been lower than they have been; and now, as the end of the season is at hand, and the staple is substantially out of the hands of the farmer, these gentlemen, who have represented the bear element for so many months, while cotton was moving in large volumes, now resort to this ruse of running values up, simply as a device to induce the farmer to plant more cotton than possibly he intended.

"I warn the farmers of the south that this rise in the last few days is fictitious, is the product of a conspiracy of men to systematically rob the producer of his legitimate gains. It is a delusion and a snare to catch the unsuspecting farmer, to inveigle him into the toils of another three million surplus so that they can bear down values lower than last season with an increased surplusage on hand. Let the people beware! It is a bait to catch those who will bite. There is no legitimate reason shown for this rise in cotton values. The production has exceeded the most sanguine expectations. Therefore, where is the legitimate cause for this rise, if cotton has been selling at legitimate figures? It is simply the same old 'spider and fly' game, a recurrence of the farmer and the 'bunco steerer,' and I am constrained to exclaim, 'How long, Oh, Lord, how long. Is it to be ever thus, that our people are to be waylaid and robbed of their meagre substance?

"I deny the proposition and defy the man who made it, that any man can produce cotton legitimately for 5 cents with any reasonable profit; and I state advisedly and emphatically that today the southern cotton grower—I mean literally the man who digs the ground, the unfortunate who 'pulls the bell cord over the mortgaged mule'—is not realizing twelve cents a day for his labor the year round. And what is to be the fate of this man if cotton goes down one and a half cents this fall, which is not at all improbable, when we recognize the conditions that confront us and take into consideration the fact that we had a most phenomenal season for picking our crop this last season, and its classification was higher than ever known, hardly any grading lower than low middling.

"Still it averaged under five cents, and though we may make a smaller crop the ensuing season of 1895-96 if we have a rainy or unpropitious gathering season cotton in all probability, will grade lower and mayhap we will have a recurrence of the season of 1881, when we had a superabundance of the poorer qualities. We could then expect the same relative difference in the grades, which must, of course, result in considerably reduced returns from the whole crop.

"I invoke the most earnest attention of cotton growers to this nefarious scheme, and address you this letter as a caveat, that you may not be deluded by this 'wolf in sheep's clothing,' or, in other words, this bear in bull clothing."

HAYWARD SENTENCED TO HANG

The Murderer of Catherine Ging has Three Months More to Live.

Harry T. Hayward, convicted of the murder of Catherine Ging, has three months to live. Sentence was passed on him by Judge Seagrave Smith at Minneapolis, Monday after a motion for an arrest of sentence by Mr. Erwin had been denied.

Judge Smith agreed to examine the grounds urged for a new trial on March 28th and then passed sentence. He said he had no doubt whatever that the verdict was a just and righteous one, and while he did not believe in capital punishment, it was his painful duty to pass sentence in accordance with the law. "The sentence of this court," he continued, "is that you be taken to the Hennepin county jail and there confined until, after a period of three months, a time be fixed by the governor of this state, you be taken to the place of execution and hanged by the neck until you are dead, dead; dead." Harry listened calmly and sat down without the slightest show of feeling.

MINERS RESUME WORK.

Differences Between Coal Operators and Their Men Amicably Settled.

After being in session all night, at Clarksburg, W. Va., the managers of the Pinnickinnick, Great Falls and Farnum mines and their employes arrived at a settlement and six hundred men have returned to work. The operators granted the rate of thirty-five cents per ton, which is the price asked by the men for machine work. Other differences were compromised. The demand for coal has greatly increased of late.

At Wheeling, the Cleveland and Pittsburg Coal Co., operating the Tiltonville mines, announced that their mines would resume operations in full as soon as they can be gotten in shape. They have been idle for the past four months and for a month past the miners have been living on charity.

Quiet Reigns.

The levee, the scene of Tuesday's rioting, presented a peaceful aspect Wednesday morning. Where the crowds of excited working men, armed with all kinds of weapons, patrolled the river front, nothing is to be seen but squads of policemen discussing the affair and its probable outcome.

VICTORY FOR SLUGGERS.

A Judge Decides That Prize Fighting is a Legitimate Business.

At New Orleans Tuesday morning Judge Righter handed down the following decision in the case of the state vs. Olympic Club:

"I am called upon to interpret and enforce act No. 25, of the statutes of 1890. The title of the act reads: 'An act defining the crime of prize fighting and to provide for the punishment thereof in and out of the state of Louisiana.' The act embraces two sections and a proviso, neither of the sections defining the crime of prize fighting, nor does the proviso tell us what a glove contest is. The former (not defined) is forbidden and punished; the latter, under certain conditions, permitted and by implication encouraged.

"Having, under instructions from the supreme court, excluded all expert testimony as to the distinction between these differently designated methods of pugilism, and referring only to the facts proved in the one case and in the other I find that a prize fight is a glove contest without gloves, and that a glove contest is a prize fight with gloves. In each case, there is a duel with fists, and there is a prize. In each case, there is the same danger to limb and life, the same maiming and shedding of blood, the same brutality.

"I conclude, therefore, that the act entitled, 'An act defining the crime of prize fighting and to provide for the punishment thereof, in and out of the state of Louisiana,' is a piece of legislative fraud and mendacity. It neither defines the crime of prize fighting, nor does it provide any penalty for the same, which cannot be evaded by the mockery of covering with the gloves the hand of the gladiators. That a glove contest is brutal and dangerous as a prize fight was clearly settled in the case of Lavigne vs. Andy Bowen.

"On the whole, I find that a prize fight in Louisiana is a glove contest, and that a glove contest is a prize fight. It logically follows, that, there being no prohibition of glove contests in this state, the same being legalized and encouraged under certain conditions, which the prize fighter willingly accepts, prize fighting is now, what it never was before the enactment of statute No. 25, of 1890, a legitimate business and domestic industry, under the special protection of the law, while, before the passage of that statute, it would constitute the crime of assault and battery, and in some cases of manslaughter.

"Judgment for the Olympic Club."

THE STRIKERS CONFIDENT.

They Consider Their Fight for Union Rates Practically Won.

The strike of the miners of the Pittsburg, Pa., district is but one week old and there are nearly two-thirds of the miners of the district at work at union rates—69 cents per ton. The strikers consider the fight practically won, but they may yet bump up against some adverse circumstances in the person of obstinate railroad operators.

The river operators have conceded the demands of the miners and there has been a general resumption of work at all the river mines. All the river crafts are being loaded, and as long as this rush continues there will be work not only for the full number of river miners, but also for a large number of extra men from the railroad mines.

On the other hand, the railroad operators refuse to pay more than 55 cents per ton, and the majority of their mines are idle. They claim that they are compelled to refuse orders because they cannot fill them at prices quoted by competitors.

LADIES MANGED IT.

Issue of The Knoxville Tribune Controlled by Women.

Thursday morning's issue of The Knoxville Tribune was edited, managed and controlled in toto by the lady managers of the Tennessee centennial, resident at Knoxville. The edition consisted of thirty-six pages; about 20,000 complete papers being the number required to fill the orders received by the ladies. One thousand were sold to the centennial management at Nashville.

The first half dozen papers were auctioned off at fancy figures in the corridor of the Imperial hotel. This edition is probably the handsomest and most liberally patronized paper yet printed in the city. The proceeds, which are quite large, will be devoted to preparing a worthy exhibit of Knoxville and East Tennessee at the state centennial in 1896, but will be first used at the exposition at Atlanta this fall.

A. P. A. CONVENTION.

Delegates to the Number of One Hundred and Fifty Meet at Saginaw.

The American Protective Association state convention met at Saginaw, Mich., Tuesday morning, over 150 delegates being present. Professor Walter Sims, who last week stated that the organization had gone to pieces, was not visible and the delegates dubbed him a "mugwump."

President Beatty said that he had no doubt that the first steps would be taken toward organizing a national party. He figures that the American Protective Association strength would go in bulk to the new party, and would control a majority of the electoral votes.

Women Voting in Ohio.

A phenomenal vote was cast at the republican primaries at Cleveland, O., the total reaching 23,332. Many women took advantage of their recently acquired franchise and attended the primaries. One woman, Mrs. Catherine H. T. Avery, was nominated for the school board.

The North Sea Canal.

A most interesting and important event will be the opening of the Baltic and North Sea Canal, on June 20, by Emperor William in the presence of the highest dignitaries of Germany and representatives of other countries. The principal nations will also be represented by men-of-war. The Hamburg-American line will join in the naval parade with two of their twin screw express steamers, the Augusta Victoria and the Normannia. The canal, which was begun early in 1891 by the German emperor, starts at Haltenan, on the north side of Kiel Bay, and joins the Elbe at Brunsbuttel, below Hamburg, fifteen miles above the river's mouth. It is 61 miles long, 200 feet wide at the surface, and 85 feet at bottom, the depth being 28 feet. The cost is estimated at $40,000,000.

It is expected that about 18,000 ships will make use of the canal annually. The saving of time will be considerable, but more important than the saving in time is the avoidance of danger, the passage through the sound between the Scandinavian Peninsula and Jutland being considered one of the most dangerous in Europe. Statistics show that about 200 vessels founder every year on these coasts. The strategic value of the canal to Germany will also be considerable.—New York Herald.

INTERESTING FACTS.

An ingenious Scotchman has devised a thread-spinning apparatus that is operated by two trained mice. In driving the little mill with their paws the animals daily perform work equivalent to traveling ten and one-half miles.

When a prince of the Austrian royal family dies his horses follow the funeral covered with a black cloth and lame in one hoof. The lameness is produced by driving a nail through the horseshoe. This is the sign of the deepest possible mourning.

In London alone there are upwards of 174 pianoforte factories. Over 1,300 shops and factories in the metropolis are devoted to the supplying of musical goods of all sorts. Throughout the provinces there are 3,000 musical establishments of various kinds.

The Arizona Indians have a peculiar and effective way of branding animals. The brand is made of steel with a knife edge. It is fixed on the head of an arrow and shot with a bow at the animal to be branded, with such force that it cuts the mark in the hide.

The keys that are used the most for musical composition are C major, G major, containing one sharp, and F major, containing one flat, the reason being that these keys are easier to play on keyed instruments, such as piano or organ, and because keys with few sharps or flats are better adapted for instruments in an orchestra.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials free. Address

Last year we commenced an elaborate plan of advertising, but before we were half through, OUR ADVERTISEMENTS DISAPPEARED. Why? Because WE WERE OVERWHELMED WITH ORDERS. There was but one thing to do: withdraw the advertising and devote every energy to filling the orders with which we were flooded. This we did, and handled with reasonable promptness a most unprecedented year's business.

WITH ENLARGED FACTORIES, INCREASED FACILITIES, AND TWENTY BRANCH HOUSES FROM WHICH TO DISTRIBUTE OUR GOODS, WE CAN NOW CARE FOR ALL WHO COME. Last year we could not reduce prices because we were compelled in some way to limit the demand for Aermotor goods. We would have been satisfied with lower prices, but why create a demand which we could not supply? We have made the heaviest purchases of steel and material bought in America this year, and at unprecedented prices, and have made terms to dealers which enable them to make unprecedented prices.

In quality, character, variety, finish, and accessibility to full stock of goods and repairs, we are without competitors. In our plan of advertising last year, we proposed to furnish a feed cutter under certain conditions for $15. For reasons stated above we did not complete the advertising, and the feed cutter was not put out. We now propose to make amends in the following manner: We will announce in this paper our NEW ALL-STEEL VERY SUPERIOR FEED CUTTER, WORTH cash with order, f. o. b. Chicago. Only one to one person, he to furnish addresses of ten neighbors who ought to have something in our line. Cut, description and full information regarding it will appear soon.

We especially desire to [illegible] question you [illegible] [illegible] Because of the prodigious output of our factories we are enabled to have special tools for each piece, and thus reduce the hand labor on it to merely picking up the material and laying it down again. [illegible] [illegible] Aermotor [illegible] [illegible] THEIR TOWERS OF US THIS YEAR. THEY DO IT BECAUSE WE MAKE THE ONLY ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE AND SAFE TOWER; BECAUSE THEY CAN BUY OF US CHEAPER THAN THEY CAN BUILD; BECAUSE WE ALONE ARE PREPARED TO GALVANIZE EVERYTHING AFTER IT IS COMPLETED, AND COMPLETE EVERYTHING EXACTLY RIGHT.

These concerns are wise, for, even though they may not match the best of wheels, the wheel will have the best of support. Send to us your name and address, and those of your neighbors who may need something in our line, and thereby do them a good turn. The Aermotor Co. is one of the most successful business enterprises which has been launched in recent times. In succeeding advertisements will be discussed and made clear the lines on which that success has been worked out. It was done by a farmer's boy. SIXTY MINERS DEAD

FEARFUL EXPLOSION IN A WYOMING COAL MINE.

Nearly all of the Killed Were Married Men and Had Families.

An explosion occurred at 6 o'clock p. m. Wednesday in the Rocky Mountain Coal and Iron company's mine, No. 5, at Red Canyon, Wyoming. Up to noon Thursday fifty-nine deaths were known to have resulted. Six men were killed on the outside by flying timbers, and five bodies have so far been brought out of the mine.

A large force of men is now at work to recover the bodies of forty-seven men known to have been in the mine at the time of the explosion.

There are fifty widows and fully 250 orphan children in the camp as the result of the disaster. There is no fire in the mine and and the work or recovering the dead bodies is proceeding as rapidly as possible.

The interior of the mine is badly wrecked, caved in in many places and full of foul air. All the buildings at the mouth of the mine were wrecked. The entrance to the mine is by vertical passage into the side of a hill, not a perpendicular shaft, and the workings are very extensive. No explanation of the disaster has as yet been discovered.

Scenes at the Mine.

The scene about the mine was heartrending. The air was filled with the agonizing screams of 50 widows and 250 orphans as they gathered about and saw the distorted features and mangled remains of fathers or husbands, sons or brothers, or realized at last that there was no hope to see their loved ones rescued alive from the mine's cruel depths. Help and succor have been tendered from all sources.

The mules that were in the mine were kiled, as were the men, evidently by the force of the concussion and were removed as fast as they could be reached.

The explosion blew out or loosened all the timbering and supports and cracked and shattered the walls and roof of the interior of the mine, so that the search for the dead is attended with great peril. The work of recovering the dead becomes more difficult as the working parties advance toward the seventh level, where it is thought the thirty-eight men who have not been found were gathered to await the coming of the last man tip of the day, which was to take them to the surface.

A few lives were saved because of the time of the explosion. The miners quit work at 6 o'clock, and it is customary for them to be near the entrance and come out just as the whistle blows. A number had come out and some had just left the entrance to the mine slope away from the working tunnel when the explosion occurred, thus escaping death.

Sixty men perished in the disaster, thirty-eight of whom are still in the mine. About thirty of the dead belonged to the Ancient Order of United Workmen and were insured for $2,000 each.

SIOUX CITY SUFFERS.

Property to the Value of $400,000 Goes Up in Smoke.

The greatest fire in the history of Sioux City, Ia., occurred Thursday morning, destroying property to the value of $400,000. It started in a pile of rubbish on the platform of the Western Transfer and Implement Company's warehouse, and in an hour the great iron building, four stories high and covering a full quarter block of ground, with over $200,000 worth of implements and carriages, was a heap of ruins. The fire spread to the plant of the Sioux City Linseed Oil Company, and soon the big elevator, with 100,000 bushels of flax in it, was destroyed.

WILL WALK BACK.

Negro Colonists in Mexico Will Return to Their Old Homes.

The colony of one thousand negroes recently established at Mapima, Mexico, is rapidly going to pieces. The negroes are leaving for their old homes in Georgia and Alabama in squads embracing men, women and children, who will attempt to walk back the entire distance. They are all dissatisfied, claiming that they were lured into making the change by promises which have not been fulfilled.

MUST PAY BACK TAXES.

The Supreme Court of Florida Decides Railroad Cases.

In the supreme court, Tallahassee, Fla., Tuesday, Mr. Justice Liddon, for the court, handed down a decision against the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad and in favor of the state for back taxes for the years of 1879, 1880 and 1881, amounting to $96,000. The lines of the road from Jacksonville to Chattahoochee, including the St. Marks and Monticello branches, from Fernandina to Cedar Keys and from Waldo to Ocala, are held liable to sale for these taxes for the years mentioned. From Ocala to Wildwood is held liable for the taxes of 1881. From Wildwood to Plant City and Tampa is held to be exempt. This suit was decided in favor of the railroad December 1, 1893, by Circuit Judge John F. White, at Live Oak, so far as these particular back taxes were concerned. Colonel John A. Henderson represented the railroad company and Attorney General Lamar appeared for the state. The latter appealed from Judge White's decision to the June term last year of the supreme court. It is expected that Colonel Henderson will appeal to the United States supreme court. Not only the state, but all counties through which the road runs, are helped by the decision unless it should be reversed by the higher courts.

GOVERNOR FOSTER'S POSITION.

He Alone Can Secure a Settlement of the Labor Troubles.

The general impression is that there is only one man in the city of New Orleans or state who can secure a settlement of the existing labor troubles, and nearly every one is wondering why his excellency has not made an effort in that direction.

Governor Foster's action in the strike in 1892 is recalled. He was accorded with having harmoniously brought that affair readily to a conclusion, which was in time to compass great public weal. Now it is believed that the governor could be equally as effective in the present emergency. But from an interview had with Governor Foster, it is gathered that he was not wholly responsible for arranging matters before. Also, he does not occupy the same relative position now as he did then. Before he was in touch with the leaders of both sides; now he is not approached or communicated with by either party to the dispute.

Therefore the position is recognized as a very peculiar one, and the chief executive can do nothing to render the public assistance beyond continuing to sustain armed peace on the levee front.

KANSAS CITY BANK FAILURE.

The National Goes to the Wall as a Result of the Panic of '93.

The National Bank of Kansas City failed to open its doors Monday morning. The direct cause of the failure was the unfavorable statement of the bank's affairs given out March 5th.

In the panic of 1893, the bank suspended, but through an arrangement between depositors and stockholders, it was permitted to resume business. The steady withdrawal of deposits since that time has placed the bank in an embarassing position and necessitated another suspension. The statement given out is not complete. It shows assets of $1,800,000; liabilities, $1,050,000.

THE HOUKS TO TESTIFY.

Summoned Before the Tennessee Penitentiary Committee.

A Nashville special says: The penitentiary committee has summoned ex-Congressman John C. Houk and his brother, Elmer Houk, of Nashville, and will take their statement as to the story that Elmer Houk said John was to receive $10,000 from Fulcher & Co. for delaying Commissioner Young the day the bids were to have been opened, the object being to give time for opening the bids and changing that of Fulcher & Co., so that they might secure the contract for the new penitentiary. The bids were submitted in printed envelopes, and no private mark or seal was allowed.

Elevator and Warehouse Burned.

The elevator and general warehouse of Hugh Rogers & Co., at St. Louis, has been burned to the ground. The buildings contained 240,000 bushels of wheat and a large amount of salt, hay and cotton. Nothing was saved. The loss is $200,000—fully insured.

HONORING CONFEDERATE DEAD

A Monument in Chicago to be Dedicated in May.

General J. C. Underwood, ex-lieutenant governor of Kentucky, and one of the most prominent southern men, is the author and executor of the movement to build over the 6,000 dead confederate soldiers who sleep in Oakwood park, Chicago, a handsome monument commemorating their brave deeds and heroic fortitude.

He has succeeded in this magnificent work, the monument has been completed—the only confederate monument north of the Mason and Dixon line—has been recognized by the United States government and will be unveiled with imposing ceremonies on May 30th.

The dedication of this monument, the ceremonies attending which will be participated in by prominent generals of both armies, will be a great event in American history. It will make a great step toward cementing the division between the sections and will annihilate much of the bitterness that remains. It will be an occasion that will attract the people all over the country, and no one can fail to appreciate its significance.

The monument is a handsome affair. The pedestal is of Georgia marble and the statue is of fine bronze. It is forty feet high from the base to the top of the statue. Surrounding the monument will be four cannons, appropriated by the United States government by special act of congress, approved January 25, 1895. The bill making this appropriation was pushed through the senate by the efforts of Senator John B. Gordon. The senators recognized his good purpose in the matter and lent him their willing assistance. The bill passed the house during the last session without a dissenting voice.

This act of the government constitutes the first recognition ever shown the confederacy by the government, and for that reason is very significant.

The dedication speech will be made by General Wade Hampton. The southern generals who will be present are: General Fitzhugh Lee, General John B. Gordon, General W. W. Cabell, Harry Heth, E. C. Walthall, L. L. Lomax, Marcus J. Wright, M. V. Butler, Clement A. Evans, F. C. Armstrong, Eppa Hunton, William H. Payne and others. From the federal side are expected General Schofield, General Flagler, General Lawler and General Palmer. The Grand Army posts will participate in the exercises and hundreds of confederates will be present. The Grand Army men have been for two years assisting in decorating the graves of the southern soldiers.

General Underwood is very enthusiastic over the outlook for a great event on May 30th. He expects many southerners to be present. He also expects every southern city of size to send a carload of flowers.

THE ALLIANCA OUTRAGE.

The Commander Who Fired Upon the Vessel Found.

Advices from Havana state that the commander of the Spanish cruiser Conde de Venadito reports that on March 8th, while cruising off the eastern coast of the island, he sighted a steamer heading for Maysi point. The steamer's course was to the northeast. The cruiser hoisted a flag and the steamer replied by raising an English flag. The cruiser signaled the steamer to stop, but without effect. As the steamer proceeded at full speed the cruiser first fired two blank shots and then two solid shots.

The commander says he did not desire to hit the steamer, but merely to cause her to heave to. He asserts that the steamer was but one and a half miles off the Cuban coast when the firing occurred. The authorities at Havana have ordered that a full inquiry be made into the commander's acts.

Judging from Captain Crossman's story, nobody can doubt that the steamer in question was the Allianca which was fired on by a Spanish cruiser on March 8th.

Curtailing the Force.

On the 3d day of March, 1893, congress created a joint commission to reorganize the accounting system and business methods in the executive departments. The commission consisted of Representatives Dockery, of Missouri; Richardson, of Tennessee, and Dingley, of Maine, and Senators Cockrell, of Missouri; Jones, of Arkansas, and Cullom, of Illinois.

TO AFRIC'S SHORES

TWO HUNDRED NEGRO EMIGRANTS SAIL FROM SAVANNAH.

With Singing and Shouting They Bid Adieu to America.

The steamship Horsa, with two hundred Liberian emigrants, sailed from Savannah Tuesday afternoon. Five thousand negroes gathered on the wharves and cheered the vessel as it passed down the river. Knots of negroes began gathering in the vicinity of the dock where the steamer was lying early in the morning. The number kept increasing and at noon several thousand were packed in the streets and lanes and covered the roofs of buildings for several blocks. The effort by Rev. C. S. Smith, secretary of the Sunday School Union of the African Methodist church, who has been endeavoring to prevent the clearance of the vessel on the ground that she was not properly equipped, failed to accomplish anything.

The accommodations of the Horsa complied fully with the law and the vessel passed a thorough inspection by the customs officials.

Shortly after noon the gates to the wharf where the emigrants were waiting were opened and the negroes went aboard.

It was a curious procession, ranging in age from the baby in arms to the old man tottering on the verge of the grave. The women came first and made strange contrasts. One with a checked apron and a sunbonnet was followed by a jauntily-dressed girl of more tender years, with gaudy plumed hat and bright ribbons. Some carried valises, others buckets, others tins full of small articles. After the women came the men, some with shotguns, rifles, and others with assorted luggage. All were sent into the stern of the vessel and grouped together in order that a picture of the vessel might be taken. The count showed 202, of which 38 were children and 7 infants. The clearance papers put the number at 197.

Over four hundred trunks and boxes were taken as baggage. In the boxes are agricultural implements, firearms, ammunition, household utensils and supplies, clothing, etc. The party will probably be the best equipped that has ever left America for the dark continent. Since their arrival in Savannah they have spent probably $1,500 to $2,000 laying in stores. The majority of the negroes appear to be still quite well supplied with money. There is probably not a man in the party but who has sufficient to provide subsistence for some time after landing in Liberia. Supplied as they are, there is no danger of this party starving to death or otherwise suffering if there is any possibility of making a living at all in the land to which they are going.

When the vessel's lines were cast off there was a cheer from the crowd on the wharves and the emigrants sang their parting song: "I'm Going Home to Afric's Shores." The refrain was taken up by those on the shore. The singing was kept up until the vessel passed the city, the crowd following along the wharves shouting goodbyes.

From the negroes gathered on the crowded deck of the steamship came back shouts from men and women, while the colorbearer of the party, a sturdy negro of small dimensions, violently waved a large American flag that will be displayed as the Horsa enters the harbor of Monrovia. The Horsa expects to reach Monrovia about April 1st, and after landing the emigrants will endeavor to secure a return cargo. The party is accompanied by E. B. Cottingham, secretary of the International Migration Society; R. C. Truesdal and J. C. Lanchester, and W. M. Simpson, agent of the charterers. The missionary cause is represented by four colored ministers, who go with funds to build a church in Monrovia.

Peace Negotiations May Fail.

Advices from Yokohama, Japan, are to the effect that the negotiations for peace between China and Japan will not be successful. The army is the dominant power in Japan and the military men are bent upon continuing the campaign. Fresh troops are being hurried forward. In the house of representatives, notice has been given of a motion declaring that the time for peace negotiations has not arrived.

THE CUBAN MUDDLE.

The Insurgents Claim a Victory Over Government Troops.

The steamship Olivette arrived at Port Tampa, Fla., Sunday afternoon and brought news of a battle between the insurgents and the government troops in which the latter were compelled to retreat.

The leading spirit in the movement residing in Havana received a letter from General Maso, in which letter he stated that he, with 2,000 troops, had attacked a Spanish regiment of 1,500 men, under command of Colonel Santo Sildes, who were on the way to Mansanilla to Bayamo. The engagement lasted two hours, and the government troops were compelled to retreat into the town of Bayamo, with a loss of 300 men, killed and wounded. The insurgent loss is reported to have been less than seventy killed and wounded.

The troops, said General Maso in his letter, will not follow up their advantage, prefering to remain quietly under arms until after the crops are harvested in June, when a more general uprising is anticipated.

A semi-official report current in Havana regarding the firing on the Allianca by a Spanish war vessel is to the effect that a steam launch was seen to leave the Allianca's side before the warship signaled her to heave to. Havana papers are silent upon the subject.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all over the south, for the past week, show that the condition of textile manufacturing in all its branches is very encouraging. A good many mills are filled with orders for some months to come, and renewals of plants, and extablishment of new ones are reported from many sections. In iron manufacturing, more activity is manifested, but prices are still very low. Coal mining operators are working on full time and report a steady demand. Southern lumber manufacturers are looking forward to an active spring business, with finer prices than have been known during the past year.

Among the important new industries established or incorporated during the week are a sugar refinery at New Orleans, La., costing $350,000; agricultural implement works at Brenham, Tex., with $100,000 capital; a $100,000 construction company at Danville, Va.; an $80,000 electrical plant at Ocean View, Va.; one to cost $60,000 at Lynchburg, Va., and a $70,000 distillery at Louisville, Ky. A manufacturing company with $50,000 has been chartered at Austin, Tex., a match factory capitalized at $35,000 at Vicksburg, Miss.; a $30,000 irrigation and land company at Tulia, Tex., and a $25,000 woodenware factory at Savannah, Ga.

There is also reported brick works at Tuskegee, Ala., Charlotte, N. C., and San Antonio, Tex.; cotton mills at Carrolton and Waynesboro, Ga., Red Springs and Rutherfordton, N. C., Orangeburg, S. C., and Orange, Tex.; a woolen mill at Jackson, Miss., and a knitting mill at Tuscaloosa, Ala. Electrical plants will be built at Bowling Green, Ky., and Jackson, Tenn.; a large flouring mill at Florence, Ala.; an ice factory at Maysville, Ky., and reduction works, Charlotte, N. C. A tobacco factory will be established at Blue Ridge, Ga., and wood working plants at Guntersville, Ala., Athens and Thomaston, Ga., Hopkinsville, Ky., Pugh and Vicksburg, Miss., Aberdeen, N. C., Pulaski, Tenn., and Bedford City, Va.

The enlargements for the week include a brewery at San Antonio, Tex., an electrical plant at Shelbyville, Tenn., and cotton mills at Mammoth Springs, Ark., Harmony Grove, Ga. and Dallas, Graham, Raleigh and Reidsville, N. C.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

PUBLIC EXCITEMENT IN MADRID

On Account of Lack of News from the Steamship Reina Regente.

The London Times correspondent at Madrid says the uncertainty of the fate of the Reina Regente has caused great public excitement there. The government is accused of keeping back news of the ship and of having ordered the detention, by censors, of all telegrams giving information of her. It is more likely, however, that the government is as badly off for definite news of the missing ship as is the public. The optimistic portion of the public are of the opinion that the cruiser has been driven into the Atlantic by storm and is either disabled or short of coal.

TO BREAK THE STRIKE.

The Board of Conciliation and Walking Delegates Confer.

The New York council of conciliation and meditation held a conference with a committee from the board of walking delegates at the home of Bishop Potter. Its object was to devise means for ending the building trades' strike. W. J. O'Brien, who is chairman of the board of walking delegates, refused to divulge what had taken place at the conference, further than to say that the indications were favorable for a speedy settlement.

A man of excessive wit is lost except in the company of fools. He must always have a butt for the shaft of his sarcasm.

FAIR'S LATEST WILL.

His Children are Overjoyed at Its Discovery.

When the Fair will matter came up before Judge Slack at San Francisco Monday morning, Reuben H. Lloyd, of counsel for the children, presented a holographic will of the dead ex-senator dated three days later than the one originally filed for probate and which has been stolen. He stated to the court that Fair had given the will into the custody of a highly respected lady, who had just become cognizant of the fact that the document was dated later than the missing one.

As soon as the will was put on record, the attorneys on both sides agreed to have the matter of the probate of the document set for April 2d. The attorneys for the executors asked that their petitition for the probate of the certified copy of the stolen will be set for the same date. The understanding is that at that time the executors of the stolen document will proceed to attack the authenticity of the new one.

RIOTERS INDICTED.

Twenty-Eight of Them Held for Murder by the Grand Jury.

The members of the New Orleans grand jury have presented fifteen indictments to the court, charging twenty-eight men with murder committed during the levee troubles. All have been in custody but were released from the recorder's court on bond. All the indictments contain the clause:

"And other persons whose names are as yet unknown to the grand jurors aforesaid, being workmen and laborers in the art, mystery and manual occupation of rolling, placing and stowing compressed cotton on board of vessels at the port of New Orleans."

A STRIKE ENDED.

Electrical Contractors' Association Masters of the Situation.

The strike of the electrical workers, which has been holding in New York city for some weeks, has come to an end. The result is complete victory for the electrical contractors association, and an overwhelming defeat for the board of walking delegates of the various trades unions which have been conducting it. The settlement was brought about through the mediation and conciliation, of which Bishop Potter is the head. A committee of the mason builders were also active in the settling of the difficulties.

THERE WERE NO BIDS.

For the Georgia Southern Road When It Was Put Up.

The Georgia Southern and Florida railroad was again put up at auction at Macon, Ga., Tuesday. The upset price fixed by the court was $3,750,000. Commissioner Hardeman tried to get a bid, but no one offered to buy it.

The road will be put up again on the first Tuesday in April, and on that occasion the upset price will be $3,000,000.

It is thought a party of Macon capitalists will organize and buy the road at the next sale.

BIG BLAZE AT CLEVELAND.

Buildings of The World and the United Press Destroyed.

The newspaper building occupied by The World, the A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company and the office of the United Press at Cleveland, O., was completely destroyed by fire Sunday evening. The total loss is about $150,000. The World sustains a loss of about $75,000, the property being partly insured. The A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company's loss is about $25,000, and the building was valued at about $50,000.

Won't Recognize the Advance.

The whisky dealers of Cincinnati have signed an agreement refusing to recognize the advance in spirits ordered by the trust, and will continue to quote at $1.25. This action is taken as evidence that the dealers in the city will not follow the future orders of the receiver.

A Wilmington Firm Fails.

Davis & Zoeller, dealers in dry goods, notions, carpets, etc., at Wilmington, N. C., have assigned. Preferences about $6,200, of which $6,000 to local creditors.

"Orator" was a term, in ancient times, applied only to men of probity. How things have changed with modern progress.

Work and Health.

Much has been said about the evil effects of overwork and the necessity for proper periods of rest. The point has not been too strongly urged; but it must be remembered at the same time, that the best health is enjoyed only by hard workers.

The athlete's arm attains its size by virtue of the greater quantity of nourishing blood attracted to it by the severe exercise which it undergoes. The mental athlete accomplishes his extraordinary amount of brain work only after years of mental training and effort.

Rarely do the parts thus exercised fail. The neglected functions and organs are more often the cause of the "breakdown."

Work is essential to health. Health in its perfection is found only where both brain and body are active, and it is possible that the keenest health has been enjoyed by the hardest workers in the fields of both mental and physical labor.

Sir Walter Scott, whose work stands as a monument to his industry as well as to his genius, was, we are told, most indefatigable in his pursuit of physical exercises of all kinds, in many of which he excelled, and in which he could tire most men as easily as he could excel them in feats requiring long-sustained mental effort. Much the same thing is told of Goethe.

These men fulfilled to the utmost the advice of the adage: "Work while you work, and play while you play."

Those whose enjoyment of life is largest, and whose accomplishment of work is greatest for the longest time, are those who go into their work and play in a whole-hearted fashion, or as it is often expressed, "for all they are worth." For such, health is supplied in greatest measure.

The best health is not to be found in the indulgence of "loafing," which is neither rest nor work; it is generated rather by the alternate exercise of brain and muscle. By this means both are flushed with the fluid which gives health and life to all the tissues,—the blood.—Youth's Companion.

Electricity for the Face.

"Electricity," says Professor Shoemaker, in the Medical News, "is peculiarly qualified to improve the nutrition and promote the functions of the skin, because it acts directly upon the part affected, and also indirectly through the system at large.

"The topical application of electricity stimulates the capillary circulation through the integument and overcomes any engorgement that may exist. It awakens the activity of the absorbent vessels, and enables them to remove morbid deposits.

"It acts favorably upon the nerve fibres and their peripheral terminations, and exerts a beneficial inbuence upon the cells. By its tonic influence upon the heart, blood vessels and general circulation, electricity tends to maintain the normal type of nutrition in the skin as well as in other tissues."

In some cases the electrode is a sponge or roller, and in others a fine needle, which is passed through the offending blemish, while sometimes sparks are applied directly to the affected region.—New York World.

An Incentive.

Mrs. Robbins—John, I don't think I will get up to day. I feel too weak to move.

Robbins—I'm awfully sorry, dear. By the way some one has taken the house across the street, and is going to move in this morning.

Mrs. Robbins—John, I guess I will get up after all.

The Party is Not to Blame.

Greenville Advocate.

There are many who call themselves Democrats and who have heretofore voted with the party who are now cursing the old party because Congress did nothing for the relief of the people. The truth is the party is not to blame. Its principles and platform are all right, embody just what the masses want. The mistake was made in the nomination and election of the wrong men for members. Too many of them were either incompetent or maliciously perverse, and clogged any remedial legislation

The majority of these men will remain at home when Congress convenes and new men of different order and faith will take their places. Whether they have the manhood and moral courage to withstand the monopolist tempter remains to be seen.

Another election will take place next year. The people ought to look carefully into the political history of any man who may be offered for election, and allow no man to receive their suffrage unless he is capable, honest and in every way worthy of their support. Elect honest men, men who will devote their time to the interest of their constituents, and who can return with clean hands and the welcome plaudits of the people. Then there will be no cause for blaming the Democratic party.

"Perhaps you would not think so but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Syrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. New York is one of the healthiest places on the Atlantic Coast and yet there are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is when you have one get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. A WARNING.

Athens, Ala., March 14.—H. D. Lane, of the American Cotton Grower's Protective Association, has issued the following address:

To the Cotton-Growers of the South

I wish to call the attention of the cotton-growers to the strategic movement being made by cotton manipulators to delude them into suicidal act of of planting again a large acreage in cotton.

That uneasiness has been felt in Liverpool for some time in reference to a decreased acreage, goes without saying and had this menace not existed, cotton values would have been even lower than they have been and now as the end of the season is at hand and the staple is substantially out of the hands of the farmer, these gentlemen who have represented the "bear" element for many months while cotton was moving in large volumes, now resort to this ruse of running values up—simply as a device to induce the farmers to plant more cotton than possibly they intended.

I warn the farmers of the South that this rise in the last few days is fictitious—is the product of a conspiracy of men to systematically rob the producer of his legitimate gains. It is a "delusion and a snare" to catch the unsuspecting cotton grower, inveigle him into the toils of another three million surplus, so that they can bear down values lower than last season with an increased surplusage on hand.

Let the people beware—it is a bait to catch those that will bite.

There is no legitimate reason shown for this rise in cotton values.

The production has exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Russia has placed a virtually prohibitive duty on American cotton so we can no longer expect to sell her five hundred thousand bales (500,000.)

There can be no change made by next season in the financial laws of the nation, therefore where is the legitimate cause for this rise if cotton has been selling at legitimate figures?

It is simply the same old spider and fly game, a recurrence of the Farmer and the "Bunco Steerer" and I am constrained to exclaim 'How long, Oh, Lord, now long,' is it to be ever, thus that our people are to be waylaid and robbed of their meagre substance?

I deny the proposition and defy him who makes it, that any man produce cotton legitimately for five cents, with any reasonable profit and I state advisedly and emphatically, that to-day the Southern cotton grower—I mean literally the man who digs the ground—the unfortunate who "pulls the bell cord over the mortgaged mule" is not realizing twelve cents a day for his labor the year round, and what is to be fate of this man if cotton goes down one, or one and a half cents this fall, which is not at all improbable, when we recognize the conditions that confront us, and take into consideration the fact that we had a most phenomenal season for picking our crop this last season and its classification was higher than ever known—hardly any grading less than low middling. Still it averaged under five cents and though we may make a smaller crop the ensuing season of 1895 6 if we have rainy or unpropitious gathering season, cotton in all probability will grade lower and mayhap we will have a recurrence of the season of 1891, when we had a superabundance of the poorer qualities, we could then expect the same relative difference in the grades, which would of course result in considerably reduced returns from the whole crop.

I invoke the earnest attention of cotton-growers to this nefarious scheme and address you this letter as a caveat—that you may not be deluded by this "wolf in sheep's clothing" or in other words this bear in "bull" clothing.

Yours truly,
Hector D. Lane,

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......$75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions.......$75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.......$75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year.......$100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each.......$100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.......$75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

The Party is Not to Blame.

Greenville Advocate.

There are many who call themselves Democrats and who have heretofore voted with the party who are now cursing the old party because Congress did nothing for the relief of the people. The truth is the party is not to blame. Her principles and platform are all right, embody just what the masses want. The mistake was made in the nomination and election of the wrong men for members. Too many of them were either incompetent or maliciously perverse, and clogged any remedial legislation

The majority of these men will remain at home when Congress convenes and new men of different order and faith will take their places. Whether they have the manhood and moral courage to withstand the monopolist tempter remains to be seen.

Another election will take place next year. The people ought to look carefully into the political history of any man who may be offered for election, and allow no man to receive their suffrage unless he is capable, honest and in every way worthy of their support. Elect honest men, men who will devote their time to the interest of their constituents, and who can return with clean hands and the welcome plaudits of the people. Then there will be no cause for blaming the Democratic party.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

"Perhaps you would not think so but a very large proportion of disease in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Syrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. New York is one of the healthiest places on the Atlantic Coast and yet there are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is when you have one get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure it, relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison Ala.

A WARNING.

Athens, Ala., March 14.—H. D. Lane, of the American Cotton Grower's Protective Association, has issued the following address:

To the Cotton-Growers of the South:

I wish to call the attention of the cotton-growers to the strategic movement being made by cotton manipulators to delude them into suicidal act of of planting again a large acreage in cotton.

That uneasiness has been felt in Liverpool for some time in reference to a decreased acreage, goes without saying and had this menace not existed, cotton values would have been even lower than they have been and now as the end of the season is at hand and the staple is substantially out of the hands of the farmer, these gentlemen who have represented the "bear" element for many months while cotton was moving in large volumes, now resort to this ruse of running values up—simply as a device to induce the farmers to plant more cotton than possibly they intended.

I warn the farmers of the South that this rise in the last few days is fictitious—is the product of a conspiracy of men to systematically rob the producer of his legitimate gains. It is a "delusion and a snare" to catch the unsuspecting cotton grower, inveigle him into the toils of another three million surplus, so that they can bear down values lower than last season with an increased surplusage on hand.

Let the people beware-it is a bait to catch those that will bite.

There is no legitimate reason shown for this rise in cotton values.

The production has exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Russia has placed a virtually prohibitive duty on American cotton so we can no longer expect to sell her five hundred thousand bales (500,000.)

There can be no change made by next season in the financial laws of the nation, therefore where is the legitimate cause for this rise if cotton has been selling at legitimate figures?

It is simply the same old spider and fly game, a recurrence of the Farmer and the "Bunco Steerer" and I am constrained to exclaim 'How long, Oh, Lord, now long,' is it to be ever, thus that our people are to be waylaid and robbed of their meagre substance?

I deny the proposition and defy him who makes it, that any man produce cotton legitimately for five cents, with any reasonable profit and I state advisedly and emphatically, that to-day the Southern cotton grower—I mean literally the man who digs the ground—the unfortunate who "pulls the bell cord over the mortgaged mule" is not realizing twelve cents a day for his labor the year round, and what is to be fate of this man if cotton goes down one, or one and a half cents this fall, which is not at all improbable, when we recognize the conditions that confront us, and take into consideration the fact that we had a most phenomenal season for picking our crop this last season and its classification was higher than ever known—hardly any grading less than low middling. Still it averaged under five cents and though we may make a smaller crop the ensuing season of 1895 6 if we have rainy or unpropitious gathering season, cotton in all probability will grade lower and maybap we will have a recurrence of the season of 1891, when we had a superabundance of the poorer qualities, we could then expect the same relative difference in the grades, which would of course result in considerably reduced returns from the whole crop.

I invoke the earnest attention of cotton growers to this nefarious scheme and address you this letter as a caveat—that you may not be deluded by this "wolf in sheep's clothing" or in other words this bear in "bull" clothing.

JUMBO JOTTINGS

The weather is fine and the farmers are all very busy.

There was preaching at the Methodist church here last Sunday by Rev. Mr Eolly, of St. Clair county.

The people of Mt. Zion church and community, met on last Sunday evening and agreed to begin a Sunday school with the next quarter.

Rev. Mr. Dunaway, of Dixie, is expected to preach at Mt. Zion on next Sunday.

Mr. Fate Marcus, who lives about 2½ miles east of here, was killed on last Monday evening by a pair of runaway mules, while hauling rails. We have not heard the particulars. We extend to the family our heart felt sympathies.

May the View live long and prosper.

Do you want 20, 40, 80, 160, 220, acres of land for $3 per acre? If that too high, how about 40, 60, or 120 acres at $2,60 per acre? If none of the above suits you come in and tell the editor of the View what you want, and where you want it and he will do his best to please you.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and cop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......................$75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions...............$75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions......................$75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year...........................$100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each........ $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.................$75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

Everything needed in the line of undertakers goods for sale by W. I. Mullins.

It is not necessary to import a detective to discover that liquor is being sold by parties in Clanton. By such illegal sales our young men and boys are being debauched, and hearts being made to ache. The duty is upon every citizen to rise up in his manhood and do his part towards stamping out every such vice as tends to make our town a stench in the nostrils of law abiding people.

A negro working at Stanfield's Mill lost his life Monday last by falling on the saw.

A CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to most sincerely thank our friends and neighbors at Verbena and in the country adjacent, for their kindness, which has done much to lighten our heavy affliction in the loss of Dr. Thomas Little, Mrs. Satchwell's dear father.

The persistent efforts made by the entire community and at last crowned with success, by the recovery of the body, is such a labor of love as shall command our life long gratitude and endear to us the kindly and generous people among whom our lot is cast. Now that the long agony of suspense is over we can realise and appreciate more fully the sympathy and aid upon which we have leaned. It has been a comfort and a gratification to us beyond expression. We hope that this will be taken by our many friends in lieu of the personal expression which we have no opportunity to make. We subscribe ourselves very gratefully your debtors in loving kindness.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anthing. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Bain Balm. "I only made three applications of it" he says, "And have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted. It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiel and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The president has appointed Jas. H. Collins to be collector of customs at Nashville, Tenn.

Secretary Carlisle has appointed William Martin Aiken, of Cincinnati, Ohio, supervising architect of the treasury, to fill the vacancy that occurred on September 20, 1894, by the resignation of Jeremiah O'Rouke, of Newark, N. J. The salary is $4,500 per annum. Mr. Aiken is about forty-two years of age, and was born in South Carolina.

Secretary Gresham has received a note from Senor Murnage, the Spanish minister, asking that a close wath be kept on a lot of arms stored at Fernandina, Fla. A freight car has been backed up near the warehouse and he fears the arms may be sent to Cuban rebels. These arms, it is said, were intended for the La Ganda or Amadia, the two vessels recently suspected of intending to land arms in Cuba.

The long and stubborn fight between the civil service commission and Postmaster Warfield, of Baltimore, over the removals and appointments made by the postoffice, claimed by the commission to have been illegal, has been settled by Attorney General Olney, who was called upon for an opinion in the case. He decided that the removals and appointments made by Postmaster Warfield were legal.

The recent decision of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department to the effect that the "so-called newspaper laws" circulated by publishers' collection agencies, were no laws at all will have the effect of closing the business of various newspaper collection agencies throughout the country. The department will now prohibit their letters from going through the mails to the newspapers and to subscribers who have failed to pay.

The statement is made upon good authority that the decision of the United States supreme court on the constitutionality of the income tax will be rendered before Monday, April 15th. Treasury officials, charged with collection of the tax have been very anxious to obtain some informal assurance on this point, inasmuch as the extension of the period within which returns must be made by taxpayers in order to escape the 50 per cent penalty, imposed by law, expires on that day.

A meeting of the press correspondents at Washington has been held at which the invitation of the Cotton States and International Exposition Company of Atlanta, to visit the exposition in either May, June or July, was considered. Among the resolutions adopted was one accepting the invitation so cordially extended and stating that if it be agreeable to the officers of the Cotton States and International Exposition company it will be most convenient to the correspondents to accept the invitation for the last week in May.

Internal Revenue Receipts.

Collections of internal revenue from all sources for the eight months of the current fiscal year, as compiled by Commissioner Miller, show the receipts to have agregated $100,532,464, an increase over the the eight months of 1894 of $5,180,622. The principal sources of revenue were: Spirits, $59,095,538, an increase of $4,085,763; tobacco, $19,761,742, an increase of $1,069,999, fermented liquors, $20,118,768, a decrease of $129,099; oleomargerine, $1,108,276, a decrease of $228,184 and miscellaneous, $436,320, an increase of $343,324. The receipts for February were $1,701,445 less than for February 1894. Among the itmes of receipts for February is one of $11,818 on account of income tax under the new law. This is the first time any receips from this source has been reported.

The Great Pension Drain.

Commissioner of Pensions Lochren estimates that there will not be any decreased amount appropriated for pensions during the next three years. The amount appropriated for the fiscal year of 1896 in round numbers is $140,000,000; for the present year the amount was $150,000,000. The reason for the absence of any perceptible decrease is that the falling off, owing to deaths and other causes, is about counter-balanced by first payments in pensions allowed. As cases are allowed from time to time there are large first payments, some times for arrears, and always dated from the time the application was filed. The decrease in some classes of claims are quiet great, as in the pensions for the war of 1812, which have decreased about 50 per cent in the past year. After three years when it is expected the majority of claims will be adjudicated, and there will be few remaining first payments, Commissioner Lochren expects there will then be a rapid falling off in pensions, as they have now reached the age when it is to be expected. He then expects the pension appropriation will be diminished in size very materially.

FIGHTING IN PERU.

A Thousand Dead and Wounded Lying on Lima's Streets.

Mr. McKenzie, the United States minister to Peru, telegraphed the state department at Washington Thursday afternoon that after three days' fighting an armistice had been arranged between the insurgents and the government troops, and that over a thousand dead and wounded were left lying on the streets of Lima. Later some sort of an agreement was reached by the belligerents and peace was restored. A provisional government now seems to be in power.

Cannot Hold Office.

The last North Carolina legislature passed an act allowing women to be notary publics. It is unconstitutional. A woman sent in the first application last Tuesday under the new law, and it was refused.

CAUSED BY THE STRIKE.

Long Island Traction Company Placed in a Receiver's Hands.

A New York special says: H. J. Morse has been appointed by the United States circuit court of Virginia receiver of the Long Island Traction Company. The appointment was made on the application of collateral trust note-holders of the company. The principal noteholders are J. B. Clarke & Co., of Philadelphia. The Long Island Traction Company operates several Brooklyn city railroads under lease, and figured prominently in the recent trolley roads strike through the Brooklyn Heights Company, which shared the brunt of that fight with the Atlantic avenue system. The system includes 145 miles of road. The receivership is one of the results of the strike. The traction company was incorporated under a Virginia charter.

The following appointments were announced at the White House Thursday: William M. Springer, of Illinois, to be judge of the United States court for the northern district of the Indian Territory. Constantine Buckley Kilgore, of Texas, to be judge of the United States court of the southern district of the Indian Territory. To be marshals of the United States: Samuel M. Rutherford, of the Indian Territory, for the northern district of the Indian Territory; Lucien L. Stone, of the Indian Territory, for the southern district of the Indian Territory. To be attorneys of the United States: James V. Walker, for the central district of the Indian Territory; Andrew C. Cruce, of the Indian Territory, for the southern district of the Indian Territory.

SHORTAGE IN A MINT.

The Accounts of the Carson, Nevada, Money Mill About $60,000 Short.

Mr. Preston, the director of the mint, early last month received an intimation that there was a shortage in the accounts of the refiner and melter of the Carson, Nev., mint. Superintendent Mason, of the New York assay office, was immediately detailed to make an investigation.

On the face of the accounts there appeared a shortage of 3,000 ounces of gold and 3,000 ounces of silver, making a total of something less than $60,000.

The responsibility has been located on Hirsch Harris, melter and refiner at the mill, who has been suspended pending investigation.

In connection with the shortage it is stated that Joseph Douglass, a broker, purchased two bars of bullion two months ago, which it is supposed came from the mint, the bullion containing no gold.

Silver bullion from the mines in this locality always contains gold. This sale will be the subject of an investigation. When bullion is transferred back and forth between departments of the mint, receipts are given which fix the responsibility when a loss occurs. The smelting and refining is belived to be the department which is short.

POPULISTS WILL NOT JOIN.

Official Announcement that They'll Not Affiliate with the New Party.

Ignatius Donnelly and Sidney M. Owen, populist candidate for governor at the last election, made official announcement that the people's party of Minnesota will not join the free silver coinage party. Mr. Donnelly says: "The idea of our party deserting the principles laid down in the Omaha platform and consenting to be the tail to an exclusive free silver party is almost too silly to discuss. The people's party has other and fully as important plans on and for the amelioration of the condition of mankind. If the silver men are in earnest in their move, let them join our party. We have always favored the free coinage of silver, but we have other plans in view which we cannot abandon. Had the silver men stood by our party in the last election we would have carried Colorado, Montana, Washington, Idaho, Wyoming and perhaps other states. Instead of doing this, they said that the republican party in those states was in favor of the free coinage of silver, and, therefore, it was good enough for them. If that is so, I do not see why the same party is not good enough [illegible]"

A BIG VERDICT

Amounting to $300,000 Rendered Against the Monon Route.

Judge Baker, in the United States court at Indianapolis, has given judgment in favor of C. E. Pope, receiver of the Chicago and South Atlantic, against the Monon (L., N. A. and C.) railroad, for $168,922.88, with interest at 6 per cent. for fourteen years, making an aggregate of $310,000.

The Monon purchased the L. D. and C. road, which ran from Chicago to Delphi, Ind., and which included a stretch of road built by the Chicago and South Atlantic, but for which the contractors have never been paid. The judgment will be appealed from. The case has been pending in the court at Indianapolis for fifteen years.

WATCHING CHILE.

A War Between South American Republics Threatened.

A private letter from Potosi, Peru, just received in San Francisco contains the following:

"War is threatened between Chile and the Argentine republic, which will draw in Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador as allies of Argentine against Chile. One thing feared by the people here is that Chile's first step will be to put a heavy body of troops into the center of Bolivia, which can easily be done by railroad, and thus step in between all the allies and chastise each separately at liberty. Nobody here knows just what will happen, but the outlook just now is cloudy."

STOOD BY THEIR PRESIDENT.

Employes of a Tobacco Factory Protest Against His Removal.

A few days ago the J. Wright Tobacco company at Richmond, Va., reorganized, the Boston stockholders, with certain Richmond interests, voting the president out of office. The force of the factory sided with their deposed president and quit work, thus causing a suspension of operations. The employes say their action is not a strike, but a protest.

WITH ALL ON BOARD

THE SPANISH CRUISER REINA REGENTE GOES DOWN.

She Carried a Crew of 420 Officers and Men.

The Spanish cruiser Alfonso XII has returned to Cadiz, Spain, after a search for the missing cruiser Reina Regente, and reports having found the latter vessel sunk near Bajo Aceitanos, not far from the Straits of Gibraltar. Only twenty inches of the Reina Regente's masts were above water.

The Alfonso XII has returned to the scene of the wreck with a number of divers and diving apparatus in order to recover the bodies of the crew of the sunken warship.

The Reina Regente was reported missing on March 13. She had just conveyed from Cadiz to Tangier the returning Moorish mission to Spain. The cruiser left Tangier on March 10th for Cadiz and her whereabouts has not been definitely ascertained until now. Pieces of one of her boats and semaphore flags were reported to have been picked up along the shore near Ceuta and Tariffa. She carried a crew of 420 officers and men and all hands are believed to have perished.

DESCRIPTION OF THE LOST SHIP.

The Reina Regente was launched in 1888 and was one of three second-class deck-protected cruisers of the same build, her sister ships being the Alfonso XII and Lepanto, all of 4,800 tons, 12,000 horse-power and expected to steam 20 knots. The wrecked cruiser was 320 feet long, had 5 feet 6 inches beam and a draught of 20 feet 4 inches. She was propelled by twin screws. Her protected deck was 4 3-4 inches thick on the slopes, her conning tower had five inches of armor and her gun shields were 3 inches thick. Her armament consisted of four 9 1-2 inch Hontoria guns, one on each side; aft forward of the central superstructure, one on each side; 4 six and a half inch Honotoria guns on each side, the forward pair in sponsors, middle pair in recessed ports, and 15 rapid fire guns. She was also fitted with five torpedo tubes.

CROSSMAN MAKES AFFIDAVIT

That the Flag Fired on was the Stars and Stripes.

The following affidavit has been drawn up and signed by Captain Crossman, of the Alliance:

"Captain James A. Crossman, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That I have read in the morning papers of this day, Tuesday, March 19, 1895, that the commander of the Spanish gunboat Conde de Venadito has made the statement that the steamship that was off Cape Maysi, Cuba, on the 8th day of March, 1895, which was fired on by his gunboat, raised the British flag in saluting him. In view of this statement, I do most solemnly swear that the flag hoisted on the staff of the steamship Alliance, in saluting the Spanish gunboat off Cape Maysi, Cuba, March 8, 1895, by my orders and in my presence, was the American ensign. This is the only flag used for such purposes—the national flag of America.

"JAMES A. CROSSMAN, Com."

"Sworn to before me, H. I. Bowden, notary public."

CALIFORNIA MANUFACTURERS

Meet and Organize for Mutual Protection and Advancement.

A state manufacturers' convention, with an attendance of nearly 300 delegates, held a meeting at San Francisco Wednesday.

The organization is, as explained by the committee on permanent organization, for the purpose of discouraging the prejudices in favor of foreign goods, and defeating the efforts of brokers and drummers to undersell California goods. The committee recommended also the organization of auxiliary bodies representative only of manufacturers, producers and packers, who handle California products exclusively.

The committee on resolutions declaring it the duty of every citizen of the state to buy and use the productions of the state, demanding a reduction of licenses and the abrogation of local taxation on shipping and demanding lower freight rates from California to the east and higher freight rates from the east to California.

CREEDON VANQUISHED.

Choynski Knocks Him Out in Six Rounds.

Dan Creedon acknowledged his master at Chicago Thursday night in Joe Choynski. Not in so many words, but at the end of the sixth round, as he lay on the floor of the ring at the Tattersall's, he looked over at Joe, shook his head as if to say: "I'm apparently not equal to the task."

For the first half of the contest Creedon kept ahead and Choynski was keeping his stomach out of harm's way and avoiding vicious right-hand swings. The last half of the fight was entirely in favor of Choynski, and although no decision was rendered, both men being on their feet, the 6,000 people yelled for Choynski. Creedon was not in good condition, while his opponent was down in weight to 161 pounds.

A Joke on Depew.

At Rutherford college, at Rutherfordton, N. C., seventy-five students went to the depot to meet one of their professors. As the professor left the cars the students set up a yell. Chauncey Depew was aboard and thought they were cheering him. He left the car and made them a political speech. The train moved off before Dr. Depew saw the joke that was on him.

A Civil Right Suit.

Minnie Meyers, colored, has sued the Louisville and Nashville railroad for $25,000 damages under the civil rights law. Last June she bought a first-class ticket from Cincinnati to Lexington, Ky. When the station over the river at Covington, Ky., was reached, she was removed from the ladies' car to the one partitioned off for colored people.

POSTAL CARD MELANGE.

Eight Thousand Varieties Known to the World.

It seems almost incredible that there should be 8,000 varieties of postal cards, but that is the extent claimed for a collection. These, however, include various issues of the same nation and denomination, and also cards issued for special occasions.

Postal cards have been in circulation a little less than twenty-five years. The idea originated with Dr. Emanuel Harmann, a professor of national economy at the Imperial Academy of Wiener, in Neustadt, Lower Austria.

His ideas, under the head of "New Means of Correspondence by Post," were published and attracted the attention of the government officials. The director general of posts took up the idea and succeeded in having an issue of postal cards put in circulation in 1869. The original name given them was the "correspondns karte," and this has been retained ever since. This new move on the part of Austria quickly excited other countries to adopt a similar method of correspondence, and before the close of 1870 nearly all the European countries were using cards.

Germany was really the second country to employ them, and a special series was issued to the soldiers engaged in the Franco-German war. These were called the field-post correspondence cards, and were sold unstamped to the soldiers at the rate of about five for a half-penny. The soldiers had the privilege of using them without paying postage.

Another series was issued for civilians. These had a place left for a stamp, and the writer had to affix a German postage stamp to the card before posting. The field post-cards are now rare, the used ones being scarcer than the unused ones.

Another card of equal rarity, and also a reminder of the same war, is the balloon post-card, issued by France during the siege of Paris. The cards were sent up from Paris in balloons, and the mail bags were thrown off into the surrounding country, where there was the least possible opportunity of their capture by the enemy.

They were smaller than the post-card now in use, and were covered with war-like expressions as "Paris defies the enemy!" "Glory and conquest signify crimes, defeat signifies hate and a desire for revenge." "Only one war is just and right—that for independence."—Exchange.

In One Ton of Coal.

From one ton of ordinary gas coal may be produced 1,500 pounds of coke, 20 gallons of ammonia water and 140 pounds of coal tar. By destructive distillation the coal tar will yield 69.6 pounds of pitch, 17 pounds of creosote, 14 pounds of heavy oils, 9.5 pounds of naphtha yellow, 6.3 pounds of naphthaline, 4.75 pounds of naphthol, 2.25 pounds of solvent naphtha, 1.5 pounds of phenol, 1.2 pounds of aurine, 0.77 of a pound of toluidine, 0.46 of a pound of anthracite and 0.9 of a pound of toluene. From the latter is obtained the new substance known as saccharine, which is 530 times as sweet as the best cane sugar, one part of it giving a very sweet taste to a thousand parts of water.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPATHETIC HEART DISEASE OFTEN ATTENDS IT.

The Modern Treatment Consists in Removing the Cause.

(From the Republican, Cedar Rapids, Iowa).

Mrs. V. Curley, who has resided in Clarence, Iowa, for the past twenty-two years, tells an interesting story of what she considers rescue from premature death. Her narrative is as follows:

"For ten years prior to 1894, I was a constant sufferer from acute stomach trouble. I had all the manifold symptoms of acute dyspepsia, and at times other troubles were present in complication—I did not know what it was to enjoy a meal. No matter how careful I might be as to the quality, quantity and preparation of my food, distress always followed eating. I was despondent and blue. Almost to the point of insanity at times, and would have been glad to die. Often and often I could not sleep. Sympathetic heart trouble set in and time and again I was obliged to call a doctor in the night to relieve sudden attacks of suffocation which would come on without a moment's warning.

"My troubles increased as time wore on and I spent large sums in doctor bills, being compelled to have medical attendants almost constantly. During 1892 and 1893, it was impossible for me to retain food, and water brashes plagued me. I was reduced to a skeleton. A consultation of physicians was unable to determine just what did ail me. The doctors gave us as their opinion that the probable trouble was ulceration of the coats of the stomach and held out no hope of recovery. One doctor said, 'All I can do to relieve your suffering is by the use of opium.'

"About this time a friend of mine, Mrs. Symantha Smith, of Glidden, Iowa, told me about the case of Mrs. Thurston, of Oxford Junction, Iowa. This lady said she had been afflicted much the same as I had. She had consulted local physicians without relief, and had gone to Davenport for treatment. Giving up all hope of recovery, she was persuaded by a friend to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was almost magical.

"I was led to try them from her experience, and before many months I felt better than I had for a dozen years. I am now almost free from trouble, and if through some error of diet I feel badly, this splendid remedy sets me right again. I have regained my strength and am once more in my usual flesh. I sleep well and can eat without distress. I have no doubt that I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I only wish that I had heard of them years ago, thereby saving myself ten years of suffering and much money."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

A Vast Electrical Trust.

The consolidation of the great electrical manufacturing interests of the country, to include such corporations as the Westinghouse and General Electric Company, is now talked of the Electrical Review publishes this:

"There is on foot a scheme for a consolidation in the electrical manufacturing line, so comprehensive in its scope, as to throw into the shade the rosiest plans of the General Electric promoters.

The project of consolidation is yet in an embryotic state. It may take material form at the next meeting of the board of directors of the General Electric Company, some of the members of which are said to be in favor of the formation of the trust. This meeting will be held the first week in April.

WOMEN'S FACES—like flowers, fade and wither with time; the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the sallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for the change. It's a medicine prescribed for thirty years, in the diseases of women, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure the chronic inflammation of the lining membranes which cause such exhausting drains upon the system. It cures nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faintness, nervous debility and all disorders arising from derangement of the female organs and functions.

MRS. JENNIE WILLIAMS, of Mohawk, Lane Co., Oregon, writes: "I was sick for over three years with blind dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back and head, and at times would have such a weak tired feeling when I first got up in the morning, and at times nervous chills.

The physicians differed as to what my disease was, but none of them did me any good. As soon as I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I began to get better; could sleep well nights, and that bad, nervous feeling and the pain in my back soon left me. I can walk several miles without getting tired. I took in all three bottles of 'Prescription' and two of 'Discovery.'"

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Raising Pension Rating.

All necessary steps for putting into effect the recent legislation raising all pensions below six dollars to that rat ing, have been taken by the pension bureau. All the pension agents have been instructed to raise the pension of those entitled to increase at the next quarterly payment at their agencies, official sources to glean the fact that

Mr. Cleveland denies to himself the

The language of the resolution is that nine delegates shall be appointed

BLAZE IN ST. AUGUSTINE.

The Loss Will Aggregate $200,000. Many Families Homeless.

Fire broke out in St. Augustine, Fla., Thursday afternoon in a blacksmith shop on Charlotte street, and owing to the inadequate water supply, the fire, fanned by a west wind, spread rapidly northwards to the building occupied by Markle & Hince, carpenters and painters, which gave the flames the necessary material for a conflagration. Before the flames were controlled forty-six residences and stores and many other buildings were destroyed, rendering, in the space of four hours, about one hundred families homeless and leaving many boarders to seek shelter elsewhere, many of them with only the clothing which they had on. The losses will aggregate $200,000.

A. N. Stewart was overcome by smoke while moving furniture. Adam Sanks, Lawyer MacWilliam and S. W. Chichelow were slightly injured.

All the palmetto trees along the sea wall from the fort to Baya are destroyed, as were the heaps of household effects placed there for safety.

Colonel Edmund Bainbridge, commanding the United States troops, ordered Lieutenant Obernan and the fire brigade to render assistance and followed this order by personally bringing all the troops to the scene with hose, ladders and fire buckets. The soldiers worked manfully to extinguish the fire and save property.

A MASS MEETING.

Nashville Citizens Issue a Call for One to Instruct Representatives.

The following petition and call for a mass meeting has been circulated in Nashville on some of the streets for signatures:

Believing that present unfortunate contest for the office of governor has come to be a state grievance which imperils our good name abroad, and threatens disaster to dear interests at home, and seeing that the question is no longer one of fraud at the polls, but an innocent omission which was general all over the state, and applies to both parties alike, we, as democrats of Davidson county, humbly unite in calling a public meeting at the tabernacle in the city of Nashville on Tuesday, the 2d day of April, 1895, at night, when we may in a formal way petition our members of the general assembly, and especially the members from our county, for a redress of grievances, by ending the contest and giving Mr. Evans the office which the returns show he was elected to.

TEAMOH INTRODUCES A BILL

To Prevent Discrimination on Account of Race or Color.

A bill introduced in the Massachusetts legislature by Representative Teamoh, the colored member of the committee on mercantile affairs of the legislature which recently visited the south, relative to discrimination in public places on account of race or color, was given a hearing by the committee on judiciary. The bill proposes to amend the present laws so as to make a person liable to fine or imprisonment, or both, if he makes a distinction, discrimination or restriction on account of color or race, or causes such to be made. The party who may be so treated may collect damages by civil process and it is proposed to erase the words "good cause" from the present statute. No decision was reached.

THE MAYOR WAS WROTH.

Wild Scenes at a Meeting of the Atlanta Police Commissioners.

One of the wildest scenes ever enacted in a municipal body occurred at a meeting of the board of police commissioners at Atlanta, Ga., Monday.

The trouble arose over the refusal of Commissioners Venable, English and Branan to recognize Mayor King as chairman.

Commissioners English, Venable and Branan aligned themselves squarely against Commissioners Brotherton and Johnson and Mayor King. The forces were equally divided. Mayor King, by virtue of an ordinance passed by the city council, assumed the chairmanship of the board, and Commissioners Johnson and Brotherton supported him in it. Commissioner English refused to recognize the mayor as chairman, and Commissioners Branan and Venable took the same stand. Neither side yielded and the result was a wild clash and utter confusion, in the midst of which Mayor King ordered Chief of Police Connolly to seat Mr. Venable. The chief refused. Mayor King ordered Connolly to leave the room.

Then followed the wild scene. Bloodshed seemed imminent. The men were boiling with anger and a hundred excited men pressed about them on every side. Finally quiet was restored by Chief Connolly leaving the room; not, however, until he had successfully resisted forcible ejection.

RAILROADS IN COURT.

Battle Between the Seaboard Air-Line and W. & A.

The battle royal between the railroads began in Fulton county superior court at Atlanta Saturday before Judge J. H. Lumpkin. The Seaboard Air-Line laid down its case in a forceful speech made by Mr. Jack J. Spalding. And the Western and Atlantic replied with one of the clearest and ablest speeches of its kind ever heard in the courthouses of Atlanta. It was in the defense of the Western and Atlantic and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis for withdrawing the prorating privileges from the Seaboard Air-Line, and was delivered by Judge Ed Baxter, of Nashville. After these two speeches, which consumed most all of the day at the county courthouse, the hearing was postponed until Monday.

On Monday the arguments were finished and the case is now in the hands of Judge Lumpkin, who will have a whole week of tedious toil studying out the carload of documentary evidence submitted.

EVIDENCE DESTROYED.

Papers Concerning Mrs. Surratt's Execution Burned Up.

A Chicago paper prints the following: "Fire has just destroyed the last shred of documentary evidence that, it is alleged, would have removed the stain of the charge of conspiracy to assassinate Abraham Lincoln from the name of Mary E. Surratt. This woman, who suffered death on the charge preferred against her, had for her counsel Colonel John W. Clampitt, of Highland Park, in whose possession was evidence that he thinks would have restored her good name and shown that in the passion of the time an innocent person had been sacrificed.

For thirty years Colonel Clampitt has been collecting data and evidence and had it so complete, he believed, that none could doubt it. It was ready for publication, and then came the fire which destroyed his residence and all the evidence accumulated since that day, thirty years ago, when he strove to save the woman from the gallows.

Five Buildings in Ashes.

Five buildings were destroyed by fire at South Chicago Tuesday morning. The occupants of the house had to flee in their night clothes. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

COUNCIL OF PEACE.

TILLMANITES AND STRAIGHTOUTS GET TOGEHER.

Preparing for South Carolina's Constitutional Convention.

The convention of the "forty," the first democratic body in which Tillmanites and anti-Tillmanites have assembled in harmony and with equal representation, convened at Columbia, S. C., Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-eight out of the thirty-five counties were represented by eighty delegates. The novel spectacle was presented during the day of political antagonists who, up to a few weeks ago, were vehemently denouncing each other, hobnobbing and consulting in closest companionship.

Among the prominent Tillmanites present were Congressman McLauren, Senator Finley, of New York, Senator McCalla, of Abbeville, Senator Harrison, of Greenville, and Representative McSweney, of Hampton. Among the leaders of the opposing faction were ex-Govenors Hagood and Sheppard, ex-Congressman George Johnstone, United States District Attorney Murphy and Editor Gonzales, of The Columbia State.

When the convention was called to order by Senator Kirkland, of Kershaw, ex-Lieutenant Governor Mauldin, the last of the antis to hold that office, nominated Lieutenant Governor Zimmerman for chairman. He was unanimously elected. After the appointment of a committee on platform, the convention adjourned until 8 p. m.

On reassembling a stirring speech, emphasizing the duty of reconciliation of the faction, which was one of the convention's features, was made by the venerable T. G. McNussick, of Union. J. T. Robertson, of Abbeville, made a report for the platform committee.

The Basis of Agreement.

We cordially welcome other aid and invite the co-operation of all who favor a combination of the wisdom and patriotism of the state, regardless of factions, in the task of reconstructing our organic laws. In common with all patriotic people of the state, we lament that the democratic party of the state, so long united and invincible, has been torn asunder by strife and its unity endangered by the bitterness of factional spirit. The causes which have led to these unhappy results need not now be considered, and should not now be discussed. In view of the coming constitutional convention, in order that the honor of the state may be preserved and the welfare of the people protected and promoted, it is of vital importance that factional lines be ignored, if not obliterated in the selection of delegates to the convention. Thus and thus only can the new constitution become the bond and seal of union among the people of South Carolina. Therefore, we recommend:

1. That in the election of delegates to the constitutional convention, only men of prudence and patriotism be chosen; and that they be divided equally between the factions as heretofore existing as far as practicable; when equal division is impossible, that such fair division be made as will best subserve the great purpose of securing white unity and a non-partisan constitution.

2. That we are unalterably and irrevocably pledged to the supremacy of Anglo-Saxon civilization in every part and department of our government to be secured by fair and constitutional methods. But this can only be accomplished by the unity of our people.

3. We have unbounded faith in the people, and confidently trust them to select delegates to the constitutional convention to represent their opinions with an eye single to their fitness for the great work that will confront them. With a convention so chosen, the people will be satisfied with the constitution it will adopt.

4. To put the objects of this conference into practical effect and to promote the accomplishment thereof, we recommend the appointment of a state working committee to be composed of two from each county—one from each faction—whose duty it shall be forthwith to prepare and promulgate a plan of organization of all democrats in the objects and purposes herein declared, and that this committee work in conjunction with all other committees having the same objects in view, being always subordinate to the state democratic executive committee.

Respectfully submitted,
J. Townes Robertson.

Delegate Appels opposed the recommendation for an equal division in the constitutional convention, but after speeches from George Jonstone, Murphy and Burn, his amendment to institute "equitable" for "equal" was overwhelmingly defeated.

The debate of the night was caused by the objection of Rev. J. A. Sligh, of Newberry, to the appointment of a campaign committee. Sligh explained that he was a member of the state democratic executive committee (Irby committee), and feared that to appoint another would be the formation of a new party antagonistic to the regular democracy. He went so far as to intimate that he would leave the convention rather than be a party to such action. Senator Finley resented the insinuation that any attack on the democracy was contemplated, and after speeches from Colonel Murphy, Thomas, of Charleston, and others, the burden of which was undying devotion to the organized democracy, Mr. Sligh ceased to kick, declaring that he understood that the committee was simply to cooperate with the state executive committee. At 11:10 p. m. a collection was taken up and the convention adjourned. Altogether it was a sweetly peaceful body and a tremendous success from that point of view. The Tillman-Hemphill compromise programme was in effect adopted, but whether Tillman and Evans will consent for the forty to assume the work and gain the credit of carrying it out is another question.

COMMISSIONER FINLEY

The New Head of the Southern States Passenger Association.

William Wilson Finley is the name of the new commissioner of the Southern States Passenger Association. His name was reported to the meeting of railroad men, held in Atlanta Wednesday for the purpose of formally organizing the passenger association, by the special committee appointed at the last mass meeting to nominate officers and the nomination was concurred in by the entire membership of the new association that was formed.

The Southern States Passenger Association will begin operations on April 15th, and on that day the old Southern Passenger Association will die. Mr. Finley will take charge of the affairs of the office to which he has been elected that day, and it is believed the new association will start off under most favorable auspices.

It is true that up to date there have been only about a dozen lines to sign the articles of agreement, but the hope is freely enjoyed by all the roads in the new organization that more of the roads will come in later.

The other officers of the new association were also elected. The auditing committee consists of Mr. Charley Harman, general passenger agent of the Western and Atlantic railway; Mr. J. G. Haile, general passenger agent of the Central, and Mr. Joseph Richardson, general passenger agent of the Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Indian River railway. Mr. Harry Walters, who has served with signal ability as chairman of the repeated mass meetings that have worked up the reorganization of the new association, was chosen president of the Southern States Passenger association.

Former Officers Found to Have Made Way With Nearly $2,000,000.

A most sensational report was submitted to Receiver McNulta of the whiskey trust at Chicago Monday by the experts who for a month have been examining the books of the Greenhut management of the concern.

Charges of juggling accounts, doctoring books and similar work are made, and the report asserts that the former directors and officials by disposing of stock to themselves, have left a discrepancy of $1,924,120.

The report states that 34,498 shares of stock were sold by the officials and directors to themselves at 45 cents on the dollar, and that consequently almost $2,000,000 is due from them to the stockholders of the Distilling and

EMPEROR AND PRINCE.

Kaiser William Proposes a Cheer for Bismarck.

Emperor William paid his promised birthday visit to Prince Bismarck Tuesday. The emperor alighted from his special train at Anmuehle. Accompanied by his staff, he rode from Anmuehle to the Schwarsenbeck crossroads, where he met a squadron of the Halberstadt, Bismarck Cuirassiers and other troops. Placing himself at the head of the troops, the emperor led the way to Friedrichsruhe, where he was met by Prince Bismarck. The ex-chancellor drove in an open carriage to the ground where the troops were stationed. He wore a helmet and the uniform of Halberstadt.

When the emperor, at the head of the troops, arrived at the castle, the soldiers formed a half moon in an open field. The rain fell heavily, but the kaiser sat upon his horse and Prince Bismarck stood by the side of his carriage within the curve of the military crescent. The emperor saluted Prince Bismarck and addressed him as follows:

"Your serene highness, our entire fatherland is prepared to celebrate your birthday, in which celebration I have the honor to take part today at the head of the army to which your grace belongs. The troops here assembled are a symbol of the entire army. Each field standard is represented, and I recognize that behind these troops is the militia, comprising all the German people united. This is the field standard of the elector of Brandenburg, a field of success. I could not find a better present for you than a sword, a symbol of the instrument which you helped my grandfather to forge, sharpen and wield. It is the symbol of an historic time, of "blood and iron." It is that means which never fails in the hands of kings and princes, also against home foes, and as has been tested, against foreign enemies. In memory of that memorable time you will recognize the arms of Alsace-Lorraine, which form the end of a chapter of history of twenty-five years. With that remembrance I call upon the soldiers to present arms. Prince Bismarck, hurrah!"

As the troops presented arms, the bands played, the soldiers shouted and Prince Bismarck cried. Recovering his composure, the ex-chancellor said:

"I am unable to thank your majesty for this unparalleled honor."

He then kissed the kaiser's hand and his majesty urged him to mount his carriage, which Prince Bismarck did only when the crown prince had first entered the vehicle and taken a seat to the right. Then the ex-chancellor, escorted by the emperor, drove in front of the troops, and, after the rounds had been made, the troops filed past Prince Bismarck, the emperor personally leading Bismarck's Cuirassiers.

OFFICERS MET THEM

And Two of a Gang of Would-be Train Robbers Killed.

One of the most daring, and at the same time most unsuccessful attempts at train robbery, occurred at 2:30 a. m. Wednesday in the southern portion of Kentucky, when six men undertook to rob the southbound No. 3 Queen and Crescent train, which left Cincinnati at 8 p. m. Tuesday night.

One of the six was killed outright, another died within two hours, and a third, giving the name of Miller, now lies severely wounded, and the others have not yet been heard from. The train was delayed not more than ten minutes and reached Chattanooga on time.

The reason for this summary disposal of a body of train robbers is found in the fact that some intimation of their purpose had been given to the railroad or express authorities, and that Mr. T. R. Griffin, who serves as a superintendent of police on the Southern road, had with him two trusty assistants.

The train had just reached the south end of tunnel No. 9, which is one mile north of Greenwood, when the robbers signalled it to stop. They had scarcely disclosed their purpose until Mr. Griffin and his assistants on the train began offensive operations and in ten minutes three of the robbers had bitten the dust, the other three had flown, and the train was speeding on its way. Not a single injury was suffered by any one on the train.

SPAIN IS ALARMED.

HER COMMANDERS CANNOT SUPPRESS THE CUBANS.

The Insurrection Costing the Government Many Millions.

The latest dispatches from Havana have alarmed the Spanish government, as they indicate that the insurrection is spreading rapidly, and is already beyond the control of the local commanders. The decision has been made, therefore, to send Martinez de Campos to Cuba with strong reinforcements. It is reported that 9,700 additional troops will embark with him. He will start probably on April 2d. The torpedo gunboats Filipinas and Martin Alonzo Pinson and the cruiser Castalla have received orders to proceed with all possible speed to Cuban waters.

The publication of this news, which completely contradicts the former sanguine dispatches from official sources, has caused keen excitement in Madrid. It is further announced that Primo Rivera has been appointed captain-general of Cuba, to succeed General Calleja.

The dispatches from General Calleja intimate that Crombet, Marti and Gomes, besides Maco, have joined or are about to join the rebels in Santiago province.

The Cost Considered.

Private reports from Havana indicate that the number of insurgents now in the field is about 7,000. The government believes that the filibusterers who left Costa Rico, under Maco, on an English vessel, for Jamaica, were transferred to an American ship.

In the senate, Premier Canovas del Castillo said that 5,000 pezetas had been spent already in fighting the Cuban insurgents, and the government was prepared to make any further sacrifice that might be demanded. A minister, whose name is withheld, stated that 10,000,000 pezetas would be placed at Campos' disposal at once. Several steamers are fitting out to embark troops at Barcelona, Cadiz and Carthagena for Cuba.

The premier prefaced his statement to the senate with the remark that he had come before the chamber under unusual circumstances. He proposed to deal only with the financial questions raised by the expedition to Cuba. He then read a dispatch from Captain General Callejas, saying that a detachment of Spanish troops had been defeated by insurgents at Campochulos. The commander had been summoned before a court martial, the dispatch added. The cabinet's decision to send reinforcements was due to this news.

THE IRON TRADE.

Advance in Wages Has Contributed Towards a Better Basis.

The Iron Trade Review, published at Cleveland, O., says: The wage advance in the Connellsville region and the consequent advance in coke have been followed by several developments contributing to the support of a movement toward a better basis. Within the week the producers of Standard Lake Superior bessemer ores have acquainted their customers with the new price basis that is to be maintained on these ores in 1895—an advance of fifteen cents a ton from the opening price of 1894, and some ores have sold in the past few days at the higher price.

Simultaneously as the result of a movement started before the beginning of the year, western bar iron manufacturers have gotten together to try to check some of the demoralizing practices that have made that end of the finished material market a weariness to all connected with it. Outside of the iron trade, moreover, the past fortnight has brought more signs of promise than has come together in any equal period in months.

The Commercial bank at Cincinnati has made an assignment. The decision to go out of business was reached but a half hour before the assignment was made. The cold wave which swooped down upon us Tuesday and continued through Wednesday, caused some apprehension lest the fruit and gardens would be injured, but the high winds prevented frost and so we are so far safe.

President Collier, of the Cotton States and International Exposition has sent the Mayor and Council of Philadelphia a letter cordially inviting them to take part in the Exposition. Similar letters are to be sent to all the great cities. Chicago Day has already been fixed, and it is hoped to have all the great cities similarly represented.

Those who knew Judge Frank Randolph of Montgomery, must in spite of the facts be moved with pity to know of his downfall.

There is no question but what he is a defaulter. No more brainy or more courteous gentleman existed than Judge Frank Randolph. But whiskey has, year by year gained upon him until it blunted his moral conceptions and he has fallen.

His fall but embasizes the folly of elevating to places of public trust men addicted to drink.

THE COTTON ACREAGE QUESTION.

Editor Picayune: The cotton acreage question at the present time is one of vital importance to the farmers of the South, if I may not say to every one in any way dependent upon cotton, or its receipts as a source of revenue. For this reason I think the subject should be thoroughly discussed, in all its forms, so that every farmer could understand, if he has not already made the calculation, what profit he will reasonably expect by planting cotton and selling it at 5 cents per pound. To begin with, then, every one who is at all acquainted with this plant understands that it is affected by too much dry weather, early frost, boll worm; but losing sight of the hazardous future in making a crop, and estimating that the yield is 750 pounds to the acre, and that is a heavy yield for the hill country, as every one who has plant it in the hills will admit, we have the following result:

For man and team one day in breaking up land	$1 50
Planting	75
Scraping, one acre	75
Molding	50
Dirting with hoe	60
Sweeping	50
Last plowing	50
Picking 750 pounds, at 40 cts	3 00
Hauling to gin	50
Ginning, at $1 per bale	50
Hauling to market	25
Shipping to market by rail	105
Commission for selling	30
Fire insurance, drayage, labor, storage, etc	95
	$11 50

Credit by sale 250 pounds of lint at 5 cents, $12 50. I estimate the seed will pay for the bagging, ties and ginning, and we have a profit of $1 on the acre of land. There is not a farmer who will read this statement but who will affirm that the calculation is a just one, and as reasonable as an acre of cotton can be grown.

Now, Mr. Editor, what is to become of the farmers whose lands are so thin they will not make this yeild of one-half bale or 750 pounds of seed cotton to the acre without using at least 200 pounds fertilizer?

What is to become of these farmers who are too poor to buy fertilizers, and whose land will not yield 400 pounds of seed cotton to the acre, and I tell you there are thousands upon thousands of such acres in the South, which have heretofore been planted in cotton?

It is needless to tell the man who cultivates these lands to reduce their acreage. There is nothing in cotton at 5 cents per pound and they all know it as well as I do who have devoted the best years of my life to its cultivation. Let the South raise its own mules, meat potatoes, butter, corn, rice, sugar, molasses, oats and hay. The money which we spend annually for these enumerated items would, if retained in the South, make us a rich and prosperous country in a few years without depending upon 5 cent cotton.

I have employed five hands for 1895, all for wages, and heretofore have planted cotton; but I do not intend to plant one seed of cotton.

I will make more money on my farm planting corn, potatoes, gathering hay and selling wood at $1.25 per cord than I can making cotton at the present prices. If I should want cotton so much that I shall feel like a bankrupt without it, I will buy my usual number of bales in future, I am satisfied it will cost less to buy than to raise it.

Sincerely,
A Farmer.

THE SPANISH PEARL.

Cuba is now attracting much attention. She is about the size of Alabama, and contains about the same number of inhabitants. And like Alabama, it is covered with mountains and valleys, and its agricultural lands are very fertile and its minerals very valuable. The range of mountains on the eastern coast contains the rich Cuban iron ores. This is very valuable in making steel. The ore is blasted from the side of the mountain and is shipped from Santiago, which is near the spot where Columbus landed. Mr Rockefeller, the Standard Oil millionaire, and Mr. Samuel Thomas, owner of the Thomas furnaces near Birmingham, own large interests in these ore mines.

Manganese is also found near by. There is but little coal on the island. The agricultural lands lie near Havana The sugar cane is planted once in ten years. In this respect the Cuban planters have the advantage of the Louisiana planters, for the latter must plant their seed cane every year.

Between Havana and the mountains the island narrows at a certain point until you can stand in the center of the strip and see both oceans. During one of the many revolutions that have afflicted Cuba the Spanish commander threw a cordon of soldiers across the this narrow neck and kept the revolutionists confined to the mountains

The people in Havana and neighboring territory hardly know that the revolution was going on.

These revolutions in Cuba are perennial. An uprising took place in 1834, and it may be said that it has continued smouldering ever since, with frequent outbreaks

The sum total of the cost of these revolutions is considerable. Spain has lost over 200,000 of her soldiers. Many of these fell a victim to the dead yellow fever, which is so severe on those not acclimated.

The present revolutionists count largely on this dreadful ally slaying many of the recently arrived Spanish soldiers, and they hope to prolong the conflict until the summer, when yellow fever can get in its work. The Cubans have lost about 50,000 men in these revolutions, many of whom were executed

It has cost Spain $200,000,000 to hold Cuba. She is now endeavoring to get back this vast sum by heavy taxation.

Cuba is to Spain a pearl of great price. At one time Spain held the greater part of the western world but has lost all save Cuba.

THE DIVOCEE'S RETURN

Sadder than the return of the prodigal son to the parental mansion must be that of the daughter, who comes back with a decree of divorce in her satchel—the outcome of a runaway marriage. The prodigal son was welcomed because there was hope ahead for him; the prodigal daughter is like the crushed rose, never taking shape again.

When, six years ago, the members of Chief Justice Fuller's family were rejoicing that he had been named to preside over the highest court on earth, they were saddened by the absence of one who had fled with her lover, and who became a wife without the parental blessing.

Now the dispatches state that she has returned to the home she had injured, with the usual story of cruel treatment, neglect, and a divorce in her pocket.

Marriage at best is a trying ordeal for the girl. The opening of a new life, in which the old must be forgotten, calls for separations and privations which the strongest love of her husband can hardly equal. It requires all the approval of her own family to strengthen the wife in the new duties she assumes. When a girl consents to a runaway marriage, it is almost a freak of lunacy, for in doing so she surrenders all claim upon those who are hers by nature. In the troubles which come after marriage she can call on neither father nor mother for sympathy, and if they give it to her anyhow, she can never throw off the thought that she does not deserve it. The husband in such a case, feels under no obligation of honor or kinship, but rather delights in the continued assertion of his independence.

If all girls could learn the lesson that their parents have their interests more closely at heart than can any stranger, there would be fewer runaway marriages, and as a consequence, fewer divorces. The man who cannot gain the consent of the parents of a girl whose hand he seeks, if honorable, would scorn to have her without it. The parent who objects to a certain suitor for his daughter generally has a good reason for it, as the after history of nearly all runaway marriages prove. As between the father and some haphazard lover a sensible girl should have no difficulty in making a choice.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Hon. Henry Pitts of Selma was in town Monday.

The friends of W. J. Martin will find him at work in the Clanton Drug Store

Dr. Kelar of Sylacauga, well known to many of our citizens, died suddenly last week.

Summer hats for ladies, gentlemen, girls, and boys at W. I. Mullins.

The regular meeting of the County Court was held last Monday.

The editor has for sale a milch cow and young calf, also a fairly good horse.

Our friends and neighbors Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Evans, are the happy parents of a little girl. They have our best wishes for the health, happiness and usefulness of the young lady.

Everything needed in the line of undertakers goods for sale by W. I. Mullins

Justice Stewart was busy all day last Saturday with various and sundry trials.

W. I. Mullins has brought to Clanton one of the best assortment of ready made clothing ever placed on this market.

Send to the View for your Wait notes, Deeds and Mortgages.

Elders Champion, Hardy Jone, Vickers, and Long were among the visiting ministers in Clanton Saturday and Sunday.

Mr Skaggs and wife of Jemison, and Mr. J. E. Whitte and daughter, spent last Sunday in Clanton.

The sale of the Foshee property at Maplesville has been postponed until the first Monday in May.

Those whose good fortune it was to attend the several services conducted by Rev. F. M. Woods, of Jemison, were greatly profited by his earnest teachings. He left no refuge for the careless Christian or for the sinner.

Ready made clothes from the cheapest to the best on sale by W. I. Mullins

The many friends of Mr. T. U. Crumpton and wife, of Maplesville, will rejoice with them over the arrival of a little girl at their home.

On Wednesday night last Mr. Will Aldridge of Clanton and Miss Bussy, of Strasburg, were joined in marriage. The View extends congratulations.

Tidings of the death of Dr. U. C. Crumpton, of pleasant Hill, has reached us. He was the father of Mr. T. U. Crumpton and Mrs. Graham of this county, and cousin of the editor of the View. For forty years he suffered, but not until the last year was he compelled to cease active work as a dentist.

He was one among the most noble minded men we ever knew. He lived a very useful life, and died in the hope of the resurrection.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words, "It cured me right up." He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiel and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

The friends of Mrs. W. L. Sempey are glad to see her able to be out after several weeks illness.

Mrs. A. J. Brooks, formerly of Verbena, now of Indianapolis, Ind., passed through Clanton last week en route to visit her daughter, Mrs. Murphree at Dothan.

The parties who discovered the body of Dr. Little, were A. H. Courtney, Jasper Jones, Ethan Jones and Harrison Taylor. The reward was duly their's but like true neighbors they would not accept any pay. No wonder Mr. and Mrs. Satchwell wrote the editor that they felt like they were among kinsfolk. The people of Verbena are among the best neighbors this writer ever had, and their true worth was never known until the dark billows of trouble rolled over our little home.

The note from Mrs. Phillips in this paper causes us great regret. Surely those who pulled the flowers did it in thoughtlessness. It can't be possible that Clanton possesses a being, white or black, who would maliciously disturb the flowers around our sleeping dead.

Mr. Editor:

It is with pain and regret that I learn, some vandal has invaded the sacred precincts of our dead at Clanton, and robbed them of the flowers and shrubbery, those little tokens of affection placed there by loving hands to give to the graves of our dead, the brightness of attention and kindly care. All nations, at every stage of their civilization have respected the graves of their dead and in this enlightened and Christian age there ought to be enough sacredness and sanctity about every shell and flower in and around a cemetary, to protect it from the hands of ruthless intruders. Flowers are God's most generous and loving gifts to mankind. Every hillside and vale, every meadow and garden brightens the earth and perfum s the air with their beauty and fragrance. What excuse then can any one render for depredating such holy ground? They should be sought out by the community and punished as inhuman beings, who having no respect for the dead or regard for the living, must entertain little fear for God

Respectfully

Mrs. W. H. Phillips,

Bessemer, Ala.

I recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F. Pearson druggist, South Chicago, Ill It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

The services conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith at the Episcopal Church last Sunday were well attended and greatly enjoyed. Much credit is due Mds Rainey and Ehrman for the splendid musical programme.

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.
"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe, Conway, Ark.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S PRIZE ACRE.

$500,00 in Cash for Farmers—A Handsome Reward for the Plows of 1895.

We take pleasure in presenting The Constitution's $500 offer for the farmers of 1895. The prize consists of $100 in cash for the best acre of cotton, corn, tobacco, watermelons or sweet potatoes. The announcement is made before the planting of the crop so as to enable all who will to take part in the contest.

Entries may be made up to June 1st, and by that time every contestant must enter his name with The Constitution and state which acre he will compete for.

In ever circular The Constitution frankly states that the care taken in the preparation of the land, the selection of seeds, and the use of fertilizers, a record of costs and dates of plowing and other cultivation, and a careful record of the heavy rainfalls, the periods of droughts and all the other data, giving the history of the crop from the breaking of the soil to the harvesting, will be an object lesson of vast importance to every contestant, whether he wins the prize or not. This is a practical demonstration that a farm run on the intensive plan, by giving careful attention to the thorough cultivation of a few acres properly rather than the poor cultivation of a large area, will be far better than a reduction of farm acreage by resolutions.

The offer is made to encourage the raising of home supplies and illustrate the south's great possibilities in agriculture and to stimulate the proper cultivation of every possible acre to add to the independence of the farmer.

The prizes will be awarded by three competent judges, recognized as high authority in agricultural matters.

The terms are breifly these: Every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly Constitution. He must keep a record of The Constitution's acre upon a blank, which will be furnished him free upon application. The contest is open to every southern farmer.

By special arrangement with The Constitution we offer the View with The Weekly Constitution for $1,50 or if you already have our paper, send us $1 and we will send you The Constitution one year. We are pleased to say that our neighbor in Georgia is perhaps the greatest of all American weekly newspapers. Its seventy two columns each week, which will be increased to eighty four shortly, come brim full of the latest news of the world, and many excellent features of special interest to the state, besides its well conducted departments for the farm and the household.

Every subscription recieved through us will entitle the subscriber to enter the prize acre contest as well as to guess in the $2,000 contest, closing May 1st.

This is an extraordinary opportunity to procure two good newspapers for a year, one to supply the county news in the quickest and best possible shape and the other to bring weekly the news of the world, teeming with political current history, farmers' notes and everything else that will interest every member of the family.

You will find no better season to subscribe nor any greater offer than the present.

The Love That is Just Right.

There is nothing in this world quite so pretty as the love between a mother and daughter. When we hear that a girl is coming home from school after an absence of several months, we usually go to the depot to see her mother hug her. There is something a little funny about the love between man and wife, and there is something not exactly perfect in the love between a mother and son, but the love between a mother and daughter seems to be just right.—Atchison Globe.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has No Equal.

Truly Marvellous

A Cure Seldom Equalled in Medical History

All Other Treatment Failed—Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"My wife sprained her ankle ten years ago. It apparently got well to all outward appearances, it being a little larger than the other ankle, but in a few months three sores broke out on her knee, her ankle, and foot. They became

Large Running Ulcers

and the doctor could not do anything to help. I then took my wife to the hospital and the surgeons scraped all the flesh round the sores, and said they would get well. They almost healed up, but soon two little specks came, one on each side of the first sore. The doctors said they would not amount to anything, but in a few days they turned out to be more ulcers, and in a short time they had eaten into the original sore and made a large wound. The surgeon next decided that an Operation Must Be Performed.

My wife would not consent to this. I was then discouraged and decided to have her

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Besides giving her this medicine we bandaged her foot in steeped leaves and roots and continued this treatment for five months. At the end of that time she had taken eleven bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the sores were all healed and she is perfectly well. My wife is fifty-two years old and is in the best of health." JOSEPH C. FREEBY, Long Beach, California.

Postmaster Holman

of Long Beach, Cal., says he knows Mr. Freeby to be a man of his word, and he believes his statement to be strictly true.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and carefully prepared from the best ingredients.

In our adv. two weeks ago we told of our very superior all-steel feed and power feed cutter to be offered at $10 worth $40

Last week we told of the process of galvanizing and its indispensable preservative qualities. Next week we will give you the experience of two representative business firms of Illinois, one of whom has sold 400 and the other 500 Aermotors. The week following we will quote a price on the best pumps made (hand, wind mill and irrigating) lower than was ever before dreamed of, and the week following that we shall talk to you of steel galvanized tanks, with covers, at the unheard of price of 1½ cents per gallon. This is cheaper than wood. They do not shrink, leak, rot, rust or give taste to water.

The Aermotor Company treats the public generously. While state legislatures are passing laws to secure repairs for farm machinery at reasonable prices, IT IS A FACT THAT THE AERMOTOR COMPANY HAS FOR THE YEAR 1895 BEEN COMPELLED TO RAISE ITS PRICES ON REPAIRS BECAUSE SOME OF ITS CUSTOMERS HAVE BEEN ORDERING INDIVIDUAL PARTS TO MAKE UP COMPLETE MACHINES, SINCE IN THAT WAY THEY COULD GET A MACHINE CHEAPER THAN BY ORDERING IT ASSEMBLED. People are not compelled to buy machinery; they are compelled to buy repairs. The Aermotor Company owns to a fault. It [illegible] so low that customers could buy the repairs and assemble a machine at less than the assembled machine would cost. But since it was not certain that they would get the machine assembled in good shape, for the protection of its own reputation, the Aermotor Company has raised the price of certain repairs just enough to prevent this in future. Not only has the Aermotor Company always given the best goods at the lowest price and refused to sell [illegible], but it has now ESTABLISHED TWENTY BRANCH HOUSES IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE COUNTRY IN ORDER TO HAVE NOT ONLY ITS GOODS EASILY ACCESSIBLE, BUT TO HAVE ITS REPAIRS WITHIN EASY REACH. It expects soon to greatly increase this number of houses. This is a matter of the greatest importance to those who are purchasing machinery. Accidents will happen, and a wise man will look to it when he is buying an article that repairs can quickly be had at reasonable cost. Our very low prices and high standards on everything connected with water supply and power production by wind, together with the accessibility of a full line of our goods and repairs, will be appreciated. Aermotor Co., Chicago.

COTTON GROWING IN THE SOUTH

Some Suggestions From a Correspondent in Regard Thereto.

We hear a great deal said about concert of action among farmers for the purpose of decreasing the area planted on cotton this year, in order that a smaller crop may be put on the markets of the world. But a little reflection will show the utter impossibility of effecting the desired purpose in this way. Human nature is very selfish, and if there was a prospect of a general agreement, there are thousands who would at once imagine that now was the time to plant heavily to take advantage of the prospective rise, and the whole thing would be defeated. The low price of cotton is itself working the cure. There is no need for any concert of action, for the men who have been using three or four acres of land to grow a bale of cotton cannot grow it in this way any longer and live. Cotton as a sole crop is done forever, just as wheat as a sole crop is in the north. The man who makes anything from cotton hereafter must be a farmer, and not a mere planter, gambling on the chance of so much fertilizer giving him so much cotton. He must learn how to accumulate fertility in his soil, while getting increasing crops from it, and must learn the fact that the only way to rest land is to keep it at work between sale crops growing peas and crimson clover to feed stock for raising manure for the corn and cotton, so that the old-time practice of dribbling a little fertilizer in the furrow, for immediate effect, can be forever abandoned, and a generous broadcasting of the manure for the benefit of the soil take its place. Of course the change cannot be made all at once, but it behooves all farmers whose interests are in the cotton crop, and with whom as a matter of necessity the cotton crop must be the money crop, to begin to take measures to make it really a money crop, the surplus crop, but not the sole dependence for paying all the expenses of the farm.

The fact that land can be brought up to a high state of fertility by a proper rotation of crops, and the use of the cheaper forms of mineral fertilizers, phosphoric acid and potash, without the purchase of the expensive nitrogen, has been abundantly proved, where the leguminous crops, like peas and clover, have been grown between the sale crops. Now is the time to begin to get our lands into such a proper rotation. The southern field or cow pea will do more for the lands of the southern coast plain than any plant yet discovered, as by its growth the farmer is enabled to get free from the air the nitrogen which is so costly when purchased in a commercial fertilizer. Cotton needs for its growth a well balanced fertilizer in which potash has a prominent place, with a proper percentage of the other elements of plant food to enable the plant to use the potash economically. On land where no peas or other leguminous crop has been grown, it will be necessary to use a complete fertilizer, but if we have previously grown a crop of peas or clover on the land by the aid of mineral fertilizers, there will be no need to buy the costly nitrogen for the cotton crop. But it will not do to assume that because the peas or clover will help the land in the matter of nitrogen that it will keep the land perennially fertile. The peas are themselves greedy consumers of potash and phosphoric acid, and these being supplied to them they will get the rest.

Therefore, if we want to start our land in the proper rotation for the growth of the cotton crop, it is essential that we start with the pea crop, and supply it with the essentials of its growth. Let us start then this spring and sow the peas broadcast, not less than a bushel per acre, and apply to them 300 pounds of acid phosphate and fifty pounds of muriate of potash, or 200 pounds of Kainit per acre. This will give us a good growth of peas, and the best use we can make of these peas will be to turn them into hay or ensilage for feeding cattle. Then in September run a cut-a-way harrow over the stubble and sow crimson clover at the rate of fifteen pounds per acre. This will grow during the winter, and can be plowed under in the spring for corn, and the same dose of fertilizer given it.

Among the corn plant peas, and as soon as the corn is off plow all under and sow the land in winter oats with peas for hay again, and plow the stubble for cotton the next season fertilized again with the same cheap fertilizers, and sow crimson clover all through the cotton at the last working, to be cut for hay in the spring and the land put in corn again. You will soon find that if you keep stock enough to use up the forage you will grow that ere long you will have home-made manure enough to cover your corn field over broadcast, and finally you will need no artificial fertilizer except the dressing to promote the growth of the renovating crop of peas. The rotation is planned for the purpose of accumulating fertility for the cotton crop, and at the same time grow crops that will pay expenses and give a profit besides. I can point now to men on the sandy fields of the south who are practicing a similar plan, and who, while growing over a bale of cotton per acre, are making 60 to 75 bushels of oats per acre, 40 to 50 bushels of corn, keep well-bred stock and have smokehouses full of bacon, grown and cured as cheaply as the western farmer can grow it. Their cotton, whatever the price, is a profit. W. F. MASSEY.

WAS GOULD INSANE?

FINANCIAL WORRY AND PHYSICAL EXERTION NOT THE GREATEST DESTROYER OF HUMAN LIFE.

For Humanity's Sake, After Thirty-six Years of Nerve-Creeping Slavery, He Tells How He Was Set Free.

Caldwell, N. J., March 20, 1895.—(Special.)—Since one of our prominent citizens suffered so terribly from tobacco tremens, has made known his frightful experience in behalf of humanity, the ladies here are making tobacco-using husbands' lives miserable with their entreaties to at once quit tobacco.

The written statement of S. J. Gould is attracting wide-spread attention. When interviewed to-night he said: "I commenced using tobacco at thirteen; I am now forty-nine; so, for thirty-six years I chewed, smoked, snuffed and rubbed snuff. In the morning I chewed before I put my pants on, and for a long time I used two ounces of chewing and eight ounces of smoking a day. Sometimes I had a chew in both cheeks and a pipe in my mouth at once. Ten years ago I quit drinking whiskey. I tried to stop tobacco time and again, but could not. My nerves craved nicotine and I fed them till my skin turned a tobacco-brown, cold, sticky perspiration oozed from my skin, and trickled down my back at the least exertion or excitement. My nerve vigor and my life was being slowly sapped. I made up my mind that I had to quit tobacco or die. On October 1 I stopped, and for three days I suffered the tortures of the damned. On the third day I got so bad that my partner accused me of being drunk. I said, 'No, I have quit tobacco.' 'For God's sake, man,' he said, offering me his tobacco box, 'take a chew; you will go wild;' and I was wild. Tobacco was forced into me and I was taken home dazed. I saw double and my memory was beyond control, but I still knew how to chew and smoke, which I did all day, until toward night, when my system got tobacco-soaked again. The next morning I looked and felt as though I had been through a long spell of sickness. I gave up in despair, as I thought that I could not cure myself. Now, for suffering humanity, I'll tell what saved my life. Providence evidently answered my good wife's prayers and brought to her attention in our paper an article which read: 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away!'

"What a sermon and warning in these words! Just what I was doing. It told about a guaranteed cure for the tobacco habit, called No-To-Bac. I sent to Druggist Hasler for a box. Without a grain of faith I spit out my tobacco cud, and put into my mouth a little tablet upon which was stamped No-To-Bac. I know it sounds like a lie when I tell you that I took eight tablets the first day, seven the next, five the third day, and all the nerve-creeping feeling, restlessness and mental depression was gone. It was too good to be true. It seemed like a dream. That was a month ago. I used one box. It cost me one dollar, and it is worth a thousand. I gained ten pounds in weight and lost all desire for tobacco the first day. I sleep and eat well, and I have been benefited in more ways than I can tell. No, the cure was no exception in my case. I know of ten people right here in Caldwell who have bought no No-To-Bac from Hasler, and they have been cured. Now that I realize what No-To-Bac has done for me and others, I know why it is that the makers of this wonderful remedy, the Sterling Remedy Company, of New York and Chicago, say: 'We don't claim to cure every case. That's Fraud's talk, a lie, but we do guarantee three boxes to cure the tobacco habit, and in case of failure we are perfectly willing to refund money.' I would not give a public indorsement if I were not certain of its reliability. I know it is backed by men worth a million. No-To-Bac has been a God-send to me, and I firmly believe it will cure any case of tobacco using if faithfully tried, and there are thousands of tobacco slaves who ought to know how easy it is to get free. There's happiness in No-To-Bac for the prematurely old men, who think as I did that they are old and worn out, when tobacco is the thing that destroys their vitality and manhood."

The public should be warned, however, against the purchase of any of the many imitations on the market, as the success of No-To-Bac has brought forth a host of counterfeiters and imitators. The genuine No-To-Bac is sold under a guarantee to cure, by all druggists, and every tablet has the word No-To-Bac plainly stamped thereon, and you run no physical or financial risk in purchasing the genuine article.

Ready for Emergencies.

"Say, what does that mean?" inquired a stranger of a Montgomery street clothing dealer, as the interrogator drew attention to the weather signals fluttering over the building across the street.

"What color are they? My eyes are bad."

"Well, there is a red flag, with a black square in the center and—"

"That means a storm."

"—and underneath is a white flag."

"That means fair weather."

"Well, what do both together mean? A fair weather storm?"

"No, sir. The man who handles them is a weather prophet, and he is compelled to be careful in his predictions so as to make no mistakes. Those signals mean 'either fair or foul weather.'"

"Oh," and the stranger bought an umbrella and duster.—San Francisco Evening Post.

The Engineer Loves His Steed.

"I think we all love the locomotive," said a traveler. "Coming into New York on a through train on one of the days of the big cold spell, at the last place we stopped at to change engines I got off and stretched my legs on the platform a little, and walked forward and looked at 'em couple on the fresh engine. It had big drivers, a tremendous boiler, cylinders as big as a barrel, steam chests as big as a trunk, and a stumpy little chimney; no gingerbread work about her anywhere, and no light—it was after dark—except the headlight and the little lamp in the cab shining on the face of the steam guages. Everything else about her black; when the engineer leaned out of the cab window you could scarcely see him against the general blackness; but he backed the engine down as gently and as smoothly and with as perfect accuracy as though it had high noon for light.

"He was evidently in great form, the engineer, and the big engine looked as though it could go through any blizzard that ever blew; and as a matter of fact it about made time into New York. But it was a hard pull for her; you could hear her breathing as you stepped out of the car in the Grand Central station and started to walk along the platform. You look at her again here in the light as you pass, admiringly; and you have a very friendly feeling for the man whom you bring into view an instant later as you move ahead, and who is standing on the track square ahead of the big engine and looking up at her with a smile on his face."—New York Sun.

How to Warm Cold Hands.

The passenger on the front platform of the crowded car was blowing energetically on his gloved hands.

"They 'pear to be cold," said the driver, sympathetically. "Well I'll tell you how to warm 'em. Don't keep your gloves on when your hands get cold. Take 'em off right away. Then double up your fist as tight as you can—just as if somebody was trying to open your fingers and you wouldn't let 'em—an' then ram your hands down in your coat pockets. It'll s'pr'se you, sir, how quick they'll get warm."

The passenger immediately put the suggestion into effect. In a minute or two he looked pleasantly at the driver.

"It is wonderful," he remarked. "My hands are as comfortable now as I could wish."—Washington Star.

The old lesson as "little drops of water, little grains of sand" making the universe has had one more exemplification. It is the custom of the Bank of England not to pay fractions of a penny. A Trick of the Trade.

That there are tricks in all trades, even in a dentist's, was well illustrated a short time ago in a large dental office of this city, says the Cincinnati Tribune:

A little girl wanted, or rather her relatives wanted, her tooth pulled. Accompanying her was her mother and two aunts, all very nervous and very much excited.

After much coaxing and bribing, she was induced to seat herself in the chair and open her mouth; but whenever she saw the dentist bend over her, snap would come her teeth together, and no persuasion could make her open her mouth until the dentist had retreated a few feet.

This performance was repeated time and time again, and at last the dentist gave up in despair and called in his lady assistant, a member of the firm.

She talked to the little girl for a few moments, and then asked her to open her mouth. This she did, but the lady declared that it was only half open. The little one tried it again and again; but only found that the lady ridiculed her the more.

"My dear," the lady said at length, "do you know why you cannot open your mouth very wide? It is because you keep your eyes open. If you shut your eyes you can open it twice as much."

This idea seemed to please the girl. She laughed, and, shutting her eyes, opened her mouth as wide as possible. In an instant the lady bent over her and extracted the tooth.

A scream, a few "dears" from the mother and aunts, 50 cents in the hand of the dentist, good-byes and all was over.

"Verily," sayeth the wise man, "there are tricks in all trades."

Keep the Walls Clean.

Walls and ceilings should be dusted regularly, using a long handled wall brush that takes up the dust instead of merely dislodging it. A cloth over a common floor broom can be made to answer. At least twice a year the walls should be wiped carefully with slices of fresh bread. Hard finished walls can be washed, but they are cold and glaring to look at usually, and the papered walls can be kept clean with care and make more pleasing backgrounds. New paper should always be put on over clean walls, not over other old paper. A room that has been occupied by one ill with a contagious disease should be disinfected and should have the walls and ceiling renewed before it is again occupied.—Sanitary Journal.

Felling Trees by Electricity.

Trees are now felled to a considerable extent by electricity. A platinum wire heated white hot by the current is used, stretched between two poles, as a saw. There is less work than with a saw, no saw dust is produced, and the charring of the surface of division tends to prevent decay. In some cases the time required to fell a tree by this method is only one-eighth of that necessary for sawing.—Electric.

AN ALARMING STATEMENT CONCERNING WOMEN.

HOW BAD HABITS ARE FORMED.

The New York Tribune says: "The habit of taking 'headache powders' is increasing to an alarming extent among a great number of women throughout the country. These powders as their name indicates, are claimed by the manufacturers to be a positive and speedy cure for any form of headache. In many cases their chief ingredient is morphine, opium, cocaine or some other equally injurious drug having a tendency to deaden pain. The habit of taking them is easily formed, but almost impossible to shake off. Women usually begin taking them to relieve a raging headache and soon resort to the powder to alleviate any little pain or ache they may be subjected to, and finally like the morphine or opium fiend, get into the habit of taking them regularly, imagining that they are in pain if they happen to miss their regular dose."

In nine cases out of ten, the trouble is in the stomach and liver. Take a simple laxative and liver tonic and remove the offending matter which deranges the stomach and causes the headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are composed entirely of the purest, concentrated, vegetable extracts. One Pellet is a dose; sugar-coated, easily swallowed; once used, always in favor. They positively cure sick headache and remove the disposition to it.

MR. E. VARGASON, of Otter Lake, Lapeer Co., Mich., writes: "I not infrequently have an attack of the headache. It usually comes on in the forenoon. At my dinner I eat my regular meal, and take one or two of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets immediately after, and in the course of an hour my headache is cured and no bad effects. I feel better every way for having taken them—not worse, as is usual after taking other kinds of pills. 'Pleasant Pellets' are worth more than their weight in gold, if for nothing else than to cure headache."

SILVER ADVANCING.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND JUSTIFY THE RISE IN PRICE,

Helped by the Prospective Conference and the Eastern War.

Commenting on the position of the silver market the London Times says that the free speculation in silver on the likelihood that the cessation of the Chino-Japanese war would create a large demand for the metal may have to wait longer for the desired result than they imagine. The idea is certainly well founded. This, the Times thinks, in addition to a general belief that the coming conference will assist silver, is the principal cause of the advance in price. It is not likely, however, that these causes would be effective if it were not for the fact that the production of the metal has been restricted by its recent cheapness.

The Times believes that silver was too cheap at 28, and that notwithstanding the rise to 30 was caused by speculation, the conditions of supply and demand justify it.

The Australian colonies have instructed their agents general at London to urge upon the British government first, to permit each colony to be represented directly in any international silver conference that may be called, or, if that may not be considered advisable, that the colonies conjointly may be allowed direct repretation.

Several of the colonies, notably South Australia, produce silver, but while their own mints are allowed to coin gold, all receive their silver coin from the imperial mint in England.

The bimetallic talk in Europe is given by some as a factor in the bullish tendency of silver, but that is open to argument. Prices of exchange for eastern markets—India, China and Japan—have risen, and that has helped in the upward trend of prices for the metal.

As a matter of fact the transactions in the bullion itself greatly overshadow those in the certificates. Be the causes what they may, the rise in silver has been steady and sure, and Wall street is beginning to wonder just how long it will be before the tide is at flood.

WILSON SWORN IN.

He Takes the Oath of Office as Postmaster General.

A Washington special says: Contrary to expectations Hon. W. L. Wilson took the oath of office as postmaster general Wednesday. Chief Justice Miller appeared at the postoffice department at 11 a. m. and administered the oath in the presence of the principal officials of the department.

Mrs Fuller, wife of the chief justice, and Miss Wilson, daughter of the new postmaster general, were present at the ceremony. Mr. Bissell and Mr. Wilson conferred for a short time and saw some of the heads of the bureaus.

Then Postmaster Dayton, of New York, introduced John N. Parsons, president of the Letter Carriers' Association of New York, and the latter, on behalf of the carriers, presented the retiring postmaster general with an engrossed copy of resolutions passed by the association commending the administration of Mr. Bissell, his indorsement of the 8-hour law, and his extensions of the civil service laws.

In the afternoon Mr. Bissell received the employes of the department and ended his official labors.

Secretary Gresham sent Mr. Bissell a hickory walking stick which he had himself cut and trimmed from the grounds of the president's summer home at Woodley.

Shortly after these preliminaries the employes of the department were introduced to Mr. Wilson and said goodbye to Mr. Bissell. Mr. Wilson will enter the active discharge of his duties at once.

Signed the Scale for this Year.

The Mahoning and Shenango valley iron manufacturers met the officials of the Amalgamated Association and signed a wage scale for the coming year. There is no change from last year's rate of pay. This will avert a strike in the valley. The manufacturers wanted wages reduced from last year's figures, but the Amalgamated held out for the same figures and were successful.

AN EXTRA SESSION

Of the Missouri Legislature Called to Meet April 23.

Governor Stone issued a call Tuesday for a special session of the state legislature to meet on April 23d for the following purposes:

First, to enact such legislation as may be necessary and expedient to properly define the relations between the different classes of employes of railroads of the state, and also the proper relations between all such employes themselves and also between such employes and the said railroads for injuries done or received by one such employe as the result of culpable negligence of another such employe while engaged in the service of such corporations.

Second, to provide such legislative enactments as may be necessary and expedient to prevent the maintenance of an organized lobby at the capital of the state, either to obstruct or to promote any legislative or executive act and also to regulate the manner of presenting any question affecting legislation by persons interested therein before the general assembly or any committee thereof.

Third, to enact such laws as may be necessary and expedient to prevent fraud against the elective franchise and to secure honest elections in all cities having 100,000 inhabitants.

Fourth, to consider any other subject that may be submitted during said extra session.

Fifth, to make an appropriation for the expenses of this extra session of the general assembly.

TENNESSEE LEGISLATURE

Reassembles at Nashville After a Recess of Forty Days.

The general assembly of Tennessee met at Nashville Tuesday noon for the post-recess session. There is a great deal of work yet before the body and if it gets down to business promptly and progresses smoothly, much ought to be accomplished in the four remaining weeks.

The disturbing factor in the situation is the gubernatorial contest, and that subject will necessarily be the most prominent one before the people. But there are other matters of urgent importance that demand attention. These are the penitentiary, revenue and centennial questions. The committee appointed to investigate charges of fraud at the election for governor will begin work on their report at once.

RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICAN.

The Democrats Snowed Under—Lippitt for Governor.

The democrats of Rhode Island were simply snowed under at Wednesday's election. The returns indicate a general falling off in the democratic vote of about 40 per cent. The vote was exceedingly light, but Lippitt, republican, for governor, is elected by a largely increased majority. The entire republican state ticket is elected. The democrats will retain at least their present representation of five in the legislature. In two or three towns there was some interest owing to contests on local issues, but apathy was shown in most instances. East providence and Pawtucket voted license after a hard fight, and Coventry, for the first time in its history, voted to be bibulous.

ELECTRIC FREIGHT RAILWAY

To Be Constructed to Run Between Chicago and New York.

The Inter-Oceanic Electric Railway Company, incorporated at Springfield, Ill., purposes to make some decided changes in the present method of freight transportation. The company has a capital stock of $200,000,000, the largest ever incorporated in the west, and a number of Chicago, New York and San Francisco capitalists are interested in the corporation. The intention is to construct an elevated electric freight railway between Chicago and New York for the transportation of coal and grain. The plans and specifications have been drawn by a Chicago engineer, and the company will own a number of patents on electric devices used by the road.

Republicans Sweep Denver.

The republicans made a clean sweep in the Denver, Col., city elections. Every man on their ticket was elected by a majority of 5,000 to 6,000. The republicans also elected all the aldermen.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all over the south for the past week are to the effect that the various branches of industry prominent in the south are in active operation. There is a decrease in the previously reported interest in the establishment of new cotton mills. The list for the past week includes a cotton mill with a $150,000 capital at Rockingham, N C., one with $100,000 capital at Lancaster, S. C., one with $50,000 capital at McDonough, Ga., and others at Alexander City, Ala., and Cartersville, Ga. Enlargements of mills are reported at Newton, Ala. and Wadesboro, N. C. Shipments of southern iron to northern and western points are increasing. The output of lumber is increasing in some parts of the south, but the increase is not general, nor do prices change in favor of manufacturers.

Among the fifty-three important new industries established or incorporated during the week were the Buffalo Coal and Coke Co., of Fairmount, W. Va., capital $500,000; a cotton compress at Dallas, Tex., to cost $150,000, and a $500,000 compress at Dublin, Ga.; gas works at Tampa, Fla., costing $150,000, and the National Straw Hat Co., of Atlanta, Ga., with $50,000 capital.

A $50 000 tobacco factory will be established at Orlando, Fla., and one with $10,000 capital at Ocala, Fla. There is also reported a $15,000 cotton mill at Greer Depot, S. C., a bleachery at Brunswick, Ga., brick works at Chattanooga, Tenn., and canning factories at Aberdeen, Miss., Olive, Tex., and Sistersville, W. Va. Electrical plants will be established at Livingston, Ala., Atlanta, Ga., Versailles, Ky., Bristol, Tenn., Kaufman, Tex., and Charlottesville, Va., flouring mills at Hollandale, Miss., and Alexandria, Va., an ice factory at Cullman, Ala., and machine shop at Knoxville, Tenn., and Houston, Tex. Coal mines are to be opened near Hawesville, Ky., South Pittsburg, Tenn., San Antonio, Tex., and Sutton, W. Va. Manufacturing companies have been chartered at Tampa, Fla., and Galveston, Tex. Rice mills at Greensboro, Ala., and Fernandina, Fla., a shoe factory at Brunswick, Ga., and woodworking plants at Fall Mills, Tex., and Thomasville, N. C.

Among new buildings of the week, are business houses at Little Rock, Ark., South Pittsburg, Tenn., and Houston, Tex., hotels at Atlanta, Ga., Chattanooga, Tenn., an office building at Galveston, Tex., and school buildings at Mt. Pleasant, Tex.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

DANA AGAIN RESPITED.

Argument on the Application to Take Him to Washington Postponed.

The argument on an application for the removal to Washington of the case of Charles A. Dana and William M. Laffan was to have been heard in New York Tuesday by Judge Brown in the United States district court. Both Dana and Laffan are under indictment for criminal libel against Frank B. Noyes, of the Washington Evening Star. The hearings, however, by consent of counsel on both sides, were adjourned until Friday. The matter did not come up in court.

A DEFAULTING CASHIER.

A Chicago National Bank Official Short $50,000 in His Accounts.

It has been discovered that F. W. Griffin, assistant cashier of the Northwestern National bank of Chicago, is a defaulter to the extent of $50,000. He has been arrested and has confessed. The Northwestern National is a bank of ample means with capital and resources amounting to a million and half dollars, and one of the most conservative institutions in Chicago. Griffin's shortage will in no wise affect the standing of the bank and creates no excitement.

CHICAGO'S NEW MAYOR.

Republicans Carry the City by a Big Majority.

The entire republican ticket, with the exception of a few isolated aldermen, was elected at Chicago Tuesday. George B. Swift's plurality for mayor approximated 45,000. This is taken from incomplete police returns. At 10 o'clock Tuesday night 810 precincts out of 920 returned Swift, republican, 129,764 votes; Winter, democrat, 90,591 and Holmes, populist, 9,876. The council will stand overwhelmingly republican.

Democrats Successful in Missouri.

Returns received so far from municipal elections held throughout Missouri Tuesday, indicate that a large majority of the cities heard from were carried by the democrats, who elected their entire ticket or a majority of the candidates thereon. Of the 44 municipalities heard from the democrats were successful in 25, the republicans in 9 and the citizens' ticket in 5, while in five other cities there was a mixed result.

"Absurd System," Says Balfour.

Mr. Arthur J. Balfour, M. P., in an address before the bimetallic league at London, said that the time was not far distant when men of all parties would agree to introduce into international transactions some medium of exchange less hurtful to industry than the present absurd system.

AFTER THE RAILROAD.

Creditors of the Tennessee Central Want the Road Sold.

A bill has been filed in the chancery court of Cumberland county Tenn., against the Tennessee Central Railroad company by a number of its creditors. The people have been very hopeful of the completion of the Tennessee Central, and have been willing to furnish the road supplies, labor, crossties, horses and teams and anything else in their power.

The company began operations without any visible capital but used convict labor, and the creditors thought that they at least would be paid, whether the lessees of the penitentiary were ever paid or not. Colonel Jere Baxter has been making promises for over a year that creditors would be paid in a short while. The company owes probably $100,000, and a number of creditors have joined and filed their bill asking for a foreclosure and sale of the whole thing. An injunction has been granted restraining the railroad company from disposing of any bonds or other securities till the general creditors were secured. The company has executed a deed of trust to the Union Bank and Trust Company of Nashville to secure their bonds, and since it was recorded the company has refused to talk about a settlement with their creditors, who are not provided for in the deed.

BURBRIDGE SAYS BLUFF.

His Comment Regarding Governor Mitchell's Message.

A copy of Governor Mitchell's message to the legislature of Florida was shown James Burbridge, who is now at Cleveland, O. He was asked what effect it would have on the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. Burbridge is a prominent member of the Duval Athletic club. He said:

"There is nothing in it but bluff and bluster. Nothing but Fitzsimmons' failure to post the remainder of his stake or the death of the principals will prevent this fight from coming off in Jacksonville next September. Mitchell has no influence with the legislature. He is known as a gruff old fellow, bull-headed and persevering. The legislature will take no action on his recommendation, because leading business men and politicians of Florida compose the Duval Athletic club. We know to a letter what will be done, and have recently given Corbett and Fitzsimmons $1,000 each for training expenses."

CHEAP COAL IN CLEVELAND.

A Rate Cutting War on Between Massillon Coal Operators.

A merry war among the Massillon coal operators is in progress, and the consumers at Cleveland, O., are enjoying the benefits of very low prices in consequence.

The fight is not only on retail, but on wholesale prices as well. The retail price of Massillon lump coal, as a result of the war, has fallen from $3.50 to $2.35, which is less than it costs to mine it, shipping and distributing it, and the end has apparently not yet been reached. The result of the fight is practically the destruction of the Massillon Operators' Association, which forced the reduction of the mining rate to 60 cents from 35 cents and the abolition of the differential.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS

Call a State Convention to be Held July 31st Next.

The Maryland democratic state central committee at a meeting Thursday decided to hold the state convention in Baltimore Wednesday, July 31. Politicians from all over the state, including Senator Gorman and his lieutenants, were present. The date selected seemed to give general satisfaction. The most prominent candidates for the governorship include Governor Brown, ex-Congressman Isidor Rayner and ex-State Senator Thomas G. Hayes.

Mrs. Lease Not "In it."

In the reorganization of the state board of charities at Topeka, Kas., Thursday, Mrs. Lease was entirely ignored by the majority of the members present. Senator Householder being under investigation and under suspension, left the republicans in the majority and the man who Mrs. Lease claims was wrongfully trying to get her seat on the board was made the permanent secretary, thereby throwing her out. She threatens to contest.

THAT COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

They Tell What They Found Out About Cotton Mills in the South.

The Boston Globe says that from what can be picked up from gossip around the statehouse it appears that the labor section of the report of the committee on mercantile affairs on their trip south to find out why the mills of Massachusetts wish to go south, one upon which there is a wide difference of opinion among the various members.

The report will say that at present there is no signs of a wholesale removal of Massachusetts mills to the south, as there are more spindles in Massachusetts today than in the past. But the committee claims to have found out that in spite of the apparent prosperity in Massachussets among the cotton mills, a large amount of massachusetts money has been sent south. That there is nothing in the character of the new corporations formed under Massachusetts laws that will prevent them from organizing in Massachussetts and going south.

Reference is also made to the fact that there is at present nothing to prevent the cotton corporations of Massachusetts from putting all the money they want to in southern mills.

The report will prove that cotton manufacturing in the south is not a new industry, but that since 1892 there has sprung up in that section conditions favorable to Massachusetts capitalists. In substantiation of this, there will appear a long array of figures which will give some surprising results.

The report will speak hopefully of the scheme of establishing mills near cotton fields, or near coal mines, as cheapness will be equalized by expenses in another direction.

The report will give the following seven distinct causes which are attracting the cotton industries of New England to the south: nearness to cotton fields, cheap tenements, cheap coal, mild climate, low taxes, abundant water power, and abundant restrictive labor laws.

The labor question, which is really the important part of the report, is where the division of the committee is really the greatest, as the portion of the report submitted advises national legislation on the hours of labor for women and children and asks that the commonwealth take steps toward securing such legislation.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

Advance in Crude Materials Attest a Steady, Improved Situation.

The Industrial World, of Chicago, prints the following:

"That the general business situation is steadily improving is clearly evidenced by the advances in crude material and staple commodities—iron ore, cotton, coke, pig iron, etc. This, to say the least, is gratifying, as the higher values have stimulated demand all along the line, which in turn is aiding in improving the industrial situation. The only cloud in sight just now is the strike agitation among the coal miners. In Iowa a large number are already out, and trouble is expected in Pennsylvania and Ohio, which may extend to Indiana and Illinois. A general strike extending over the states named would be welcomed by operators, as it would lead to a readjustment of mining wages all around, and would afford a breathing spell to enable the trade to get rid of the present unwieldly surplus stock."

WILL MAKE WHISKY.

The Sugar Trust Takes Out Distillers' License to Utilize By-Products.

That the American Sugar Refining Company will engage in the distilling of spirits is made certain by the fact that a distillers' license has been taken out by the company. The purpose is to utilize the by-product of the sugar refineries, a portion of which it has been sending to New Bedford for manufacture into rum, and for which it received about two cents per gallon. The understanding is that one of the old refineries in the eastern district of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be converted into a distillery, with a capacity of 50,000 gallons of proof spirits per day.

Seed For Nebraska Farmers.

The California state board of trade is arranging its response to an appeal from destitute Nebraska farmers to collect donations of barley, oats and wheat for seed from the farmers of California and ship them to the eastern victims of drought. Several car loads will be shipped for this purpose.

COLVIN WAS UNSUCCESSFUL.

Suit to Prevent the Issue of Gold Bonds Fails in the Supreme Court.

The supreme court at Washington has dismissed the writ of error in the case of John H. Colvin, against the city of Jacksonville, Fla., from the United States circuit court for the northern district of Florida.

Colvin, claiming to be a citizen of Illinois and the owner of property to the amount of $50,000 in Jacksonville in May, 1894, applied for an injunction against the city and Mayor D. Fletcher to prevent the issuance of bonds for $1,000,000, on the ground that after the electors approved the issue payable in lawful money the city council provided that it should be payable in gold coin.

The court below dismissed the libel for want of jurisdiction, and the supreme court dismissed Colvin's appeal, Justice Shiras explaining that since the question of jurisdiction of the lower court had been certified to, the supreme court by that court, in the absence of such a certificate, was fatal to the maintenance of the writ.

FRANCE BLAMES ENGLAND

For the Recent Collision Between Steamships Off Messina, Sicily.

As an indication of the strained relations between England and France, the Matin and other Frence newspapers persist in insinuating that the collision on March 30 off Messina Island off Sicily, between two British steamers, the Alvah and the Brinkburn, the latter chartered by the French government as a transport to take troops and munitions of war to the island of Madagascar, was due to England's malice and a nation capable of such an action should be made to repent it.

The Alvah, as reported at the time, was sunk, and the Brinkburn, which was on her way from Toulon to the Island of Madagascar with French troops and munitions of war on board, was seriously damaged, but succeeded in making the harbor of Messina.

APPEAL TO THE LEGISLATURE.

Pensacola Officials Want the Spanish Grant Squabble Settled.

The city commissioners of Pensacola have prepared a memorial, to be sent to the Florida legislature, wherein they pray that a law be enacted vesting title to the Spanish Grant tract in the provisional municipality of Pensacola, to be held and used by it for the benefit of commerce; and that the said provisional municipality be authorized and empowered to sell parts thereof as it may find expedient, subject to such conditions as may be necessary to advance the commerce of the port without injuring the channel of the bay and interrupting the navigation thereof; and to quiet the titles of those persons who have, in good faith, expended money in improving parts of the said tract, upon such terms as are reasonable and just.

WILL BE NO WAR.

Mexico and Gautemala Settle Their Differences.

A special of Tuesday from the City of Mexico says: The Gautemalan boundary question is settled. President Diaz has formally signed with the Guatemalan minister the official document which prevented the threatened open rupture between the two countries and congratulations are heard on all sides for the stand taken by the president, foreign Minister Mariscal, and Mexicans generally at a time full of danger and menace to the nation's safety and dignity.

Official information on the Guatemalan question was given in the president's message before the semi-annual opening of the seventeenth session of the national congress.

Big Works Start Up.

The John steel plant at Lorain, O., one of the largest in the world, has begun operations and has made one charge of bessemar steel. Tom L. Johnson touched a match to the fuel which converted pig iron into steel. The plant represents a cost of $5,000,000.

EIGHTY YEARS OLD.

BISMARCK'S ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY HIS ADMIRERS.

Thousands Do the "Man of Iron and Blood" Honor.

At an early hour Monday morning trains began to arrive at Friederichsruhe loaded with visitors from all parts of the German empire desirous of congratulating Prince Bismarck upon his eightieth birthday.

At 11 o'clock the deputation from the Zeidlits Cuirassiers regiment, of which the prince is an honorary colonel, arrived in the castle in order to congratulate him. The Cuirassiers were followed by a stream of other deputations, including one composed of university professors and another of senators from Hamburg, Lubeck and Bremen.

The dispatch of congratulation which King Oscar of Sweden and Norway sent to Prince Bismark alluded to the latter as the creator of German unity.

The Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, was among those who telegraphed their congratulations to the prince.

FOUR THOUSAND STUDENTS GREET HIM.

A deputation 4,000 strong from different universities of Germany, proceeded to the castle at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. They took up positions in front of the terrace, and when Prince Bismarck appeared he was received with deafening cheers. The spokesman of the students then read an address of congratulation and presented the ex-chancellor with a gift subscribed for by the students. After thanking his visitors, the prince conversed with several of them and returned to the house amid a fresh storm of cheers from the students' deputation, which then dispersed.

GERMANS IN NEW YORK CELEBRATE.

Prince Bismarck's birthday was duly celebrated by the Germans of New York city. All the German societies and organizations celebrated in some form or other. A committee of prominent men arranged a festival at Terrace Garden in the evening, the feature of which was its informality. There were speeches and singing. A series of living pictures, representing Bismarck, William I, William II, Napoleon III and other notable men of Europe, were presented on the stage. The two big German societies, the Arion and the Liederkranz, held festivities in their headquarters.

BERLIN CELEBRATES.

All the public and most of the private buildings of Berlin were bedecked with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion. At all the schools the pupils assembled in order to hear special Bismarck addresses, after which the pupils were given a holiday.

THE WAR IN CUBA.

The Cause of the Insurrectionists Growing Stronger.

A special from Havana says: The streets of Havana and the fields and mountains of Cuba are filled with soldiers and revolutionists. The excitement all over the island is more intense now than at any period since the revolutionists fired the first shot on February 21st. This is because the insurgent forces are growing almost as rapidly as the reinforcements of loyal troops, and they are coming in on every maritime vessel sailing in this direction from Spain.

In Havana the beat of the drums and the drilling of recruits goes on from daylight until far into the night. In the plaza surrounding Hotel Pasaje there are hundreds of gaudily caparisoned soldiers marching up and down all during the day. The mounted police gallop over the city six abreast, never stopping until their animals are exhausted, when their places are taken by fresh animals and men. This is for the purpose of awing those who are inclined to join the insurgents and to excite the loyalty of the Spaniards. Troops are being forwarded to the front as rapidly as the government can send them.

Whisky Wins in Minnesota.

The most notable feature of the Minnesota municipal elections was the success of the license ticket in nearly every place where the liquor question was at issue.

Very respectfully,

Adjutant General and Chief of Staff

In the Roman World.

The political and social condition of the world at this time greatly favored the spread of the gospel. Rome had conquered the world by her arms, Greece by her culture.

The one had united the world in a vast military empire, the other had given to this empire a universal language. The fact that all men had drunk at the same fount of learning and owed allegiance to the same government, was a bond of unity such as the world had never known before. It was a time of profound peace. During the reign of Augustus the doors of the temple of Janus were closed for the first time in centuries, and the heathen world came near realizing the vision of the Christian poet who sings of the time when

The war drum throbbed no longer
and the battle flags were unfurl'd
In the parliament of man, the federation of the world.

Travel had never been so general nor so easy. The armies of Rome had not only achieved conquests, but had also introduced order and promoted means of communication.

Until quite modern times, no age was known when so great a part of the world could be traversed with such speed and safety.

The roads made for Rome's legion's to march to war served as highways for the envoys of the Prince of Peace. The ships that brought corn from far Asia to feed and quiet the rabble of Rome, brought also the bread of life to a perishing world. Roman law gave such protection to person and property as had never been known before. Many of the early Christians were, lik Paul, Roman citizens; and they could not be condemned without a trial, and had the right of appeal to Caesar. The ground on which the early Christians were condemned under Roman law, was [illegible] dence [illegible] by H[illegible] alder.

SOME THINGS [illegible] DID.

The passage of [illegible] the repeal of the [illegible] the Sherman [illegible] and the repeal of the Federal election law were the principal acts of the Fifty-third Congress.

Congress reassembled [illegible] Dec. 3. 1894. Immediately [illegible] assembling President Cleveland [illegible] mitted his message, in which [illegible] that he thought [illegible] The principal [illegible] related to [illegible] Hawaii [illegible] [illegible] 800 [illegible] was [illegible] created [illegible] ordinary government expenses compared with the preceding [illegible]

He showed how the government currency obligations when [illegible] and redeemed in gold are [illegible] cancelled, but are reissued and may do duty many times in the way of drawing gold from the Treasury, thus forming an endless chain.

Thus the gold reserve must be recruited again and again by the sale of government bonds for gold.

He asked for the assistance of Congress in relieving the government of this burden. But Congress refused to follow his suggestions.

The President also said in his message:

"If we are to have a navy for warlike operations, offensive and defensive, we certainly ought to increase both the number of battleships and torpedo boats." Congress agreed with the President, in this, and passed the new navy provision for two battships and six torpedo boats, and the increase of the enlitted force by the addition of 1000 men.

He recommended the repeal of the differential duty on sugar.

Congress adopted the suggestion, and repealed the unjust law. Our friendly relations with Germany, which prohibited the importation of American live stock and fresh meats on account of this unjust discrimination against her exports of sugar, have been restored.

He suggested a broad and liberal policy in dealing with foreign powers, and Congress carried out his suggestion in adopting a broader and more liberal treaty with Japan.

This treaty is the first recognition of Japan by one of the great governments of the world as a first class power.

He endorsed civil service reform, and subsequently extended the operation of the civil service reform law to about 150 positions in scientific and technical work on the geological survey.

The administration made three attempt at this session to secure legislatien looking to the relief of the Treasury. First, the Carlisle bill for the reform of the currency system went down; second, the bill for the issue of $500,000,000 of gold bonds and the retirement of the legal tenders, recommended by the President in a special message, was defeated; and third, the House by a majority of forty-seven refused to order third, reading of the resolution by which it was proposed to authorize the issue of $65,000,000 of 3 per cent gold bonds to substitute for the 4 per cent thirty year coin bonds, sold by Secretary Carlise under contract with the Rothschild-Morgan syndicate.

A monetary conference of the leading nations of the world was indorsed and repsentatives for the United States appointed.

An act was passed and became a law authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Tennessee river at Sheffield, Ala.

New rules to prevent collisions at sea were adopted.

The commercial travelers' organization secured an amendment to the enterstate commerce law permitting the issuance of joint interchangeable 5000 mile tickets, good over more that one road.

The anti-lottery and copyright acts became laws.

Whatever may be the sins of omission and commission of the Fifty-third Congress—and they are many—it has certainly pledge the Democratic party to the sterling principles of government: Honest pensions, sound money, economy in the administration of the government, tariff reform and the maintenance of the traditional policy of non-interference.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......$75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions.......$75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.......$75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year.......$100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each.......$100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.......$75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and seeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced par acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of he market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Mr. Robinson of Birmingham was a visitor in Clanton for several days last week.

It is a common sight to see farmers bringing home raised meat and molasses into our town.

It would surprise some people to know how many of the good women of Chilton county are busily using the spinning wheel and loom. To live at home is the determination of our people.

Summer hats for ladies, gentlemen, girls, and boys at W. I. Mullins.

Mrs. O. K. and Miss Sophia Mullins spent a few days last week with their relatives at Jumbo.

The law office and editorial department of the editor of the View is being rendered more comfortable for the summer by the addition of window blinds.

We are pleased to know that Mr Joseph Downes, of Coopers, has located in Clanton and will practice his profession here. He is a worthy young man and will, we are sure, be successful as a lawyer.

A meeting of the members of Camp Gracey is called for the third Saturday in April at Verbena Ala. Very important business will be transacted then, and a full attendance is desired.

Everything needed in the line of undertakers goods for sale by W. I. Mullins

Mr. and Mrs. K. Wells spent last Sunday in Verbena. We regret to know that Mr. Wells has been quite feeble for the past few days.

Come in and let the editor sell you a good milch cow. and a reliable work horse.

We are sorry to learn that our old friend Mr. Boyd is quite ill.

Mr. Denty has been confined to his bed for some days with fever,

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. Jim Simpson, of Hartselle, in the death of his beloved wife. For only a few days was she ill and then death took her. God only can heal the broken hearted.

Mr. Tommie Hand of Jemison was in Clanton Monday.

The heavy rain of Saturday night washed up the freshly plowed lands somewhat.

Clanton needs for the coming summer a real first class hotel. We have as nice private boarding houses as any town can boast, but they have room for only a small number of boarders. If such a man as Mr. Merritt would erect a 20 room hotel and then work a little bit he could fill his house the first season.

W. I. Mullins has brought to Clanton one of the best assortment of ready made clothing ever placed on this market.

Ready made clothes from the cheapest to the best on sale by W. I. Mullins.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words, "It cured me right up." He also says: A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiel and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Seed Peas at W. I. Mullins.

Mrs. Tom Phillips visited Montgomery last Monday.

The View office was brightened last Saturday by a visit from Miss Ida Robinson of Jemison.

Prof. J. L. Ruffin, Jemison's beloved teacher was in Clanton Saturday. There are few better teachers than Prof Ruffin. He is in the truest sense a Christian gentleman.

Clanton dilikes very much to lose Rev. T. B. Hazle from her midst. He has for two years been the pastor of the Congregational Church at this place He is a consecrated Christian worker and our best wishes go with him.

Among our rush in business and engrossment with family cares we should never forget the sick in the families of our neighbors. Even an occasional inquiry about the sick is cheering.

Uncle Paddie Smith is physically one of the most weakly men in our town, but his constant activity is an inspiration to the community. And there dwells not among us a more generous hearted man then he.

The summer is at hand and your wife and daughter need nice low cut shoes W. I. Mullins is ready to supply the need.

Considerable interest from time to time has been stirred up among the people of Clanton, but it seems a hard thing for our town to have a genuine revival. Elders Lowery and Wood have certainly preached as powerfully stirring Gospel sermons as we will ever hear. Indifferent Christians have been made to see their unworthiness and the unsaved to tremble on account of sin, and yet the arousal apparently last only a short while. It is earnestly hoped that ere long the labors will bear abundant fruitage.

I recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F. Peirson druggist, South Chicago, Ill It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

To encourage the farmers to raise more grasses and small grain W. I. Mullins has taken the agency for McCormick's Reaper and Mowers. These machines will more than pay for themselves in a season. A sample machine is on exhibition in his hall.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The recent change made by the New York Weekly World in issuing two papers a week in place of one is meeting with great favor. The people appreciate the change, and are taking advantage of it. Why pay a dollar a year for a Weekly paper when you can get the New York World TWICE a week for the same price. Keep informed of what is going on in the world and particularly in your own country. Congress is now in session. Every movement will be of the greatest interest.

Keep abreast of the times by reading the TWICE-A-WEEK WORLD—two papers a week—104 papers a year for only $1.00.

Arrangements have been made by which we can furnish this paper and the Twice-a-Week New York World both for $1.65 a year. Take advantage of this offer and get your own local paper and the Twice a Week World at his special rate.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S PRIZE ACRE.

$500,00 in Cash for Farmers—A Handsome Reward for the Plows of 1895.

We take pleasure in presenting The Constitution's $500 offer for the farmer of 1895. The prize consists of $100 in cash for the best acre of cotton, corn, tobacco, watermelons or sweet potatoes.

The announcement is made before the planting of the crop so as to enable all who will to take part in the contest.

Entries may be made up to June 1st, and by that time every contestant must enter his name with The Constitution and state which acre he will compete for.

In every circular The Constitution frankly states that the care taken in the preparation of the land, the selection of seeds, and the use of fertilizers, a record of costs and dates of plowing and other cultivation, and a careful record of the heavy rainfalls, the periods of drought and all the other data, giving the history of the crop from the breaking of the soil to the harvesting, will be an object lesson of vast importance to every contestant, whether he wins the prize or not. This is a practical demonstration that a farm run on the intensive plan by giving careful attention to the thorough cultivation of a few acres properly rather than the poor cultivation of a large area, will be far better than a reduction of farm acreage by resolutions

The offer is made to encourage the raising of home supplies and illustrate the south's great possibilities in agriculture and to stimulate the proper cultivation of every possible acre to add to the independence of the farmer.

The prizes will be awarded by three competent judges, recognized as high authority in agricultural matters.

The terms are breifly these: Every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly Constitution. He must keep a record of The Constitution's acre up on a blank, which will be furnished him free upon application. The contest is open to every southern farmer

By special arrangement with The Constitution we offer the View with The Weekly Constitution for $1,50 or if you already have our paper, send us $1 and we will send you The Constitution one year. We are pleased to say that our neighbor in Georgia is perhaps the greatest of all American weekly newspapers. Its seventy two columns each week, which will be increased to eighty four shortly, come brim full of the latest news of the world, and many excellent features of special interest to the state, besides its well conducted departments for the farm and the household.

Every subscription recieved through us will entitle the subscriber to enter the prize acre contest as well as to guess in the $2,000 contest, closing May 1st.

This is an extraordinary opportunity to procure two good newspapers for a year, one to supply the county news in the quickest and best possible shape and the other to bring weekly the news of the world, teeming with political current history, farmers' notes and everything else that will interest every member of the family.

You will find no better season to subscribe nor any greater offer than the present.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeil and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Among other attractive features of the exhibit of the United States Fish Commission at the Cotton States and International Exposition the scientific investigations of the Commission will be illustrated by casts of fish and other animals from life, and by collections of sponges, oysters and other shell fish, crabs, lobsters and shrimps, corals sea lilies, sea pens and numerous others materials brought up in the dredging and trawling apparatus by the vessels of the Commission.

The apparatus used in the collection of these objects will also be shown, as well as the complicated instruments accessory to the work of deep sea and inland investigation.

HEADQUARTERS UNITED CONFEDERATE VETRANS,

New Orleans, La., Mar. 26, '95

Editor of the View;

General J. B. Gordon, commanding United Confederate Vetrans, respectfully requests that you will aid the old veterans, through the columns of your influential paper, in their efforts to organize Camps before the great Reunion, to be held at Houston, Texas, on the 22d, 23d and 24th of May next, so they can have representation at that meeting, where business of the greatest importance for their welfare will be transacted, and so as to unite them all in one general federation under the Constitution of the United Confederate Vetrans which is a strickly "literary, historical, social and benevolent" Association.

I favor formation of several camps in a county, so the members can be near headquarters, they will be more apt to attend meetings, and will take more interest, from 15 to 25 members will be sufficient to form a camp, if more cannot be enrolled close to the headquarters of the camp.

The General Commanding urges the veterans everywhere to meet and organize camps as rapidly as possible, so that they can participate and have representation in the great Houston Reunion. Please organize without delay, and write to General Geo. Moorman, Adjutant General U. C. Vs., New Orleans, for necessary papers.

There are now 567 camps in the associatian. Following is a summary of camps by States.

Very respectfully,

Geo Moorman,

Adjutant General and Chief of Staff

In the Roman World.

The political and social condition of the world at this time greatly favored the spread of the gospel.

Rome had conquered the world by her arms, Greece by her culture.

The one had united the world in a vast military empire, the other had given to this empire a universal language. The fact that all men had drunk at the same fount of learning and owed allegiance to the same government, was a bond of unity such as the world had never known before. It was a time of profound peace. During the reign of Augustus the doors of the temple of Janus were closed for the first time in centuries, and the heathen world came near realizing the vision of the Christian poet who sings of the time when

> The war drum throbbed no longer
> and the battle flags were unfurl'd
> In the parliament of man, the federation of the world.

Travel had never been so general nor so easy. The armies of Rome had not only achieved conquests, but had also introduced order and promoted means of communication.

Until quite modern times, no age was known when so great a part of the world could be traversed with such speed and safety.

The roads made for Rome's legion's to march to war served as highways for the envoys of the Prince of Peace. The ships that brought corn from far Asia to feed and quiet the rabble of Rome, brought also the bread of life to a perishing world. Roman law gave such protection to person and property as had never been known before. Many of the early Christians were, lik Paul, Roman citizens; and they could not be condemned without a trial, and had the right of appeal to Caesar. The ground on which the early Christians were condemned under Roman law, was treason to the State; and this was a false charge, resting on a misapprehension. That all these conditions for the spread of the gospel should have come about by chance is incredible; they must have been marshaled by intelligence and purpose—in other words, by Providence.—"The Dawn of Christianity," by Henry C. Vedder.

SOME THINGS CONGRESS DID.

The passage of the tariff bill, the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law, and the repeal of the Federal election law were the principal acts of the Fifty-third Congress.

Congress reassembled on Dec. 3. 1894. Immediately on its reassembling President Cleveland submitted his message, in which he outlined what he thought Congress should do. The principal part of his message related to the money question. He stated that the Treasury deficit for the last fiscal year was $69, 800,000 although there was a decrease of $16,000,000 in the ordinary government expenses as compared with the preceding year

He showed how the government's currency obligations when received and redeemed in gold are not cancelled, but are reissued and may do duty many times in the way of drawing gold from the Treasury, thus forming an endless chain.

Thus the gold reserve must be recruited again and again by the sale of government bonds for gold.

He asked for the assistance of Congress in relieving the government of this burden. But Congress refused to follow his suggestions.

The President also said in his message:

"If we are to have a navy for warlike operations, offensive and defensive, we certainly ought to increase both the number of battleships and torpedo boats." Congress agreed with the President in this, and passed the new navy provision for two battlships and six torpedo boats, and the increase of the enlitted force by the addition of 1000 men.

He recommended the repeal of the differential duty on sugar.

Congress adopted the suggestion and repealed the unjust law. Our friendly relations with Germany, which prohibited the importation of American live stock and fresh meats on account of this unjust discrimination against her exports of sugar, have been restored.

He suggested a broad and liberal policy in dealing with foreign powers, and Congress carried out his suggestion in adopting a broader and more liberal treaty with Japan.

This treaty is the first recognition of Japan by one of the great governments of the world as a first class power.

He endorsed civil service reform, and subsequently extended the operation of the civil service reform law to about 150 positions in scientific and technical work on the geological survey.

The administration made three attempt at this session to secure legislatien looking to the relief of the Treasury. First, the Carlisle bill for the reform of the currency system went down; second, the bill for the issue of $500,000, 000 of gold bonds and the retirement of the legal tenders, recommended by the President in a special message, was defeated; and third, the House by a majority of forty-seven refused to order third, reading of the resltution by which it was proposed to authorise the issue of $65,000,000 of 3 per cent gold bonds to substitute for the 4 per cent thirty year coin bonds, sold by Secretary Carlise under contract with the Rothschild-Morgan syndicate.

A monetary conference of the leading nations of the world was indorsed and repsentatives for the United States appointed.

An act was passed and became a law authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Tennessee river at Sheffield, Ala.

New rules to prevent collisions at sea were adopted.

The commercial travelers' organization secured an amendment to the enterstate commerce law permitting the issuance of joint interchangeable 5000 mile tickets, good over more that one road.

The anti-lottery and copyright acts became laws,

Whatever may be the sins of omission and commission of the Fifty-third Congress—and they are many—it has certainly pledge the Democratic party to the sterling principles of government: Honest pensions, sound money, economy in the administration of the government, tariff reform and the maintenance of the traditional policy of non-interference.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.......... $75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Mellelotus, under the same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.......... $75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same condition and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year.......... $100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each.......... $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.......... $75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crop for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, seeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable; and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Mr. Robinson of Birmingham was a visitor in Clanton for several days last week.

It is a common sight to see farmers bringing home raised meat and molasses into our town.

It would surprise some people to know how many of the good women of Chilton county are busily using the spinning wheel and loom. To live at home is the determination of our people.

Summer hats for ladies, gentlemen, girls, and boys at W. I. Mullins.

Mrs. O. K. and Miss Sophia Mullins spent a few days last week with their relatives at Jumbo.

The law office and editorial department of the editor of the View is being rendered more comfortable for the summer by the addition of window blinds.

We are pleased to know that Mr Joseph Downes, of Coopers, has located in Clanton and will practice his profession here. He is a worthy young man and will, we are sure, be successful as a lawyer.

A meeting of the members of Camp Gracey is called for the third Saturday in April at Verbena Ala. Very important business will be transacted then, and a full attendance is desired.

Everything needed in the line of undertakers goods for sale by W. I. Mullins

Mr. and Mrs. K. Wells spent last Sunday in Verbena. We regret to know that Mr. Wells has been quite feeble for the past few days.

Come in and let the editor sell you a good milch cow and a reliable work horse.

We are sorry to learn that our old friend Mr. Boyd is quite ill.

Mr. Denty has been confined to his bed for some days with fever,

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. Jim Simpson, of Hartselle, in the death of his beloved wife. For only a few days was she ill and then death took her. God only can heal the broken hearted.

Mr. Tommie Hand of Jemison was in Clanton Monday.

The heavy rain of Saturday night washed up the freshly plowed lands somewhat.

Clanton needs for the coming summer a real first class hotel. We have as nice private boarding houses as any town can boast, but they have room for only a small number of boarders. If such a man as Mr. Merritt would erect a 20 room hotel and then work a little bit he could fill his house the first season.

W. I. Mullins has brought to Clanton one of the best assortment of ready made clothing ever placed on this market.

Send to the View for your Waive notes, Deeds and Mortgages.

Ready made clothes from the cheapest to the best on sale by W. I. Mullins.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words, "It cured me right up." He also says, A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiell Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Seed Peas at W. I. Mullins.

Mrs. Tom Phillips visited Montgomery last Monday.

The View office was brightened last Saturday by a visit from Miss Ida Robinson of Jemison.

Prof. J. L. Ruffin, Jemison's beloved teacher was in Clanton Saturday. There are few better teachers than Prof Ruffin. He is in the truest sense a Christian gentleman.

Clanton dislikes very much to lose Rev. T. B. Hasle from her midst. He has for two years been the pastor of the Congregational Church at this place He is a consecrated Christian worker and our best wishes go with him,

Among our rush in business and engrossment with family cares we should never forget the sick in the families of our neighbors. Even an occasional inquiry about the sick is cheering.

Uncle Paddie Smith is physically one of the most weakly men in our town, but his constant activity is an inspiration to the community. And there dwells not among us a more generous hearted man then he.

The summer is at hand and your wife and daughter need nice low cut shoes W. I. Mullins is ready to supply the need.

Considerable interest from time to time has been stirred up among the people of Clanton, but it seems a hard thing for our town to have a genuine revival. Elders Lowery and Wood have certainly preached as powerfully stirring Gospel sermons as we will ever hear. Indifferent Christians have been made to see their unworthiness and the unsaved to tremble on account of sin, and yet the arousal apparently l st only a short while. It is earnestly hoped that ere long the labors will bear abundant fruitage.

I recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 100 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. J. F. Peirson druggist, South Chicago, Ill It is for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell, Jemison, Ala.

To encourage the farmers to raise more grasses and small grain W. I. Mullins has taken the agency for McCormick's Reaper and Mowers. These machines will more than pay for themselves in a season. A sample machine si on exhibition in his hall.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The recent change made by the New York Weekly World in issuing two papers a week in place of one is meeting with great favor. The people appreciate the change, and are taking advantage of it. Why pay a dollar a year for a Weekly paper when you can get the New York World TWICE a week for the same price. Keep informed of what is going on in the world and particularly in your own country. Congress is now in session. Every movement will be of the greatest interest.

Keep abreast of the times by reading the TWICE-A-WEEK WORLD—two papers a week—104 papers a year for only $1.00.

Arrangements have been made by which we can furnish this paper and the Twice-a-Week New York World both for $1.65 a year. Take advantage of this offer and get your own local paper and the Twice a Week World at his special rate.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S PRIZE ACRE.

$500,00 in Cash for Farmers—A Handsome Reward for the Plows of 1895.

We take pleasure in presenting The Constitution's $500 offer for the farmers of 1895. The prize consists of $100 in cash for the best acre of cotton, corn, tobacco, watermelons or sweet potatoes. The announcement is made before the planting of the crop so as to enable all who will to take part in the contest.

Entries may be made up to June 1st, and by that time every contestant must enter his name with The Constitution and state which acre he will compete for.

In ever circular The Constitution frankly states that the care taken in the preparation of the land, the selection of seeds, and the use of fertilizers, a record of costs and dates of plowing and other cultivation, and a careful record of the heavy rainfalls, the periods of drought and all the other data, giving the history of the crop from the breaking of the soil to the harvesting, will be an object lesson of vast importance to every contestant, whether he wins the prize or not. This is a practical demonstration that a farm run on the intensive plan by giving careful attention to the thorough cultivation of a few acres properly rather than the poor cultivation of a large area, will be far better than a reduction of farm acreage by resolutions.

The offer is made to encourage the raising of home supplies and illustrate the south's great possibilities in agriculture and to stimulate the proper cultivation of every possible acre to add to the independence of the farmer.

The prizes will be awarded by three competent judges, recognized as high authority in agricultural matters.

The terms are breifly these: Every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly Constitution. He must keep a record of The Constitution's acre up on a blank, which will be furnished him free upon application. The contest is open to every southern farmer

By special arrangement with The Constitution we offer the View with The Weekly Constitution for $1,50 or if you already have our paper, send us $1 and we will send you The Constitution one year. We are pleased to say that our neighbor in Georgia is perhaps the greatest of all American weekly newspapers. Its seventy two columns each week, which will be increased to eighty four shortly, come brim full of the latest news of the world, and many excellent features of special interest to the state, besides its well conducted departments for the farm and the household.

Every subscription recieved through us will entitle the subscriber to enter the prize acre contest as well as to guess in the $2,000 contest, closing May 1st.

This is an extraordinary opportunity to procure two good newspapers for a year, one to supply the county news in the quickest and best possible shape and the other to bring weekly the news of the world, teeming with political current history, farmers' notes and everything else that will interest every member of the family.

You will find no better season to subscribe nor any greater offer than the present.

Dear sirs—Some time ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison, my whole body was a perfect sore, my hair was all gone, and I was totally blind in one eye. I finally was induced to try a bottle of your great blood medicine, and, to the surprise of all my friends, in four weeks I was sound and well, my sight was restored and my hair grown out, and I am still sound and hearty, and have never felt a symptom of the disease since taking the V. Weak Nerves

Indicate as surely as any physical symptom shows anything, that the organs and tissues of the body are not satisfied with their nourishment.

They draw their sustenance from the blood, and if the blood is thin, impure or insufficient, they are in a state of revolt. Their complaints are made to the brain, the king of the body, through the nervous system, and the result of the general dissatisfaction is what we call Nervousness.

This is a concise, reasonable explanation of the whole matter.

The cure for Nervousness, then, is simple. Purify and enrich your blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the nerves, tissues and organs will have the healthful nourishment they crave. Nervousness and Weakness will then give way to strength and health.

That this is not theory but fact is proven by the voluntary statements of thousands cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read the next column.

"With pleasure I will state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has helped me wonderfully. For several months I could not lie down to sleep on account of heart trouble and also Prostration of the Nerves.

For three years I had been doctoring, but could not get cured. I received relief for a while, but not permanent. Soon after beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there was a change for the better. In a short time I was feeling splendidly. I now rest well and am able to do work of whatever kind. If I had not tried Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not know what would have become of me. I keep it in my house all the time, and other members of the family take it, and all say there is by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S Medical Discovery.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

"GENTLEMEN: Regarding prospects for the coming year would say, we hope to double our last year's output of Aermotors, or, at least, as we have done in the past, sell twenty-four out of every twenty-five windmills that are sold. Since commencing the sale in 1891, WE HAVE SOLD ABOUT

500 AERMOTORS

We do not attribute this fairly good record entirely to our efforts, but to the superiority of the goods which you make. DUNBAR & DAVIS, Urbana, Ill., February 19, 1895."

GENTLEMEN: We bought and put up Aermotor No. 2, and out of the first fifty which you made we had thirteen. Since that time we have sold about

400 AERMOTORS

In our small territory is represented the history of the Aermotor and the Aermotor Company from the beginning to the present hour. That history is one of unbroken triumph. Aside from the Aermotor there have been but few other windmills put up in our territory—just enough with which to compare and show the infinite superiority of the Aermotor in design, workmanship, finish (all galvanized after completion), and ability to run and do effective work when all others stand idle for want of wind. We should have sold more, but this region was well supplied with wind power when the Aermotor reached, it being only 90 miles to Chicago, and had been the battle ground for ten or twelve of strongest windmill concerns, best known and [illegible], all being located within 90 miles of us. MUCH OF OUR BUSINESS HAS COME FROM REPLACING WOODEN AND OTHER UNSATISFACTORY WHEELS WITH AERMOTORS. You say you have during the past year surpassed any previous year's record by about one-half, and that you expect to double your last year's output the coming year. Count on us for our portion of it, for the Aermotor never stood farther above all competitors in reputation and in fact than to-day. SEARS & BARBER, Marengo, Ill., February 26, 1895."

The next Aermotor ad. will be of pumps. We shall offer the three way force pump. All dealers should have it or can get it to sell at that price. All Aermotor men will have it. The week following will appear our advertisement of galvanized steel tanks at [illegible] cents per gallon. They neither shrink, leak, rust, nor make water taste bad. Aermotor Co., Chicago.

Facts About the Moon.

The height of mountains on the moon is measured by the length of the shadows they cast upon the plains.

If you were on the moon, the earth would appear to be sixty-four times larger than the sun does to residents of this planet.

The moon is believed to be the only member of the planetary system which is wholly devoid of the least trace of an atmosphere.

It is estimated that the light of a full moon is at least 300,000 times weaker than sunlight when the "great orb of day" is standing at meridian.

Our moon weighs one-eightieth (1-80th) as much as the earth. No other satellite in the solar system exceeds one one-thousandth (1-1000) of the weight of its planet.

The 132,856 "craters" which have been discovered on the moon, and which have long been supposed to be extinct volcanic flues, and now believed to have been caused by a bombardment of aerolites.

The month of February, 1866, was known among the lovers of the curious in nature as the "moonless" month, from the fact of its having no full moon. This cannot possibly occur more frequently than once each twelve and a half years, or eight times in a century.

The moon is not so small as some people have imagined. A recent astronomical calculation attributes to its surface an area fully as great as that of Africa and Austria combined.

The most powerful telescope now in use magnifies 2,000 diameters. As the moon is 240,000 miles from the earth, it is thus, to all intents and purposes, brought to within 120 miles of our world.—Popular Science Monthly.

Origin of the Word "Dun."

"Dun" is a word whose meaning is now known to every one who understands the English language. About the beginning of the century a constable in England named John Dun became celebrated as a first class collector of bad accounts. When others would fail to collect a bad debt, Dun would be sure to get it out of the debtor. It soon passed into a current phrase that when a person owed money and did not pay when asked, he would have to be "Dunned."

Hence it soon became so common in such cases to say: "You will have to Dun So-and-so if you wish to collect your money."

"I am going to marry an armless girl." "Why?" "Because it costs so much for sleeves nowadays."

What a Blessing

it is to have strong nerves, and how many are denied it. They to whom nature has been niggard in this respect can enjoy nerve vigor and quietude if they use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of the finest nervines and tonics in existence. Dyspepsia, a prolific source of nerve inquietude, is invariably overcome by this genial medicine, which is also potent as a remedy for malarial and kidney trouble and constipation.

The religion that costs nothing is worth just that much.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

Chief Hazen, of the secret service, received information from Cincinnati stating that about a ton's weight of show bills belonging to the "Green Goods Man" theatrical company had been seized. The bills and posters contained cuts in imitation of a $5 national bank note in violation of the law.

Secretary Herbert has replied to the protest of the San Francisco chamber of commerce against the withdrawal of the coast defense vessel Monterey from her duty as guardian of the Golden Gate. He says the cruise of the Monterey along the Pacific coast south of the United States will not be permanent, and that the vessel may be expected to return there before next winter.

The Vanderbilt Benevolent Association of Charleston, S. C., has extended an invitation to the Washington correspondents to visit Greenville on May 26th, to witness the decoration of the grave of Rev. R. N. Wells, D. D., of the Methodist Episcopal church south. The committee in charge of the excursion has been compelled to decline the invitation, as the party will not leave Washington for the south until May 27th.

The president has selected, under the provisions of the sundry civil appropriation bill, the following persons as a board so investigate and report upon the feasibility, permanence and expense of the Nicaragua canal on the route proposed by the construction company: From the army, Major William Ludlow, corps of engineers; from the navy, Commander U. T. Endicott, civil engineer; from civil life, Albert Noble, of Chicago, of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Comptroller Eckels has closed up two banks—the First National bank of Revena, Neb., and the First National bank of Dublin, Tex. Bank Examiner Howry was placed in charge of the former and Bank Examiner Gannon of the latter bank. Both banks were small ones, each having a capital of $50,000. The Ravena, Neb., bank closed because of bad condition. The Dublin, Tex., bank because it has been endeavoring to liquidate its indebtedness since 1894 without success.

Farmers' Bulletin.

The United States department of agriculture has issued a special "Farmers' Bulletin," (No. 21,) on "Barnyard Manure," prepared by W. H. Beal, of the office of experiment stations, which is of special interest and value to farmers in the south at this time on account of their inability or indisposition to buy commercial fertilizers for the benefit of their crops, but is of permanent value as well. The bulletin is in fact a pamphlet of thirty-one pages, containing all that an intelligent farmer wants to know in regard to the collection, value, composition, management, preservation, application and effects of barnyard manure, with much other useful information on the subject which cannot be specified here. It can be obtained free of cost by application to the secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Annual Report of the Librarian.

The annual report of Librarian Spofford of the congressional library for 1894 will soon be printed. It shows that during the year 62,762 copyrights were entered against 58,956 for 1893 and that 40,208 copyright publications of all kinds were received. Of the publications received about 14,000 were books, 15,000 musical compositions, 10,000 periodicals and 5,000 photographs, while the remainder were made up of dramatic compositions, engravings, chromos, prints, designs, maps and charts. Mr. Spofford says there has has been a steady though not rapid progress in the extension of international copyrights. This has not hitherto been so largely availed of by foreign authors as was anticipated on the passage of the copyright law in 1891. There has however, been a very large copyright protection extended by it to German, French and English musical compositions as well as to finer classes of works or graphic art such as line engravings, photographs and half-tone productions of the art of illustration.

What is Second Class Matter?

The third assistant postmaster general, Mr. Kerr Craig, is very busy at present trying to determine what is second class mail matter. The well known position of Postmaster General Bissell on the subject of second class matter and his resolution to draw the line between legitimate newspapers and periodicals and those which are published for advertising purposes solely, has induced postmasters to draw the lines more tightly, and more publications are rejected than formerly, or if admitted made subject to review by the department. The result is that publishers and attorneys for publishers have been frequenting the department, presenting their side of the case, and arguing for the admission of their publications without restrictions. All these matters come before the third assistant postmaster general for final determination, and just at the present time there are an unusually large number of cases pending.

Public Debt Increase for March.

The monthly treasury statement of the public debt shows that on March 30, 1895, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $908,730,046, an increase for the month of $18,137,105. The amount of the new 4 per cent bonds issued during the month was $28,807,900. Following is a recapitulation of the debt:

Interest bearing debt, $713,851,960, increase during the month, $28,808,100; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,770,250, decrease during the month, $9,050; debt bearing no interest, $381,787,366, decrease during the month, $762,270. Total debt, $1,664,591,749, of which $567,944,442 are certificates and treasury notes offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury. The treasury cash is classified as [illegible] $510,259,879; paper, $131,267,047; general account, disbursing officers' balance, etc., $16,224,166; total, $797,237,589, against which there are demand liabilities amounting to $609,320,328, leaving a cash balance of $187,917,261, of which $19,643,307 is gold reserve.

Watching Yellow Jack.

The authorities charged with the conduct of quarantine matters and general supervision of the public health are keeping a sharp lookout to prevent importation of yellow fever into the United States. The care that is being exercised by all quarantine officials is illustrated by the action of New York officials last Sunday in ordering the vessel Portuguese Prince back to quarantine for disinfection because one of her firemen had died under suspicious circumstances before the vessel touched at Santos—this, too, in the face of a clean bill of health by the quarantine officials of that port and of the United States consul. The regular quarantine season begins May 1st. All quarantine stations are thoroughly equipped and each in charge of a physician of experience and an assisting force that has dealt with fever in the past. The three large quarantine stations are as follows: South Atlantic station, at Blackbeards island, Sapelo sound, near Aberdeen, Ga.; gulf stations at Ship island, off Biloxi, Miss., and Key West station, at Dry Tortugas.

There is also a very complete station at Brunswick, Ga., but it does not compare in point of equipment and ability to care for yellow fever ships with the three just named.

The insurrection in Cuba causes a condition of affairs unpleasant for the health officials to consider. Marine hospital officials declare that the shipment of several thousand new Spanish troops into Cuba at this season of the year, non-acclimated, is bound to precipitate an epidemic of yellow fever, the ill effects of which must, in a degree, more or less severe, be felt in this country. They also fear that Cuban towns, especially Havana, will be overrun with country people seeking to escape the contending forces engaged in continuing or suppressing the insurrection, and that as a consequence, sanitary precautions will be even more neglected than before. Plans are being perfected by Surgeon General Wyman to meet any contingency.

THE G. S. & F. SOLD.

Purchased by the Bondholders for $3,000,000.

The Georgia Southern and Florida railroad was sold at Macon, Ga., Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock under order of the court. The upset price, $3,000,000, was bid by the bondholders' committee, and that was the only bid made.

Mr. J. L. Hardeman, acting as special commissioner, put the road up for sale. A bid of $3,000,000 was made by Mr. Skipworth Wilmer, the attorney for the bondholders' committee, and the property was knocked down to him. Mr. Wilmer had previously put up a certified check for $50,000 as required by the order of the court.

The first mortgage bonds of the road amount to $3,420,000. It will be necessary for the court to confirm the sale. The court will convene on April 15, and at that time the judge will pass upon the sale.

This is the third time the road has been put up on the block, the last time, about two weeks ago, the upset price was $3,750,000 and there was no bid made. The property is said to be worth about $5,000,000 and it is thought to be the purpose of the bondholders who bid it in, to sell it to the Seaboard Air Line. There is about $100,000 due on the road for court costs and attorneys' fees.

THE ADVANCE A SHAM.

Coke Workers Are Excited Because Their Rents Are Raised.

A dispatch from Uniontown, Pa., says: The coke workers were greatly excited Tuesday when informed that the rents of the company's houses had been advanced from 30 to 40 per cent, and the talk of a general strike throughout the region is general. The men claim that the recent advance of 16 per cent in wages, which went into effect Monday, was only a ruse to prevent a strike, as they will not be benefitted in the least by it. A convention will be held to consider the matter.

Old Wages Restored.

A little more than a year ago the Globe iron works at Cleveland, O., made a cut of 10 per cent in wages. Last Wednesday notices were posted in the works announcing a restoration to the old rate. The Cleveland Shipbuilding Company has reached an agreement with its employes and they are all back at work again. This summer will see a big improvement over conditions that existed a year ago.

The Value of Prayer.

The value of prayer not often is fixed in dollars and cents, but a Texas farmer is credited with such an operation. The story is told by Rev. S. H. Thrall, one of the pioneers of Methodism in Texas. In company with a number of itinerants who were on their way to conference, Dr. Thrall stopped to spend the night with an old farmer. It was the custom then to settle the bill at night, so that they might rise at 3 o'clock and ride a good way before breakfast, and lie by in the heat of the day. Dr. Thrall acting as spokesman of the party, said to the old farmer after supper:

"We are a company of Methodist preachers going to conference. If you will get the family together we will have prayers with you."

After prayers one by one settled his bill. Dr. Thrall's turn came, and he asked for his bill. The old farmer replied:

"Well, pa'son, I charged the rest 25 cents, but bein' as you prayed for us so good, I won't charge you but 20 cents."

The brethren had the laugh on Dr. Thrall.—Epworth Era.

The Age for Marrying.

"If things keep on this way we won't have any grandfathers and grandmothers in fifty years," observed a man who had been running his eyes along the list of "marriage licenses."

"Look here, in this list of thirty-four licenses all but two of the men are more than 22 years old, and all but two of the woman are above 18. It would seem that the average age of a groom these days is 30, while the bride is but two or three years younger.

He ran over the ages and found that the average age of the groom was 28 and of the bride 27.

"Now, what does that mean?" he continued. "A man does not marry until he is 30. If he has sons and daughters they will not reach the marrying age until he is at least 60, and if he hopes to see his grandchildren grow up he must live to be at least 80 or 90.

"In the country where I was born people married young, and it wasn't uncommon to have grandmothers who were less than 40 years old. But if 30 is to be the marrying age in Chicago we will at least have to get along without great-grandfathers." — Chicago Record.

Don't Write on Beech Trees.

A novel piece of evidence was introduced recently in a breach of promise case in Bavaria. The defendant obstinately denied the charge, and stated that his accuser had nothing to show to prove her statement. The latter, a buxom village maiden, asked one day to be permitted to bring in her evidence. The court granted her request, and adjourned until 10 o'clock the next day. At the appointed time she was on hand, and upon the query of the judge where her evidence was, she opened the door and four lumbermen brought in a tree trunk, upon the bark of which her faithless adorer had incised both their initials with a flaming heart! She won her case.—Troy Times.

A YOUNG GIRL'S TRIALS.

NERVOUS TROUBLES END IN ST. VITUS' DANCE.

Physicians Powerless—The Story Told by the Child's Mother.

(From the Reporter, Somerset, Ky.)

Among the foot hills of the Cumberland Mountains, near the town of Flat Rock, is the happy home of James McPherron. Four months ago the daughter of the family, a happy girl of sixteen, was stricken with St. Vitus' dance. The leading physicians were consulted, but without avail. She grew pale and thin under the terrible nervous strain and was fast losing her mental powers. In fact the thought of placing her in an asylum was seriously considered. Her case has been so widely talked about that the report of her cure was like modernizing a miracle of old. To a reporter who visited the home the mother said:

"Yes, the reports of my daughter's sickness and cure are true as you hear them. Her affliction grew into St. Vitus' dance from an aggravated form of weakness and nervous trouble peculiar to her sex. Every source of help was followed to the end, but it seemed that physicians and medicine were powerless. Day by day she grew worse until we despaired of her life. At times she almost went into convulsions. She got so that we had to watch her to keep her from wandering away, and you can imagine the care she was.

"About this time, when our misery was greatest and all hope had fled, I read of another case, almost similar, that had been cured by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost in desperation I secured some of the pills and from that day on the wonderful work of restoration commenced; the nervousness left, her cheeks grew bright with the color of health, she gained flesh and grew strong both mentally and physically until to-day she is the very picture of good health and happiness.

"It is no wonder that I speak in glowing terms of Pink Pills to every ailing person I meet. They saved my daughter's life and I am grateful."

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A K. of P. on Car-Sickness.

"Many people complain that the high speed of some of our railroad trains makes them as sick as though they were at sea," said a traveling man the other day. "I don't know how that may be, but I know I was on a train last August that made a record for the South and I did not even realise that we were moving faster than usual. It was a run from Jacksonville to Washington on the Plant and Atlantic coast line systems, by a special Knights of Pythias train, and we did the 778 miles in 880 minutes, and, as I said before, we hardly knew we were making such time. It isn't pace that makes people sick, it's bad tracks and poor rolling stock. Make one sick indeed! Why, such travelling as that on the Plant system is [illegible] luxury."—The Press, New York, Jan. [illegible]

Children's Rights.

If a child has any sensibility, scolding either kills it or makes it vicious. Children have rights which ought to be respected as much as with their elders. They can reason as well as older and wiser heads. They are as quick to see an injustice and know as well as any one else when parents are making fools of themselves. The household of a noted dramatist in New York is said to be a democracy. The voice of the youngest child in it is as potent as that of a parent.

This is a rare incident of the recognition of children's rights, and while it might not prove successful if generally applied, owing to parental incapacity, who can say that it is not a plan of wisdom and one that in many cases might work wonders of domestic harmony? While oftentimes children have been ruined by indulgence, they have frequently been spoiled with "discipline."

Children were never designed for nonentities, a fact in proof of which the omnipresent small boy stands out with monumental prominence. While children can be allowed to become a nuisance by the laxity of parents, they can, on the other hand, be oppressed until they become atrophied in mind and heart and soul.—Albany Journal.

The Bishop's Laboratory Beer.

The laboratory that supplies Bishop Fallow's home-brewed, non-alcoholic beer is working overtime in order to keep up with the demand. The drink, as described by a connoisseur, tastes like old-fashioned "yarb tea," and appears to be a preparation of roots, herbs, barks and gums, such as the grandmothers of the present generation used to give to "clean out the system" after an attack of boils, carbuncles or spring fever. There is a general feeling that Bishop Fallows would not spring any unwholesome or unrighteous beverage on a trusting community, and the Home saloon is doing a tremendous business.—Chicago Tribune.

TAX ACT IS DEFECTIVE.

Declared Unconstitutional in Its Most Important Features.

NO TAX CAN BE COLLECTED ON BONDS OR RENTS.

THE ENTIRE ACT ESCAPES ONLY BY A TIE VOTE.

Justices White and Field Dissent in Regard to Essential Features.

Chief Justice Fuller announced the decision of the United States supreme court in the income tax cases Monday. He began by stating the exceptions to the law as made by counsel for the appellant as follows:

1. That the act imposes a direct tax in respect of the real estate, rents, issues and profits of personal property and not being apportioned is in violation of section two of article one of the constitution.

2. That the law, if not imposing a direct tax, is nevertheless unconstitutional in that its provisions are not uniform throughout the United States and do not operate with the same force and effect upon the subject of the tax wherever found, and in that it provides in favor of individuals and co-partnerships, while denying all exemptions to corporations having similar incomes derived from like property and values and provides for other exemptions and inequalities in violation of section eight of article one of the constitution.

3. That the act provides no exemption of the tax upon incomes derived from the stocks and bonds of states of the United States and counties and municipalities therein, which stocks and bonds are not proper subjects for the taxing power of congress. The income from these securities in the United States amounts to over $65,000,000 per annum, on which the total annual income tax would be $1,300,000.

CONSTITUTIONAL POINTS INVOLVED.

He then took up the constitutional points involved, dwelling upon the fact that the constitution required the appointment of direct taxes and uniformity in excises and imposts. He also dwelt upon the question of representation and taxation, which was, he said, a foremost one when the constitution was adopted.

He then took up the question of the tax on rents, and in so doing discussed at considerable length the question of direct taxes as considered at the time of the framing of the constitution.

The framers of the constitution were, he said, well versed in the government of the colonies and of European countries, and were well versed in the literature of the period, including works on political economy and were well calculated to pass intelligently on this kind.

He quoted various supreme court decisions and sought to show that while the income tax question had been before the court, the question had only been considered as applying to the point at issue in the particular cases.

THE TAX DURING THE WAR.

Coming down to the present tariff act, he said that the law was passed in a time of profound peace and it was to be taken as evidence that congress had sought in this matter to form a precedent and establish a departure from established lines, and it, therefore, became important to inquire into the circumstances with some attention to detail. For the purpose of comparison, he went back to the enactment of an income tax during the civil war. He quoted from the decision in the Springer case, giving a history of the case and devoting much attention to it, as he said that it was upon this case that the defense had apparently relied more generally than any precedent. Is it, he said, conceded in all the cases from Hylton to Springer that taxes on land are direct taxes, while in some of them it is determined that taxes on rents, derived from land, are indirect taxes. Was there, he asked, any distinction between a tax on the land or the income derived from the land! What, in other words, was the land but profit on it? The name of the tax is unimportant, and the court had been unable to see any distinction. He closed by saying that the court had reached the conclusion that the tax on rents was invalid.

The chief justice then took up the question of the taxation of municipal and state bonds. The decision was also adverse to this part of the law as repugnant to the constitution.

On the other points, the court was divided and, therefore, no opinion could be given.

Summing Up the Points.

The conclusions of the court were stated as follows:

1. That by the constitution federal taxation is divided into two great classes—direct taxes and duties, imposts and excises.

2. That the imposition of direct taxes is governed by the rule of apportionment among the several states, according to numbers, and the imposition of duties, imposts and excises by the rule of uniformity throughout the United States.

3. That the principle that taxation and representation go together was intended to be and was prescribed in the constitution by the establishment of the rule of apportionment among the several states, so that such apportionment should be according to numbers in each state.

4. That the states surrendered their power to levy imposts and to regulate commerce to to the general government and gave it the concurrent power to levy direct taxes in reliance on the protection afforded by the rules prescribed, and that the compromises of the constitution cannot be disturbed by legislative action.

5. That these conclusions result from the text of the constitution and are supported by the historical evidence furnished by the circumstances surrounding the framing and adoption of that instrument, and the views of those who framed and adopted it.

6. That the understanding and expectation at the time of the adoption of the constitution was that direct taxes would not be levied by the general government except under the pressure of extraordinary exigency, and such has been the practice down to August 15, 1894. If the power to do so is to be exercised as an ordinary and usual means of supply, that fact furnishes an additional reason for circumspection in disposing of the present case.

7. That taxes on real estate belong to the class of direct taxes, and that the taxes on the rent or income of real estate, which is the incident of its ownership, belong to the same class.

8. That by no previous decision of this court has this question been adjudicated to the contrary of the conclusions now announced. That so much of the act of August 15, 1894, as attempts to impose a tax upon the rent or income of real estate without apportionment is invalid.

A SHOWER OF FIRE.

Redhot Balls Fall From the Clouds in Florida.

A terrible electric storm passed over Tarpon Springs, Fla., Monday noon, and there occurred a grand and yet terrible phenomena. At that hour a blazing bolt about as large as a man's head descended from the clouds and struck a telephone wire near the center of the town. When the bolt struck a terrific explosion followed that shattered glass in the windows of houses two blocks distant.

Immediately following the descent of this bolt came a perfect shower of balls of fire about the size of walnuts. This rain of fire was general over the town and continued for probably ten minutes. The balls resembled molten iron and spattered when they came in contact with the earth. Several roofs of houses on which the balls fell were ignited, but the flames were extinguished by rain, which began to fall heavily. Probably fifty people were severely shocked during the progress of the electric rain. While the balls of fire were falling a strong smell of sulphur pervaded the atmosphere. The places where the balls struck look as if iron had recently been fused there. The greatest terror prevailed during the rain of fire. Many people thought the judgment day had come.

WILDE ON TRIAL.

The Æsthete and His Accomplice in the Dock Together.

Oscar Wilde and Alfred Taylor were arraigned for examination in the Bow street police court at London Thursday morning. Wilde was defended by commoner Clarke, who announced that he would not cross-examine any of the witnesses until they testified at the trial of the charges against Wilde. Counsel for Alfred Taylor examined the young man Parker, who admitted that he had been guilty of heinous offenses with many persons besides Wilde. Parker also admitted that he had recovered £20 from persons whose pursuit it was to extort money from gentlemen.

A young man named Atkins was called to the witness stand. In 1892, he said, Wilde had asked him to go to Paris with him as his secretary. He went to Paris with Wilde and remained there a few days. They dined together in splendid style. By Wilde's order he wore his hair curled. He denied that any misconduct had occurred between them. Wilde had given him a silver cigarette case, costing £3 and asked him not to mention the visit to Paris.

In reply to a question by the magistrate, Atkins said he had acted as Wilde's secretary for about half an hour when he was engaged in writing some letters about Wilde's play, "A Woman of No Importance."

A witness named Sherley related the circumstances of his dining with Wilde in 1892. Afterwards they had some wine together in a private room, when Wilde kissed him and flattered him, calling him a "clever fellow" and the like. He remained with Wilde throughout that night. Subsequently he had written to Wilde asking him to terminate their friendship. It is reported Wilde has been ill since his confinement in jail.

FREE COINAGE RESOLUTION

Introduced in the Tennessee Legislature.

The following resolution, which lies over, was introduced in the Tennessee legislature Wednesday:

"Whereas, The financial distress now prevailing throughout the union at a time when there is no lack of industry or enterprise, emphasizes the necessity for financial legislation at our nation's capital; and,

"Whereas, It is against the material interests of the people of Tennessee to perpetuate a financial policy that continues to depreciate property and appreciate money and promises to pay; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the forty-ninth general assembly of the state of Tennessee, that the congress of the United States of America be, and are hereby requested, to enact such legislation as will provide for the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1."

Official cable advices received at Washington from the Colombian government announce the complete subjection of the rebellion and the restoration of a normal condition of peace in all of the departments of the confederation. Sporadic cases of guerilla attacks in the mountainous districts are still to be expected and statements of these may reach the coast in a highly exaggerated condition, leading to reports of engagements, or even battles, but the telegraph lines are again in operation and commerce and business have been resumed throughout the country.

A KENTUCKY DUEL.

State Senator Goebel Shoots Cashier Sanford.

At Covington, Ky., Thursday afternoon State Senator W. P. Goebel shot and killed Cashier John Sanford, of the Farmers and Traders' bank. Senator Goebel, accompanied by Attorney General Hendricks, of Kentucky, and Frank Helm, president of the First National bank, was en route to the bank. When they reached the door there stood Sanford. He shook hands with Hendricks, using his left hand. Then he asked Goebel if he wrote an article attacking him. Goebel answered, "I did."

Immediately Sanford fired, the ball passing through Goebel's trousers. Quick as a flash Goebel leveled his revolver and fired. To do so he had to place the pistol beneath Helm's chin. The ball crashed through Sanford's forehead, who fell in the doorway of the bank, blood oozing from his fatal wound.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The treasury department has issued to all income tax collectors a series of supplemental instructions to conform to the recent decision of the supreme court.

An intimation of the aggressive fight which the new silver party will make for the white metal is found in the announcement made Tuesday that the ex-Congressman Joe Sibley, of Pennsylvania; Senator Sewart, of Nevada, and General Warner, president of the bimetallic league, will go to Colorado next week to open the campaign in that state.

The Income Tax Puzzle.

The treasury officials, in the absence of the full text of the supreme court decision in the income law, are still groping in the dark as to its exact meaning, and have, therefore, been unable to send out supplemental instructions to collectors as to how the act, that still remains, shall be carried out. Collectors will have to be guided until they receive official instructions by their own best judgment. Many telegraphic inquiries, both from internal revenue officials and private parties, are being received at the treasury, and are being answered as well as they can be with the existing light. It is admitted on all hands, as the matter is more closely studied, that much confusion must necessarily arise from the elimination of mental receipts from the returns, as this exception will affect cognate questions. Commissioner Miller is devoting his entire time to straightening out the tangle and hopes to have comprehensive supplemental instructions ready for issuance at the earliest moment possible.

To Prevent "Yellow Jack."

The authorities charged with the conduct of quarantine matters and the general supervision of the public health, are keeping a sharp lookout to prevent the importation of yellow fever into the United States. The care that is being exercised by all the quarantine officials is illustrated by the action of the New York officials in ordering the Portugese Prince back to quarantine for disinfection because a fireman had died under suspicious circumstances before the vessel touched at Santos. This, too, in the face of a clean bill of health by the quarantine officials of that port and the United States consul. The regular quarantine season begins the first of May. All quarantine stations are being thoroughly equipped, and each of the three ports of refuge for stricken vessels are under the charge of a physician of experience, and an assisting force that has dealt with fever in the past. The insurrection in Cuba causes a condition of affairs unpleasant for health officers to consider. Marine office officials declare that the shipment of several thousand new Spanish troops into Cuba at this season of the year, non-acclimated, is bound to precipitate an epidemic of fever, the ill effects of which must, in a degree more or less severe, be felt in this country. They also fear that Cuban towns, especially Havana, will be overrun with country people seeking to escape the contending forces engaged in continuing or suppressing the insurrection, and that as a consequence the sanitary precautions will be even more neglected than before. Plans are being perfected by Surgeon General Wyman to meet any contingency.

The Tax Law Scuttled.

The income tax law has been scuttled by the supreme court of the United States, which handed down a decision Monday, declaring it unconstitutional in two of its main features.

The landlords of the country are exempted from an income tax and the owners of bonds of almost every kind, federal, state, county and municipal, are also let out.

But the manufacturer and the salaried employe will, for the present at least, be compelled to pay 2 per cent on all incomes in excess of $4,000 a year.

The holes made in the income tax law are so fatal as to necessitate either its repeal or its material amendment, as the people of the country will hardly care to see the large capitalists and trust companies absolutely protected, while the poor men, comparatively speaking, are forced to contribute to run national government.

The question whether the ruling out of incomes derived from rents would make the whole law unconstitutional was decided in the negative by a divided court, for the reason that when the court is divided on a question it is neither affirmed nor reversed, but stands as it is. This leaves the law to stand as enacted, except as to the two points mentioned. The decision will relieve from tax an enormous amount of current money. Every man who pays rent will pay an income tax on his gross revenue and can make no deduction for what he pays his landlord, and the landlord will enjoy the money free from all responsibility of contributing to the federal revenues.

The insurance companies and great combinations of capitalists which control thousands of business blocks and the great sky scrapers, can receive their rents and disburse them free of taxation. The men who own farms or city property bringing in incomes which may be many times the amount exempted, will, under the decision of the court, be entitled to deduct from their gross revenue every penny received from their tenants.

The decision also practically exempts the bondholder class of the country from all income tax. United States bonds are specially exempted by the provisions of the law itself. Now, under the decision of the supreme court, every man receiving incomes from state or municipal bonds may deduct that the return made to the internal revenue officers, and it is easy to see that in a great majority of cases capitalists who may be worth millions of dollars, after deducting the revenue they derive from real estate and federal, state, county and municipal bonds, will not pay the government a dollar of tax.

The total combined debt of the states and territories, less the sinking fund, is $1,135,210,442, and the interest on this enormous sum, which is estimated at about $55,000,000, is all exempted from taxation.

The income tax, will, therefore, fall largely on the working and producing classes. The business men and the manufacturer and the salaried employe will pay the tax on all incomes over $4,000.

The decision will entirely upset Secretary Carlisle's estimate as to the financial situation between now and the day congress meets, but there is enough of the law left in all probability to keep the treasury running until December.

LANSING MAKES APOLOGY,

But Says His Information Came From Reliable Sources.

Rev. I. J. Lansing, whose references to the president in his address before the New England conference at Salem, Mass., provoked extended criticism, gives out the following statement:

"My allusion made in a temperance address at Salem on Thursday, April 4th, to the drinking habits of the president of the United States was based partly on common report and partly on the testimony of eye-witnesses. From various independent sources, which I believe to be wholly reliable, I had been informed that the president had been seen on different occasions and in the presence of many persons in an intoxicated condition.

"From the substantial and detailed character of these statements I supposed there was no doubt as to the facts alleged. I therefore made this allusion as a matter of common report, basing my confidence on the testimony of personal, and as I supposed, credible witnesses.

"The names of these witnesses obviously I cannot with propriety reveal, since, sharing their knowledge in common with many others, they might justly shrink from being singled out and called to verify that of which not only they, but others equally with themselves, had ocular proof.

"I must, therefore, say that if my statement reproducing such testimony is not in harmony with facts, I regret having made it. I could have neither desire nor motive for saying anything unkind or uncharitable of the president or of any party whatsoever. The case being one of conflict of testimony between witnesses of equal credibility, I cannot decide, and since I have no personal knowledge apart from the testimony, I withdraw the statement and tender apologies and sincere regrets to the president of the United States and to the public.
I. J. LANSING.

"Boston, April 8, 1895."

FURTHER PROCEEDINGS

Will be Taken in the Attempt to Overthrow the Income Tax.

Since the delivery of the income tax decision, attorneys and others interested in overthrowing the tax have taken steps to test various parts of the law in further proceedings. Attacks will be made both on those portions that were sustained by a tie vote, and on some fresh points not passed upon upon in the particular cases decided Monday.

Attorney J. M. Wilson, who represented John G. Moore in the court of appeals in the recent cases, says that further proceedings will be taken immediately.

"Several parts of the law will be attacked," said he, "the principal one being the exemption from taxation of incomes under $4,000 annually. This will be attacked as an unjust discrimination. I cannot say just yet who the complainants or what the titles of the suits will be, but they will be instituted very soon, probably within a few days, and be pushed as rapidly as possible."

What the President Says.

The president, on being asked whether in view of the decision of the supreme court on the income tax law, an extra session of congress would be called, said that neither he nor the secretary of the treasury saw any necessity for such action and that unless there was an unexpected change in conditions he had no idea that congress would meet again before the time appointed for the regular session.

English Opinions of the Decision.

The London Globe, referring to the supreme court of the United States as to the constitutionality of the income tax, says: "Every man in this country will regret that there is no supreme court of the American variety here. Never in all the long history of the English bench have they soared to the heights of liberty reached by the American judges yesterday. It is quite impossible to establish such a tribunal here."

The St. James Gazette comments on the supreme court decision in a similar strain, and adds: "No one has suggested that this august tribunal can be bribed in the manner familiar to litigants in some of the inferior courts of the union. Still, it is significant that the politics of the various judges are carefully mentioned in the dispatches."

THE ADVANCE IN BEEF

Brings Out Some Explanations From the Big Packers.

The story telegraphed from New York to a Chicago morning paper that the recent advance in beef was not justified, and that the big Chicago packers were making an effort to control the meat market of the country and advance prices to consumers, is emphatically denied by Nelson Morris, George F. Swift, Armour & Company and other packers.

"The advance in the price of dressed beef," said Nelson Morris, "is the natural result of the scarcity of cattle. Already this year the receipts of cattle at the four principal points—Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha and Kansas City—are 300,000 head behind last year's record. Last week the receipts were 29,000 head short, which is equal to 16,000,000 pounds of dressed beef. We are 16,000 head short already this week. The price of live stock is now $2 per hundred pounds higher than it was last year, and I expect to see prices go still higher."

Mr. Swift also denied that there was a combine among the packers, and said the cattle market was 30 per cent higher now than it was last year, which fact is advancing the price of beef to consumers.

Manager Favorite, of Philip D. Armour & Co., said the statement that a pool had been formed by the big western packers to advance the price of beef was absurd. "It is scarcely worth denying," said he. "The only causes for the high price of beef are the scarcity of cattle and the failure of the corn crop. The latter is, of course, the cause of the former. We are not working for the interest of other packers—that is certain. Besides, it would be impossible to form a pool of the kind alleged, if desired, so great is the diversity of interests among the western packers. Last Saturday's receipts were the lowest I have ever known them—only five hundred head. I do not know anything about other markets, but one has only to use his eyes to see how things are going here."

EIGHT CONDITIONS

PROPOSED BY JAPAN IN ORDER TO MAKE PEACE.

Seven of Them Have Been Accepted by Li Hung Chang.

The cable announcement that seven of Japan's eight conditions have been accepted by Peace Commissioner Li Hung Chang, is very gratifying to diplomats in Washington, who have no longer any doubt that a peace proclamation will speedily result. As understood, the eight conditions were as follows:

1. Independence of Corea.
2. Cession of Formosa.
3. Cession of Liau-Tong, promontory, including Port Arthur.
4. War indemnity.
5. Admission of machinery into China and permission to foreigners to establish factories.
6. Modification of the likin tax and an extension of the system of transit passes for imports.
7. Opening of certain Chinese rivers to commerce, including the Yangtse-Kiang to Chung King; Siang, from Hankow, on the Yangtse, to Siang-Tan-Kiang; Canton river to Ouchow, and Woosung and its canals as far as Suchow and Hang-Chow.
8. Railway privileges and similar concessions to Japanese and foreign capitalists.

In addition to these conditions it is believed that certain promises will be exacted from China, the terms of which are to remain secret. The condition which it is thought has not yet been accepted by Li Hung is that numbered three in the above, providing for occupation of the portion of the territory known as Regents Sword and the citadel of Port Arthur. That this would be most strenuously opposed by China has all along been undoubted and it has been predicted that it might prove a stumbling block of such dimensions as to prevent peace, unless some compromise could be agreed upon as to the length of occupation, the Chinese being likely to insist that it should not be permanent.

All other conditions except that of indemnity have been subjects of diplomatic consideration for many years, and all treaty powers are as deeply interested in them as Japan has been. The United States has been particularly active in urging the likin tax, which is not unlike the octrol of France, though less reasonable and less limited than the French system.

The independence of Corea has always been a contention, and the United States has firmly maintained that Corea was to be treated as an independent nation, since her minister at Washington was recognized ten years ago.

SOUTHERN MAY SLASH.

Permission Granted the Company to Cut Rates on Their Lines.

The inter-state commerce commission, in session at Washington, has granted the recent request of the Southern Railway company, that, in order to meet the cut in rates made by the Seaboard Air Line, it be authorized to charge less for a long than for a short haul of passengers. The order of the commission was as follows:

"It is ordered that the prayer of the said petition be, and the same is hereby granted, and said Southern Railway is hereby authorized to charge less for the transportation of passengers for longer than for shorter distances over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance, but only to the extent and upon the conditions following:

"First.—Such high rates for shorter distances shall not in any case exceed the lower rates for longer distances by more than $5.00.

"Second.—Such lower rates for long distances shall not in any case be less than those previously published by the Seaboard Air Line or competing carriers between the same points.

"Third.—Such lower rates for longer distances shall not in any case be less than the cost of the service rendered.

"This order is hereby declared to be temporary and provisional, pending further investigation by the commission, and the same may be modified or revoked at any time, and with or without notice, in the discretion of the commission."

CLANTON ALA. APL. 18th 1895

We present our readers with the list of grand and petit jurors. So far as we are acquainted they are men who will strive to do their duty.

Mr J. M. Collins of Srtasburg was carried to Montgomery last week and placed under bond on a charge of running a blind tiger. We trus that the facts will prove him innocent of such a charge.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

One of the County Commissioners of Jefferson county is accused of seeking to doctor the Grand Jury in behalf of a gambler who was under bond to await the action of said Jury. None but the truest and best men should be elected as commissioners of any county. They should be me who can neither be bought, bluffed nor flattered into becoming tools in the hands of the designing. We are glad to believe that we have such men in most of the counties of Alabama.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeil and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

The way of the transgressor is hard. The liquor makers and liquor sellers of Clanton, and Chilton county will eventually decide that it does not pay to violate the law and outrage the public morals.

Marshal Dudley captured a still, the property of Steeley Jones near Coopers, and arrested Jones last Sunday morning. A couple of weeks ago a still, along with Will Mims, was captured a few miles east of Clanton. This is the second time Mr. Mims has been arrested in the past few months on the same charge. He is under two bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury. Stills must be cheap and whiskey making profitable or one would not risk so much. All good citizens must lend a helping hand to de try th s [illegible]

"The love of money" surely "is the root of all evil." else men of otherwise good moral characters would never be willing to lend their influence toward debauching a community by selling liquor, !

Abraham Lincoln had the true idea about the granduer and dignity of the law. Cheerful obedience to the laws of our country is one of the things which ennoble a people.

Lincoln and Law.

Here is what Abraham Lincoln said of the law: "Let reverence of be breathed by every mother to the lisping babe that prattles in her lap; let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in the primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit and proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice; in short, let it become the politcal religion of the nation."

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sims Bros, Leeds Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeil and Smith Jemison, Ala.

THE LAWYER.

To be a Great Lawyer one Must be a Great and Good Man.

T. Fletcher Dennis, in the American Journal of Politics.

There is a French proverb that "a good lawyer is always a bad neighbor," because, presumable, he is "considered as boding ill to the harmony of the settlement."

This view is not, however, often taken seriously in the present day.

A bad lawyer is still, no doubt, always a bad neighbor, but to be a great lawyer one must be a great and good man. His moral standpoint cannot be too high, for his duty calls him into all the shifting scenes of life, where dishonesty can most easily be concealed. It is said that a man will give something to save his soul, will give much to save his life, but will give anything to save his property; and bys somuch this is true does the lawyer, more than the clergyman or the physician, keep the conscience of his client. The lawyer hears his secrets and reads his inmost thought and the law itself forbids him to betray the knowledge thus obtained. He is sought by the widow and the orphan; he stands between the helpless or the timid and those who would oppress them. When the culprit stands before the bar of earthly justice, the lawyer steadies the hand that holds the scales.

Not only in the active scenes of life is the lawyer a participant, but when the sands run low he is called with confidence, to commit to legal form the last mortal wish of the departing—to preserve his earthly possessions the objects of his affection. And if the sojourner go beyond, leaving no written expression of his will, he leaves to the law and lawyers the disposition of his estate. More solemn responsibilities than these are not, and truly the law employs, in its theory the noblest faculties of the soul and exacts, in its practice, the cardinal virtues of the heart.''

In his capacity as counselor, the lawyer's moral obligation is very prominent. Litigation is an evil. To prevent litigation is often the lawyer's highest duty and most useful function. A client often seeks a lawyer with feelings roused to a pitch of indignation that blinds his eyes to justice, and precludes discriminating judgement. Trifling wrongs are magnified to mountains of oppression, until not justice, but revenge, must satisfy resentment.

Let the lawyer then be calm and temper undue zeal; both parties may be honest, and offensive operations must de delayed. The lawyer's domain is reason not passion; let him be "a light to eyes blinded by hatred to their own interest."

The prospective client is entitled to a candid opinion as to the merits of his case and as to the best course to be pursued, and such opinion he should receive even though it does not suit his fancy.

Equity favors the compromise of doubtful crimes. The law's sharp weapons should not be needlesly resorted to, and should seldom be directed against those who are more unfortunate than culpable.

In every life questions of moral duty arise for daily settlement; paths constantly diverge, and the safe one must hourly and anew be chosen. There is no universal standard; each conscience must settle some things for itself, unaided but by an enlightened understanding. One thing positively, however, a lawyer may never do for his client what the common conscience of mankind would forbid that client to do for himself. He may not espouse the cause of one who seeks to perpetrate a wrong through some chance advantage the law may happen to afford him. But not often, if ever, need a lawyer decline to undertake the defense of the accused.

To secure to him those advantages and safeguards which the law, in mercy, offers him, is permissible and just. If more than this be expected or required, but one honest course is open, to decline peremptorily the proffered employment and forego the longed for fee. Honest men decline opportunities for dishonest gain in every walk in life. However, by declining to espouse a cause because there seems to be a ground for believing the party guilty, the lawyer would usurp the function of both judge and jury. The courts appoint attorneys for accused persons in extremity, and, where the issue is life or death, counsel thus appointed cannot refuse the trust, so jealous is the of the security of its subjects and so averse to judgment against any one unheard. Sharp practice, however, is no part of the lawyer' duty, nor do a client's wishes or instruction afford an excuse for unnecessary or unjust [illegible] this view is held by the courts themselves. Cheif Justice Holt said that one who falsely delays justice is guilty of breaking his official oath; [illegible] cunning and trickery, snappish advantage taken of the mistakes and slips of others, will breed distrust among his fellows of the bar, and inevitably reduce his influence and effectiveness, while at the same time he sullies the fair fame of the profession in the eyes of a watchful public.

WAR IN THE CAMPS.

Day by day the Republicans and Populist in Alabama get a greater distance from each other politically.

The Populists made a mistake in surporting the Republicans in November, and now the Republicans have commenced to attempt to force them to do the same thing again next year.

The following spat between Capt. Kolb's Tribune, and Bob Mosley's Times makes interesting reading matter:

Dr. Moseley interpreted a news item of the Tribune to convey a sentiment in which there was no harm. The Tribune expects to see the negroes of Alabama "organized" under the lead of a white man in the nature of things. Instinct and habit prepare Dr. Moseley for the role of "organizer" in the premises. The initial of the movement was the news of the day, hence the note from these columns.—Peoples Tribune, March 14th.

There it is; let all Republicans read it and remember, The Tribune is supposed to be the mouth-piece of Capt. R. F. Kolb. In two state elections the Republicans have supported him—his paper sees that hereafter the Republicans will not support him or anybody else who is not a Republican. Dr. Mosley believes in the principles of the Republican party, in the civil and political equality of all men; the Tribune does not. When the Republican party supported the JEFFESONIAN DEMOCRAT Capt. R. F. Kolb—no such "flings' were made—but all was lovely and serene—but presto; when the Tribune sees that no longer will Republicans be lead by the Populite string, it rises up and hollers out "negro in the wood pile," just like an organized Democratic paper.

The negroes are Republicans, and have almost to a man supported the Jeffersonian ticket in two state elections—but they will not do it any more, and hence the tumult in the editorial rooms of the Tribune the local Populite paper. No more can Captain Kolb put up a state ticket, and get the support of the Republicans. Happily that day has passed. When 1896 rolls around, we hope to see a triangular fight for the state officers, and the Republican party, when the votes are counted will not be the hindmost—but where will the Tribune and its lilliputian following be? The Republican party helped Captain Kolb to be elected governor twice but for want of courage, perhaps, those victories have proven as barren of fruitful results as Saharan desert is of vegetation.—Biningham Times.

"THE HEART" is the title of an excellent paper lately published. Not until we read this instructive treatise did we have the true conception of how wonderful is the work of the human heart.

We quote by special permission of the author the following from the preface:

"Very few people have ever given the attention to their hearts that this important organ warrants. This wonderful little machine which is not much larger than your hand, and only about two and a half inches thick, labors day and night without rest, performing such an enormous amount of work as to be almost beyond belief. Physiologists say each pulsation, or contration of the heart exerts 50 pounds of force, which amounts to 3,600 a minute, 216,000 an hour, and the inconceivabl number of 5,184,000 in a sinle day! Now, it is necessary that all this vast amount of labor should be done, and well done every day. The health will surely suffer in consequence of the least failure on the part of the heart to properly perform its duties. When it is weak or deranged it directly affects every organ in the human body and they are unable to perform their duties from lack of blood and nerve force. These organs that are more intimately associated with the heart are usually first to feel the effects when it is irregular and fails to perform its proper functions."

This treatise is very artistically illustrated with colored plates, and, although strictly scientific, is written in a popular language, making it very interesting reading for all. The editor of this paper has made special arrangement with the publishers to have this treatise sent free to any reader who sends a postal card and mentions this paper, to

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words; "It cured me right up." He also says A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiel and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S PRIZE ACRE.
$500,00 in Cash for Farmers—A Handsome Reward for the Plows of 1895.

We take pleasure in presenting The Constitution's $500 offer for the farmers of 1895. The prize consists of $100 in cash for the best acre of cotton, corn, tobacco, watermelons or sweet potatoes The announcement is made before the plowing of the crop so as to enable all who will to take part in the contest.

Entries may be made up to June 1st, and by that time every contestant must enter his name with The Constitution and state which acre he will compete for.

In ever circular The Constitution frankly states that the care taken in the preparation of the land, the selection of seeds, and the use of fertilizers, a record of costs and dates of plowing and other cultivation, and a careful record of the heavy rainfalls, the periods of droughts and all the other data, giving the history of the crop from the breaking of the soil to the harvesting, will be an object lesson of vast importance to every contestant, whether he wins the prize or not. This is a practical demonstration that a farm run on the intensive plan by giving careful attention to the thorough cultivation of a few acres properly rather than the poor cultivation of a large area, will be far better than a reduction of farm acreage by resolutions

The offer is made to encourage the raising of home supplies and illustrate the south's great possibilities in agriculture and to stimulate the proper cultivation of every possible acre to add to the independence of the farmer.

The prizes will be awarded by three competent judges, recognized as high authority in agricultural matters.

The terms are breifly these: Every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly Constitution. He must keep a record of The Constitution's acre upon a blank, which will be furnished him free upon application. The contest is open to every southern farmer.

By special arrangement with The Constitution we offer the View with The Weekly Constitution for $1,50 or if you already have our paper, send us $1 and we will send you The Constitution one year. We are pleased to say that our neighbor in Georgia is perhaps the greatest of all American weekly newspapers. Its seventy two columns each week, which will be increased to eighty four shortly, come brim full of the latest news of the world, and many excellent features of special interest to the state, besides its well conducted departments for the farm and the household.

Every subscription recieved through us will entitle the subscriber to enter the prize acre contest as well as to guess in the $2,000 contest, closing May 1st.

This is an extraordinary opportunity to procure two good newspapers for a year, one to supply the county news in the quickest and best possible shape, and the other to bring weekly the news of the world, teeming with political current history, farmers' notes and everything else that will interest every member of the family.

You will find no better season to subscribe nor any greater offer than the present.

Taking Russia's Census in One Day.

In the autumn of the present year the census of the whole of Russia will be taken in one day. For this purpose a committee, consisting of upward of 200 persons, has been working more than two years, and the instructions to the different provinces will be issued shortly. It is believed that in twenty provinces there are now upward of 47,000,000 inhabitants, whereas when the census was taken in 1860 in the same districts there were 30,000,000. It is supposed that the greatest increase of population has taken place in the provinces of Kieff, Poltava, Kharkoff, Tamboff, Samara and Viatka and in the towns of Kieff Kharkoff, Odessa, Baku, Lody and Kishineff.—London Standard.

Leaves That Crawl.

Among the strange stories told about the wonderful things to be found in Australia there is one of crawling leaves. English sailors first brought an account of this phenomenon. They were roaming along the coast, when a sudden breeze shook down a number of leaves, which floated gently to the ground. The sailors were surprised at this shower, because it was not the fall of the year, but midsummer, and the falling leaves looked fresh and green. But this was nothing to what followed. After a short rest these leaves began crawling along the ground toward the tree from which they came. The sailors were too much frightened to stop and investigate, and one of the men said, in relating the adventure, that he expected every minute to see the trees step out and dance a hornpipe. Fortunately, other travelers were not too much frightened to stop and examine the matter. It was discovered that these queer leaves were really insects, which live upon the trees, and are of the same color as the foliage. They have very thin, flat bodies, and wings shaped like large leaves. When disturbed by a breeze, they fold their legs under their bodies, and then the leaf-like shape, with stem and all, is complete. Not only are they bright green in summer, like the foliage of the trees at that time, but they actually change like the leaves do to the dull brown produced by the frost. Another peculiarity of these insects is that when shaken to the ground they seldom use their wings. After lying there a few minutes, as though they were really leaves, they crawl to the tree and ascend the trunk, without seeming to know that they have the power to get back to their quarters in a much easier and quicker way.—New Orleans Picayune.

Reading and Talking.

Those who read largely are best fitted to converse well, for they obtain from books and papers interesting matter for discussion. As to the manner, it can be acquired only by social mingling with our fellows. A hermit cannot be expected to be a good conversationalist. Whether in simple talk or in the higher forms of conversation, we need to consider the preferences of others and try to adapt ourselves to them. A real amiability will lend an indefinable charm to our speech. Abruptness, contradiction, all assumption of mental superiority, are to be studiously avoided. Graciousness and consideration are requisite for those who would make themselves helpful and agreeable. Children should be encouraged not only to listen, but modestly bear their part in the family talk, asking questions freely and relating their daily experiences as older people do.—Harper's Bazar.

Preserving Ship Timbers.

A novel process is being attempted at Camden, Me., to preserve the wood of a new 1,400 ton schooner, now almost ready for launching. All of the timber of the inside and outside of the vessel has been soaked in crude petroleum to save it from dry rot by exposure to the air and to prevent the ravages of the teredo worm in salt waters. Even the vessel's beams have been coated and the tips of the topmasts. It is expected that the oil will become so thoroughly soaked in the schooner's upper works that the water cannot penetrate through the wood. Old wooden vessels which have been converted into bulk petroleum carriers, after having outlived their usefulness in other trades, have been known to last for years after becoming soaked with either crude or refined oil.

Getting Mixed.

"Things is gettin' might mixed, Mandy," said Farmer Corntossel, "mighty mixed."

"What's the matter?"

"The politicians air all tryin' to tell the farmers about farmin', an' the farmers air tryin' to tell the politicians about politics."

Not Baffled.

"Didn't you tell that young man I was out?" said the young woman.

"Oi did, miss," replied Bridget. "But he towld me to come back an' ax yez ag'in, so's to be sure Oi hadn't misunderstood the name.—Washington Star.

Nothing to be Afraid Of.

"It strikes me that you are afraid of work," said Mr. Tillinghast to the tramp who had asked for a quarter.

"You do me an injustice sir," replied the weary walker. "I am not afraid of work, for if I let it alone it will not hurt me."—Judge.

His Reason.

One of the most famous French advocates, Langlois, was asked by the president of the parliament of Paris why he took upon him to plead bad causes. He answered, with a smile, that he did it because he had lost a great many good ones.

TRADE NOTES.

Bradstreets' Report of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreets' review of trade for the past week says:

"The appearance of more settled weather together with the continued strength of cotton, stimulating manufacturers to demand higher prices for fall delivery; rains in northwestern wheat regions, where greatly needed, further increases in wages of industrial employes, heaviest shipments of wheat abroad, and the rush of the volume of the week's bank clearings above the $18,000,000,000 mark, are evidences of the continuation of a better feeling in trade circles and returning confidence in many lines of business.

"Rather less of improvement in feeling of business and volume of distribution of merchandise has been felt at the south proportionately during the past few weeks, than elsewhere, the central, western and some eastern industrial and commercial centers continuing to report relatively the greatest increases in demand and prospects. Trade has been fair at Charleston, where the demand is relatively best for phosphates, and there is improvement at Memphis and Nashville under the weather stimulus. No change is reported from Augusta; at Savannah, business is quiet, except for naval stores, while at Jacksonville the volume of trade has decreased.

"There is a better request for dry goods, shoes and groceries at Atlanta, where one cotton mill is doubling its capacity. Reports from Birmingham and from Chattanooga are in contrast, the former failing to record special improvement, while Chattanooga refers to gains in several lines. Wholesale business at New Orleans and at Galveston shows moderate improvement, dry goods and groceries receiving, perhaps, most attention."

NO EXTRA SESSION.

Although the President is Urged to Call One.

All of the members of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet were present at Tuesday's cabinet meeting. Secretary Gresham has returned to the capital from Fort Monroe, where he has been staying for the past few days. The chief subject considered was the supreme court decision in the income tax case, the effect of the decision on the government's finance being regarded as of especial importance. Secretary Carlisle, it is understood, stated that the treasury would not be seriously disabled on account of the decrease in receipts from the collection of the tax, as the revenue of which the court's decision will deprive the government will be made up from other sources. Several members of the cabinet are said to have favored the calling of an extra session of congress, but Mr. Cleveland strongly opposes such a step as unnecessary, and it is quite likely that congress will not be convened unless the unexpected should happen. In his position the president is strongly supported by Secretary Carlisle. Since the announcement of the supreme court's decision, the president has received telegrams from all sections of the country urging him to call congress together to repeal the provisions of the law which the court permitted to stand, on the ground that the tax is unjust inasmuch as it exempts the great landed estates and the very rich men whose wealth is invested in real estate. Great pressure is being brought to bear along this line, and the president is said to be greatly impressed by the arguments advanced.

MURDERER RUNS AMUCK.

Two Men Killed Outright and Three Wounded.

Brit Glenn, commonly known as "Kid Charley," a negro gambler and desparado, ran amuck at Jacksonville, Fla., early Sunday morning, and as a result two men are dead and three wounded, one of them probably fatally. The wounded are: Edward Minor, policeman—shot through the heart; Napoleon Stucks, a negro porter employed in Ricker's saloon—shot in the throat and his neck broken. The wounded are: James Minor, lieutenant of police—shot in the right ankle; Jim Clemons, a negro—shot in right thigh and may die; a negro bootblack, name unknown—slightly wounded. Stucks was the first man killed by Glenn, and it was while resisting arrest that he killed Policeman Ed. Minor and wounded the others whose names are given above.

DECIDED TO STRIKE.

Weavers Ask for Restoration of Old Wages and are Refused.

The weavers at the Atlantic mills in Olneyville, R. I., held a meeting Sunday afternoon and voted to strike for a restoration of the scale of wages paid prior to the last cut down of 22 per cent, which was made a year ago. They asked a week ago to have the old wages restored and the request refused. Dress goods of cotton, wool and mixtures are made at these mills, which give employment to 2,400 operatives.

A CRAZY MAN'S ACT.

He Was Proprietor of a Cigar Factory and Applies the Torch.

The large frame cigar factory of Henry L. Stehman, at Rohrestown, Pa., was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning. Later Stehman surrendered himself to the authorities and acknowledged that he had set the place on fire and wanted to be locked up. He was committed to jail. The man is undoubtedly insane. The loss is about $7,500. Stehman is the son of ex-State Senator John M. Stehman

MESSAGE FROM THE DEEP.

A Bottled Letter from the Lost Steamer Reina Regente.

Advices from Madrid state that a bottle has been washed ashore at Riva Della, containing the following written in pencil:

"March 10, 9 o'clock p. m.—No hope of being saved; twelve miles from Bajo Aceiteras. Segond, Cruiser Reina Regente."

The government has announced that it will assist the families of officers and men lost on the Reina Regente.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports from all portions of the south for the past week show continued activity in all lines of manufacture. A larger number of new industries are reported this week than for several months past, and the demand for equipment and supplies has largely increased. The iron market is steady, with improving demand; three additional blast furnaces in Alabama are soon to be blown in. The lumber trade shows a little improvement, especially shingles and cypress; prices have a slightly upward tendency. The coal mines are in full operation and have good demand. The activity in cotton mills seems to be on the increase, and many new projects are under way. General business in the south is better.

Among the fifty-five new industries established or incorporated during the week are a brewery at San Antonio, Tex., to cost $200,000; brick works at Jacksonville, Fla., and canning factories at Charlotte, N. C., Edwards, Miss., and Port Lavaca, Texas. The Cameron Compress Co., capital $60,000, has been organized to erect a cotton compress at Cameron, Texas, and compresses will also be built at Hillsboro and Paris, Texas. Electric light plants will be established at Birmingham, Ala., and Marion, Va., flouring mills at Henderson, Ky., and Memphis, Tenn., and an ice factory at Quitman, Ga. A $250,000 land company has been chartered at Birmingham, Ala., and a mining and milling company, with a capital of $1,000,000, at New Orleans, La. Iron mines will be developed at Cedartown and Priors, Ga., and coal lands near Princeton, Va., will be developed by a $124,000 company. At Richmond, Va., a $50,000 paper box factory will be erected and a jewelry manufacturing company has been incorporated at Wheeling, W. Va., with a capital of $100,000. A $500,000 oil and gas company has been organized at Wheeling, W. Va., a sugar mill will be erected at Lecompte, La., and a knitting mill at Buena Vista, Va. Woodworking plants will be located at Little Rock, Ark., Crestview, Fla., Atlanta and Bainbridge, Ga., New Orleans, Vidalia and White Castle, La., Memphis, Tenn., and a $100,000 wagon and furniture factory at Buck Shoal, N. C.

Among the enlargements reported is an electrical plant at Temple, Tex., tannery at Paw Paw, W. Va., cotton mill at Florence, Ala., and woodworking plants at Tuskaloosa, Ala., Burlington and Gastonia, N. C., and Watertown, Fla.

Among the new buildings are business houses at New Orleans, La., and Sistersville, W. Va., three churches at Huntington, W. Va., a $20,000 court house at Pulaski, Va., and a $500,000 hotel at Atlanta, Ga. A number of new residences will be erected at Louisville, Ky., and New Orleans, La.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Scandinavians in America.

The total number of Scandinavians in this country is about 1,000,000, but instead of being distributed throughout the various States they are to be found almost exclusively in the Northwest. Norwegians are most numerous in Minnesota, where the total Scandinavian body amounts to 250,000—about double the number of Germans and eight times more than the Irish. Swedes are most numerous in Illinois, where they number more than 90,000 in a total Scandinavian population of about 125,000. In the city of Chicago there are more than 10,000 Swedish, more than 5,000 Norwegian and more than 2,500 Danish voters. The Danes, smallest of the groups of Scandinavian voters in the country, are most numerous in Iowa.

Ex-Governor Kemper Dead.

Hon. James L. Kemper, who was the democratic governor of Virginia from 1872 to 1876, the important period of its history, died at his home in Orange county, Va., Saturday night. The deceased had been ill for several years, and his death was not unexpected. General Kemper was the first native governor elected by Virginia after the close of the war.

Struck Against Machines.

One hundred expert glass workers employed at Atterbury's factory at Pittsburg, Pa., struck Tuesday morning on account of the polishing machines used by the firm. The men claim the work done by the machines is inferior, and that the ware damaged is charged up against their salaries.

In the Hands of Three Receivers.

The Southern States Land and Timber Company, one of the largest concerns doing business at Pensacola, Fla., has been placed in the hands of three receivers by order of Judge Pardee, of New Orleans. This is an English Company and has offices in Pensacola, New York and London.

A Cashier Defaults.

Thomas M. Grady, for many years the cashier of the First National bank of Marietta, Pa., is a defaulter for a large amount, estimated at about $20,000. The directors and bank examiner are now working on the books.

An Iron Plant Burned.

Big Headed Women not Beautiful.

A woman with a big head can never be handsome, much less beautiful. The "big head" that is sometimes acquired is not the sort referred to, but that actual largeness of skull and features which savors of disproportion and can never be symmetrical when combined with feminine shoulders. Websterian massiveness may please the Willards and the Somersets, though never the admirers of beauty and womanly grace, and to whom size means nothing intellectually, provided the gray matter has room enough to exercise its precise function. There is an antediluvian notion that the small head of the antelope or the deer signifies a type well followed by nature in the construction of fair women, and even if the present development of brains does physically affect the race, this standard must remain the truest and best while the Venus of Milo continues to exist.—Boston Herald.

How to Get a Wife.

Austrian matrimonial advertisements, according to a contemporary correspondent at vienna, are marked by an acceptable humorous audacity. Here, for instance, is one that ran for six or seven days: "Wanted—A rich lady—no matter how old—who will finance a student of medicine until such time as he obtains his degree, when he engages to marry his benefactress."

Another is quoted wherein a young prince seeks a handsome girl with a dowry of not less than $1,000,000. When the desired mate is obtained all one's needs are apparently satisfied, judging from this advertisement for a purchaser for "a well-trained monkey, a talkative parrot and a beautiful, sympathetic cat," which belong to a lady who, owing to her approaching marriage, has no further use for them.

The most amusing of the advertisements quoted by our contemporary is, however, that of the very Irish peruquier who makes wigs for "men of intellect, philosophers, scholars and physicians, whose severe mental labor in the cause of humanity has filled their brains with genial ideas, while depriving their heads of their natural capillary envelopes." These "artistically finished wigs," the advertiser continues, "while extremely useful are highly ornamental, are guaranteed absolutely invisible to the spectator. They can be seen any day in my private show rooms."—Philadelphia Press.

Engraving by Dynamite.

Some officers at the naval station at Newport were testing a new fuse. In some way a small dried leaf had slipped in between the dynamite cartridge and the iron block on which the cartridge was fired, and a perfect imprint of the leaf was left in the metal. The discovery was afterwards used in decorative work, and the process is found so accurate in operation that even the veins in the petals of flowers can be reproduced in metal.

Political Investment.

Christian Endeavor.

The Christian Endeavor convention which meets in Boston, Mass., July 10th-15th, has already aroused a great deal of interest. The committee of arrangements have been granted the use of Boston common for a big open air meeting of a patriotic meeting July 4th. Governor Greenhalge, Dr. Donald McLaurin of Detroit, Dr. S. Smith, the author of "America," and several other prominent persons will be present and speak.

Dr. Smith is to write a special hymn for the convention. The singing at the common meeting will be by a choir of 2,000 voices, assisted by an immense orchestra. Fully fifty thousand Christian Endeavorers will take part in the meeting, in addition to the outsiders who will be attracted by the novelty of the occasion.

Like an open book, our faces tell the tale of health or disease. Hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, listless steps and languorous looks tell of wasting debilitating disease some place in the body. "Shave your Soap"—so the soap makers say, especially if you're washing delicate things. Now, in the name of common sense, what's the use? When you can get Pearline, in powder form for this very reason, why do you want to work over soap, which, if it's good for anything, gets very hard and difficult to cut. Besides, Pearline is vastly better than any powdered soap could be. It has all the good properties of any soap—and many more, too. There's something in it that does the work easily, but without harm—much more easily than any other way yet known.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The president has appointed Fitzhugh Lee collector of internal revenue for the sixth district of Virginia.

No provision has been made in any of the appropriation bills for the appraisement and sale of the naval reservations of Florida, Mississippi and Alabama, recently turned over to the interior department, and nothing will be done with them by the general land office. The abandoned military reservations will be appraised and disposed of as rapidly as possible.

Owing to the troubles in Cuba, the mails for that country and vicinity have fallen off to such an extent that the postoffice department has permitted the Plant system to make one less trip per week from Savannah to Tampa by rail and the same permission has been granted on the steamboat line from Tampa to Cuba. In consequence of the prevalence of yellow fever in Cuba the department is making preparations to fumigate mails from all tropical countries, which is an unusual precaution to be taken so early in the season.

Careful inquiry at Washington concerning the report that ex-Senator Matt W. Ransom, minister to Mexico, is not eligible to fill the place to which he was recently appointed on account of a constitutional provision, finds the story without foundation. Senator Ransom did not qualify until his term of office as senator expired, and his service and pay date from the time he qualified. Senator Ransom's services as minister began when he took the oath of office, and this was not until his term of office as senator had expired.

General Williams Not Wanted.

It is positively asserted that if Consul General Williams returns to Havana after his proposed visit to the United States shall have ended, he will be refused his exequatur. General Campos, the governor general of Cuba, will not, it is asserted, receive him in an official capacity, and this action will be indorsed by the Madrid government. While the Canovas ministry in Spain has not demanded Consul General Williams' recall, the fact is known to them that such a request was twice made by the previous ministry within thirty days before their dissolution. An unwillingness on the part of the present cabinet to strain the relations between the two countries is said to be the only reason why a similar request has not been made by them. Should Mr. Williams leave the country temporarily, however, advantage will be taken of that fact to keep him out by declining to permit his returning.

Olney on a Rehearing.

Attorney General Olney filed in the supreme court of the United States Wednesday afternoon a brief upon the petition for a rehearing of the income tax cases. It was not expected at the department of justice or at the court that the government would respond to the notice by Mr. Guthrie of the intention of counsel to ask a rehearing and to the court some surprise was expressed at the appearance of the document. The attorney general's brief begins as follows:

"The United States respectfully represents that if a rehearing is granted it should cover all the legal and constitutional questions involved, and not merely those on which the court are equally divided.

"1. Whether a tax on incomes generally, inclusive of rents and interest or dividends from investments of all kinds, is or is not a direct tax within the meaning of the federal constitution, is a matter upon which, as on the original question, the government has really never been heard."

The President's Finances.

The Washington Times prints the following editorial under the caption "Mr. Cleveland's Income Tax:"

"The publicity given to the filing of President Cleveland's income report almost leads to the impression that such an event was unsuspected, and that he was a tax dodger. The only real curiosity that should influence the public mind is the extent of his tax, as it is indicative of the amount of his wealth. Under ordinary circumstances such an inquiry would be impertinent, but so many reports are circulated concerning his ability as a money maker that this one is justifiable. By some it is said that Mr. Cleveland is worth $2,000,000, which is probably an exaggeration, but more fix his wealth at $1,000,000, and then try to guess where he got it.

"Ten years ago, at the beginning of his first administration, President Cleveland was generally known as a man of very moderate means. Four years' presidential salary, if saved, would net him $200,000. He then had four years' practice as a lawyer in New York, which probably brought him $100,000 more. He has drawn a salary of $100,000 during his term of office, and if worth $1,000,000 the public would like to know the secret of his power to make money."

QUARLES AND BUTLER GUILTY.

The Hanging Branch of the Worley Case Ended.

After two hours of deliberation the jury in the case of the two alleged whitecappers, John Quarles and Dave Butler, in the United States court at Atlanta, returned a verdict of guilty Saturday afternoon. By reason of that verdict the defendants will be required to serve for a term of years in the Ohio penitentiary.

The verdict was signed by E. S. Freeman, of Cartersville, Ga., as foreman, and simply read: "We, the jury, find the defendants, John Quarles, Sr., and David Butler, guilty."

This ends one of the most important cases that has ever been tried in the southern district of Georgia. It deals with a class of violators that makes it one of the most peculiar trials on record. In the same bill of indictment the following parties are accused of conspiracy to hang Worley: James McEntire, J. A. Dickson, Merrill Woods, Hardy Phipps, Frank Gilbert, James McCutcheon, Bob Anderson, Harris Bramlett, T. M. Wright, Bradley Thornton, Huse Nelson, Tobe Smith, George Hartsell and several others.

The question now arises, what becomes of them? In all likelihood, if a new trial is not granted by Judge Newman, they will enter pleas of guilty.

It is definitely stated that the killing branch of the Worley case will not be taken up at present, as has been stated heretofore. This means that all the witnesses must return home and appear again when summoned. The cases will go to the United States supreme court, and it is understood that if there is an effort made to take up the killing branch by the United States court, writs of habeas corpus will be taken out. The same demurrers filed in the first branch will be filed in the killing branch.

In connection with the Worley case, old man Ben Hempbill, a father-in-law of one of the defendants, will be indicted and prosecuted for perjury. He stated on the stand that he made one statement to District Attorney James and that he swore to a lie on the stand.

RANDOLPH'S SHORTAGE.

The State of Alabama Will Lose About $25,000.

A Montgomery, Ala., special says: The state examiner has filed his report as to the shortage of Probate Judge Randolph, who left the state one month ago, and whose whereabouts are unknown. The report shows that his defalcation to the state is $25,000, which includes about $4,000 of unreported license money. The report does not deal with trust funds, exhaustively, but includes, in addition to the above, two transactions involving $2,800. The judge's dealings with the county are not touched upon at all, but the shortage is generally believed to be not over $1,000. The indications from this report and all known facts are that the total defalcation will not go much, if any, over $30,000.

AN American in Germany was surprised to find a number of cripples among the celebrated college professors, men whose high standard of learning makes them famous the world over. One Berlin professor is wheeled into his lecture room every day, and there are others similarly though for the most part less painfully afflicted. This is due partly to the fact that under the military regime of Germany when a boy is disqualified for the army he is trained for science or the law.

ANOTHER TAX TEST.

A CHICAGO JUDGE GRANTS AN INJUNCTION

To a Corporation Firm from Paying on Their Income.

In the United States court at Chicago, Monday morning, Judge Showalter enjoined Siegel, Cooper & Co. from making any returns to the internal revenue collector under the provisions of the income tax law. The restraining order was granted on a bill filed by Gerson Siegel, one of the New York stockholders in the defendant corporation. The bill attacks the law, and under the order granted by Judge Showalter the government will be compelled to take part in the proceedings to defend the operation of the new law.

When the attorney for Siegel presented the bill to Judge Showalter, the latter asked for an explanation of the application. "This is the last day for the returns of the income tax to the collector of internal revenue," said the attorney. "My client protests against his firm making any payment of the income tax or any report. He maintains that the bill in its entirety is unconstitutional. All we ask is for an order restraining the firm of Siegel, Cooper & Co. from making its returns today. If not granted the firm would be liable to an imposition of $1,000 fine for failing to make the return."

Judge Showalter took the application, and after reading it, made the restraining order. A bond of $4,000 was at once filed. By the issuance of the order of the court the firm escapes the payment of the fine, should the supreme court, to which the question will be carried, decide against the complainant.

Mr. Siegel, in his bill, raises all of the questions that are involved in the income tax dispute, including those decided by the supreme court last week.

Sets a Day for Argument.

Judge Showalter, at the opening of the court Tuesday morning, entered an order vacating the restraining order against Seigel, Cooper & Co., making their income tax returns. The judge had sent for Attorney Binswanger, who secured the injunction order and in open court he announced the vacation of the order pending a formal hearing. "I looked hurriedly at the bill," said the court, "and did not understand that it was based upon a question of unconstitutionality. I regarded it as a mere formal matter. The defendants were present in court and consented to the proceedings. Being a motion which was not contested, I granted it. The order will now be vacated and a hearing on the application set for two weeks from today."

ANOTHER RECESS

Taken by Tennessee's Law Makers for a Breathing Spell.

The Tennessee legislature took a recess from Friday until April 22d. Finding that it had nearly 2,000 pages of printed evidence to digest, the committee on the governor's election made the request and the recess resolution went through with but little objection. The penitentiary committee will also continue its investigation during the recess. The senate killed the bill regulating the charges of telephone companies, only six members voting for it, while twenty-one voted against it.

Mr. Ledgerwood's bill raising petit larceny to stealing $100 was passed. Under the operations of this bill the number of convicts in the state penitentiary will be greatly reduced.

The house refused to allow the state printing committee to investigate during the recess. A resolution revoking the authority of the revenue commission was adopted, but its effect killed by a motion to reconsider, which was entered on the journal.

An excellent photographic counterfeit of the $5 note of the American Exchange National bank, of New York city, has been discovered in the money sent to the National bank redemption division of the treasury for redemption. The note is of the 1893 series, check letter F, with the portrait of Garfield upon it. A warning has been sent out by Chief Hazen, of the secret service.

MEN who have seen too much are generally given to exaggeration.

FIVE YEARS IN THE PEN

Is the Sentence Passed Upon Butler and Quarles.

Henry Butler and John Quarles, Sr., were sentenced Tuesday morning by Judge Newman, at Atlanta, to five years each in the federal penitentiary under their conviction for conspiracy against Henry Worley. They were convicted of participation in the hanging of Worley for reporting illicit distilleries. Quarles and Butler were from Murray county, which was, before the government got after them so sharply, a hotbed of whitecapism.

Judge Newman in pronouncing decision said that he was influenced to reduce the sentence, because he felt that those who were of the band that hanged Worley were not as guilty as the ring-leaders, and that in addition to this the jury had recommended the men to mercy. When asked what they had to say, Quarles and Butler said nothing besides asserting their innocence.

Their counsel, Mr. W. C. Glenn, has already prepared a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, which he will within the next few days, present to the supreme court of the United States, alleging that the prisoners are in the custody of the United States marshal under a conviction which was made by a federal court, which has not jurisdiction.

A report has been received by the department of state from Consul General Williams, at Havana, giving the exports and stocks of Cuban sugars during the first quarter of the crop of 1894 and 1895. The report shows that of the exports 92 per cent have gone to the United States and 8 per cent to other countries. Of the stock there were stored in the several ports of Cuba on the 31st ultimo 318,229 long tons against 256,133 long tons at the corresponding period of last year.

CHICKAMAUGA BATTLEFIELD.

Federal and Confederate Veterans Will Meet There in September.

Secretary Lamont has decided upon the main features of the official exercises authorized by congress in the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga national military park. The ceremonies will begin on the battlefield of Chickamauga September 19th, and will comprise the formal announcement of the opening of the park by the war department, representing the government; two orations by speakers of national prominence, and the proper military display. On the following day exercises in continuation of the dedication, relating to the battles of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, will be held at Chattanooga with a somewhat similar programme.

In case of rain all exercises will take place at Chattanooga under cover of adequate capacity, to be provided as a prudential measure. The secretary will arrange to have all the armies represented in the battles participate in the dedication by setting apart the night of September 19th to the Union and Confederate armies of the Tennessee, and the night of the 20th to the armies of the Potomac and northern Virginia. The regular army will be represented by the lieutenant general and a detachment of troops. The Society of the Army of the Cumberland will hold its regular annual reunion at Chattanooga on the evening of September 18th, preceding the dedication, and to this all official visitors and representatives of the other army societies will be invited.

OIL IN EAST TENNESSEE.

A Small Well Reported to Have Tapped Oil at 1,000 Feet.

Citizens of Fentress county, Tennessee, in the vicinity of Jamestown, are very much excited just now over the discovery a few days ago of oil. It has long been said that there was oil in the Cumberland mountains, and several companies have been organized to bore for it. They have been unsuccessful until this time, when, after boring to a depth of 1,000 feet, oil and gas spouted out to the top of the derricks. Then the solid flow of oil began, running fully twenty-five barrels per hour. Some Pennsylvania men have charge of it and have cut off the flow until they can prepare to take care of it. The well was sunk in the Cumberland plateau.

A Newspaper Man Dies.

James W. Scott, proprietor and editor of the Chicago Times-Herald, died suddenly of appoplexy in his room in the Holland house, New York, Sunday afternoon.

CROKER IS RE-ELECTED.

Bourke Cockran Turned Down as a Tammany Sachem.

The 106th annual election of the Tammany Society or Columbian Order was held at New York Monday evening in the large hall of the wigwam and nearly five hundred of the faithful members of the ancient organization paid a poll tax of $1 each in order to vote the regular and only ticket that was printed.

For the first time in many moons new material was drawn upon in the election of sachems and officers of the society. Eight of the sachems who were elected a year ago were displaced. They are: W. Bourke Cockran, J. Sergeant Cram, William H. Clark, J. Edward Simmons, Henry D. Purroy, John J. Gorman, John McQuade and Bernard F. Martin. They are succeeded by the following new sachems: William Sulzer, Patrick Keenan, Daniel E. Sickles, William Sohmer, Henry D. Hotchkiss, John H. Patrick, Augustus W. Peters and Amos J. Cummings.

The sachems who were re-elected are: Richard Croker, Hugh J. Grant, Thomas L. Feitner, George B. McClellan and Charles Welde. Others on the ticket who were re-elected are: John B. McGoldrick, secretary; Peter F. Meyer, treasurer; William H. Dobbs, sagamore; Daniel M. Donegan, wiskinkie.

TO ENFORCE HER ULTIMATUM.

British Vessels May Soon Be Bombarding Nicaragua's Coast.

The London Globe, in its issue of Tuesday, asserts that Great Britain will refuse to accept the answer of the Nicaraguan government to the British ultimatum and will take immediate steps to enforce her demands. In regard to the report that Secretary Gresham had informed the English government that the bombardment of Greytown, Nicaragua, would be considered an act inimical to the interests of the United States.

Will Advance Wages Five Per Cent.

General E. S. Boss, resident agent of the Williamantic (Conn.) Linen Company, has received instructions from General Barbour, treasurer of the company, that commencing Monday, April 15th, a general advance of 5 per cent in the wages of employes would take place.

Brick Works Burned Out.

The St. Louis pressed brick works, at Glen Carbon, Ill., were almost entirely destroyed by fire Monday. The loss is estimated at nearly $250,000, and is fully covered by insurance. About 300 men are thrown out of employment. The Eastern Railway Company lost about twenty cars in the fire.

Postmasters Indicted.

A. R. Fuller, postmaster at Leroy, Marion county, and H. S. Fickel, postmaster at Melrose, Clay county, Fla., have been indicted by the United States grand jury for making fraudulent returns of the amount of postage stamps canceled. The amount is small in each case.

Wages Restored.

At a meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association at Fall River it was voted to restore wages in the mills to the schedule in force previous to August 20, 1894, the restoration to go into effect April 22d.

Charles H. Mansur Dead.

Charles H. Mansur, assistant comptroller of the treasury department, and formerly member of congress from Missouri, died Tuesday morning at the National Hotel, Washington. His death had been expected for some time.

Sam Small Steps Down.

The Rev. Sam Small has tendered his resignation as editor of the Norfolk (Va.) Pilot. The cause of his leaving the paper is said to be a conflict of authority in its management.

Old Wages Restored.

Notices were posted in the New Bedford, Mass., mills Wednesday of a restoration of the former schedule of wages following the action of the Fall River manufacturers in this regard.

Potteries Close Down.

The potteries of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles at East Liverpool, O., have shut down in several departments, throwing out of employment three hundred men. Overproduction is given as the cause.

COOK COUNTY DEMOCRATS

Call a Convention for May 4th to Select Delegates.

The central committee of the Cook county, Ill., democracy held a meeting at Chicago Monday night and issued a call for a convention of the city and county democrats on May 4th, for the purpose of electing delegates to the state monetary convention of the party, to be held in June.

It is anticipated that the convention will be one of the liveliest affairs of the kind ever witnessed in Chicago, for the reason that the gold and silver champions will there engage in a trial test of arms before going to Springfield to fight the battle to a finish. In fact, there will be a lively campaign from now until the primaries are held, for both wings of the party will make a desperate effort to secure control of the Cook county delegation. The free silver wing has the advantage of having the general and executive committee in its favor and the party machinery at its back. The leaders in the silver movement claim that they will name three-fourths of the delegates to Springfield, and, if necessary, will enforce the unit rule and cast the 337 votes of Cook county in favor of a 16 to 1 free silver platform.

On the other hand, the gold standard and anti-free silver men are not idle. They are not saying so much as the "white wings," but they will not be asleep at the primaries, and hope to secure a majority of delegates who will, at least, oppose placing the party on record at the present time.

In the meantime, the silver men propose to inaugurate a series of mass meeting, at which "silver" tongued orators will descant on the necessity of free coinage. For the next three weeks the town will again enjoy a political campaign, with the republicans as simple spectators.

NEW ENEMY OF COTTON.

A Destructive Pest Brought Over from Mexico.

The department of agriculture at Washington has just issued a circular to cotton planters relative to a new and very destructive insect that has been brought across the Rio Grande from Mexico into the cotton belt of Texas and which, during 1894, seriously injured the cotton crop over a territory of about five thousand square miles. It punctures the bolls with its beak and lays eggs in the hole thus made. The grubs hatch and ruin both the seed and fiber, thus destroying simultaneously both products of the cotton plant.

The Texas legislature, at the suggestion of the agricultural department, is discussing the question of quarantining the cotton from the infected section and the enforcement of the remedial work by act of law. The department of agriculture has appointed a skillful agent, who is located at Brownsville, Tex., and who will study the life, history and habits of the new pest and experiment extensively with remedies during the coming season under the direction of Mr. L. O. Howard, chief entomologist of the department. Inasmuch as the insect is new to American cotton planters, there is much yet to be learned about its habits before practical remedies can be suggested. This insect is now in Texas and threatens to spread to other cotton states, and the entire south is, therefore, interested in the problem now confronting the Texas legislature.

SAFE ARRIVAL IN LIBERIA

Of the Two Hundred Negro Emigrants Who Embarked at Savannah.

News was received in Philadelphia Saturday that the steamship Horsa, which sailed from Philadelphia some weeks ago for Savannah, and there took on board about 200 emigrants for Liberia, had arrived at Monrovia, and after safely landing her passengers had proceeded to Barbadoes. From the latter place she will return to Philadelphia, from which city the next contingent of emigrants will be shipped. They will come from various sections of the south, and will be sent out from Philadelphia because of better shipping facilities at that port. Those who have gone to Liberia to live have each been provided with a piece of land and provisions for three months.

National Saw Works Burn.

The National saw works at Cincinnati were destroyed by fire Tuesday night, entailing a loss of from $125,000 to $150,000. Insurance was $84,225 in thirty-six companies.

PEACE AT LAST.

TREATY ARTICLES HAVE BEEN SIGNED BY CHINA AND JAPAN.

Great Concessions are Made by the Conquered Chinese.

The London Times' correspondent in Shanghai says:

"Li Hung Chang's son-in-law telegraphs that the treaty of peace was signed in Shimonoseki April 16th, and that the terms are:

"1. The independence of Corea.

"2. Japan's retention of the conquered places.

"3. Japan's retention of the territory east of the Liau river.

"4. Permanent cession of Formosa

"5. Indemnity of $100,000,000.

"6. An offensive and defensive alliance between China and Japan."

The Report Not Believed.

No credence is attached to the report from Shanghai, which came by way of London, that the Chinese emperor has issued a proclamation asserting his inability to longer govern the empire. In well informed circles the report is ridiculed as being too absurd to dignify with a denial. It is asserted in the first place that the Chinese emperor could have no purpose in abdicating, and in the second place his mother, the dowager empress, would not permit him to retire if he desired. The proclamation is believed here to be the work of the secret societies in the empire. These societies, it is said, are hostile to the government, their aims and purposes being not dissimilar to those of the nihilists in Russia. If this proclamation be their work, it was probably written for the purpose of adding to the confusion in the empire and to the embarrassment of the reigning powers. The whole story, however, is regarded as another Shanghai fabrication.

Treaty Has Been Signed.

Official advices were received at Washington Tuesday morning by Minister Yang Yu, the Chinese representative in the United States, from Shimonoski, Japan, confirming the news that protocols of peace between China and Japan have been signed. The cable message read simply: "Peace negotiations have been signed."

Further Income Tax Orders.

Commissioner Miller, late Tuesday afternoon, issued an additional circular to internal revenue collectors, in which he says:

"In cases of incorrect income tax returns now filed in your office you will notify the persons who filed such returns that they must appear within a reasonable time, specifying the date and place for appearance, and correct or explain such returns, and that on their failure to appear and make such corrections you will correct and increase the amount of such returns, stating the particular corrections which shall be made and the amounts by which said returns will be increased.

"Where persons and corporations liable to make returns have neglected or refused to make returns, and where, in your opinion, false or fradulent returns have been filed you will give notice to the delinquents and to those who made such false or fradulent returns, to appear and show cause why penalties shall not be assessed against them."

APPROVED HIS SENTIMENTS.

The President's Letter Pleases Some of Chicago's Citizens.

The citizens of Chicago who invited President Cleveland to be their guest and participate in a sound money demonstration expressed their approval of the sentiments expressed in the president's letter declining the invitation. Henry S. Robbins, one of the committee which went to Washington, said that letter was the first big gun of the presidential campaign, and that a sound money league would be the result. He advocated using the letter as a campaign document for all to read.

Nicaragua's Satisfactory Answer.

An answer to the British ultimatum to Nicaragua has been received at the foreign office in London. It is understood that the reply is so satisfactory that the action which the government threatened to take will now be dispensed with.

The State Sunday School Convention will be held in Mobile beginning April 30th. Clanton Sunday School ought to send delegates

Gov. Oates appointed Dr. J. B Gaston, Probate Judge of Montgomery county. This is a fine appointment. Dr. Gaston is one of Alabama's best citizens.

There are seven Robinsons on the Jury list. Perhaps such a large number of the same name would not be drawn again in many years. No one need object however, because of the fact that the name is so numerous for its possessors are good and true men.

A prominent business man of Baltimore said that he would not if he knew it keep in his employ a young man addicted to the habit of social card playing, because common observation had taught him that such a young man would soon be a gambler and that gambler could not be trusted with business

Rev. W. H. Williams, the "drummer evangelist" lectured to a large audience at the City Hall last night on the subject of "Your Boy and His Company." He begun by saying that a boy was known by his company. That no young man could succeed without courage, capital and conviction. That a boy who did nothing was already in bad company and unless rescued would grow worse. --Ex.

Special agent J. E. Johnson of the Government exhibit has made application to the chief of the Negro Building for space to show thirty models of negro inventions on record in the Patent office at Washington. This feature will go far to show inventive genius in the race.

The following passage is taken from a letter received by a gentleman in this city from a friend in one of the large manufacturing cities in New York: "You thought you were through fighting Yankees, but you Southerners have only just started. You are using more forcible bullets than leaden ones, viz: competition in manufacturing, eloquence and shrewness in politics and a good keen perception in matters appertaining to business transactions. The South is forging rapidly ahead and Northerners cannot stop it in its prosperous course Why they should wish to do so, I do not know; but Northerners are more jealous of you than you are of them. You are better off to-day than you ever were; everyone sees it, every one knows it. I wish I were with you."—Mobile Register

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. GOOD ADVICE.

One day recently a Scotch publican was endeavoring to remove from his spacious bar one his customers who had partaken not wisely but too well, when, noticing the shoemaker passing the door he called to him to give him assistance. But the man of leather replied:

"Na, na, my man; when I feenish a job I ave put it in my window tae show my work; so ye can jist dae the same." - Pearson' Weekly.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sims Bros., Leeds Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeill and Smith Jemison, Ala.

The War is Over.

Verily sectionalism is on the wane, and the bitterness and animosities engendered by four years of civil strife are rapidly giving way to the healing influences of time.

Read the following clipped from the editorial columns of the Boston Standard. These are liberal and patriotic utterances:

"A movement is on foot among the Southern survivors of the war to organize what is to be known as a "National Confederate Memorial Association." The Boston Standard is glad to learn of this, and it hereby and herein pledges itself to aid the movement by every means in its power.

The day of the new, greater, more progressive and more liberal South has come, and the men who have helped to advance the better era are the gallant survivors of the war for secession.

The Southern politician, like his prototype in our Northern cities, is an unprincipled ruffian, and Southern gentlemen know this to their shame and sorrow. But heroes like Simon Beliver Buckner, A. P. Stewart, Wade Hampton, Stephen D. Lee, John B. Gordon and other able and heroic men, who are in this movement, gain by their names the support of their old foemen, but present friends, the ex soldiers of the republic.

The South is properly proud of the splendid heroism of her sons on every battle field of the late war.

We of the North were not particularly enamored of this magnificent daring at the time, but now we can look back at it with less, and surely with less prejudice. And, forgetting the cause of the quarrel we feel like pointing to every valorous Confederate achievement as an additional evidence of American manhood.

We are not ready to concede, nor would our gallant Southern friends have us do it, that they were a whit braver than the men of the North

After all, a man's readiness to die for his convictions, is the best evidence of his worth and courage, and the Union men did their share of heroic dying.

But what The Standard wishes to say is that, loving everything intensely American, it could not be true to itself if it overlooked this most commendable movement on the part of the ex soldiers of the ex Confedeeacy."

Let Us Have Peace.

To the Age-Herald:

Congress has adjourned and most of its members are politically dead.

The next congress has fewer members who are disposed to disturb the existing state of affairs in currency matters than the last There fore it seems to be settled that Mr. Cleveland's views will not prevail until March 4, 1897. No one can vote for a candidate in a way to express his views until November 1896. We have had a surfeit of politics, national, state and municipal. We have had a vicious congress and a more venal legislature, both now happily things of the past. The people are tired of politics. Economy and hard work have produced legitimate results and prices are advancing; still the papers are full of disussions about currency. If the writers of the many articles on silver and gold would occupy the time spent on these productions in planting gardens, it would be of vastly more benefit to the world.

I saw the other day a wealthy and prominent citizen carrying a handful of tomato plants to his home. He proposed to save a few dollars in that way, and is doing more to help the country than Senator Pugh with his long letter.

Out in the suburbs, and occasionally in the city, you can see lots which have long been vacant, bearing no crop except surveyor's stakes, and consuming by their taxes the owner's substance, which are now fenced in and planted with vegetables, which will become food and thus save sending money to other sections. The people who are doing this work are of more benefit to the community than those unfortunates who, as soon as they get out of a job, stand on the street, corners "cuss" the government and talk free silver.

Prices of products are advancing in spite of the gold bugs and the silver idiots. A man of moderate means can now see a way to own his home instead of paying exorbitant rent, and if the country can get a rest from these useless discussions, it will prosper. Let everybody turn the energies now devoted to useless discussions of the currency we have not, to getting by honest labor some of the currency other people have and our progress will be marvelous.

Let us have peace. X.

The Company You Keep.

A person is known by the company he keeps, and frequently —as the humorist puts it —by the company he keeps out of. Be careful in choosing your associates. Never make friends —acquaintances would perhaps be the better word—with those whose language, habits or general conduct you would be ashamed to see and hear in your own home. If you do, you are sure to be the sufferer. The person of low tastes and conduct is much less likely to be benefited by your superior ways than you are to be degraded to his level. Such, unfortunately, is the law of nature. Let fall a drop of milk into a pail of water.

It is lost in a moment. But let fall a drop of black ink into the same water and its presence will soon be noticeable. A rotten apple will finally taint a whole barrel full of sound fruit, but who would think of putting a good apple into a barrel of decayed fruit for the purpose of making it sound again? This doesn't mean that virtue has no leavening influence, but simply that it is easier to go down hill than up.

So don't keep questionable company. If you cannot find the right kind of associates, the kind who will make you nobler, be sufficient unto yourself. Live with your books and the worthies of all time, who are so willing to give you through their pages a friendship greater and benigner than that of kings.

The world surely judges by the company you keep. "Tell me with whom you associate," said Goethe "and I will tell you who you are. If I know what your busines is, I know what can be made of you."—Voice.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and crop diversification, The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres.................... $75

For the largest crop of Clover any variety, including Melilotus, under the same conditions $75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions.................... $75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year $200

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each..... $100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs.................. $75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crops for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, before a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre, the largest tract will have the prefference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover if it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

Ready made clothes from the cheapest to the best on sale by W. I. Mullins.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolad, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says. A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it cured me, he procured a bottle of it and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeil and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

I recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back sprains and swellings. There is no better liniment made. I have sold over 300 bottles of it this year and all were pleased who used it. Are there any citizens of Clanton who would be willing to go into a stock company to build a first class hotel? Such a hotel would put at least $4,000 a year into the trade of Clanton If you be willing let us hear from you.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S PRIZE ACRE.

$500,00 in Cash for Farmers—A Handsome Reward for the Plows of 1895.

We take pleasure in presenting The Constitution's $500 offer for the farmers of 1895. The prize consists of $100 in cash for the best acre of cotton, corn, tobacco, watermelons or sweet potatoes

The announcement is made before the planting of the crop so as to enable all who will to take part in the contest.

Entries may be made up to June 1st, and by that time every contestant must enter his name with The Constitution and state which acre he will compete for.

In ever circular The Constitution frankly states that the care taken in the preparation of the land, the selection of seeds, and the use of fertilizers, a record of costs and dates of plowing and other cultivation, and a careful record of the heavy rainfalls, the periods of droughts and all the other data, giving the history of the crop from the breaking of the soil to the harvesting, will be an object lesson of vast importance to every contestant, whether he wins the prize or not. This is a practical demonstration that a farm run on the intensive plan by giving careful attention to the thorough cultivation of a few acres properly rather than the poor cultivation of a large area, will be far better than a reduction of cash acreage by resolutions.

The offer is made to encourage the raising of home supplies and illustrate the south's great possibilities in agriculture and to stimulate the proper cultivation of every possible acre to add to the independence of the farmer.

The prizes will be awarded by three competent judges, recognized as high authority in agricultural matters.

The terms are breifly these: Every contestant must be a subscriber to The Weekly Constitution. He must keep a record of The Constitution's acre upon a blank, which will be furnished him free upon application. The contest is open to every southern farmer.

By special arrangement with The Constitution we offer the View with The Weekly Constitution for $1,50 or if you already have our paper, send us $1 and we will send you The Constitution one year. We are pleased to say that our neighbor in Georgia is perhaps the greatest of all American weekly newspapers. Its seventy two columns each week, which will be increased to eighty four shortly, come brim full of the latest news of the world, and many excellent features of special interest to the state, besides its well conducted departments for the farm and the household.

Every subscription recieved through us will entitle the subscriber to enter the prize acre contest as well as to guess in the $2,000 contest, closing May 1st.

This is an extraordinary opportunity to procure two good newspapers for a year, one to supply the county news in the quickest and best possible shape, and the other to bring weekly the news of the world, teeming with political current history, farmers' notes and everything else that will interest every member of the family.

You will find no better season to subscribe nor any greater offer than the present.

Dear Sirs—some time ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison, my whole body was a perfect sore, my hair was all gone and I was totally blind in one eye. I finally was induced to try a bottle of your great blood medicine, and, to the surprise of all my friends, in four weeks I was sound and well, my sight was restored, and my hair grew out, and I am still sound and hearty, and have never felt a symptom of the disease since taking the V. That Tired Feeling

Is a certain indication of impure and impoverished blood. If your blood could always be rich and pure, full of the red corpuscles upon which its vitality depends, you would never be weak, or

Nervous! Boils, pimples, scrofula, salt rheum, would never trouble you. But our mode of living, shut in all winter in poorly ventilated homes and shops, depletes the blood and there is loss of appetite and weakness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy for this condition. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, builds up the nerves and gives perfect health. Read this:

"Our daughter, Blanche, when four years of age had a humor break out on her hands and face, which our physician pronounced eczema. If the cold air reached her face or hands they would swell up, look almost purple, and headed blisters would form and break, Discharging a watery fluid, and the burning and itching would drive her nearly wild. Unless we encased her little hands she would tear patches of skin from her face and hands. We tried many doctors and many remedies and at last gave the case up as hopeless. But our daughter Cora tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, to cure a scrofulous lump near the left breast which caused her much pain and after taking 4 bottles it disappeared. Blanche, who is now eleven, had spent seven years of suffering, so I concluded to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She took 5 bottles and her face is smooth and soft as a baby's, the color of a rose petal. Her hands are soft and white, where four months ago they were blue and red and calloused nearly like leather. I cannot express my gratitude by pen or mouth. It seems a miracle and our friends are surprised." MRS. ANNA L. CLARK, 401 East Fourth Street, Duluth, Minnesota.

Medical Discovery.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Electricity Delivered to Families.

Electricity, put up in storage batteries of all sizes, like milk in jars, is to be prepared for delivery at the doors of consumers in New York, just as milk is now. A company has been formed for the purpose, and also to push the electric storage battery in general use. Mr. Isaac L. Rich, one of the officers of the new company, who has done a great deal to perfect the electric storage battery, in a recent interview said: "There seems to be a general idea that in order to have current on tap one must have a dynamo and a steam engine to run it, and thus incur a large expenditure at the start. Nothing could be more erroneous. There are thousands of persons who would like to run sewing machines or coffee grinders by electricity, or to burn one or two electric lights, but who have no use for the current in large quantities. They can now be accommodated. Storage cells are now made in all sizes. The smallest weight but four ounces, and furnish current enough for one lamp. We intend to sell electricity exactly as the milkman sells milk. We first supply the cells. When the current is used up the maid will put the empty or exhausted cells in the hallway or beside the basement door, and our man, as he makes his morning rounds, will collect them and leave freshly charged ones in their place. The same cells, of course, are used over and over again a great many times."—Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

Waxing Hardwood.

The American Druggist recommends the following formula for waxing hardwood floors: Yellow wax, 25 oz.; yellow ceresin, 25 oz.; burnt sienna, 5 oz.; boiled linseed oil, 1 oz.; spirits of turpentine, 1 gill, or about 3 oz. Mix the wax and ceresin at a gentle heat, then add the sienna, previously well triturated with the boiled linseed oil, and mix well. When the mixture begins to cool, add the turpentine, or so much of it as is required to make a mass of the consistency of an ointment.

PRESIDENT'S REPLY

TO AN INVITATION FROM CHICAGO BUSINESS MEN

To Attend a Public Reception Tendered Him in that City.

President Cleveland has written a reply to the invitation of one hundred of the leading business men of Chicago to attend a public reception to be tendered him in that city "as an evidence of their deep sense of appreciation of his statesmanlike and courageous action in maintaining the financial standing of our nation, and his attitude in favor of the preservation of a sound national currency." Mr. Cleveland's reply is as follows:

"EXECUTIVE MANSION WASHINGTON, April 13.—To Messrs. William T. Baker, George W. Smith, John A. Roche, T. W. Harvey, David Kelley and Henry S. Robins—Gentlemen: I am much gratified by the exceedingly kind and complimentary invitation you have tendered me on behalf of many citizens of Chicago to be their guest at a gathering in the interest of sound money and wholesome financial doctrine. My attachment to this cause is so great and I know so well the hospitality and kindness of the people of Chicago that my personal inclination is strongly in favor of accepting your flattering invitation, but my judgment and my estimate of proprieties of my official place obligate me to forego the enjoyment of participating in the occasion you contemplate. I hope, however, the event will mark the beginning of an aggressive effort to disseminate among the people safe and prudent financial ideas. Nothing more important can engage the attention of patriotic citizens, because nothing is so vital to the welfare of our countrymen and to the strength, prosperity and honor of our nation. The situation we are confronting demands that those who appreciate the importance of this subject and those who ought to be the first to see impending danger should no longer remain indifferent or over-confident. If the sound money sentiment abroad in the land will save us from mischief and disaster, it must be crystalized and combined and made immediately active. It is dangerous to overlook the fact that a vast number of our people with scant opportunity thus far to examine the question in all its aspects, have nevertheless been ingeniously pressed with spacious suggestions which, in this time of misfortune and dissension, found willing listeners to give evidence to any scheme which is plausibly presented as a remedy for their unfortunate condition. What is now more needed than anything else is a plain and simple presentation of the argument in favor of sound money. In other words, it is a time for the American people to reason together as members of a great nation, which can promise them a continuance of protection and safety only so long as its solvency is unsuspected, its honor unsullied and the soundness of its money unquestioned. These things are ill exchanged for the illusions of a debased currency and groundless hopes of advantage to be gained by a disregard of our financial credit and commercial standing among the nations of the world. If our people were isolated from all others and if the position of our currency could be created without regard to our relations to other countries, its character would be of comparatively little importance.

"If the American people were concerned in the maintenance of their previous life among themselves, they might return to the old days of barter, and in this primitive manner acquire from each other the materials to supply the wants of their existence. But if American civilization was satisfied with this it would abjectly fail in its high and noble mission. In these restless days the farmers, tempted by the assurance that though our currency may be debased, redundant and uncertain, such a situation would improve the price of his products. Let us remind him that he must buy as well as sell; that his dreams of plenty are shaded by the certainty that if the price of the things he has to sell is nominally enhanced the cost of things he must buy would not remain stationary; that the best prices which cheap money proclaims are unsubstantial and elusive, and even if they were real and palpable he must necessarily be left far behind in the race for their enjoyment.

"It ought not to be difficult to convince the wage earner that if there were benefits arising from a degenerated currency they would reach him least and last of all. In an unhealthy stimulation of prices, an increased cost of all the needs of his home must belong his portion, while he is at the same time vexed with vanishing visions of increased wages and an easier lot. The pages of history and experience are full of this lesson. An insidious attempt is made to create a prejudice against the advocates of a safe and sound currency by the insinuation, more or less directly made, that they belong to financial and business classes and are, therefore, not only out of sympathy with the common people of the land, but for selfish and wicked purposes, are willing to sacrifice the interests of those outside their circle.

"I believe that capital and wealth, through combination and other means, sometimes gain an undue advantage, and it must be conceded that the maintenance of a sound currency may, in a sense, be invested with a greater or less importance to individuals according to their condition and circumstances. It is, however, only a difference in degree, since it is utterly impossible that any one in our broad land, rich or poor, whatever may be his occupation, and whether dwelling in a center of finance and commerce, or in a remote corner of our domain, can be really benefited by a financial scheme, not alike beneficial to all our people, or that any one should be excluded from a common and universal interest in the safe character and stable value of the currency of the country. In our relation to this question we are all in business, for we all buy and sell; so we all have to do with financial operations, for we all earn money and spend it.

"We cannot escape our interdependence. Merchants and dealers are in every neighborhood and each has its shops and manufactories. Wherever the wants of man exist, business and finance, in some degree, are found, related in one direction to those whose wants they supply and in another to more extensive business and finance to which they are tributary. A fluctuation in prices at the seaboard is known the same day or hour in the remotest hamlet. The discredit or depreciation in financial centers of any form of money in the hands of the people is a signal of immediate loss everywhere.

"If reckless discontent and wild experiment should sweep our country from its safe support the most defenseless of all who suffer in that time of distress and national discredit will be the people, as they reckon the loss in the scanty support, and the laborer and the workingman, as he sees the money he has received for his toil shrink and shrivel in his hands when he tenders it for the necessaries to supply his humble home. Disguise it as we may the line of battle is drawn between the forces of safe currency and those of silver monometalism. I will not believe that if our people are afforded an intelligent opportunity for sober second thought they will sanction schemes that, however cloaked, mean disaster and confusion, nor that they will consent by undermining a safe currency to endanger the beneficient character and purpose of their government. Yours truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial condition of the south for the past week shows a decided improvement in general business and a very evident change for the better in manufacturing circles. Iron, while not higher, is strong and the demand is heavy. The lumber market also shows strength. The demand for machinery from all parts of the south is much heavier than for months and there is a greater number of new projects than ordinarily.

Among the fifty-three new industries reported as established or incorporated during the week are two canning factories at Thomson, Ga., an electric light plant at Pass Christian, Miss., and $20,000 electric plants at Pulaski, Tenn., and Taylor, Texas; flouring mills at Berryville, Ark., Rocky Face, Ga.; Jasper and Kingsport, Tenn., Pinkerton, Va., and Brandywine, W. Va. Ice factories are to be established at Raleigh, N. C., Cleveland, Tenn., and San Antonio, Texas. A land company with a capital of $73,000 has been organized at Atlanta, Ga., and one each at Macon, Ga., and Norfolk, Va., capital $35,000 and $50,000. Coal mines will be developed at Jasper, Ala., and a $75,000 cotton seed oil mill erected at Fort Worth, Texas. A $40,000 cotton mill is reported from Central, S. C., and one to cost $500,000 is proposed at Columbia, S. C. At Cullman, Ala., a $50,000 cotton mill will be erected, and at Hogansville, Ga., one to cost $125,000 and another at Spartanburg, S. C., with a capital of $200,000.

Woodworking plants will be established at Talladega, Ala., Tampa, Fla., Atlanta and Waycross, Ga., New Orleans, La., Wilmington, N. C., Beaumont, Josserand and Navasota Tex., and Lynchburg, Va.

Among the enlargements reported is a canning factory at Alvord, Texas, flouring mills at Russell and Sanders, Ky., Mill Bridge, N. C., Wytheville, Va., and Masontown, W. Va., and machine works at Atlanta, Ga.

Among new buildings is a business house at Hallettsville, Tex., a $16,000 church at Birmingham, Ala., a $20,000 court house at Zebulon, Ga., and hotels to be enlarged at Atlanta, Ga. Several new residences will be erected at Louisville, Ky., and Wheeling, W. Va., and a warehouse at Timmonsville, S. C.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

CAMPOS IN COMMAND

And Measures for the Suppression of the Rebellion Being Taken.

Following the arrival of General Martinez Campos on Cuban shores active measures for the suppression of the rebellion have already been taken. General Garrich has been appointed governor of the province of Santiago de Cuba; General Salcendo has been appointed commander of the first division, with headquarters at Santiago de Cuba, and General Le Chambre has been assigned to the command of the second division, with headquarters at Bayamo.

General Martinez Campos has issued a proclamation asking the support of the various political parties and promising to implant reform at the conclusion of the rebellion, which he hopes will be speedily terminated.

SURRENDERS THE GOVERNORSHIP.

A special from Havana says: Captain General Calleja has turned over the governorship of the island of Cuba to General Arderius and will sail for Spain.

HE LIVES "AT LARGE."

President Cleveland Solves the Domicillary Question.

Commissioner Miller, head of the internal revenue bureau, was at the white house Saturday and passed some time with President Cleveland. It is stated that during the interview the president solved all questions as to the particular domicile he should claim in making his income tax return—New York, Buzzard's Bay or Washington, by making his return "at large," and handing it to the commissioner of internal revenue in person.

Population of New York.

The police census returns of New York are nearly all in. The population, according to these figures, is 1,888,780, an increase since the census of the state board of health, taken in 1893, of just 87,041. This is considered a very conservative estimate, and there is no doubt that when the actual figures are all in it will be materially increased.

The Standard Oil Company Kicks.

S. C. T. Dodd, general solicitor for the Standard Oil company, is reported as saying in regard to the income tax: "The Standard Oil company will make its returns under the income tax law, but it will probably contest the law. It will hold that as oil is a direct product of the land it comes in the same category as rent."

Sicily Shocked Severely.

Several districts of Sicily were shaken severely by earthquakes Sunday. The shocks were most violent in the province of Syracuse. In Monterosso Almo a number of houses were laid in ruins and many more were damaged.

Rubber Works Ablaze.

The pumping station, grinding department and storehouse of the North American Rubber Company at Setauket, N. Y., were burned Sunday. The total loss is estimated at $75,000, on which there was no insurance.

Muzzling a Sunday Paper.

The city council of Huntsville, Ala., has passed an ordinance making it an offense against the city to sell, exchange or give away copies of a publication known as The Sunday Sun. For several weeks prominent citizens of the city have been roughly handled by this publication, and the action of the city council was intended as a safeguard against trouble that will certainly arise if the correspondent is located.

Russia is Displeased.

The Russian journals, according to dispatches from St. Petersburg, are more vigorous in their utterances regarding the conditions of the treaty between China and Japan than the English papers, and sound warning that the signing of such a treaty of peace as indicated by the dispatches of the last few days will be only a prelude to a wider, though unnecessary, armed conflict.

Joined the Silver Army.

Much commotion has been caused in democratic circles by the bold declaration in favor of the free coinage of silver of ex-Judge Samuel P. McConnell, president of the Iroquois Club, the leading democratic organization of Chicago. Judge McConnell in a long and apparently prepared interview favors a free silver declaration at the forthcoming democratic state convention.

Oil Still Advancing.

The Standard Oil Company offered $2.25 a barrel for crude oil Tuesday morning, an advance of 25 cents over Monday. The opening price at the exchange at Pittsburg was $2.40, 18 cents higher than Monday's close. The price went rapidly to $2.50, but at 10:35 o'clock had receded to $2.43. At 11 o'clock $2.42 was bid in Pittsburg and $2.43 at Oil City.

Marshal Field's Generous Gift.

A generous offer of Marshal Field's to the W. C. T. U. is announced. Mr. Field promises $25,000 with the proviso that $275,000 more be raised by January 1, 1896. It is intended that this total sum be applied on the debt overhanging the Woman's Temple at Chicago, the greatest financial enterprise in which a coterie of women have ever engaged.

Spinners Walk Out.

About 150 weavers and spinners employed at the North Wasselboro woolen mill at Augusta, Me., have struck, a restoration of the cut down of 10 per cent. having been refused. Agent Sampson says he will shut down the mill unless the help will work at the present rates. The strikers are not organized, but are pledged to hang together.

A Town Nearly Destroyed.

Fire started in a livery stable at Plattsburg, Mo., and spread rapidly. Within a short time the entire south side of the town had been destroyed. Among the buildings burned is the courthouse. The damage done is estimated at $300,000. Plattsburg is a town of about 2,000 people and is the county seat of Clinton county.

Coat Makers Resume Work.

The coat makers' strike, which has been on at Cincinnati for the past ten days, is practically declared off, and a number of shops have resumed work. The original demand was for an increase in wages of 35 per cent, but a compromise was effected on 25 per cent.

In summing up the faults of others it is well to remember that every human being has his share of imperfections.

With the Caravan.

In the sandy deserts of the north of Africa, where journeys are made so much by night, the feeling of melancholy is often found to prevail. On horseback or by mail cart, on the long, straight tracks through the sand, one seems to be perpetually following some star in the heavens, to which one gets no nearer. If one stops to rest no sound falls upon the ear save perhaps, the groans of a camel being loaded for the night march or the creak of a Persian wheel raising the water on the river's brink.

It is a relief to pass the strings of camels bearing their rich burdens of silk, asafetida and grapes from distant Cabul to the Indian cities of the plains. In a long string, led by the bearded and travel stained driver, who is well fortified by opium for the weary and mountainous journey, they emerge suddenly and silently, like phantoms from the nocturnal gloom, and gliding noislessly by quickly disappear again.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Camphor placed next to furs will make their color lighter.

In blackening the kitchen stove, better results are reached if the blacking is wet with coffee instead of water.

Mud stains may be removed from velvet by washing with water to which has been added a spoonful of ox gall and a little spirits of wine.

Try some way of amusing your child if he cries during his bath—a cork which will bob about with every movement of the water, or an egg with the contents blown out.

Do not neglect wounds (no matter how slight) from dull or rusty instruments that might produce lockjaw. They should be immediately soaked in hot brine; and the smoke from burning woolen rags will also prove beneficial.

A new style of bottle for poisons has the neck on one side, and is of such a shape that it will not stand up. Lying on a table the word "poison" and the label would always be in view, and by reason of its peculiar form it would not be mistaken for the ordinary bottle.

It is a mistake to make a large tea biscuit. Properly speaking, a tea biscuit should not be more than two inches in diameter and proportionately thick when baked. This gives a delicate, moist, flaky biscuit, which will be cooked through before the outside crust has become hard or over brown.

Keep Turpentine in the House.

It is the simple thing just at hand that we most often forget to use. Every house should have a bottle of turpentine on the shelf. A few drops of it on a lump of sugar is good for worms in children and good for kidney troubles in grown persons. Mixed with lard or camphorated oil, it is a good liniment for all kinds of rheumatic pains and figures largely in all patent pain medicines. It will take paint out of carpets, ink stains out of white muslin when added to soap. A few drops added to the boiler of clothes will help to whiten them, moths will flee from it, cockroaches disappear after a few vigorous doses of it, and ants are easily exterminated by its use.

A WAR ECHO.

EVERY HONORABLE VETERAN DESERVES A PENSION.

And the Lost Limb is not the Only Reason for a Government Reward Either.

(From Journal, Lewiston, Me.)

Samuel R. Jordan has just given the Journal an account of his life, which in view of his extremely hard lot for the past few years will be read with interest.

"I am 48 years old and have always lived in New Portland. I enlisted in the army in 1862 as a private in Company A, 28th Me. Volunteers. My army experience injured my health to some extent, although I worked at blacksmithing some part of the time, when suddenly, several years ago, I was prostrated with what able physicians pronounced Locomotor Ataxia. At first I could get around somewhat, yet the disease progressed quite rapidly until I had hardly any feeling in my legs and feet, they felt like sticks of wood and I grew so much worse that I could not move for three years without help, as my neighbors and friends could testify. I employed several physicians in my vicinity, and elsewhere, and they all told me that medicines would not help me, that they could do nothing to effect a cure, and that in time I should become entirely helpless. I became discouraged. I was a great care to my wife and friends. Shortly after I met an old army comrade, Mr. All. Parlin, a resident of Madison, Maine, and he incidentally mentioned how he had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a severe case of rheumatism and a spinal and malarial trouble, that he had suffered with consequent of his army life, and been greatly benefited by their use. By his earnest recommendation I was induced to try the pills. After taking them for a time I began to feel prickly sensations in my legs and a return of strength so I could move them a little. After a few weeks I began to feel a marked improvement in my condition. I soon was enabled to walk around a little with the help of crutches. After taking for some time I can now walk without crutches, my general health is much improved and I have regained my old-time vigor. I can walk about and enjoy life once more, for which I feel very thankful, and this happy result is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

"The Altogether."

A well known electrical man in Baltimore, who is noted for his quiet humor, went into a restaurant the other day and gave the waiter this shock:

"Have you read 'Trilby?'"

After consultation with the proprietor and a complete failure to interpret the order, the joker was asked to explain what he wanted. All he said was "hash."—Electrical Review.

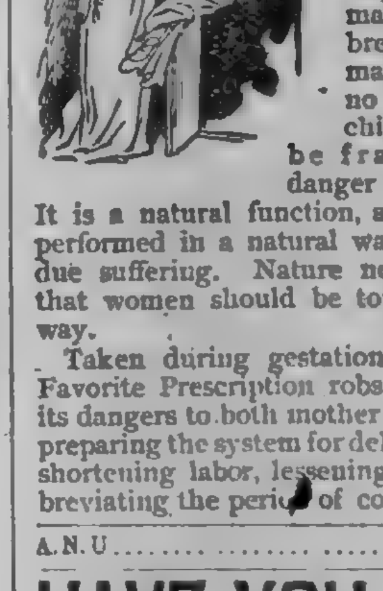
A Great Feat.

An honest farmer who had averted a great peril by an act of heroism was much complimented for his bravery. One lady said:

"I wish I could have seen your feat."

Whereupon he blushed and stammered, and finally, pointing to his pedal extremities, said:

"Well, there they be mum."



The Door of Life.

The fear of pain and the dangers of parturition fill many a woman's breast with dismay. There is no reason why childbirth should be fraught with danger and distress. It is a natural function, and should be performed in a natural way without undue suffering. Nature never intended that women should be tortured in this way.

Taken during gestation Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its dangers to both mother and child, by preparing the system for delivery, thereby shortening labor, lessening pain and abbreviating the period of confinement.

DURANT ON TRIAL

FOR THE MURDER OF MISS WILLIAMS AND MISS LAMONT.

The Evidence Against Him Seems to be Conclusive.

Theodore Durant has been bound over for trial by the coroner's jury at San Francisco, charged with the murder of Miss Williams and Miss Lamont. The verdict was returned Friday.

The story developed before the jury was of the most shocking character. Theodore Durant was assistant Sunday school superintendent of Emanual Baptist church, of which the murderer and suicide, Rev. Dr. Kallock, was formerly pastor. Miss Williams was a pretty young girl of religious inclinations, and Miss Lamont was yet a school girl, both being attendants of this Sunday school, where they met and became infatuated with the assistant superintendent.

Two weeks ago Miss Lamont mysteriously disappeared. A few days later the mutilated body of Miss Williams was found in the library room of the church. Suspicion pointed to Durant, and he was run down and arrested.

The Preliminary Trial.

The preliminary examination of Durant took place Monday morning. The police authorities took extra precautions to guard the prisoner and prevent a possible act of violence, though none is anticipated by the people. A cordon of police was at the city hall, and there was also a squad of policemen in the court room when the hearing was held.

The testimony of the witnesses examined did not differ materially from that given at the inquest.

When the name of A. E. Williams, the dead girl's father, was called a sensational incident occurred. A handsome and well-dressed young woman, who had been standing all the morning in the edge of the crowd behind young Durant, stepped to the witness platform and said:

"I shall refuse to say a word until I have spoken to this defendant."

Judge Conlin ordered her to step down, but she refused and exclaimed:

"I declare this man free."

As a bailiff took her in hand she exclaimed:

"No one shall touch me until I have spoken to this man."

The woman had evidently become insane from brooding over the murder.

New witnesses have been found in the persons of three young ladies who positively identified Durant as the man who had spoken to them on the night of the murder near the church between 9 and 9:15 o'clock. He mistook them for acquaintances, and after recognizing his error, apologized and turned away. Miss Williams was killed between eight and nine o'clock that night.

A dispatch from Napa, Cal., says that Allen Church, who has been closely associated with some of the Emanuel church people, stated in an interview: "As soon as I heard Minnie Williams was murdered, I connected Durant with the murder, as he had been most intimate with her, and I knew that he had a key that would unlock, but would not lock, the side door. I have known Durant for five years and have warned Minnie Williams against going with him."

The important part of this statement lies in the declaration that Durant's key would unlock, but not lock the side door of the church. It will be remembered that the murderer left the side door unfastened in making his escape from the scene of his crime. Church will be questioned by the police.

The two murderers furnished a topic for four or five ministers to discourse upon Sunday to their congregations.

SEELEY'S ACCOMPLICE.

Aymar Arrested for Aiding in Defrauding the Shoe and Leather Bank.

Samuel C. Aymar, charged with defrauding the Shoe and Leather bank out of $20,000, was arrested in Brooklyn, N. Y., arraigned in the Tombs police court and committed to await further examination. Aymar is a brother-in-law of Samuel C. Seeley, recently convicted of robbing the same bank of $350,000 and sentenced to eight years in the Kings county penitentiary. It is said that the defalcations of the accused stand over a period of fourteen years.

DR. CRAWFORD CENSURED.

The Florida Legislature Hits Him a Hard One.

Some time ago The St. Louis Post-Dispatch sent out inquiries to various state officers asking if the statute books of the several states contained laws against lobbying.

One of these inquiries reached Hon. John L. Crawford, secretary of state of Florida. Instead of answering the question as asked he replied: "The lobby controls the legislature of Florida." This was published in The Post-Dispatch of April 9th, but seems did not meet the attention of members of the legislature now in session until very recently. This serious condemnation of the lawmakers of the "Alligator State" aroused the wrath of the house at Tuesday's session. Speeches severely denouncing this statement were made and action was demanded refuting the serious reflection upon the lower house.

After an animated discussion, a committee was appointed to report on the matter.

Resolutions condemning as untrue the statement of the secretary of state were reported unanimously by that committee and were brought before the house upon the question of adoption.

Friends of the aged secretary of state claimed that his letter to The Post-Dispatch was written before the assembly of the present body. This was not proven, though his friends asked a suspension of action until this statement could be verified by a telegram from St. Louis explaining. Members of the special committee thought that time enough had been given the secretary, but he had not furnished an explanation.

Upon the call of the previous question, the house adopted the resolution by a vote of 34 to 20 and the lower house places on its journal a severe censure of the state secretary.

FIVE LYNCHED.

Two Men and Three Women Hung by a Mob in Alabama.

Five persons were arrested Saturday near Butler Springs, Alabama, charged with the murder of Watts Murphy, a young man and nephew of ex-Governor Tom Watts. Of these, two were men and three women, all colored. Their names are John Butler, Zeb Colley, Bertha Greene, Alice Greene and Mary Deane. Another negro man, who was also implicated, made his escape.

A posse, who had charge of the five prisoners, started from Butler Springs—a distance of about sixteen miles from Greenville—with the two men and three women at about 10 or 11 o'clock Saturday night, with the object of placing them all in the county jail for trial.

About 3 o'clock Saturday morning, when the posse who had charge of the prisoners reached a lonely place on the road, voices came from both sides of the roadway, commanding them to halt. Seeing they were outnumbered, and being threatened with death, the guard promptly obeyed, when probably a hundred men, with arms in their hands, took the five prisoners from the guards and then and there hung the last one of them to limbs of trees and left their bodies dangling in that position.

AMOUNT OF INCOME TAX.

Commissioner Miller's Estimate from the Returns Filed.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller has given out his official estimate of the revenue to be realized from the income tax as he stated it in a letter to Secretary Carlisle:

"Telegraphic advices from the collectors of the several internal revenue districts indicate that the aggregate amount of income tax shown by the returns which were filed before the 16th instant will be about $14,365,000. Delayed returns and corrections, it is believed, will considerably increase this amount. The total expenditures on account of the work, including necessary salaries and allowances to the end of the present fiscal year, will not exceed $135,000."

Packing Horse Meat.

J. M. Switzler has sold three thousand horses to a Portland, Oregon, syndicate. The animals are to be slaughtered at Portland, Mr. Switzler says, and the meat packed and all parts of the carcass utilized. This is now the only market for the thousands of horses in eastern Oregon and Washington ranges. The price was less than $5 per head.

BELLIGERENT STEPS

To be Taken by England Against Nicaragua.

Exact information has been received at Washington as to Great Britain's belligerent steps in Nicaragua. British troops are to be landed at Corinto. The custom houses are to be occupied by British officers who are to exercise the functions of collectors of customs. At the same time, Nicaraguan local commerce is to be crippled by a blockade.

There is good reason to believe that Nicaragua is not likely to yield, but will allow British troops to occupy Corinto in order that conspicuous attention may be drawn to what is regarded by Nicaragua as an invasion of the Monroe doctrine.

The British admiral has notified President Zellaya at Managua that three days will be given to Nicaragua in which to comply with the terms of Great Britain's ultimatum. Failure to pay the indemnity will be followed by the seizure of the custom house at Corinto and the collection of the duties by British subjects, presumably by officers of the fleet detailed for that purpose. The note of the British admiral contains a declaration that force will be used to collect the money if opposition is made. Great excitement exists. The government, it is reported, will refuse to pay the indemnity and will abandon Corinto as a port of entry. The belief is general that if Great Britain obtains possession of Corinto she will continue to occupy it, as she has occupied territory in Egypt and other countries where she has obtained a foothold.

NAVAL TACTICS

Will be Practiced by Brunswick's New Military Company.

Governor Atkinson has made arrangements with Secretary Herbert to have one of the war ships of the government to come to Brunswick to carry the naval militia out for a cruise of several days.

Recently, there has been organized in Brunswick a naval military company, which has its uniforms and is ready for business. When the governor was in Washington recently he called on Secretary Herbert and asked that he would send the war ship Atlanta, of the white squadron, to Brunswick so that the members of the naval company could be taken out for a short cruise on which they could be instructed.

Mr. Herbert told Governor Atkinson that the Atlanta was at this time in the Caribbean sea, but that she was expected to return in a short time and if she did he would be glad to order her to Brunswick. He said if she did not arrive in time he would send, some time during June or July, another of the warships to be used in giving the young soldiers a taste of life upon the sea.

Governor Atkinson will make an effort to get the ship to Brunswick while the state teacher's convention is in session. Whenever it does go to the city by the sea, the occasion will be made a time of joy and merriment.

THE SLUGGING MATCH A GO.

Fitzsimmons Puts Up His Money, What Corbett Says.

Champion James Corbett has received the following telegram from his manager, William A. Brady:

"Fitzsimmons will put his money up Monday next, sure, and it's a go. Take care of yourself."

"That settles it at last," said Corbett, and I know for the first time that the match is a go. I shall close my theatrical dates at St. Louis, three weeks earlier than I expected, and after a rest of two weeks, will go into active training at Asbury Park. I am certainly glad that the match is closed, for I have been anxious to show the world the merits of the two men. I expect to win, as I think I outclass Fitzsimmons, who is a clever man, and who will go into the ring in better condition than ever before. I think I know every blow and every move in boxing and I am sure I shall never be put out except by a chance blow, which is something that might happen to any man."

No New Trial for Hayward.

Judge Smith, at Minneapolis has rendered a decision denying the motion for a new trial in the case of Harry Hayward, under sentence of death for the murder of Catherine Ging. An appeal will probably now be taken to the supreme court.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ITEMS OF NEWS PICKED UP AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Sayings and Doings of the Official Heads of the Government.

The president when asked whether Secretary Morton's interview of some days ago on the monetary question might be regarded as representing his views, replied: "I am in no manner responsible for Mr. Morton's interview, and knew nothing of it until I read it in the newspapers. When I have seen fit to say anything to the people on the money question or any other question, I have found it quite easy to do so directly and on my own account."

It is understood that developments thus far made in the investigation of the beef question have almost convinced Secretary Morton that a combination has been formed for the purpose of putting up the price of beef. The secretary, early in the history of the recent rise, was inclined to attribute it to the natural scarcity of fat cattle. Notwithstanding the unusual advance in dressed beef, cattle on the hoof show very moderate increase in value, even less than it would seem natural to expect in view of the small receipts by the comparison with a year ago.

A bill recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban revolutionists has been prepared in Washington and will be introduced in congress when that body convenes in December next. It was drafted at the suggestion of certain representatives and senators who are in sympathy with the efforts of the Cubans to throw off the yoke of Spain, and these gentlemen will use their influence to pass it through both houses. Such action on the part of the United States would, of course, be of immense service to the revolutionists. It would result in the free shipment of arms and men to the island in support of the insurgents' cause and would give them the moral and material support which they so greatly desire.

The live stock men of Chicago do not like the reports sent out by Secretary of Agriculture Morton, intimating that the high price of meat is caused by a combination in the interest of the stock men as against both the producer and consumer of meat. At a largely attended meeting held at the stock exchange at the Union stockyards, at Chicago, a long series of resolutions were adopted and ordered telegraphed to Secretary Morton. The resolutions say the receipts of cattle at the four principal western markets for the current year are 270,000 head less than for the same period of 1894. This alone is responsible for the increase in the prices of dressed beef. Statements recently sent out charging that there is a combine or trust are pronounced unjust, and the public is asked to withhold its judgment until the merit of the controversy can be investigated by the press.

Secretary Gresham had a long interview with Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, Wednesday morning, and also saw Minister Guzman, of Nicaragua, who communicated to him the intelligence he had from his government. Very shortly afterwards members of the cabinet, one by one, dropped out to Woodley, the president's country home, where a special cabinet meeting was held. The outcome of the meeting is understood to be that the administration is disposed to use its good offices between Nicaragua and Great Britain, so far as it consistently can do so. President Cleveland feels that as matters now stand the United States can do nothing except to request Lord Kimberly not to force a settlement of the indemnity, but to permit a sufficient time to elapse so that Nicaragua may not be compelled to pay the "smart money" at the cannon's mouth.

The Month's Revenue Receipts.

The monthly statement of collections of internal revenue issued Tuesday shows the total receipts from all sources for the nine months of the present fiscal year ended March 31, 1895, to have been $169,995,015, of which $19,802 was from income tax from persons, and $8,855 from corporations, companies and associations. The remaining items of receipts were from spirits, tobacco, oleomargarine, etc. The net increase was $1,950,168. The principal item of increase was $1,295,628 from whisky. The increases and decreases for the month of March, 1895, compared with March, 1894, is shown as follows: Spirits decrease, $2,905,024; tobacco decrease, $145,364; fermented liquors decrease, $180,115; oleomargarine decrease, $34,000; miscellaneous increase, $17,317; income tax increase, $16,839; aggregate decrease for the month, $3,230,355.

Holidays in Postoffices.

The postmaster general has amended the postal laws and regulations regarding holidays. The amendment states that postmasters may observe as holidays January 1st, February 22nd, May 30th, July 4th, the first Monday in September, known as Labor Day, December 25th, and such other days as the president of the United States or the governors, in their respective states, may designate as fast or thanksgiving days, or proclaim specially as holidays. On other occasions their offices can be closed only after permission obtained therefor from the department, to be obtained through the first assistant postmaster general. Upon holidays postoffices must be opened sufficiently to meet fairly the public convenience. Mails must be made up and dispatched as on other days. When a legal holiday falls upon a Sunday the following Monday may be observed, unless otherwise specially provided for by state authority.

A Forty Million Deficit.

The decision of the supreme court in the income tax case necessitates a rehearing of the estimates of government receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, and from the best data obtainable it is believed that the deficit for the year will probably amount to $40,000,000. The amount of the deficit to date is $47,211,541, with indications of a further increase before the close of the present month, but the income tax receipts, it is expected, will materially cut down this amount during the remaining ten weeks of the fiscal year.

Receipts from customs and from internal revenue sources continue to increase, but not at the pace expected, and with fully one-half of the anticipated receipts from the income tax cut off, it is doubtful if the close of the year shows a deficit less than $40,000,000.

As has been the case for some years, the expenditure on account of pensions is more than a third of the entire expenditures of the government, and several times, during the last two years, the inexorable requisitions of the secretary of the interior on pension account has caused some apprehension among the officials that the time might come when they could not be honored with the old-time promptness. Already this month more than $11,000,000 has been paid to pensioners, and since July 1st nearly $117,500,000 has been paid on the pension account.

RAILROAD CONVERTS.

They are Joining the Southern States Passenger Association.

Commissioner Finley, of the Southern States Passenger Association, is much gratified with the prospects of the growth of the new union. Many roads which did not at first sign the agreement when the association was formed, have signified that they will do so, and the Florida roads, the entire Plant system, the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West, which were not at first members, are now.

CUBAN UPRISING SPREADING.

And General Campos May Ask for More Reinforcements.

Dispatches from Havana inform the Spanish government that the rebellion in Cuba is spreading, but the insurgents are badly armed and equipped. The dispatches say that if the uprising spreads further General Martinez Campos will ask for reinforcements.

KOHLSAAT TAKES CHARGE.

The Times-Herald, of Chicago, Passes Into New Hands.

The control of the Times-Herald and Evening Post, at Chicago, has passed into the hands of Herman H. Kohlsaat, formerly publisher of the Inter Ocean, and he has assumed charge of the consolidated journal. Mr Kohlsaat secured 725 of the 1,000 shares of $1,000 each by a number of transfers. According to Mr. Kohlsaat, the consolidated papers will be independent in local politics. On the monetary question it will be unalterably in favor of honest money. While generally independent in national politics, the papers will be advocates of protection to American industries.

GULLY TAKES THE CHAIR.

He is the New Speaker of England's House of Commons.

The house of commons, which stood adjourned over the Easter recess, resumed its sittings at London Monday. Speaker-elect Gully took the chair, but almost immediately afterwards the usher of the black rod appeared in the house and summoned him before the house of lords. The speaker, accompanied by the sergeant-at-arms and a majority of the members of the house, proceeded to the bar of the house of lords. Lord Herschell, lord high chancellor, and Lords Kimberly, Spencer, Carrington and Kensington, constituting a royal commission, occupied seats in front of the throne, which was uncovered. Lord Herschell, bowing to the new speaker, said:

"Her majesty has most fully approved and confirmed your appointment."

Speaker Gully replied: "I submit myself to her majesty's gracious will and pleasure."

Then followed an exchange of salutations, the speaker and his party bowing to the royal commission and the assembled lords, who dignifiedly returned the salute. The speaker and the members of the house then withdrew. Upon his return to the house, the speaker retired to his private rooms, where he donned his robe of office and full-buttoned wig. Reappearing in the house Mr. Gully took the speaker's chair and in a brief speech said that as her majesty had signified her approval of the house's choice of himself to fill the office of speaker he took this opportunity to repeat his acknowledgements to the house for the honor done him.

RETIREMENT OF GEN. McCOOK.

His Labors as a Soldier Ends Under the Age Provision.

Major General Alexander McD. McCook was retired at 12 o'clock Saturday from active service in the army under the age provision. General McCook was one of the most prominent officers in the late war. His name is associated with some of the bloodiest battles of the war. He is now at Denver, where he has been in command of the department of the Colorado since 1888.

General McCook was born in Ohio on April 22, 1831, and is a member of that famous family of warriors, the "fighting McCooks." He graduated from the military academy at West Point in 1852, and was assigned to the Third infantry regiment. He was engaged against the Apache Indians in New Mexico in 1857, and from 1858 to 1861 was instructor of infantry tactics at West Point. In December, 1858, he was promoted to first lieutenant. At the outbreak of the war he was appointed colonel of the First Ohio regiment of volunteers, and in April, 1861, was mustering and disbursing officer at Columbus. He commanded his regiment at the first battle of Bull Run, and received the brevet of major in the regular army for his services on that occasion.

On the 17th of July, 1892, he was made major general of volunteers, and was placed in command of the Twentieth army corps, with which he served at Perryville, Stone river, Tullahoma and Chickamauga. He received the brevet of brigadier general of the regular army in March, 1865, for services at Perryville, and at the same time was breveted major general for cumulated gallant services during the war.

BETTER WAGES AT FALL RIVER.

Operatives in All the Mills Will Get More Money.

The mills at Fall River, Mass., have resumed operations under the scale of wages in force previous to August 20, 1894. Twenty-four thousand workers will be benefited. There is every prospect of a fair trade during the coming summer, as the mills are now fairly well sold ahead. Since the last reduction of wages there has been the greatest scarcity of help ever noticed in that center. Overseers of mills say this has been due to sickness, low wages and a feeling among the floating help that a strike would take place during the warm weather if wages were not advanced.

Life Imprisonment is Divorce.

The supreme court of Wisconsin has handed down a decision establishing the validity of the law which provides that life imprisonment operates as a decree of absolute divorce without further legal proceedings.

THE TEXAS COTTON CROP.

A Decrease of 17 Per Cent in Planting Indicated in Reports.

Estimates placed the acreage in cotton in Texas last year at 5,000,000 with a yield of 3,000,000 bales. The Houston Post publishes its first crop report this season, of which the following is a summary:

"These reports have always been very accurate. In response to questions recently asked its correspondents throughout the state, the Post has received over two hundred replies. The correspondents' replies from all sections of the state, in regard to the acreage in cotton, the weather conditions and the date of planting indicate a decrease in cotton of about 17½ per cent while they show a large increase in the land cultivated. The farmers seem to have been diversifying their crops to a great extent, planting much more corn and small grain than usual. With a few exceptions the reports show a late, backward spring, which has retarded planting some two or three weeks. The weather has been very dry over almost the whole state, and rain is now badly needed to save the corn and oat crops and to bring up much of the cotton seed lying dormant in the soil. It is well enough to remark that there seems to be an almost universal opinion that should the present drought continue for a little while longer, much land that was originally put into corn and small grain will finally be planted in cotton, which may be very materially alter the acreage finally planted in that staple from the above estimate."

ARMY APPOINTMENTS.

Brigadier General Merritt is Made a Major General.

The president has made the following appointments in the army:

OSCAR AND ALFRED INDICTED.

Witnesses Guarded to Prevent Them From Being Mobbed.

At London Tuesday morning the grand jury returned to the central criminal court of Old Bailey a true bill against Oscar Wilde and Alfred Taylor, the prosecuting witnesses in the case being lodged with a number of policemen in a house in Crayden street to prevent them from being mobbed.

Wilde's solicitors deny that their client will plead guilty, even to one offense. They declare that his case will be fought to the end.

Wilde's valuable collection of prints, Moorish pottery, bric-a-brac, etc., will be sold at auction. The articles to be sold include Carlyle's writing table.

MADE THEIR REPORT.

Receivers of the Whisky Trust Have Their Say.

The report of John McNulta, Edward F. Lawrence and John J. Mitchell, the receivers of the whisky trust, from February 4th to March 23d, has been presented to the clerk of the United States circuit court at Chicago. The report is confined strictly to a statement of the financial operations of the trust during that period. The receivers say their gross receipts from all sources were $3,852,346; the expenditures, $3,669,839, leaving a balance of $182,508 in the hands of Receiver McNulta when the other two resigned on March 23d.

THE TROUBLE IN NICARAGUA.

Cannot Reach an Agreement in Regard to Indemnity.

The New York Herald's special cable from Managua, Nicaragua, says that at a cabinet meeting it was proposed to cede to Great Britain Corn island, in the Atlantic, as an equivalent for her claim for indemnity. This proposition met with strong opposition from President Zelaya, and another proposition was made to pay the indemnity by means of a forced loan. No definite action was taken on either proposition.

The latest news from Cuba is of a very doubtful character. The Cubans have no idea of giving up their fight for liberty yet, and Spain's legions lately landed on the Island seems but to fire the more these enslaved people, and no one can see the end yet.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

It would be a wonderfull stimulus to the farmer of this country if the merchants would all come to the determination not to advance after this year a single pound of meat nor a bushel of corn to their customers we can raise all the corn and meat we use in this state and we hope the time will soon come when a farmer will be actually ashamed to have it said that he buys corn and meat.

The Pastor of the Baptist Church and wife are the recipients of a beautiful quilt, presented by the ladies of Verbena Church, with the names of nearly the entire membership written upon it. Words fail to express our high appreciation of such evidence of love and esteem. May our Heavenly Father abundantly reward their labors of love.

We notice among those carried to Montgomery for illicit distilling and charged before other courts with crimes are the sons of some of the best people that ever lived, and our sympathies go out to such.

Surely if young men could realize the sorrow they bring to parental hearts they would face about from the evil way,

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

An Evil In the Land.

The County Courts in our various counties were organized for the purpose of investigating and trying those charged with misdemeanors, thus keeping the counties from the heavier expense of having all such cases go to the Grand Jury. The Grand Juries have acted largely on the idea of ignoring misdemeanor, leaving such matters for the County courts.

Taking advantage of such actions on the part of Grand Juries, those now charged with misdemeanors almost invariably waive trial before County Courts and risk their chances with the Grand Juries. We do not blame those under charges for seeking every possible advantage, but for the sake of justice, for the purpose of keeping down lawlessness we believe the County Solicitors, and County Judges should see that all the evidence on every case going from their Courts should be placed before the Grand Juries, and we think the Grand Juries should sift the evidence and cease to ignore what to them may at first appear trivial causes. A few indictments would do the country good and save large money to the counties.

Very few Americans have any definite idea of the nature and extent of the new markets about to be opened to us in China and our readers will doubtless be surprised to learn the insignificant total of our exports to both China and Japan.

We import from Japan annually about $19'000'000 worth of products and export to that country about $4'000'000 worth of merchandise we send China $16'000'000 worth of goods and take from her about $20'000'000 worth. Now see what Great Britian is doing. Her exports to China amount to about $105'000'000 of which 25 407' 440 are cotton goods.

Her exports to japan are valued at 27'720'000 of which 4'167'870 are cotten goods

It will be seen from these figures that about one-fourth of england exports to China and Japan consists of cotton goods. Our own country with practically a monopoly of cotton' stands in the background, and exports only an insignificant amount to the far east. England fixes the price of our cotton, carries it across the Atlantic' manufactures it and then sells it at a profit on the other side of the globe. The single statement of these facts carries with it the demonstration of our lack of judgement and enterprise. The situation grows more serious now' when we reflect that China is about to be opened to out' side trade. What are we going to do about it? Shall we look back and let England take our cotton and other raw materials and sell them in their manufactured shape to the Asiatics while we export comparatively nothing to the great markets over the pacific

Nor is cotton the only product that should be exported from this country to China and Japan. China especially will need machinery to equip her new factories. She will build railroads, and she will need the products of our iron and steel industries. As a recent writer put it:

If China were as well supplied with railroads as Europe in proportion to area she would have 160'000 miles. If as well supplied as the United States she would have 200'000. If as well supplied as Massachusetts she would have 1'159' 000 or three times the mileage of the world. If China were as well supplied with railroads in proportion to population as North Dakota she would have over 6,000 000 miles, or about seventeen times the present mileage of the world. How to capture the trade of the orient is the problem of the hour england is already in the lead.

Shall we retire from the arena or get ready for a fierce competition with our powerfull rival. Upon our answer to this question our future prosperity very largely depends.

ALABAMA MAKES A RAID

The action of a mob in Butler county which resulted in the hanging of two negro men and three negro woman last Saturday night, will cause a shudder throughout this country and in all civilzed countries to which the news may penetrate. The crime with which the negroes were charged was of the most outrageous character, the the killing of young Murphy and the burning of his body afterwards was cruel and inhuman, the character of the crime was such as to cause a feeling of revulsion and in any court of justice upon a fair trial punishment would have been speedy. The murdered men and women were in the hands of the officers of the county. They were on the way from the scene of their crime to the county jail. One of those accused and said to be the prime actor in the murder of Mr. Murphy escaped but the others were fast in the clutches of the law.

How many of those engaged in this hanging would have been willing solitary and alone to kill one of these negro men or women.

They are no less guilty for going together in a band and violating the law, than if only one had done so. In no aspect of the case is there any palliation for the crime. The effect of mob law is bad in the community where it takes place. It terrorizes those who hold aloof and in a measure brutalizes those who take part in the violence. The press of the country will ring out in denunciation of our State, and and all the people will be held responsible for the lawless conduct of a few. No man can estimate the injury it will do the State for it [illegible] against investment here or removal into our midst.

The people are safe only when the law is respected. Every violation of it is an injury to State and people and such crimes as those perperpetrated on Saturday night in Butler county deserved severest condemnation and punishment. There can be no excuse for them and the people must speak out against them in no uncertain terms.

The last Legislature sought to expedite the trial of causes in the court. A new circuit was organized, which took off one of the largest counties in the circuit and on proper presentation of facts a special term could have been held in Butler to bring the murderers of Mr. Murphy to justice.

The men of that county could have been trusted to deal fairly and impartially. Those who took the law in to their hands have made themselves amenable to its penalties.

Governer Oats has offered a reward for the capture of those who have commited this great wrong upon the state and his efforts to uphold the honor and character of the state should be aided and abetted by all good citizens.

A PRIZE OFFER.

Wishing to stimulate intensive farming and cooperative [illegible], The Advertiser has decided to offer a series of prizes to be contested for by its farmer readers. The following are the competitions it has arranged, and the only condition necessary to becoming a competitor is, that the contestant shall be a subscriber to the The Semi-Weekly Advertiser at the time of the award and for six months preceding.

For the largest crop of corn per acre not less than five or more than twenty acres....$75

For the largest crop of clover any variety, including Melilotus, under the same conditions....$75

For the largest crop of Oats, same conditions....$75

For the largest crop of Cotton under the same conditions and the following additional one viz: that the contestant shall not plant more than half the acreage in cotton this season that he did last year....$100

For the largest crop of all four, same conditions governing each....$100

For the largest aggregate weight of five dressed hogs....$75

It will be necessary for each contestant, when making a return of his crops for these prizes, to furnish a full description of his method of cultivation, and feeding, depth of plowing, kind and quantity of fertilizer used, age of hogs together with an affidavit stating the size of his crop number of acres, the amount received if sold, and in case of cotton, the acreage planted last year.

This affidavit must be sworn to by the contestant and two witnesses, befor a duly authorized officer. In case of a tie in the amount produced per acre the largest tract will have the preference, if tracts are the same size, the superior method of cultivation as decided by the faculty of the Agricultural College. The Advertiser is fully convinced that intensive farming is the most profitable, and that deep plowing and rotation are an absolute necessity. It offers the foregoing prizes with the hope that all farmers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida, to which states it is confined, will compete and discover it is right in its convictions. Wherever it is possible, we would like each contestant to strive for all of the prizes and learn how profitable it is to be prepared for any turn of the market. The award will be made January 1st, 1896.

LOST

On April 19, 1895, I lost my pocket book on the road some where between Alpine Church and Clanton, via Clanton Ford. It contained one $5 bill and one $2 bill some small change, and some coppers, one dated 1818. Large new leather pocket book. Any one finding and delivering it to me at Clanton will make himself famous for honesty and I will receive a liberal reward

J. H. Anderson.
